District Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE WMS

The January meeting of Shannonville United church WMS, was held recently in the church hall, with the president, Mrs. Charles Wood, presiding.

After all had been welcomed, the secretary, Mrs. W. D. Robertson, gave the report of the last ten meetings of the year, which showed an average attendance of 18; life members 9; annual 21, making a total of 30. All meetings had been reported in the Ontario Intelligencer.

The treasurer, Mrs. Everett Stration, reported the year's allocation of $200 sent in to the branch treasurer. Mrs. Frank Doxtator, community friendship secretary, reported 112 calls made on the sick, and shut-ins, the bereaved and the newcomers.

Mrs. Archie Greatrix, leader of Spencer's Mission Band, reported 12 meetings and a Christmas party held at her home. The band is self supporting, having paid for their "World Friends" and "Mission Band packet."

Miss Sara Stickney reported for the Missionary Monthly. A report of the flower and card fund was sent in by Mrs. Russel Wescott showing a balance on hand of $19.22.

Mrs. Doxtator, group leader, took charge and read the call to worship, the theme for the month being: "Our Calling." Miss Stickney read several passages of Scripture from St. Luke.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

The Rev. T. Hogerwaard, minister, answered the questions given in the "Missionary Monthly," with helpful explanations to each question, and installed the officers for 1956, asking them to do the work, cheerfully and faithfully, being thankful that they could serve.

Mrs. C. Woods gave an appropriate New Year's reading, and Mrs. Doxtator read a poem; Mrs. Hogerwaard favored with a lovely solo with Miss Stickney as accompanist.

An interesting reading concerning a Christian family who lived in the hills of Korea, and of how they celebrated New Year's day together was given by Mrs. Robertson.

The president tendered appreciative thanks to all who had taken part in the program, and then took charge of the business portion which included the reading of the correspondence; card of thanks from Mrs. Raymond Clarke, and a letter of thanks from Mrs. Stella Breadman for the card of sympathy she received at the time of her mother's death.

It was decided to continue cake sales and hold a supper at Easterlings, and an open meeting next June, inviting the neighboring societies.

Mr. Hogerwaard dismissed the meeting.

Refreshments, served by the group in charge, and a social time concluded an interesting meeting.

The next meeting will be held at the parsonage, followed by the sale of home-cooking.

SCOTTS WMS AND WA

Scott's monthly dinner was called off for the month of January as the congregational meeting is going to be held in the form of a pot-luck supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Sine on January 25.

The ladies gathered for the first meeting of the New Year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edison Sine on Wednesday afternoon.

The WMS president, Mrs. Morley Sine called the meeting to order with a short call to worship.

Mrs. Sine voiced a prayer of thanks for the material things of life, friends and care and guidance through the year just past, and asked for continued guidance and grace and courage to meet whatever 1956 has to offer.

WA.

Mrs. George Pollard, president of the Woman's Association, took charge of the WA business.

The February dinner will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sine. A fee is to be paid to make Scott's (WA an affiliate of the presbytery WA.

The following WMS business was then conducted.

Eight members were present; some of whom paid their fees.

In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. Avery Martin. It was announced that last year's allocation had been met, and the business all cleared up.

Mrs. R. Dafoe, supply secretary, reported that the bale for overseas sent to the Toronto office and the WMS-WA share for postage had been sent in Mrs. Brown in Trenton.

Community, Friendship secretary reported four hospital visits and five house calls since the New Year began.

The society made plans for World Day of Prayer in February 17. It will be held at the home of Mrs. E. Sine and it has been planned to make an effort to get every lady in the community interested.

The chapter on "Canadian Indians" was concluded from the study book, showing vast amount of work has been done by the missionary, ministers, teachers, and nurses. But this is only a beginning. Much more help is needed. At a banquet held in Bella Coola, on the Pacific coast, in honor of the president of the B.C. conference, Chief Sam Pootlas, since deceased, concluded his address by saying, "My people want me to tell you that we still need the help of our white brothers in the church; but we are praying for the time when from among our own people will come teachers for our schools, nurses for our hospitals, and young men to be our ministers."

Collection $2.10. Membership fees $3.60.

Group 2 took charge of the devotional.

Mrs. Farmer explained that thought the work in the church is important, it is not nearly so important or influential as the witness for Christ in and through one's life work. It is there one counts for most, and exerts his or her greatest influence.

Mrs. C. Copeland read Luke 14:24-35; 19:20-31 showing that Jesus likened the influence of christians in the life of the world to salt and leaven.

By discussion it was learned that salt meant seasoning, and preserving and by leaven, is meant increasing, as each Christian gives out influence in ever-widening circles.

Mrs. E. Sine read Luke 6:37-38. From this selection it was learned Jesus requires each one to be loving, generous, forgiving, doing good with no hope of return. Be merciful and judge not.

Mrs. Farmer read Luke 10:38-42. A good deal of discussion on the merits and demerits of Mary and Martha. Them must be time for labor and a time for spiritual nourishment.

In Luke 12:13-21 and 16:19-15 one learns to beware of covetousness; to rather share what one has with less fortunates. One can not be both materialistic and spiritualistic at the same time.

The leader summed up that the only the clergy but every Christian everywhere has his part to play and can do it best in his witness in his vocation.

C.W.L.

DESERONTO — The Catholic Women's League of the Deseronto subdivision held at potluck supper on Monday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. Gregory Gordon. A large number of the members attended and had such a good time that they think they should have them more often.

The regular meeting took place after the supper, and all the accounts for the Christmas gifts to the children and sick members were passed. It was decided to send letters of thanks to all merchants, in town, who so kindly contributed with candies, candy canes, nuts and oranges.

Father Marrin spoke briefly on the "Feast of the Holy Family," and urged all members to try to imitate them and make their home a modern Nazareth.

Mrs. J. F. McNeil offered her home for the February meeting.

The meeting adjourned with prayers for the deceased members.

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

The monthly meeting of the W.A. of Shannonville United church was held at the home of Mrs. Claude Clarke, on Thursday afternoon with 20 ladies in attendance.

The president, Mrs. K. R. Vivian welcomed all, and opened the meeting in the usual manner.

Mrs. Everett Stration took charge as group leader. The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Sara Stickney from Psalm 121. Mrs. Arthur Houston read the lesson thoughts from the devotional leaflet. The theme for the month is, "Kept by the Power of God."

Mrs. Sam Elliott gave a reading entitled "Another Year," and Mrs. Claude Clarke read a poem, "The Master is Coming."

After thanking the group for the devotionals, the president took charge of the business portion. A letter of thanks for the donation sent to the Fred Victor Mission, at Toronto, was read by the secretary; receipts, and thanks from the Salvation Army, Belleville, for the donation to their Christmas Cheer fund.

FINANCIAL REPORT

Miss Stickney, the treasurer, gave a full report of the finances for 1955 as follows: redecorating the inside of the church, $723.80; to Mr. Claude Clarke for expenses, $100 was voted.

Mrs. Sam Elliott reported for the card fund: many cards were sent to an invalid which was members of the congregation; flowers to a sick member; a cup and saucer was presented to a member who was leaving the community; a basket of fruit was sent to an invalid which was much appreciated, and several items of business were taken care of.

Mrs. Claude Clarke, on behalf of the members, expressed appreciation to Mrs. Vivian for her faithfulness and efficient leadership. A round of applause was given, in token of appreciation for the president's service.

Mrs. Vivian read the bulletin from the Dominion Council of the W.A. Names of those on the groups were also read.

The president extended thanks to the hostess for the use of her home, and the afternoon came to a close by the serving of refreshments, and the enjoying of a social time together.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHAT DO YOU WANT—PERFECT SAFETY, OR A CHANCE AT HAPPINESS?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am a young lady who has a very serious problem.

For the past ten months, I have dated a very intelligent young man and he is very good to me. He takes me to the most expensive places, to dinner every weekend and showers me with wonderful gifts.

He has a wonderful job and is studying singing for a career. He told me it might take from two months to two years to reach the point where he could start on his career, and he said he didn't think he should ask me to wait for him, since he doesn't know how long it will take.

Should I keep on going steady, as we are, or should I break away now, which would not be easy as I am very fond of him? — R.D.

Dear R.D.: It all depends on how much you are interested in the young man. If you care enough to go on as you are, in the hope that the day will come when you can be married, then why not do that, fully realizing that you are taking a gamble?

It might be that, if you did this, the young man would become so fond of you that he wouldn't want to wait too long for marriage himself or, if he still didn't want to go as far as marriage now, he might want to make sure of you through a definite engagement, with the understanding that the wedding would take place as soon as his plans were under way. It hardly seems as though this young man would be paying you quite so much attention if he were not sincerely fond of you, so you might very well win on your gamble.

On the other hand, if you want to avoid all possibility of having your hopes dashed, then your only course would be to break up, and the sooner the better. Of course, it won't be easy. But you've got to make up your mind whether what you want is safety, or a sporting chance at what you believe will be happiness. The average person, I think, chooses the sporting chance in a situation of this kind.

Personally, I believe the smart thing would for you not to go out with this young man exclusively, but to have other dates, too. In other words, as the saying goes, "Don't put all your eggs in one basket."

To cultivate some other men friends would have a double advantage. For one thing, it might lead you to a more satisfactory romance than the present one, and, for another, it might give your young man a push in the desired direction if he were to get the impression that he might lose you if he doesn't speak out definitely.

I know what you're afraid of. You're afraid that if you were to go out with some other young man, this one would assume you'd lost interest in him and fade out of the picture. But your reasoning is wrong. No cheap worth having is going to give up without a struggle to hold a girl in whom he's really interested. Nor is he going to strugle to keep her if he doesn't have to—that is, if she lets him feel she'll be ready and waiting no matter what he does.

Why Do They Do It?

If hips are heavy, avoid too-tight skirts. Flattering to slim figures, as shown, they do nothing for the tall figure.

By JEANNE D'ARCY

Why do women hunch over and huddle their shoulders as soon as the weather gets chilly?

It must be a reflex, because it's for sure it won't help ward off the wind. What's more, it works havoc with your appearance. Just visualize Grace Kelly or Queen Elizabeth or any famous beauty hunching against the wind and you can imagine how you must look. Pretty sad!

TOO-TIGHT DRESSES

Why do heavy women insist on wearing clothes that are too tight? Do they imagine for a minute they look slimmer when their dress encases them like a sausage skin? We're especially against too-tight skirts on fatties. When the ladies sit down, the skirt goes up, giving an unappealing show of heavy legs and plump knees.

Why do petite girls hide their cute figures in coats that have as many folds as a tent by Omar? There's not much point to it. How much smarter to show off a trim shape in a form-fitting coat or, if you prefer, a boxy style, to choose one that doesn't look as if it was tackled down by a tailor, wider relatives.

SPECS AND HATS

Why aren't girls who wear glasses more bat-conscious? With specs, you can't be too spectacular in hats.

We were reminded of this when a gal wearing horn-rimmed specs—they're tailored now—came into view with an ostrich-feather hat just short of Merry Widow size. It looked terrible. She might at least have worn dress-up specs to match her hat.

Why do some women feel everything but everything must match? We noted one damsel recently with a purple hat, matching scarf, gloves and handbag. The accessory color was definitely over-done. Her appearance would have been smarter had she limited the bright touch.

CHURCH MISSIONS

Mrs. Frances Wrightman, synopsized United Church Missions along the Pacific Coast." This work was started in 1859 by four Methodist ministers. The Rev. Ebenezer Robson was stationed at Hope, B.C., to minister to the spiritual needs of thousands of settlers, prospectors, miners and adventurers, who had recently discovered gold in the gravel bars of the Fraser and Cariboo Rivers.

Fifteen years later, the Rev. Thomas Crosby was stationed at Port Simpson, which is over 500 miles north of Vancouver.

In 1893, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Russell began work at Ahousat, a fishing village on the east side of Flores Island. The native work was until church union in 1925, when it was a major missionary undertaking of the United church in British Columbia.

Today there are approximately 30,000 Indians in that province and of that number, about 8,000 are the responsibility of the United church. The Indians are inherently religious.

A graphic story was told of Peter Bates, of Hartley Bay, who was blind. These people are fond of music; they have gifts and skills of many kinds and are industrious. The Bella Coola women won praise for a banquet which they served in their church to the Prince Rupert presbytery.

Tribute was paid to the native preachers who have done so much to bring Christianity to their own villages.

Five Mission hospitals are in British Columbia at Burns Lake, Hazelton, Queen Charlotte City, Bella Coola and latty Belle-Bella or Campbell Island. The Rev. Dr. George E. Darby, dean of the medical staff of the province has given 40 years of medical service. Special mention was made of nurse Marjorie McDowell, who served on the staff of Belle-Bella for 15 years as matron.

MANY PROBLEMS

There are many problems to be faced and there were discussed in the chapter by the Rev. W. P. Bunt. The Indians now enjoy the rights of citizenship and there are many ways in which Canadians can help these people. One of the many ideas was that trained nurses from the United church homes would volunteer for service in Indian hospitals.

Dr. MacDonald once wrote that Indian Mission work requires infinite patience, tact and determination, and it is a great challenge to the United church.

A few years ago an Indian chief said, "We will need the help of our white brothers in the church, but we pray that our own people will become teachers, nurses and ministers."

Mrs. Burton Sharpe was in charge of the devotional message and quoted from I. S. Dodd "The New Year's day divides the past from the present and brings us face to face with unknown possibilities." She gave a vivid picture of the new year ahead with the duties, and the work always facing one, but we must never be unmindful of the future. Appropriate hymns and Bible lessons were used with a prayer by Mrs. Holmes.

At the close the pastor, the Rev. W. G. Fletcher, offered a closing benediction and the hostess and her assistants served light refreshments and were thanked for hospitality.

UNITED CHURCH W.A.

FOXBORO — The first quarterly meeting of Foxboro W.A., was held at the home of Mrs. G. Wilson last Wednesday with 27 members present. The president, Mrs. C. Lalton, opened the meeting by reading "Thoughts for the New Year." Mrs. Flanagan read the story of the writing of the hymn "Take Time to be Holy," after which the hymn was sung.

The 23rd Psalm was read in unison followed by a reading explaining the Psalm by Mrs. Jamieson.

A former member, Mrs. MacPherson, remembered the W.A. by sending an appropriate reading on the New Year, which closed the devotional part of the meeting. Thank-you letters were read.

Mrs. Walter Johnston was appointed first vice-president, as this office had not been filled at the annual meeting. It was decided for the three groups to each use one of the following courses as a theme for their programs: Christian Citizenship; Leadership Education, or Co-operation with Christian Education.

The president asked the meeting to divide into three groups and elect their leaders for the year. Group 1 elected Mrs. Shetler; group 2, Mrs. Herbertson; group 3 planned a separate meeting to elect their officers.

Group 2 made plans to cater for a wedding.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served by Mrs. Wilson and helpers.

North Hastings, who gave an interesting talk on "Resolutions" pertaining to the individual branch, as well as the district meetings.

Mrs. Murney Hick, 125 West Bridge Street, opened her home to the members of the Past Noble Grands' Club for their New Year's party. Eighteen sat down to a pot-luck dinner with everything that could be desired to entice the appetite. The turkey was both delicious and plenty of it and was roasted by Miss Helen Miller and carved by Mr. M. Hick.

The business meeting took place with the new president, Mrs. M. A. Large, presiding.

One of the highlights of the evening was the presentation of a gift from the club to Mrs. Irene Aman, who has been elected president of the Department Association of Ontario Ladies' Auxiliary of the Patriarch Militant.

Mrs. Large read the address and Miss Miller made the presentation. Mrs. Aman replied and thanked the ladies of the club for their kindness to her.

Contests and bingo were enjoyed by all with several of the ladies winning the prizes.

Mr. Hick favored with a few selections on the mouth organ and guitar.

Mr. and Mrs. Hick were thanked for opening their home to the club.

Canadian Member Of Fisheries Body Comes Under Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian member of the recently-created Great Lakes fisheries commission Monday was termed unfit for his job by J. W. Murphy, Progressive Conservative member for Lambton West.

He said he was dumbfounded to read a report in which Dr. W.J.K. Harkness, chief of the Ontario lands department's wildlife division, was quoted as saying restocking fish in the Great Lakes is like "spitting in the ocean."

"I would say that he's not a fit member to be on the commission" Mr. Murphy said in the Commons throne speech debate.

Other Canadian members of the six-man Canada-United States commission are Dr. A. G. Blackhurst of Port Dover and Dr. A. L. Pritchard of the federal fisheries department. The U.S. members of the commission, set up last year to seek ways of eliminating parasitic lampreys preying on Great Lakes fish, have not yet been named.

Mr. Murphy said the government should do everything possible to rehabilitate the Great Lakes fish population. Instead of concentrating at first only on Lake Superior, as its plans now call for, the commission also should work on Lake Huron.

Otherwise, the Huron fishing industry would be "sterilized" before Superior was cleared of the lamprey.

Eliminating the lamprey would be of no help to fishermen, he added, unless the lakes then were restocked with hatchery-bred fish.

Buffet Dinner Will Precede 'Tamburlaine'

NEW YORK (CP) — About 70 persons, including Commonwealth members of the Washington diplomat corps, will attend a buffet dinner at the Canadian consulate here Thursday evening prior to the opening of "Tamburlaine The Great" by the Stratford Players.

The hosts will be consul-general H. G. Norman and R. A. MacKay, permanent Canadian representative at the United Nations.

Afterwards, most of the guests will go to New York's Winter Garden Theatre, where the Stratford Shakespeare Festival Company begins an eight-week engagement under British director Tyrone Guthrie.

It will mark the first time that Christopher Marlowe's drama of conquest of tyranny has been presented by a professional company in the United States, and the Stratford group's inaugural American appearance.

The play received wide acclaim during a recent 10-day run at Toronto's Royal Alexandra Theatre.

Police Fire On Demonstrators In Bombay

BOMBAY (Reuters) — Police opened fire Tues. on demonstrators trying to set fire to buildings in protest against a government plan to bring administration of Bombay city under India's central government.

Armed patrols guarded main thoroughfares after riots Monday in which at least one demonstrator was killed.

The riots started after Prime Minister Nehru had broadcast the government's decision to place Bombay under central government administration in the reorganization of India's state boundaries.

The Marathi-speaking Indians who form 43 per cent of its population want Bombay as capital of their new united Maharashtra state. They are supported by left-wing union leaders.

Ship's Skipper Highly Pleased With Performance

HALIFAX (CP)—The skipper of the killer ship that Canada calls the most modern in the world says she lived up to all expectations during initial trials with submarines and aircraft.

Capt. Robert Timbrell of Vancouver said in an interview Monday that the $15,000,000 destroyer escort St. Laurent impressed him with her "speed and ease" during operations.

He said the St. Laurent, first of 16 being built by Canada for its anti-submarine force, proved herself better than anything else afloat for locating, tracking and destroying U-boats.

The St. Laurent arrived here Nov. 3 on her maiden voyage. She was built by Canadian Vickers Ltd., at Montreal and took part in an intensive four-week exercise with submarines, aircraft and surface ships before Christmas. The ship matched wits with British submarines based here, and Capt. Timbrell says "we had no trouble with them."

To Review Evidence

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Roberts Monday ordered a review of evidence in the case of William Backshall, Merriton farmer who was placed on probation for two years for the Christmas Eve indecent assault of two little girls.

Backshall was placed on probation Jan. 4 after he pleaded guilty to the charge and the crown recommended leniency because of his "constriteness."

Mr. Roberts said the decision is being appealed because the "administration of justice on a fair and level basis must continue." The assault occurred at Merriton, near St. Catharines.

W. B. Common, director of public prosecutions in Ontario, was ordered to investigate the case and Backshall's sentence.

The Ontario Court of Appeal will review the evidence.

Evidence Shows Accused Liked Daughter Better

WINDSOR (CP) — A brother-in-law Tuesday testified Fernand Desbiens, 32, charged with murdering his 11- month - old son, always seemed to like his daughter better than the boy.

Giving evidence at Desbiens' Supreme Court of Ontario trial, Harry L. Fredericks, a brother of Mrs. Desbiens, said he stayed with the couple from time to time and noticed Desbiens showed a preference for his elder child, Denise. He said he could give no reason for it.

Desbiens is charged with murdering the baby Sept. 24, 1955. A pathologist, Dr. Douglas M. Mills, Monday said he found four dozen bruises and numerous cuts and scratches on the baby's body. He said the boy died from a cerebral hemorrhage.

The pathologist said he was "wholly doubtful" all the injuries could be caused in a fall from a chair. Police said Desbiens told them this was the cause of the child's death.

Union Protests Installation of TV Viewers

OTTAWA (CP) — Fred Whitehouse, secretary of the Canadian Postal Employees Association, ridicated Tuesday postal workers will protest the installation of TV viewers to check on post-office workers at Peterborough.

"Canadian postal workers don't like it," he said.

He said he is going to Peterborough soon, at the request of the local branches of the CPEA and Letter Carriers Association, to consult on what protest action is to be taken.

In the Commons Monday, Gordon K. Fraser, Progressive Conservative member for Peterborough, criticized the installation as an invasion of privacy.

Peterborough is a training place for postal workers.

ASKS INVESTIGATION

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Nathan Phillips asked Monday for a report on why counting devices have been removed from some of the city parking meters. His move followed the arrest last week of two employees of the traffic engineer's department who were charged with theft of dimes from downtown parking meters. Officials said the counting mechanism was taken out when extreme changes in temperature and rain caused it to jam.

'Real Evidence' Is Claimed Dresden Restaurant Owner Knew About Discrimination

British Travel Agents Criticize Exchange Curbs

LONDON (CP) — Britain's exchange controls were criticized at a meeting of British travel agents.

James Maxwell, chairman of the British Travel Association, said it is easier for a British traveller to take a holiday behind the Iron Curtain than in Canada or the United States.

Holidaymakers are allowed to take $100 to Canada but are limited to a stay of only a few days due to the stiff rate of exchange imposed by the Russians, Maxwell said. "But so far as holidays are concerned, Canada and the United States are behind a dollar barrier which is still as impassable as it was 10 years ago."

"After all we do allow token shipments of Rolls-Royce costing dollars, such as American cosmetics and Canadian furs. As things are now people in Britain can learn about life in America only from the films and 'I Love Lucy.'

'I Love Lucy' is the name of an American TV show popular in Britain.

Factory Unsafe For Employees Court Decision

KITCHENER (CP) — Woodrow Doerr, production manager of Mehr Brass Company in nearby New Hamburg, was fined $50 and costs Tuesday for operating a factory unsafe for its employees.

A counter charge against Nick Eiler, one of four employees, for operating the press without safety ejection guards, also resulted in a fine of $50 and costs.

Doerr was convicted of the charge Dec. 7 following an inspection tour of the plant Sept. 2 by George W. Young of the Ontario department of labor.

Mr. Young testified he found four present being operated without ejection guards. The Factory Shop and Office Building Act allows an employer to file a counter charge if he thinks the employees are responsible for the unsafe conditions.

Eiler was the first of four employees to be tried. A two-week adjournment was granted in the case against three other employees.

Billy Graham Greeted by Many Christians

BOMBAY (AP)—Billy Graham, American evangelist, arrived by plane in Bombay Tuesday night. Despite rioting in many sections of the city Indian and foreign Christians turned out to greet him. They sang hymns and decked him with garlands.

Among those greeting Graham was S. K. Patil, president of Prime Minister Nehru's Congress party in Bombay, Nehru's decision to make the city of Bombay a separate state brought on the rioting.

Graham plans to preach in India for a month. He will visit also in the Philippines, Hong Kong, Formosa, Korea and Japan before returning to the United States about April 1.

CHATHAM (CP) — Crown attorney George Walsh, conducting the prosecution of Morley McKay, a Dresden, Ont., restaurant owner said Tuesday there was "real, first hand evidence" that indicated McKay "was aware of the act of refusing service" to Negroes.

McKay, 57, is charged for the second time with a breach of Ontario's 18-month-old Fair Accommodation Practices' Act.

Magistrate J. C. Dunlap reserved judgment until Feb. 28. He ordered crown and defence counsels to submit written arguments by Feb. 10.

Helen Stevenson, 21, secretary of Toronto Friendly Relations with Negro Students' organization, said she was in the restaurant when University of Toronto student Jack Allayne and Percy Bruce, both 26, who laid the complaints, also were in the room.

HAD ORDERED FOOD

She said she had ordered food and was served when the two Negro students entered the restaurant.

Mr. Allayne and Mr. Bruce testified they walked into McKay's restaurant Nov. 12 and ordered refreshments.

They said a waitress began to prepare the food but after an exchange of glances with a girl who entered from the rear of the place, she stopped. Their customers were served, they said.

McKay then entered the room and pulled the blinds on the window and door.

Mr. Allayne said: "When he came back I asked him again if we could have pie or whether we were not being served because we were colored.

"There was no answer and after asking again, we left," Mr. Allayne said.

Miss Steenson said: "After they left I saw McKay and the cook and the waitresses and the customers who had been in the back of the restaurant all rush to the door and watch them."

She said McKay said: "They're spotters. I didn't think they were at first. Now I know they are."

Mr. Walsh said Miss Stevenson's evidence was "very illuminating."

He said the fact that McKay had come out of the back after Allayne left, and that he had called them spotters indicated he was aware of the act of refusing service.

Miss Steenson said McKay said to her after the two Toronto men left: "We're sorry we've had a little trouble."

"What trouble," she asked.

"NEGRO PROBLEM"

"You know the Negro problem" Miss Steenson quoted Mr. McKay. "We go to school with them, we work with them. We have to protect our daughters from them."

She also said he boasted of beating a charge of refusing service to Negroes in 1955, because they couldn't prove a thing."

McKay was convicted and fined $50 on a similar charge in the spring of 1955 but the conviction later was quashed by County Judge Henry E. Grosch of Chatham when McKay appealed.

McKay pleaded not guilty to the charge Tuesday, it was laid under Section 2 of the act which states it a $50 offence to deny service because of race, creed, color, nationality or ancestry.,

The constitutional validity of the act was challenged by defence counsel William A. Donahue of Toronto.

"The act in question is an attempt on the part of the province to create a new crime. It therefore is ultra vires," he said.

"The main part of the act is clear. It is merely an attempt by the province to regulate restaurants, and hotels and to enact a bill of rights. This the province has no right to do."

Hamilton Police Continue Search For Two Rapists

HAMILTON (CP) — Police, backed by rewards totalling $3,000, today continued an intensive search for two men who are believed to have raped four women in the last four weeks.

The rewards—$2,000 from city council, $500 each from the police commission and The Spectator, a daily newspaper — were offered Tuesday, even as three more incidents were reported.

A young girl told police two men tried to drag her into a car in daylight and a 52-year-old woman reported she was raped in a car by two men Monday night. In the latter case Victor Rogers, 21, and Charles Keddy, 21, were charged with indecent assault.

A second charge was laid against Keddy after he was identified by a 16-year-old girl, the first police Tuesday she was attacked in a car last Thursday.

SEE NO CONNECTION

Police said they believe the two wanted men were not connected with the latest incidents. They are wanted for four earlier cases.

Chief Leonard G. Lawrence said 1,000 circulars bearing an artist's sketch of these two men will be circulated throughout the province.

Meanwhile, he said, citizens are actively co-operating in the search. Police have received tips from thieves and hoodlums offering information. Even they have no use for people who'll pull off stuff like that."

Takes Own Life While Serving Prison Term

TORONTO (CP)—A former Toronto restaurant manager, sentenced last year to Kingston penitentiary for manslaughter in the fatal stabbing of a short-order cook, was found dead in his cell. He had taken his own life while serving the sentence.

Jean Steendarcsy, 41, was serving 14 years in connection with the death of Joseph Maier, 22, following an argument over a 10-cent cup of coffee in February, 1955.

Fellow spotters noted mentality ill and while awaiting transfer from Kingston to a mental institution, he swallowed parts of a cigaret butcher's razor blade in a Kingston hospital in December, he died later with peritonitis.

U.S. Will Rush Electronic Air Control Centres

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — The United States is pushing the building of electronic brain-nerve centres to meet the present threat of potential enemy bombers and the future menace of long-range missiles.

Under test at the Lincoln laboratory here is the prototype of an eventual chain of such units in which computing machines, radar warning systems and communications networks will provide, automatically and almost instantly, information needed for waging air battles.

Officials of the laboratory, run by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said work on other centres will be carried on, even though location of the first unit still is in test stage. They told visiting reporters the "critical nature" of defence needs required immediate start on other installations.

Windsor Council Turns Down Fluoridation of City Water

WINDSOR (CP) —City council Tuesday decided against fluoridation of Windsor's drinking water.

The 6-4 decision turned down a proposal that board of health proceed immediately with a fluoridation plan. It also reversed a council decision on the issue last spring and ended a three-year-old debate frequently marked by bitter contention among legislators and civic groups.

Dr. John Howie, city medical officer of health told council Tuesday night he favored fluoridation.

Dr. Howie said the Windsor plan for which $20,000 was set aside by council last spring, called for increasing the fluoride content of city drinking water to one part in 1,000,000.

He said natural fluorides in Stratford's drinking water amount to 1.5 parts in 1,000,000—fifty parts 50 per cent greater.

Opposition to fluoridation was presented by city schoolteacher Fred Burr who said 50 United States communities last year discontinued fluoridation schemes because of complaints from citizens and utility commissions.

He said Detroit statistics indicate only three-fourths of one per cent of that city's water supply is used for drinking and cooking and $1,000 worth of fluoridated water only $3 would be consumed.

Dr. Harold W. Carlson, a Detroit physician specializing in internal medicine, was introduced to the meeting by Mr. Burr. Dr. Carlson said he opposed fluoridation saying fluoridation programs could cause danger for persons in some conditions of health.

"Fluoridation can be safe for teeth but it does not necessarily follow that it is safe for the rest of the body," Dr. Carlson said. "We must be mindful of older people who suffer various diseases."

Chairman Charles Brooks of United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL), Windsor Chrysler unit, also spoke against fluoridation. He said accumulative effects on the body should be taken into consideration.

"I wouldn't want to force people to take fluoridated water without knowing beyond doubt it is safe," he said.

Speaking in favor of the proposed scheme, Dr. William A. McDonagh, city dental health officer, said he wanted to dispel the suggestion fluorides are poisonous in the planned proportions.

"Before fluorides can be used in such a manner you have to have 20,000 parts per million—in other words, nearly 100 tons of fluorides would have to be in a million gallons of water," he said.

The decision came after a 90-minute debate with Mayor Michael J. Patrick and two council members absent in Ottawa.

Dragging Feet in Pursuit Of Business Hotelmen Told

TORONTO (CP)—John Fisher, director of the Canadian Tourist Association, told Ontario hotel owners Tuesday night they are dragging their feet in pursuit of tourist business.

The Toronto broadcaster challenged the Ontario Hotel Association convention to:

"What are you doing to get new business? What are you spending on market research? What new techniques are you developing?

How are you making your hotels attractive to women, who really decide where the family goes on vacation?"

Canadian hotels, he said, are intimidating and dull, particularly in their lobbies. They were behind European hotels "in the little things that matter most" and "many leagues behind the American."

Tuesday the association said the Ontario liquor licence board is using Gestapo-like tactics in the administration of liquor laws.

Roy Crobett, association managing director, said in a statement endorsed unanimously by the membership that hotels are receiving such unfair treatment from the board that many hoteliers were considering leaving the hotel business.

He said: "They (the hoteliers) charge the administration keeps them in a constant state of suspicion from liquor inspectors, supervisors of inspectors, and supervisors of supervisors, apparently all working independently, spying on each other and on the hotel, business."

He said there often was a long time-lapse between an alleged offence and a board hearing on the offence.

"The existing practice of supervision has so aroused owners that numbers of them are ready to throw up their hands and get out of the hotel business because they feel there is a conflict of regulation and interpretation that borders on persecution."

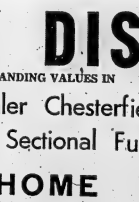
Later Judge W. T. Robb, chairman of the liquor board, denied the charges in an interview.

"So long as the owners of the establishments observe the law," he said, "they will have no trouble."

He said the board's general practice is to act as soon as possible on matters reported by inspectors. The board administers the act, he said, and the penalties it gives are those the act orders.

If hotelmen felt they were too stern, it was a matter for the legislature.

Abominable Snowman Killed in Mountains



NEW DELHI (AP) — Reports reaching here Tuesday night said that an "abominable snowman" had been killed near the Assam-China border.

A regional army officer told Indian reporters that the frontier area that Naga headhunters had killed the creature with a bow and arrow about two weeks ago.

The dead creature was said to have been 10 feet tall, milk white in color and hairless but with human features.

No other details are yet available. Existence of an "abominable snowman"—claimed by many of the inhabitants of remote Himalayan villages—has long been believed in by tribesmen and even some Europeans who have seen mountaineers, but concrete scientific evidence is lacking.

George S. White Wants Release Of Tax Burden

OTTAWA (CP)—The succession duty field should be turned over to the provinces by the federal government, George S. White, Progressive Conservative member for Hastings-Frontenac said Tuesday.

He also urged in the Commons throne speech debate that individual exemptions from the tax on estates be raised. The exemptions of $20,000 for a widow and $5,000 for children of certain ages were too small.

Mr. White said he is most anxious to hear from Revenue Minister McCann who, as at present, an estate of $49,999 is entirely exempt from succession duties while one worth $50,000 is subject to the full amount of the tax.

On veterans affairs, he asked the government to increase ceilings on war veterans allowances to $1,200 a year for single persons and to $2,000 for those married. At present they are $840 and $1,440, respectively.

He repeated a suggestion he has made at previous sessions that Remembrance Day be made a national holiday and be observed as such.

TO CHECK HOUSES

HULL, Que. (CP) — Hull city council Tuesday night ordered fire chief Joseph Giroux to make a complete house-to-house inspection of household heating systems in the city. Thirteen persons have died in Ottawa-Hull area fires since Nov. 1 and uneasy residents have asked for such a check.

Bookmaker's Widow Points Out Inspector as Payoff Taker in Vancouver Probe

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—The tiny, black-clad widow of a bookmaker returns to the witness stand here today to undergo cross-examination by a police inspector.

Mrs. Rose Corning, middle-aged restaurant proprietor, Tuesday pointed out detective inspector Peter Lamont as one of two men to whom she said she delivered "long white envelopes" from her husband.

The other man she picked from packed gallery was Neil McDonald, former gambling squad detective.

Her testimony highlighted the reopening of the public session of the R.H. Tupper royal commission on Vancouver police affairs.

Other developments included:

A charge by newspaper man Ray Munro that former police chief Walter Mulligan operated a fake lottery and that assistant fire chief Elmer Sly was one of the distributors of the tickets.

A statement by Jack Whelan, a beer parlor waiter and former detective, that Chinatown gambling was a $2,000,000 business open run wide open.

A statement by Mr. Munro that "the greatest abortionist in the world operates right across the street from the police station and has done so for 20 years with seeming immunity."

Mr. Munro was the first witness as the sessions reconvened after a three-month adjournment. He admitted under questioning that he is "out to get" former chief Mulligan.

Mrs. Corning said she is the widow of William (Mugs) Corning, "a bookmaker" and that late in 1945 he gave her a white envelope to deliver to a man.

This happened two or three times after month-long intervals, she said, and becoming suspicious, she opened one. She said there was $300 in $20 bills inside.

She said if she could identify the men who picked up the envelopes, Mrs. Corning pointed to inspector Lamont and Mr. McDonald.

Jack Whelan, whose brother Harry, a police superintendent, committed suicide last fall with his own gun, said:

"When lotteries and fan tan were allowed to run in Vancouver, 2,000,000 changed hands in a night." Fan tan is a Chinese card game, banned by the provincial government.

He testified:

"The Chinese were willing to pay $50,000 opening money," to operate unmolested.

The royal commission was set up last July following articles by Mr. Munro in Flash, a Toronto weekly tabloid, and the attempted suicide of detective-sergeant Len Cuthbert.

Even though the more than 9,000 members of the Blood Indian band in southwestern Alberta have a total income of about $1,000,000 a year, Indians still have problems. Once a month the Blood band's council of chiefs meets and Indians from all parts of the reservation flock to Cardston to present their problem for council's consideration. In this photo Mr. and Mrs. Tom Black Horses, who want to meet with council, are registered by Regis Shair, a clerk in the Indian affairs branch. (CP Photo).

Goverment-Held Income Of Blood Indians on Alberta Reserve Totals $765,000

By DAVID OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CARDSTON, Alta. (CP)—Seven years ago an era of easy money was ushered in for the Blood Indians when the tribe decided to utilize more fully the natural resources of its reserve and the talents of its white neighbors.

The 2,361 Bloods, members of the once warlike Blackfoot confederacy, live on the largest Indian reservation, a 553,000-acre patch of lush prairie and foothills land which stretches from here to Lethbridge, 40 miles to the northeast.

The government - held income which they received from the development of the reserve's resources totalled approximately $765,000 at March 31, 1955. This is split up into a pension fund of about $150,000 and a band reserve fund of $615,566. The federal government pays five per cent interest on both funds.

SIZABLE INCOME

Unofficial estimates placed the income of the band and its members this year at about $1,000,000, a drop from previous years because of a lack of grain sales.

This figure includes personal income of individual Blood Indians, but 'about one-third of it comes from agricultural and grazing land leased to white farmers, gale of petroleum and natural gas rights and the sale of gravel.

Larry Hunter, superintendent of the Blood reserve for the federal Indian affairs branch, said the sale of hay and livestock will provide a sizable chunk of income for the band this year.

Last summer the Bloods cut 40,000 tons of hay which will be marketed in southern Alberta for prices ranging from $12 to $40 a ton. The council has placed a $12 minimum price for hay and sold picked up on the reservation. Expectations are that the individual members of the tribe will receive approximately $100,000 from the sale of cattle which range on the reservation.

In the year ended March 31 the band received $265,229 from rentals—that is income which was not earned through the efforts of the individual members of the tribe.

PROGRESSIVE MOVES

So great has been the flow of easy money that the band has developed its own social security, housing, ranching and farming programs and still has enough left over to dole out monthly "interest payments" to every Blood man, woman and child.

In November the payment was $15 and in the months from December to May it will be $10. Thus, in November a family of eight, considered about average for the reservation, would have received a grubstous payment of $120. This, plus family allowance payments, convinced a number of Bloods of the futility of working for a living during the winter months.

In addition to every person over 60 gets a monthly $3 bonus and band funds supplement his other income.

The era of prosperity was ushered in when the band council voted to lease some of the virgin farm land to white operators. Two-year leases were awarded on a bid basis. The operators turn over one-third of the crop they produce on the land to the band and also pay the Indians an annual bonus which ranges from 40 to 80 cents an acre for the privilege of working the land.

A total of 61,000 acres to leased to 13 operators, few of whom are Indians, but most of it to companies or syndicates. Included in this is one Hutterite colony which has leased a 1,800-acre tract.

LEASE SLOWLY

The original idea which prompted the lease of reservation land to white operators was that the Indians would take the land over and work it when the 10-year leases expired. But it is reported few of the Indians have progressed enough to be able to do this profitably.

Prospects are that the Bloods will get even richer as time goes on. An effort is being made to increase the number of livestock, and of late it is confident there is natural gas somewhere on the reserve.

They feel it is only a matter of time before gas is discovered and when this happens the Indians would receive a royalty on all production.

The feeling is growing that this easy money is a detriment to the members of the tribe and that the "interest payments" are an encouragement to laziness.

"They are getting to the stage where they don't want to work. Why work when you can get money for nothing?" asked Rev. M. Lafrance, principal of St. Mary's Roman Catholic residential school.

Heart Foundation Planned to Fight Greatest Killer

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian heart foundation will go into action this year against the disease that is Canada's greatest killer.

The foundation's principal work will be to raise funds for research and other attacks on heart ailments was launched Monday at a meeting of doctors and laymen sponsored by the health department.

A committee was set up to draft a constitution and seek federal incorporation, and the organization meeting is expected to be held at Montreal June 7 in advance of the Canadian Medical Association convention.

Health Minister Martin, who summoned the conference at the request of medical men, said he looks for a three-way partnership in providing funds for the foundation. The partners would be industry, the public at large and governments at all levels.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—
Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In case hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of rectal conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—a discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue in all parts of the body.

The new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H.® Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Ask Half Million As Expropriation Moves Abandoned

OTTAWA (CP)—A Hull hotel has filed an Exchequer Court claim for $512,204 against the crown as the result of two expropriation notices which it says were registered and later abandoned by the government.

The petition claimed the Standish Hall, Inc., has suffered "loss of goodwill, patronage and public sympathy" and loss of revenue as a result of the notices of expropriation.

In 1951, the hotel was heavily damaged by fire. In July, 1952, the petition stated, two notices of expropriation were registered and as a result proposed plans for reconstruction and enlargement of the hotel were abandoned.

For a 22-month period, Standish Hall operated in a makeshift manner, expecting an order to vacate the property, the claim stated. In May, 1954, notices were given that the expropriation had been abandoned.

Cochrane Man Home After Circling Globe

TORONTO (CP) — Seven years of globe-trotting adventure have ended for 29-year-old Don Marwick who has returned to his home in Cochrane.

Mr. Marwick worked his way around the world by airplane, camel, mule cart, reindeer sled, train, bus, snowmobile and jeep. When other forms of transportation were not available, he walked.

During his travels he organized sports in a British holiday camp, helped build air bases in North Africa for the United States, and was combination dishwasher and paymaster at an American iron mine in Africa.

Mr. Marwick visited his brother William in Toronto before going back to northern Ontario.

Recounting some of his adventures, Mr. Marwick said he shared a log cabin with a family in Labrador and spent seven months in the cave dwellings of Berber tribesmen in North Africa.

TRIPLE CEREMONY

In Liberia, he married an English girl—three times. Mr. Marwick said three marriage ceremonies were necessary: one to satisfy Liberian law; one in the British embassy in Monrovia, and one in the chapel of the iron mine where he was working.

Shortly after the marriage, both Mr. Marwick and his wife had a near brush with death when a poisonous mamba slid from between the pages of a magazine Mrs. Marwick was reading. Her husband cut the snake in half with a machete.

ANOTHER GENUINE RAPHAEL DISCOVERED?

Bohumil Zeman, a pharmacist of Cicero, Ill., holds at arms length a painting which art critics believe may be a genuine Raphael, the Italian painter who died in 1520. Zeman discovered the date of the painting, 1507, when he began cleaning it up. The date was found as part of the design of the painting, which was a typical Raphael trait. Zeman's many months of painstaking work cleaning it up may be rewarded. The painting were the Christ Child, the Virgin Mother, Mary and St. John the Baptist. (Central Press Canadian).

SENATOR POULIOT

The song in the program used to ridicule the Senate "was very crazy," said the 65-year-old senator. A copy of the script sent him after the broadcast by CBC Chairman A. D. Dumon said "The Senate is no longer needed."

RITE LANGUAGE

He said the CBC told him language used in poems read on the French network was that of "Tartuffe." Such language, he said, should not be carried on a radio network heard by 3,000,000 persons.

In the Commons, Carl O. Nickle (PC—Calgary South) said the government's dilly-dallying has resulted in mounting opposition in the United States against early approval of Canadian gas exports to the American midwest, part of the long-planned $350,000,000 pipeline project from Alberta to Montreal.

He suggested Northern Natural Gas Co., chief present supplier of the U.S. midwest, be brought into the Canadian gas pipeline deal to lessen opposition to sales of the Alberta product in the area.

Charles Cannon (L—Iles-de-la-Madeleine) said the government should increase family allowances by at least 25 to 50 per cent—if not by 100 per cent. The cost of living had gone up.

SUGGESTS COUPONS

Charles Yuill (SC — Jasper-Edson) suggested rationing coupons with cheques to persons receiving various forms of social security assistance—family allowances, old age pensions and so on—which could be used to buy butter. The government then would redeem the coupons from merchants.

This would help move surplus butter and provide it to persons otherwise unable to afford it. If Canada was going to get rid of butter at "fire-sale" prices, it should do first to needy Canadians.

A. M. Nicholson (CCF—Mackenzie) said Poland is anxious to obtain 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat annually for the next 10 years if Canada would accept some goods as barter. He suggested establishment of an "import board" to work with the Canadian wheat board and determine what Polish goods could be imported without disrupting Canada's economy.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

ONE OF THE BEST!

Way back in the early twenties we were covering a fight in what was then known as Acker's Theatre, on Sackville Street in Halifax. In the ring a broad-chested, flat-nosed lumberjack was destined to become the world light heavyweight champion, was belaboring the bejabors out of one "Red" MacDonald, the pride of Cape Breton.

He was Mike McTigue, who later gained some sort of fame by whamming the daylights (or did he) out of Battling Siki, a Senegalese, on March 17 in Dublin, Ireland. Siki found stabbed to death in a back alley in Harlem, must have been a little loose in the upper storey. No man would dare to even think of licking a hot-blooded Mick in Dublin on the Shrinemth of Oreland—or any other day for that matter.

However, that's another story. Waighing the fight was a broad-chested negro, unrecognized in the wildly-cheering crowd. He was the famous Boston Tar Baby, Sam Langford, who died in extreme poverty the other day, and rated to be one of the most fearless fighters ever to pull on a glove.

Sam was just that. The only thing wrong was that he was born too soon. Boxing hasn't spawned anything in recent years that could carry the gloves of this gallant negro, who never won a title, but who scared a lot of them who were a crown.

Size didn't matter to Sam. He was a little David and many of the Goliaths of his day stayed home with the troops rather than meet him in single combat. He weighed around 145 pounds at that time and never more than 168 at any time.

Sam took on all comers. He whipped the incomparable Joe Gans, one of the greatest of the lightweight kings and he floored such heavyweights as Jack Johnson, Harry Wills and Frank Fallon. He was only 5.7½ inches tall, a pygmy to some of them, but he was scared of none. His bout with Johnson was a classic. The heavyweight was a magnificent figure, a big-pound, six-footer. But he was just another fighter to Sam.

During that fight the "Baby" brought one up from centre field that floored the gigantic Johnson. He was up at "nine" and went on to take the decision on points. He never wanted anything to be handed to him in the future.

They met in a saloon not long after. "Jack," said Sam, "either you give me a match or I'll take off my coat and whale the tar out of you."

"Why, you foolish child," said Johnson. "I gotta long distance phone call coming in. You wait here five minutes and I'll come back and give you a chance at the title." That was the longest five minutes in Sam's career. Johnson hasn't come back yet. Sam never did get a shot at the crown.

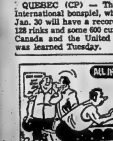
In those days the "white" fighters hid behind the color line —or most of them did. So Sam took on members of his own race. He met Sam McVey 14 times and Harry Wills and Joe Jeannette, a dozen times each. He fought more than 300 fights, and was charged with only 23 losses, three of them by knockouts. Experts of those days figure Sam fought at least twice that number.

The "Baby" had his first fight when he was 14 and weighed 120 pounds. A saloon sweeper, he was doing his job one day when a drunken bully started to "wreck the joint." Sam belied him on the chin—and they dragged the bruiser out by the heels.

Then, of course, there is the ageless story of how Sam was fighting one night when his manager warned him there would not be time to get the next train out of town.

As Sam advanced for the next round he held out his hand to his opponent and said "G'bye, chile." The fighter stared, and said "Huccome Sam, you ain't going no place."

"No," replied Sam, "but you is." He was, and did. Sam knocked out his man with the first punch.



When he was but a youth Sam was whitewashing a cow barn, and while climbing a ladder a pail of lime spilled over him, eating away part of an optic nerve. Twenty years later a blow severed the rest—and the "Tar Baby" was slated for blindness.

That is how he died. Blind, alone and penniless. He was supported by a trust fund started by a sportswriter admirer of the New York Tribune. And the man whose terrific ability never won him a ring title and who feared none was later honored when his name was placed in the Athletic Hall of Fame.

Sam never let his approaching "darkness" interfere with his ring activities. The story is told of a fight in Mexico when the referee had to be told to enter the ring for the introductions. He stayed there because he could not find his way back if he returned to his corner. A punch or two by his opponent later gave Sam his bearings. Then, the story goes, he finished him with one mighty wallop.

Muss Patrick, general manager of—New York Rangers, figures Andy Bathgate is playing as well as any right winger in the National Hockey League. He stacks Andy up against such stars as Maurice Richard and Gordie Howe.

Bathgate is going so well with Rangers he has as good a chance as anybody right now of winning the individual scoring crown. A Bluesbirt hasn't done such a thing since Bryan Hextall took that title in the 1941-42 season.

The 23-year-old Bathgate scored another goal Tuesday night as Rangers were held to a 2-2 tie by Chicago Black Hawks. It gave him 13 goals and 33 assists so far this season.

Bathgate is third in the scoring race with 46 points, one behind Montreal Canadiens' Bernie Geoffrion and Howe of Detroit, who share the lead. His 33 assists are tops in the circuit.

IN LAST 2 MINUTES

The second-place Rangers were on their way to their 23rd victory of the campaign when Bathgate broke out with two goals in the last two minutes of the encounter. Andy Hebenton tallied the other Ranger goal. Eddie Litzenberger and Ted Lindsay replied for Hawks.

A small gathering of 5,345 fans were on hand for the game, played at Omaha as part of a campaign to get American cities interested in hockey.

Hebenton made it 1-0 at 18:30 of the first period. Bathgate, in his second game with Ranger, sent New York into a 2-0 lead at 15:07 of the third period on a breakaway rush with Gordon Glen and Bill Gadsby.

The Hawks drove back at 18:06 making it 2-1 on Litzenberger's goal and deadlocking the game at 19:56 with Lindsay's counter.

The tie gave Rangers 31 points and left them six behind the league-leading Canadiens.

EIGHT IN SUCCESSION

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Folks in nearby Welland call Syracuse Bruce Stevens the Impregnable Iceman.

Stevens is goalie with the Virgil Cubs of the eight-team Independent Lincoln Hockey League. So far he has recorded nine shutouts, eight of them in succession.

Fans account him largely responsible for the Cubs' league-leading position. The team has won 19 games and tied one; Stevens has allowed only three goals and his teammates have scored 34.

Stevens recently turned down an offer to play with an Ontario Hockey Association junior C club in the Niagara Falls area.

Rollins Will Report to Buffalo Bisons

CHICAGO (AP) — Goalie Al Rollins has agreed to go to Buffalo of the American Hockey League and will report to the club immediately, the Chicago Black Hawks front office said Tuesday.

Rollins showed up at the Hawks' office about 24 hours later to discuss the move that sends him to the minors after six seasons in the National Hockey League.

The 29-year-old goalie, replaced in the Hawks' pets Jan. 4 by Hank Bassen, brought up from the Buffalo farm, was scheduled to confer with club officials Monday. He failed to show up.

Rollins had indicated he would quit hockey rather than report to Buffalo. Black Hawk officials said he has a no-trade or 24-hour recall and will play his first game with the club against Hershey Saturday.

Yankees Will Win Pennant Says Mantle

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle was rolled into the operating room at Columbia Hill Hospital today to undergo a tonsilectomy but before the surgery he said:

1. That his contract has been returned unsigned to New York Yankees; 2. That his leg misery which hampered his play in the world series is fine; 3. Yanks will win the American League pennant again this year.

The husky outfielder said he will tell general manager George Weiss he wants more money. He hastened to add that he's not a holdout, and that he may sign before leaving New York.

Weiss, it was believed, offered Mantle about $50,000 and Mickey would like something closer to $30,000.

FAREWELL APPEARANCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fabulous Stella Walsh, who has been breaking records for a quarter of a century, makes her farewell appearance here Saturday in the 1956 women's national indoor track and field championships. She is 44.

Miss Walsh won't be going to the Olympics, as the native of Poland, she is ineligible to compete for United States. But she plans to try to show up some of the upstart youngsters who have been making inroads on her old records.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Golf Writers Association of America Tuesday named President Eisenhower winner of the Ben Hogan Trophy for 1955.

The trophy has been awarded annually since 1953 in a poll by the golf writers' membership to a golfer who has proved an inspiration by overcoming physical adversity or handicap and continuing to play golf.

The award is in honor of Hogan who recovered from a near fatal auto accident in February, 1949, to continue winning major titles.

Maroons Score 6 in 3rd to Whip Dogs Indians Tie Mercs 7-7 in Overtime

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons are in last place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League but they are making things rough for the other clubs.

Tuesday night at Windsor, Bulldogs had a 5-2 lead at the end of the second period but Maroons roared back with six goals in the final period to win 8-6.

In the other OHA senior A game, Stratford Indians scored with 34 seconds left in the overtime period to gain a 7-7 tie with Owen Sound Mercurys at Owen Sound.

Danny Blair paced the Maroons' third-period uprising with three goals and he set up a fourth. Dick Chalmers, Eric Unger, Ted Power, Lloyd Ferguson and Graham Joyce scored the others. George Gee counted three times for Windsor with singles going to Andy McCallum, Ralph Willis and Bob Brown.

The win moved Maroons, who have 20 points, to within three points of fourth-place Owen Sound. Stratford widened its second-place margin over Windsor to three points. Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who are overseas representing Canada in the Olympics, lead the league with 48 points, 11 more than Stratford.

Maroons led most of the way but Mercurys took a 7-6 lead early in the overtime session. Pete Kowalchuk deadlocked the score at 9:24 of the extra stanza.

Three times Indians held a two-goal lead and on each occasion Mercurys bounced back to tie it. Owen Sound outshot Stratford 38-31 but Don Head played fine hockey in the Indians' net.

Right winger Jack Stoddard, stalined Tuesday's doubleheader from Providence Reds of the American Hockey League, scored a goal and added an assist. Jerry Reid, with two, Jack Hamilton, Vern Gardiner, Jack Taylor and Jules Lumley were the other Mercury marksmen.

Tommy Walker tired three Stratford goals. Mickey Roth, Billy Flick and Harry Fautka added the others.

Big Four Regulars Drafted By National Football League

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Three veterans of Canadian professional football and at least nine graduating college star who has signed a Canadian contract were included among a host of players named in the National Football League draft meeting here last night.

NFL club owners, staking out bargaining rights to the pick of United States college football's class of 1956, had chosen 341 players when they adjourned for the night with another 120 to go before they completed the job today. At the two-thirds mark, they had picked the following players to whom Canadian clubs claim prior rights:

Halfback J. C. Caroline, former Illinois star, who joined Montreal Alouettes by way of Toronto Argonauts after being declared scholastically ineligible by his college last season, drafted by Chicago Bears.

BY THE LIONS

Fullback Tom (The Bomb) Tracy, who left the University of Tennessee to join Ottawa Rough Riders last season, drafted by Detroit Lions.

Halfback Dick Shatto, who has been with Edmonton Eskimos the last two seasons after leaving the University of Kentucky, drafted by Los Angeles Rams.

Halfback Bob Moss, signed by the Alouettes Monday after completing his college career at the University of West Virginia drafted by Cleveland Browns.

Caroline, Tracy and Shatto would have to sign contracts after they had completed their college courses.

There was a possibility that additional NFL draftees might have signed contracts in Canada. Some clubs in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union and the Western Interprovincial Football Union have not made public the names of U.S. players signed since the season ended last fall.

For the first time since 1951, when the Canadian leagues began competing with the NFL for college talent, an effort was made this year to avoid the inter-league difficulties the other years which have occasionally ended in legal action.

The NFL, hampered in its activities by the operations of Canadian scouts at the end of the annual January draft meeting, ran off the first three rounds of the current draft Nov. 28, giving its member clubs an opportunity to acquire the top college talent more than six weeks earlier than in the past.

And in advance of Tuesday night's fourth round, NFL commissioner Bert Bell said: "All of the players reported to have been signed by Canadian clubs . . .

There was little indication of the intentions of the NFL clubs claiming draft rights to the men who have signed Canadian contracts, although Coach Curly Lambeau of Normandin of the Alouettes said he had been assured by general manager George Halas of the Bears that the Chicago club's list of Caroline was "just a formality."

WENT TO MONTREAL

A 1954 all-America choice, Caroline signed with the Argonauts after a reported $17,000 salary last fall. Crippled by injuries, he was released by the Toronto club and went to Montreal, where he finished the Big Four season with a total of four touchdowns for 20 points.

Like all professionals, Caroline was signed to a contract including an option agreement for his services in the following year.

Normandin said the Alouettes "definitely have a contract" with Moss, who was Cleveland's first choice when the draft resumed last night. The Montreal club official said the Alouettes would await Bell's decision on allowing the Browns to approach the backfielder.

Tracy, a place-kicking specialist in the Big-Four league last season, picked up 40 points in 12 games last fall, mostly on converts and field goals. General manager James P. McCaffrey said the Riders, too, would "wait and see" how Bell handles the case.

Meanwhile, clubs found two clubs bidding for his services barely a year after he had been fired by one of them. Together with the rest of the Argonaut imports of 1954, Shatto was on hand after contributing seven touchdowns to a last-place club as the management announced a drastic rebuilding program.

HAD TO RESIGN

The Argos had to rehire Shatto after overall they're building when they aroused almost unanimous hostility in Canadian and American club-owners alike by luring away several players under contract to NFL clubs. Used sparingly last season because of injuries, Shatto's services was limited to a single touchdown.

Other draftees reported without confirmation to have been signed by Canadian clubs were Calvin Jones, an Iowa guard picked by Detroit, who had been listening to offers from Toronto, Ottawa and Hamilton; Jim Bowden and Jerry Hillebrand of Washington, and Jesse Whittenton, a defensive halfback with Texas Aggies, to whom there have been no reports from Canada.

With the cream of the talent selected in the November draft, most of Tuesday night's picks were little-known players or big names unlikely to turn professional. These included Don Holleder of Army and George Welsh of Navy, two of the top quarterbacks of the year, who have military commitments. Chicago Cardinals grabbed Welsh and New York Giants claimed Holleder.

It was not clear whether Bell would compel the NFL owners to honor all Canadian contracts.

After an abortive series of meetings last spring in which the NFL and the Canadian clubs were unable to reach an agreement on honoring each other's contracts, Bell said the NFL would not sanction the signing of players under contract to Canadian clubs which had not been guilty of player jumping.

The Argonauts and British Columbia Lions were the chief culprits in such raids last season.

Sandy Saddler Strong Favorite Over Elorde

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—No odds are being posted on the outcome of tonight's featherweight championship bout here, so strongly is Sandy Saddler favored to defend his title against Flash Elorde of Manila.

Although Sandy is giving away 10 years in age, the only wagering is on when the scheduled 15-round match will end.

Saddler raised his age to 32, three years over the official record-book figures, during his training stint here. Elorde, champion of the Orient, is 22.

The bout will be televised at 10 p.m. EST.

NOT RECOMMENDED FOR IMPROVING THE PROFILE

John L. Sullivan's profile gets a beating here, but he retaliates in kind to the face of his opponent, New York's Tony Johnson, left. Sullivan, former British middleweight king, won a split decision in their 10-round light-heavyweight bout in New York city. (Central Press Canadian).

Canadian Pro Football Unity Tops Historic Huddle Agenda

WINNIPEG (CP)—Unification of Canadian professional football tops the proposals to be discussed by the heads of the Big Four football clubs during a historic football huddle in Winnipeg this week.

The proposals, including formation of a Canadian Football League and a standardized schedule, would see a joint draft list of college players and the appointment of a national football commissioner.

It will be the first time that the two leagues have gathered in a joint session.

Although no official agenda has been announced as yet it was understood the two leagues will hold their annual meetings at the same time Thursday and Friday before they get together for a joint session Saturday. League officials will meet separately Sunday, then hold a final joint session Monday.

Officials of the Big Four met in Toronto last Saturday but reached no decision on the new-look schedule. Ralph W. Cooper, league president, said the league would meet again tonight before any agreement was reached on a number of matters. Leaders declined to disclose what these subjects were.

The Big Four reviewed the question of a National Football League, adoption of a joint draft list of college players, a joint import negotiation list, split gates and the appointment of a czar to rule on ruling body with separate commissioners for each league.

Reports of official statements emerging from WIFU centres indicate the western clubs will run into difficulties in nailing down the plans on their platforms.

In Winnipeg Tuesday night the executive of the Blue Bombers announced its recommendations to be submitted to the league Thursday. They include one national league, an interlocking schedule and an annual Grey Cup game alternating between East and West.

But British Columbia Lions and Edmonton Eskimos said to be against an "interlocking schedule. Lions general manager Phil Watts said following a club meeting earlier this week that its delegates will vote against any such proposal unless "convincing reasons are given to show that it is utterly necessary for the betterment of football."

An Eskimo spokesman said that if the clubs from the two leagues don't regularly during the season it would take the edge off the Grey Cup. It was felt the western clubs, unlike those in the East, don't need any incentive to keep their stadiums filled with fans.

The Eskimos are said to be in favor of a football commissioner and one governing body, within the ranks of the Canadian Rugby Union to handle all affairs of the two leagues.

Edmonton favors national negotiation lists in Canada. But Winnipeg is going one step further; the Bombers will propose a Canadian draft of United States college players similar to that used by the NFL in the U.S.

Ralph Cooper, NFL will ask for a continuance of the 12-man import limit but will urge the same limit be applied to the Big Four. The eastern league operated with 10 imports in 1955.

Teeps Trim Cubs for Two in Row As Biltmores Clobber Canucks 6-3

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

In less than two months St. Catharines Teepees have climbed from the bottom of the Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate A League to the top. They still seem to be on the way up.

Teepees gained their second win in as many nights Tuesday night when they defeated Hamilton Cubs 6-3 at St. Catharines. The win moved the leaders four points ahead of second-place Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks, who were defeated 5-3 at Kitchener.

Biltmores' win moved them into a fourth-place tie with Toronto Marlboros. Each team has 16 points. In other games, Toronto St. Michael's Majors and four behind Canucks, Barrie Flyers are in sixth place with 23 points, two more than Hamilton.

St. Catharines took a 3-0 lead in the first period and led 3-2 after the second. Ron Rachel tied the score 3-3 early in the third frame but Teepees' final three goals to clinch the win.

Ed Hoekstra and Art Stratton each tallied a pair of Teepee goals with Don Carter and Bob Butler getting the others. Jerry Sullivan, Jack Handrickson and Lloyd Haddon counted for Cubs.

Lethwinger Rachel Shack sparked the Guelph attack with three goals. Defenceman Don Howell scored a pair and Danny Belisle provided the other. Stan Balcik, Walt Bradley and Bob Duncan scored the Canucks' markers.

Canucks went ahead 2-1 during the first period but Guelph tied it up with the only goal of the middle frame. Biltmores rallied for four goals in the final 20 minutes.

Canucks' coach Jack Stewart removed goaltender Gordie Dutzow with one minute and 40 seconds left and the score 6-3 for Guelph. Howell batted a shot off the boards from deep in the Guelph end of the rink into an empty net. He added Biltmores' final goal on a breakaway with only three seconds remaining.

'Parent' Guild Will Continue To Operate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The International Boxing Guild, its president said flatly Tuesday, "will keep right on operating."

Charley Johnston, IBG chief, refused equally flatly to have any further conversation on the matter and refused to admit an Associated Press sports writer to his hotel room.

"I'm not interested in talking about it," Johnson said over the telephone. "There's nothing to talk about."

Johnston admitted he had wired his resignation as a member of the Boxing Guild of New York to Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York state athletic commission. The New York guild is an affiliate of the International.

"Yes, I am president of the International guild," Johnston said, "but I'm only a member of the New York guild. That's what I resigned from and I have no comment to make on anything else."

The International guild is under federal indictment on charges of violating the anti-trust law.

New York Guild Manager Slate Is Cleaned

NEW YORK (AP)—Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York state athletic commission, said Tuesday a few additional resignations had "cleaned the slate" of New York guild managers who had been members of the banned Boxing Guild of New York.

Helfand had set a Jan. 16 deadline for all managers to quit the guild or lose their licenses.

Tiger-Cats Sign Two Halfbacks

HAMILTON (CP) — Coach Jim Trimble of Hamilton Tiger-Cats Tuesday night announced the signing of two American halfbacks to the Ontario Rugby Football Club.

Lined up for the 1956 season were Tex Robinson of Temple University and Ralph Trawick of Texas University.

Robinson was signed last season by former TiCat coach Carl Voyles. He later went to Cleveland Browns of the National Football League and was dropped because of an injury. Trawick was a draft choice of Philadelphia Eagles two years ago.

Italians Beat Others to Punch In Cortina

By STAN SWINTON

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—What started as a minor squabble erupted into a major and bitter dispute today as visiting teams harassed the International Olympic Committee about Italy's early access to the Itsky bobsled run.

Art Tyler of Rochester, N.Y., the usually soft-spoken veteran of the U.S. squad, said the "committee fumbled" official handling of practice runs over the course. Other foreign entries agreed.

The foreign teams had been notified the Olympic bobsled run would be opened for practice Jan. 17. But when they arrived, they found the Italian team had been practicing over the run since Jan. 6.

"It's questionable whether with the limited amount of practice time left it's still possible we can overcome the Italians' advantage" said Tyler.

The U.S. had been favored with Italy and Switzerland in the final race, starting Jan. 27, but if Italy has the favorite role all to itself now, particularly since its top driver, Eugenio Monti, got a course record for a two-man sled Tuesday in 1:32.86.

Other drivers attributed the record to the fact Monti has made more than 60 runs down the tricky course while they have had no more than four shots at it. Some took their first trip down the run Tuesday.

British, Swedish, Rumanian and Swiss entries echoed Tyler's complaint. One Swedish official said: "I don't see how we have a chance to catch up with the Italians now. In the bob, knowing the course is as important as it is for golf."

FEE-RACE TRAINING

An Italian Olympic official said the run had been kept open for the Italians because "it was simply pre-Olympic training on their home run. Other competitors could train in their countries just as our men trained here.

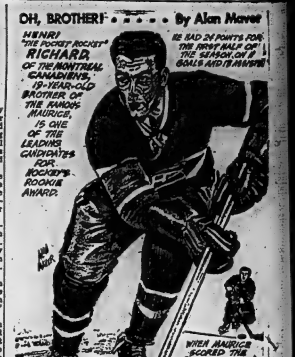
Foreign entries are not happy with the arrangement. They insist bob runs are not available in many of their home countries. Britain and Belgium, for example, have no bob runs at all.

"Besides," said one disgruntled driver, "the important thing is to know the course where you'll race —not the course back home."

Athletes Stream Into Cortina

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—Scores of athletes streamed into little Cortina early today, raising to 30 the number of countries already represented for the winter Olympics.

A 56-member U.S. contingent arrived this morning along with 37 Finns and 23 entries from Sweden.



The Olympic Games—on skis and skates—are set for Jan. 26 and will close Feb. 5.

Russians Will Dominate Games Says Official

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union will participate in an "overwhelming majority" of events in the Olympic Games at Melbourne, an official said Tuesday.

Nikolai Romanov, chairman of the Soviet sports committee, told a press conference the Russians probably have no use for field hockey and another event or so.

He added Soviet athletes would be chosen on the basis of eliminations but was unable to give the approximate size of the team.

Earlier Romanov announced that the Australian Olympics Committee has told Russia that the government has no objection to Russian participation in the Games although Australia and the Soviet Union severed diplomatic relations in 1954 over the Petrov case.

Australia granted Russian emissary secretary Vladimir Petrov political asylum after he reported the defection of a Russian spy ring in Australia.

WILL GIVE OATH

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—For the first time in the history of the Olympic Games, a woman competitor will pronounce the Olympic oath, formally opening the 1956 winter Games.

She is Giuliana Cheval Minuzzo, who placed third in the women's downhill ski event at Oslo in 1952, and this year is considered Italy's best hope in Alpine skiing.

The Olympic Committee also announced Tuesday that a skater, instead of the traditional skier, will put the Olympic torch in its tripod at the Jan. 26 opening ceremony.

'NBC Comedy Hour' Failed to Get Off Ground Second Time

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — As noted here a week ago, the first "NBC Comedy Hour" failed to get off the ground. It's sad to report, but neither did the second.

It's said, because a lot of money was spent on a lot of talent in an effort to be entertaining.

Seldom has a show been so belabored by the critics, but before we raise a stick to beat again let's pause and ask: What has happened here?

The man placed in command of this debacle is Sam Fuller. I feel about him as I do for all field commanders ordered to hold or take impossible positions by rear-area high commands. Fuller is fighting valiantly with all the hastily assembled and inadequate forces at his disposal. But the superior resources of Ed Sullivan on CBS-TV are just too much.

BOOSTED TO BLAME

There's not much sense either in blaming Leo Durocher, a baseball manager in civilian life who never had a bapsium of fire as a master of ceremonies. Rather, let's tack the blame to supreme headquarters—to Robert Sarnoff, president of NBC, and Sylvester L. (Pat) Weaver, chairman of the board, where the idea must have been thought up.

Little thorough strategic planning is in evidence there. After Sullivan knocked the Colgate Variety Hour out of the war they apparently decided the only way to beat Sullivan was to do something much like Sullivan's program—Dough with less music. It's as naive as silencing your artillery and saying only your infantry can defeat your opponent's infantry. Then compounded the error by moving hastily and without adequate preparation.

Even more inadequate than Durocher as host of a comedy hour am I as a critic of opera. So let's steal a few lines here from a review of "The Magic Flute" on NBC-TV Sunday by Howard Taubman, able music critic of the New York Times:

"The NBC Opera Theatre' grows bolder and more ambitious, like television itself. From time it was brought into being. In a two-hour broadcast . . . it undertook one of the most difficult of operas, Mozart's 'The Magic Flute.' Considering the problems all of which could be overcome, the opera theatre' turned out a tasteful, warm-hearted and high-minded production. . . ."

But you didn't have to be an expert to appreciate Noel Coward's "Shine, Spirit" on "Ford Star Jubilee" (CBS-TV) Saturday evening. As an actor Coward may have failed to deliver some of the emotional tone of others who have interpreted the role of a husband haunted by two wives. But blessings on him for writing this spritely play and bringing it to television.

NOGAREEMENT

SARNIA (CP)—Application for conciliation has been made to the Ontario labor relations board by Sarnia General Hospital and Local 200, Building Service, Workers' Union (AFL-TLC), it was reported Monday. The 160 union employees and the hospital have failed to reach agreement in a wage and work-week dispute.

Movie Column

Many Hollywood Studios, Especially RKO, TV Conscious

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Now the tall is wagging the dog.

Television used to be a dirty word among the movie studios. Film bosses spoke of the tiny screen only in terms of disdain.

Look at them now! The studios are scrambling to cash in on the TV-addict beat of them are making films for TV, several are selling their features and shorts to the new medium, and all are using it to exploit their new pictures.

The most TV-conscious of the lots is RKO, which has already sold its old pictures to TV. Heading the studio is Daniel O'Shea, former Selznick executive most recently with CBS. His production chief is Bill Dozier, another film veteran who served with CBS.

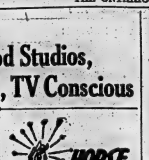
Dozier is outspoken in his regard for TV as an aid for films: "I believe that television is the greatest developer of talent this country has ever known. Even more than vaudeville, which developed mostly entertainers, TV has provided training ground for actors, writers, directors, producers in comedy, drama and all fields.

"And look at the material TV has produced. MGM alone has bought 'The Rack,' 'The Catered Affair,' 'The Last Notch' and 'Fearful Decision.'

"The most outstanding example is 'Marty.' I hope it wins the Academy Award this year; it deserves to. Perhaps that will convince the producers of the value of TV."

SETS TOO BIG

But it's not only TV talent and material from which movies can profit, added Dozier.



"Most film sets are too big. You catch only a glimpse of them in the long shot, then the camera comes in for closeups. You spend a lot of useless money in building those sets, plus the expense of lighting them and filling them with enough extras so they won't seem empty.

"Of necessity, TV learned to do without big sets. It was impossible to have them in the early days. So if you had a scene in a restaurant you showed a booth, not the whole place.

"And the public didn't care. They're interested in the characters and what is said, not in how big the set was.

"Also, I think we can learn a lot from TV in speed of shooting. Too much time is wasted in the making of a movie."

Dozier said that many film producers still have an ostrich attitude about TV. "You mention Art Carney and they ask who he is," Dozier remarked. "That's ridiculous. A fellow who is seen by 40,000,000 people every Saturday night cannot be ignored."

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

From what some opponents do to you in a bridge game you could go crazy. Experts often do when they play against a palooka pair in an important tournament match.

West was a dub against the topfighters in this deal:

NORTH
♣J 9 7 6 5 3

WEST
♠K 3 2
♥K 9 7 6
♦A K 6 3 2

EAST
♠8 6 4
♥J 10 8 5 3 2
♦Q 10 7
♣K Q

SOUTH
♠10 9 7
♥A Q
♦J 8
♣A K Q 10 4 2

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 Club	1 Spade
2 Clubs	4 Clubs
5 Clubs	Pass

After the four clubs by north, south considered asking for dope about slam. But something told him to let well enough alone. So all he did was contract for the game.

The west opening lead was a surprising thing. It was the spade trey. Now, how in the world is a declarer going to figure that one. It's a singleton, which such a player usually favors?

Surely it would not be led away from a king, south considered. In either case, therefore, east probably has the king. If so, the finesse in spades will lose and so will two diamond tricks.

Figuring thus, a safer bet would be to finesse a heart and get a diamond sluff to make the contract. So, declarer hopped right up with dummy spade ace and pulled opponent trump with dummy jack.

Dummy then led a heart and finessed the queen. West won this with the king and broke declarer's heart by cashing his spade king. Then two diamonds were taken to throw him for a two trick loss.

Although disappointed in his own result, south complimented west on the clever lead. "I did not intend to be clever," west replied. "Was my proper lead this king?"

You will now find the declarer in ward seven.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, January 19, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Good and less friendly aspects both channeled through today. Do not be sharp in answers or impatient with others less quick than you. We must produce results that are rightly acceptable.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Don't countenance the thought that people or circumstances are working against you. Show your intimately fine nature at its best, smile and be patient, you will not only help yourself but others.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — With deft, tolerant mind and hands you can earn new credits, advance for better recognition and surer gains. Go sufficiently slowly not to make needless errors. Promote your top qualities.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Prospects closely identified with Taurus'. Be prompt, unworried as you tackle both small and big jobs, and be patient with details. You can really accomplish new.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Military interests, chemicals, handling machinery and the more intricate study of atomic energy, electronics, will highly honored now. Be tolerant, careful in artistic professions.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Be spritely, ambitious for the benefits that can be attained, but also think of health and nerves and don't undertake too much. Apply yourself. Your best interests, matters you can do well.

September 24 to October 24 (Libra) — You have varied talents and general know-how for remodeling, improving, correcting faulty work. Very valuable assets especially today. Take time to handle all with your usual skill.

October 25 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Be your acquisitive and rightly ambitious self but at same time freely accord others the rights and privileges you wish. All lines of useful and worthy endeavor favored at least in part.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Calm, solid thinking important to your best interests. The principal of everything you do is more essential than how it "may look." Package it well, too. Take time to reflect.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Do not be restless if results don't show immediately. Many truly important undertakings took considerable time to grow. Better to have a well finished product at the end.

January 22 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Stars favor many professions and mechanical interests, and selling, buying things that will add to truly better living, give others happier outlook. Don't neglect family happiness.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Promising planetary setup for some advancement, fresh opportunities in activities for which you have especial talent, education, training. Study, research, teaching among to be honored.

You born today are fond of leadership, can manage groups of people, organize undertakings if you will remain tolerant and patient with all. Curb any tendency to extravagance or being too skeptical. Develop your innate sense of humor and don't show a too serious face to humanity. May have to work hard to achieve desired results but you can, and we always enjoy better when we honestly earn. Heed advice of those qualified to give it; heed results of your, and others', experiences. Always seek God's help and guidance and you won't go wrong. Birthdate: Robt E. Lee, Amer. Confederate leader; Edgar Allen Poe, poet, fiction writ; Jas. Watt, inventor of steam engine.

WARNING STATIONS DOT NORTH

One view of Canada that few natives ever see is the far north spots picked as stations in the mid-Canada early warning radar line. Should war develop, these stations would be the country's principal hope of early warning of air attack. This lakehead site is about 700 miles north of Montreal and, with three tents and a prefabricated shack, it houses half a dozen men and supplies for other stations built on hills and serviced by a helicopter. There are two types of sites chosen; the hilltop station and the lakehead, the latter being a supply depot easily accessible to amphibian planes, helicopters and boats.

Helicopters are the only source of supply for the hilltop stations of Canada's early-warning line. The men stationed there have only the barren hills and innumerable lakes to view as scenery, and in winter there is only snow and ice as far as they can see. Before the mid-Canada line was started, a complete aerial mapping job was done from one shore of Canada to the other. Total cost of the line to Canada is $17,000,000. (Central Press Canadian.)

World Newsprint Use Will Double In Next 25 Years

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's newsprint industry estimated today world demand for Canadian newsprint will double in the next 25 years with shipments rising to 12,800,000 tons a year by 1980.

It forecast also that the Canadian pulp and paper industry, representing $2,000,000,000 in capital will have to spend $4,000,000,000 in the quarter-century to expand production to meet the anticipated big consumption rise.

R. M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, told the Gordon economic commission in a 50,000-word brief that Canada's forests are capable of turning out the required increase in pulpwood provided the federal government cooperates in forest management through tax incentives and other measures.

But Mr. Fowler warned that too much "unbridled abuse" by Canadian and American politicians and publishers may cause some producers to turn from newsprint to other forms of pulp and paper production.

EASY PUBLICITY

A recently announced price increase brought criticism from both sides of the border. Premier Duplessis has prepared a bill to control newsprint prices and deliveries to Quebec newspapers.

"Newsprint is a politically explosive commodity," Mr. Fowler said. "... The easiest way for an American congressman or senator to get his name into American newspapers is to make some statement—any statement—about newsprint.

"There is a certain cheap and easy appeal in proposals to make the U. S. (which gets about 30 per cent of its newsprint from Canada) more self-sufficient and independent of foreign suppliers." he added, maintaining that economic isolationism still persists in the U. S.

Mr. Fowler also turned criticism on federal anti-combines laws and the courts which rule on them, charging they hindered the expansion of Canadian business. Calling for drastic amendments, he said segments of the law are a "blot" on Canadian criminal procedure.

As for those in Canada who continually talked about building up secondary industries, they would lead Canada to disaster if this resulted in restriction on Canadian primary production.

ONE PROTECTION

LONDON (Reuters) — Whitewashing windows is one way to increase your chances of survival in a hydrogen bomb explosion, a British government civil defence manual said today. Outside the 3½-mile radius of total destruction, whitewashed windows will keep out about 80 per cent of the heat of a hydrogen bomb, the manual said.

Little Benny's Notebook

Us fellows were walking to school slow and bragging about different things, such as our mothers, and Glasses Magee said, I bet you any amount of money my mother is the champeen knot tier indeed. She can untye a knott in my shoelace with one hand and reed with the other hand at the same time, he said.

Nobody can beet my mother untying absolooe knotts when it comes to pure speed, Sid Hunt said. Last night I had sutch a fierce knott in my shoelace that I had to pull my shoe off without untying it, and this morning I would have been late for school for sure, trying to get that knott untryed so I could get my shoe on. If my mother hadn't of undid it in about 3 seconds, he said, and Glasses said, How many hands did she use?

Heck, she's only got 2, Sid said, and I said, well talk about quick mothers, my mother can come down and get breakfast redgy in her dressing gown, with her hair full of bobby pins, and before my father has hardly left to go to his office she's all dressed with her clothes all matching as perfect as a picture in a lady's magazine, ready to go downtown shopping, nobody can beet that for speed, I said.

My mother can, Copey Sharky Hudge said. She can come home from downtown just before dinnertime and look in the kitchin closits like lightning before she even takes her hat off, and dinner is all redgy exactly when my father comes home, and it taists swell, too, he said.

Proving everybody's mother is probably grate, and just that we found out what time it was and ran the rest of the ways to school.

Body Recovered

HUTTONVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Searchers Tuesday night recovered the body of nine-year-old James Lockhart, drowned in the Credit river last Saturday while attempting to rescue a friend.

The body was found wedged against the Huttonville dam near this community 15 miles west of Toronto.

Lockhart and Raymond Jopp, 8, were crossing the frozen river when the ice gave way plunged through itself. Lockhart dived to their help but Jopp was carried after he was swept downstream beneath the ice and into open water.

Reluctant Witness Tells Police Probe Of Raid Tip-Offs

Bootlegger's Paramour Testifies at Vancouver

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—A reluctant story of stool pigeons, police raids and tip-offs was told here Wednesday by a woman brought under guard from Oakalla prison farm.

Norma Moore, who said she had been common-law wife to Joey Celona, "a bootlegger," told her story to the R. H. Tupper royal commission inquiry into police affairs.

She was one of more than half a dozen witnesses who testified. Under questioning by Vic Dryer, associate commission counsel, Miss Moore admitted a long record of narcotics and vagrancy offences.

AGAINST HER WILL

"You have been brought here against your will?" Mr. Dryer asked.

"Yes, that's right," she said. Mr. Dryer told Mr. Tupper the witness had refused to make a statement.

She said that during the time she was living with Celona, she saw several police officers on the premises, seeing him there as "Len Cultbert, Pete Lamont, Mr. Daigle and Harry Horne."

"Were they every any raids?" "Yes."

"Were they successful?"

"Not while I was there."

"Why not?"

"He knew they were coming." "Did Celona ever tell you he knew they were coming"

"Yes."

KNEW IN ADVANCE

She said police sent "stool pigeons" into Celona's establishment, a block away from the police station, but he always knew in advance.

The evidence for which Miss Moore is serving her sentence, and the length of that sentence, was not disclosed.

Others who testified at Wednesday's session—the second since the hearings reconvened after a three-month adjournment — included detective sergeant Len Cuthbert; former police reporter Neil McDonald; Stanley Cornish, bookmaker; Nick Madiuk, former Calgary man and convicted bootlegger, and former detective Neil McDonald.

Mr. Snider denied under questioning any money passed to police and said he had never met former police chief Walter Mullin.

Detective-sergeant Cuthbert, making his seventh and probably last appearance before the commission, said he wanted "to clear" four members of the 1940 gambling squad.

In testimony last July, the sergeant said he had shared graft money "with members of the squad (and Local)." At that time, he said he split $500 payoffs "50-50" with detectives.

Wednesday he named four detectives and said he wanted to have no impression that those men" ever took a bribe.

CCF Making Major Issue of Harvard Export

OTTAWA (CP) — The CCF is making a major issue of the export of 15 Canadian Harvard training planes to Egypt.

In the Commons Wednesday, Alistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North) said it is "disastrous" policy for Canada to send arms to Egypt, already being supplied armaments by the Soviet bloc.

He asked Prime Minister St. Laurent whether the government will halt the shipment of Harvards which, he said, could be armed and used against Israel or the French in North Africa.

Mr. St. Laurent replied:

"No consideration has been given to the question of cancelling the export permit for these training planes and I know of no reason for reconsidering the matter and coming to the conclusion that the export permit should be cancelled."

QUOTES PEARSON

Mr. Stewart said the prime minister apparently is unaware of the tense situation in the Middle East although External Affairs Minister Pearson had described developments there as "disturbing."

Mr. Pearson informed the Commons Tuesday that the government early last summer approved export of 15 Harvards to Egypt and that three were aboard Bristol freighter Halifax aboard the Egyptian freighter Star of Assuan.

Last week, in reply to earlier questions by Mr. Stewart, Mr. Pearson said he knew of no recent shipments of Canadian aircraft to Egypt or orders for planes from that country.

"There has been nothing but confusion in this government," Mr. Stewart said. "They do not consult with each other. Each goes his own out way and the minister was left in utter and complete ignorance of what is going on."

"There has been nothing but bumbling and confusion in this sorry mess . . . The policy which has been pursued on its face is dangerous and at its worst can be disastrous."

COMMONS DEBATE

The Commons moved through the fifth day of the throne speech debate.

Julian Ferguson (PC — Simcoe North) said the government has been shackled by its immigration policy. Canada, now in an economic boom, has short of people.

There was a "total failure" in immigration by the government when the Second World War. Immigration had been "forgotten" at a time when there was a labor shortage.

Mr. Ferguson described the throne speech as one of "no interest and barrel he had ever heard. In a year of prosperity, there was no incentive or guidance it for the Canadian people. The government was one of missed opportunities.

...VOTE FOR STRIKE

'NEW YORK (AP)—Union taxi drivers Wednesday voted overwhelmingly to authorize a strike if necessary to gain union recognition. Earlier they had staged a partial one day walkout during which was about 30-per-cent effective.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Light snow has gradually spread eastward across Lakes Michigan and Superior and will enter southeastern regions this evening. In northern Ontario the snow is moving eastward more slowly.

Snowfalls are expected to be light, not more than one to three inches in all. Milder weather is expected today and Friday.

Seven Perish in Marmora Township Fire

Mrs. Gordon Jones and her six children died Wednesday morning when their two-story frame home, four miles north of Marmora, was engulfed in flames. Father of the family, Councillor Gordon Jones, was found by the roadside by his cousin, Wilbert Jones, critically burned. He was rushed to Peterborough Civic Hospital. Police Pose Big Question For Gamblers

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Police didn't make any arrests in a "gambling" raid Wednesday, but they created some curiosity as to who might have been cheating.

A squad of 10 officers rushed into a restaurant where 80 men were playing cards. There was no money in sight so there were no arrests. But officers entered the men to stand up, and when they did, an electrical gadget fell to the floor from a man's trousers.

The gadget had been fastened to a garter. Police said its owner used it to signal to a partner, adding:

"There was no question about what it was when this bunch of sharpies got a look at it. . . . They were trying to figure which one of the winners had it strapped on."

Conservatives Inject Young Blood Into Party Leadership

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's Progressive Conservatives have put young blood into their top organization posts and served notice they will aim much of their effort at Quebec province in the next federal election.

In three days of meetings ended Wednesday they unanimously chose persons under 40 to head their three national associations.

Leon Balcer, 38-year-old Commons member for Trois-Rivieres, was named Wednesday as president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, the first French-speaking president—and youngest—in its history.

He told reporters that a major goal in the next election, expected in 1957, will be to win more constituencies in Quebec where he has been party organizer since 1932.

"If we win 25 seats in Quebec we're in," Mr. Balcer said, noting that was the number of Conservative victories in the province when the last Conservative government was power in 1930.

GOOD GROUND

Quebec, with only four conservative ridings at a total 75, was "good ground" for a Conservative election fight.

The two other presidents were chosen Monday at meetings of the Young Progressive Conservatives and the party women's association preceding the two-day gathering of the parent association.

They are Thomas Bell, 33-year-old MP for St. John-Albert, head of the youth group and Elizabeth James, 38, Kitchener, Ont., business woman, the new women's president.

All three presidents plan to travel extensively across the country to spark party organization.

Organization was the foremost concern of the record 800 party members attending the two-day association meeting, described by retiring president George Hees as the kickoff for an election within 18 months. The association is not expected to meet again before the election.

NAVY VETERAN

The new association president is a quiet-spoken lawyer and navy veteran, fluent in English as well as French, who has not made a large number of Commons speeches since he entered Parliament in 1949. He is expected to concentrate on behind-the -scenes organization work.

The association's closing session approved a series of resolutions—recommendations for the party leadership. Most reiterated established party policy.

One charged the government with "utter complacency" in the loss of traditional British markets for agricultural products and expressed concern at the proposed entrance of Canadian trade with the United States.

The association said the party should support potato growers' demands for effective tariff protection "against the dumping of U.S. potatoes." It also approved the party whose policy—calling for immediate cash advances on farm stored wheat and disposal of low-grade wheat in storage as feed grain.

On taxes it urged a 50-per-cent increase in present personal income tax exemptions of $1,000 for single persons and $2,000 for married persons, which it described as "absolutely inadequate."

St. Laurent, Howe, Gardiner Indicate They Have No Plans for Retirement

OTTAWA (CP)—The three veteran kingpins of the Liberal cabinet, set 70 or over, have indicated publicly they have no intention of getting out of federal harness in the immediate future.

Instead, with a general election looming possibly next year, Prime Minister St. Laurent, Trade Minister Howe and Agriculture Minister Gardiner Wednesday night demonstrated preoccupation with party solidarity in the face of that contest.

The occasion was a Liberal party dinner at which some 500 supporters honored Clarence Decatur Howe and James Garfield Gardiner for their 20 years' service in the cabinet.

Mr. Howe, the cabinet's get-it-done man and strong right hand of Mr. St. Laurent, received a mild wild cheering:

"If it my ambition to serve him (Mr. St. Laurent) as long as he serves in the capacity of prime minister."

"Atta boy," someone shouted jubilantly.

Mr. Gardiner, little gamecock who has held the tough agriculture portfolio throughout his 20 years in Ottawa, chimed in:

"So long as we have the present leader of the party, I'm going to be serving either in the government or the ranks of the Liberal party."

Mr. St. Laurent, in fine fettle, seemed to dispel retirement prospects by relating himself with the 20-year records of his two senior colleagues. He said:

"There are still six years before I reach my 20th anniversary."

This brought another storm of applause.

Mr. St. Laurent will be 74 Feb. 1, Mr. Howe celebrated his 70th birthday Sunday and Mr. Gardiner is 72.

BOMBAY RIOTS IN FOURTH DAY; FORTY ARE KILLED

Burn Police Post And Wreck Buildings

By B. S. V. RAO

BOMBAY (AP)—Rioters, looters and arsonists surged through Bombay again today, continuing the four-day outburst of violent protest against making the city a separate state.

An official government broadcast said at least nine persons were killed by police firing into mobs today. Additionally, one policeman was stoned to death by rioters and several members of one family were attacked and killed in their car, other sources reported.

The government report raises to at least 40 the number killed in disorders this week in Bombay state.

Officials here said they believe the Communists are trying to set up a "parallel government" under cover of the rioting.

Responsible citizens made ready to defend this city, India's second largest. S. K. Patil, Bombay leader of the ruling Congress party, said a "peace brigade" of armed citizens will be organized to help the police combat the flaring outbreaks.

Observers called the continuing outburst the most serious in recent Indian history.

WORK IN GANGS

Operating in gangs, the rioters spread havoc over a wide area. Police reported said a group of citizens fought a pitched battle at noon with a mob near Bombay's central railway station.

The disturbances broke out Monday in protest to the government's plan to reorganize the Indian states along language lines. This would make Bombay city a separate small state under the direct administration of New Delhi. Leaders of the demonstrators demand that the city be part of the separate state of Maraiti-speaking peoples.

The bitterest communal attack came Wednesday night in the Sewri slum area, where hundreds of Maratha-speaking Hindus battled police.

Marathi-speaking groups make up about half of Bombay's nearly 3,000,000 population. The other major language is Gujarati. A dozen languages and hundreds of dialects are used throughout India, and the government of Prime Minister Nehru seeks to make Hindi the national tongue for the country eventually.

GOVERNMENT HELPLESS

In New Delhi, a government spokesman said federal authorities were helpless to move in unless the Bombay officials asked army intervention.

Sabotage between Bombay and Poona meanwhile paralyzed rail communication between the major west coast port and central and southern India.

Britons Are Given Grim Estimate Of Effects of H-Bomb on London

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Britain's civil defence planners have brought up-to-date the official manual on the dangers of thermonuclear weapons —and the picture they paint is grim.

The new booklet takes a 10-megaton hydrogen bomb as a "convenient" basis for estimating effects of the heat, blast and radioactivity generated by the explosion.

This size, equivalent to 10,000,000 tons of TNT, is 500 times more powerful as the first atomic bombs dropped 11 years ago on Japan. The old manual was based on the effects of the first bombs.

No room is given in the booklet for choosing a 10-megaton bomb as the example.

"No particular size of hydrogen bomb can . . . be regarded as standard," it says. "Bombs of both larger and smaller types can be made."

It says a 10-megaton weapon could do "irreparable damage" to most of Greater London—a 117-square mile area of 2,322,000 people, stretching 17 miles at its widest point. In comparison a "nominal" 20-kiloton bomb of the size used against Japan would have a range of similar destruction of less than a mile.

It explains that a hydrogen bomb would rip a saucer-shaped crater one mile across when it exploded, and earth and debris gouged from the crater would probably bury everything one-half mile beyond. Twenty miles away, however, one still be danger from flying glass and fire fragments.

At 20 miles, too, the heat from the great fireball could blister the skin of a person standing in the open. Eight miles away, skin would be burned and anyone unprotected within four miles could suffer lethal burns.

The greatest danger would be the potent and persistent radio-activity created by the H-bomb.

Nevertheless, says the manual, there are many simple things to do to save lives, to minimize fire damage and lessen the radioactive hazard.

Get under cover, it tells Britons, and stay there. Don't come out for at least 36 hours.

The pamphlet says the best place to escape the deadly dust is in a cellar, but since most British homes have no basement, it advises Britons to cut a hole in the floor in the centre of the house and dig a slit trench in the ground.

Record Reward Posted For Killer; Girl 10, Missing

Scarf Knotted So Tightly Flesh Is Cut Quarter Inch

TORONTO (CP)—Rewards totalling $7,000, believed the largest ever offered in Toronto, have been posted for the capture of the man who strangled 13-year-old Linda Lampkin and raped and dumped her on a deserted waterfront street corner Wednesday night.

Suburban York township council posted a reward of $1,000, the city $5,000 and the province $1,000.

Linda's body was found sprawled across a curb, a green scarf knotted so tightly around her neck it had cut a quarter-inch into the flesh. She had left a dancing class on downtown Wellesley street four hours before.

Dr. Chester McLean, provincial pathologist, said the girl died quickly. He described the attack as a "particularly vicious one."

"There was no sign of a struggle at the scene of the discovery, police said, but her right shoe, her dancing shoes and a letter would believed to have contained about 16 were missing.

DRIVER QUESTIONED

Police said they are questioning a 30-year-old mail-truck driver said to have been acquainted with the girl.

William Sullivan, a despatcher for a fuel-oil company, said he saw a bright red truck at the intersection when he went to work about 10:30 p. m.

"It looked as if somebody was pulling something into the truck and I told my brother, who was with me, it looked like a bag of coal. It was a red pickup truck with white lettering."

The killer left no apparent clues. Police said no one reported seeing the girl after she apparently was spirited into a car, ravished and then dumped out to the pavement.

Police meanwhile reported a city-wide search for a 15-year-old public school girl missing since 1 p. m. Wednesday. They said Shirley McDougall left her aunt's home in the central-Toronto Rosedale district and vanished.

Relatives and police said they fear she may have met with foul play.

Truck driver Douglas Judges found Linda's body at the corner of Saulter and Commissioners streets, in an industrial area about two miles east of downtown Union station. There were scratches around her neck.

The find was made at 11:30 p.m. Five-foot-four, 85-pound Judges had left her home in suburban York township for the dancing instruction.

Dr. Smirle Lawson, supervising coroner for Ontario, said Linda was strangled before she was raped. He ordered an autopsy after holding a preliminary investigation.

TORONTO (CP)—Commissioner R. W. McNeil of the Ontario provincial police today warned all parents in the province to keep their children off the streets at night, in view of Wednesday night's slaying of 13-year-old Linda Lampkin.

"All district inspectors and detachments have been notified by radio of the offence and told to check all known sex deviates in their areas," he said.

Inspector D. A. Nichol of the criminal investigation branch has been assigned to work with city police and the whole resources of the OPP are standing by to give all needed assistance to city police in their investigation."

KEEP IN CORRAL

Leading Toronto citizens, incensed over the slaying, were quick to express their views today.

York township reeve Fred Hall said:

"These men should be rounded up like cattle and kept in a corral until they can be operated on to make them impotent and harmless to others."

Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto said: "No stone should be left unturned to capture this fiend."

Attorney General Roberts said, in offering the province's $1,500 reward for the killer's capture:

"The sooner we get that bird the better it's going to be for everybody. It is so dastardly it makes me feel that I could get my hands on him as quickly as possible. It's a terrible thing."

The attorney general said the full facilities of the attorney general's office and the provincial police are at the disposal of city police.

SUGGESTS SURGERY

Reeve Hall suggested legislation should be passed by the federal government to allow surgery on sex criminals.

"Hang 'em, just murder, it's worse than murder."

He said he intended to ask York township school teachers to warn children of the danger from sex deviates. It is impossible to keep children off the streets all the time, he said.

Mrs. Leslie Silverman, president of the Parents' Education League, organized to protect society from deviates, said parents should be warned to keep children off the streets after dark.

She said when a sex crime is committed police usually are able to round up as many as 300 or 400 suspects.

"If they round up this many today and can't find out how many of them have previously committed crimes against children."

Alderman Allan Lamport, chairman, the only doctor on city council, asked Attorney General Roberts to call a conference of experts in medicine and law to study sex crime.

"When something like this trag-edy occurs we all want to do something but nobody knows where to turn," he said.

CAS Preventive Officer Saves County Money Council Told

The Children's Aid Society preventive officer working exclusively in the county areas has been a definite monetary advantage to the county of Hastings in reducing the number of children brought into the care of the society, members of county council were told Wednesday.

Society superintendent Bruce Kerr addressed the council on the Children's Aid Society afternoon session, presenting a brief picture of the work of the organization during the past year and answering questions from members of council.

Mr. Kerr was introduced by C. B. Morgan, president of the C.A.S. who invited council to form a committee of from five to seven members to sit in with C.A.S. officers to go over records and satisfy the county that the society was doing a good job for the money.

Specifically councillors wanted to know if the county had adequate representation on the C.A.S. board, considering the payments it has to make. They were told that the board consisted of 25 directors with two representatives each from county council, the city of Belleville and a few at large.

"There's a pretty small voice for being such a heavy contributor," commented Deputy-Reeve Davis.

Reeve T. C. Graham of Tweed, noted, with approval, that the county had only two official representatives on the board, there would be no added members on the board from the county. Mr. Kerr said there were a few from others from the county on the board and he would be happy if there were half a dozen or more from the outlying district.

POSITIVE PREVENTIVE WORK

Ex-Warden James Sprackett said one of the objections of the county was that, although the warden sat in on C.A.S. meetings, as he was not a board representative, he had no vote.

Mr. Morgan assured that this matter would be attended to immediately.

Dr. D. C. McVicker, reeve of Deseronto, praised the work of the Children's Aid Society and said children under the Society's protection were receiving the best of all possible care.

A general discussion on preventive work and adoption service followed.

At the beginning of 1953 there were 316 children in the care of the society while at the year end there were 272, a reduction of 44 children. Throughout the county there had been 65 admissions to ward and 109 discharges. In the rural area of the county, of which 37 were admitted, one hundred and eleven had been discharged from ward care and there had been 49 placements for adoption.

Summing up Mr. Kerr estimated that the preventive officer had saved the county approximately $14,000 because of fewer children being in the care of the society.

Acknowledgments of resolutions sent out by the county last year were received from several societies with one respecting the closing of the partridge season for five years drawing comment from two new members of council.

PARTRIDGE PLENTIFUL CLAIM

Reeve C. T. Rollins of Wollaston, asked if the matter could be again pondered for discussion, noting that closing of hunting and fishing seasons was not the way of discouraging tourists.

Reeve Max Mawson, of Limerick, did not think there was any shortage of partridge.

"The trouble is that hunters don't go along the highways in their Buicks and Chryslers with a pint of beer in their hand and shoot the partridge from the highway.

"There are lots of partridge," he assured.

Clerk-treasurer Eric S. Denyes noted that the department had no intention of closing the partridge season and with this comment the communication from the department was filed.

County Warden

Reeve Elmer Wood, 50, of Huntingdon township who was named Warden of Hastings county at the January session being held this week. A farmer who in early life took an active interest in Junior Farmer work was a member of his township council for six years before coming to county council as reeve in 1951.

Burned Man Given 50-50 Chance to Live

Gordon "Buck" Jones, 35, father of the four boys who were burned to death in their farm home near Marmora Wednesday, has been given a 50-50 chance to live.

Meanwhile arrangements have been made for the mass burial of his wife, Jessie, 35, and their six children.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at St. Paul's Anglican church at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Jones, critically burned, underwent a three-hour operation in Peterborough Civic Hospital on Wednesday. He was reported to be conscious Wednesday night.

Hospital officials have stated that Mr. Jones will be on the "critical" list for 10 days and will be in hospital for at least one month.

Mr. Jones was found about 6.45 a.m. Wednesday by his cousin Wilbert Jones, wandering on the roadway in front of his house, badly burned and only partially clothed, about 100 feet from the flaming inferno which claimed the lives of his family. Jones was dressed in underwear, socks and a shirt which had been burned across the shoulders. Much of his hair had been seared.

Jones kept calling his family by name and crying out, "They are all in there, Jessie is in there."

Jones was taken to Peterborough Civic Hospital by Marmora physician Dr. R. C. Shatford, who was called at his home in Marmora at 8.45 a.m.

Firemen and police, probing the ruins of the two-storey frame farm home that has been in the Jones family for 100 years, recovered bodies of the seven victims yesterday.

The skeletons of Mrs. Jones, her daughter Phyllis and three sons, Elwood, 12, Harold, 9, and Ernest, 7, Wanda, 5 and June, 15 months, will be placed in a single sealed casket for burial.

Marmora business men have set up a fund to aid Mr. Jones and residents of the district are being asked to contribute at least $3,000.

Father Freed In Baby's Death At Windsor

WINDSOR (CP)—A father who admitted at an inquest three months ago he hit his 11-months-old son "all over with my fist" was acquitted Wednesday night of murder or manslaughter in the child's death.

"You alone know if it is a correct verdict or not, I have no criticism of it," Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven told the Ontario Supreme Court jury which acquitted Fernand Desbiens, 23, after a five-hour deliberation.

In his summing up the judge told the jurors most evidence at the trial was circumstantial.

Medical testimony in the three-day hearing showed the baby, Roland, died April 17, 1955, of cerebral haemorrhage. The autopsy revealed four dozen bruises and numerous cuts and scratches on the head and body, a liver injury and a rib fracture.

Crown counsel Bruce J. S. Macdonald told the jury there was evidence Desbiens thought the child was not his own. He asked for a verdict of manslaughter.

The father's testimony at the inquest Oct. 20, 1955, was not admitted at the trial nor were statements which police said Desbiens had given them earlier.

Record of Achievement Presented At Auxiliary's Annual Meeting

The second annual luncheon meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital was held Wednesday afternoon at the Masonic Temple.

Highlights of the meeting attended by nearly 200 members and invited guests, were the premiere showing of the hospital's color movie, "The Sentinel", the installation of officers for 1956, and committee reports of progress in 1955.

An outstanding record of achievement in service to the hospital was presented by Auxiliary committee chairmen. All phases of the Auxiliary's program of assistance to patients to the School of Nursing, and to the hospital advanced during 1955.

Highlights of Auxiliary's efforts in 1955 included payment of the $10,000 pledge to the Building Fund one year ahead of schedule; allocation of $1,500 for decoration of the nurses' residence; approval by the Ontario Government of the appointment of a member of the Auxiliary to the hospital's board of governors; assistance to J. G. Buchan president of the Women's Associations of Hospitals of Ontario and Mrs. H. Fuke as secretary of the same association; provision of scholarships to the School of Nursing.

During the past year the Auxiliary also launched its "Shadow Plan" program in which decided support of each department of the hospital are prepared after investigation by each department by an Auxiliary member.

THANKS TO CITY GIVEN

Mrs. J. Lennox Smith, returning officer for another year, thanked the welcomed members and guests and introduced the 1956 table.

Her Worship Mayor Jane Forrester brought greetings from the council.

"We are fully aware of the benefits to the patients in the hospital of all the voluntary work carried out by members of the Auxiliary," she said. "I think you success in your many projects during the coming year and our wholehearted thank you for your many contributions in the past."

Ex-Warden of Hastings County James H. Spencer congratulated the Auxiliary on its record of service and expressed his pleasure in having been a member of the Board of Governors.

Bruce Latimer, vice-chairman of the Board of Governors, brought the body's best wishes to the Auxiliary.

"Over the past number of years the Auxiliary has grown steadily and strenuously in the interests of the Belleville General Hospital, probably one of the crowning achievements was the presentation to the hospital board recently of a cheque of $10,000 for the addition to our hospital.

"On behalf of the Board of Governors may I tender our heartfelt thanks and appreciation. Without such an organization as the Women's Hospital Auxiliary there is no doubt that we would not have as fine a hospital as we have all the present time."

Dr. W. B. Beattie, chairman of the medical society, spoke briefly and extended best wishes to the Auxiliary.

Mrs. H. Ramsay Park, of Trenton, director of public relations for the Women's Hospital Auxiliaries' Association of Ontario, brought greetings from that body in the absence of Mrs. J. E. Buchan, president, who was in Sudbury on association business.

BRIEFLY OUTLINES FILM

Hospital administrator Kenneth Cope spoke briefly about the new color movie, "The Sentinel".

"No other hospital in Canada, to my knowledge, has made a film of this type," he said.

"One of the hospital's greatest assets is good public relations. If people are not informed about their hospital it is possible to find fault. This film will take you behind the scenes at your hospital. In it you will see the hospital and its departments.

"You can help us with good public relations," he told invited guests, "by having the film shown in one of your club meetings. We want the film to be shown to as many people as possible in this area."

Mr. Box went on to say that the reason the film was produced for $600 when a similar production by professionals would have cost between $15,000 and $20,000 was because of the volunteer, unpaid efforts of those who worked in its production.

Mr. Box introduced the film's director, Dr. Ross Lee Shotton, cameraman William Riley who spoke briefly.

The film was enthusiastically received.

Following a recess the annual general meeting was opened with prayer by Archdeacon J. B. Creegan.

Reports showed that during 1955 there were nine general and six executive meetings. Projects successfully carried forward included the Opportunity Shop, the Coffee Snack, Fashion Show, tea and bake sale and annual banquet.

Delegates from the Auxiliary attended three zone meetings during the year: the Council of Women's Auxiliaries' meeting in Ottawa, the Hospital Auxiliary meeting at Queen's University, Kingston and the convention of the Women's Hospital Auxiliaries in Toronto.

WILL FURNISH ROOM

Mrs. Lennox Smith announced that the Auxiliary would donate the furnishings for a room in the new 100-bed patient wing in honor of Mrs. W. C. Mikel, a past-president of the Belleville Auxiliary, for her 45 years of service to Auxiliary work.

Mrs. Smith also announced that the Coffee Snack would be closed this month because of progress of construction of the new wing and will remain closed for an indefinite period.

The Auxiliary's financial report showed receipts of $5,600.87 for 1955 and a net profit of $4,051.18. A cheque for $3,000 from the Coffee Snack was presented at yesterday's meeting almost matching the $3,000 received at the 1955 general meeting from the Opportunity Shop.

Balance on hand is $3,041.46.

Mrs. J. H. Forester, immediate past president of the Auxiliary, installed the following officers for 1956: president, Mrs. Lennox Smith; 1st vice - president, Mrs. W. H. Finkle; 2nd vice - president, Mrs. E. G. Kennedy; recording secretary, Mrs. S. T. Angus; treasurer, Mrs. H. C. Bull; corresponding secretary, Mrs. B. Burgoyne.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN

Opportunity Shop, Mrs. L. B. Fonger; Coffee Snack, Mrs. W. McCutcheon; membership, Mrs. W. H. Finkle; special events, Mrs. H. Wray; bulletin boards, Mrs. Charles Taylor; bulletin secretary, Mrs. E. E. Follwell; bulletin editor, Mrs. H. C. Bull; social and Christmas gifts, Miss Ivy Dickens; flowers, Mrs. C. McGinnis; Mrs. J. Marshall; secretarial committee, Mrs. M. Bowerman; Mrs. R. Potter; nominating committee, Mrs. G. Scott.

Auxiliary presidents from Trenton and Picton expressed their pleasure at being invited as guests.

Mrs. B. E. Burley thanked Mrs. Smith, on behalf of the Auxiliary, for her work in convening the annual luncheon. Mrs. Smith replied by thanking all those who had assisted.

A special vote of thanks was tendered the Eastminster Ladies' Association for catering for the banquet.

Work Decrease Prompts Dept. To Close Office

OTTAWA (CP)—A decrease in work has prompted the veterans' department to reduce the Kingston regional office to the status of a suboffice, Veterans Minister Campbell said Wednesday.

In a reply to A. J. Brooks (PC-Royal) in the Commons, he said the records of the Kingston office will be kept in the Ottawa and Toronto regional offices. The change would mean a decrease of 25 employees in the Kingston office.

Mr. Lapointe said that due to the reduction of the work load at Kingston it is now sufficient and more economical to reduce its status. He had received no protest from veterans' organizations.

Hospital Sets Canadian Record With First Documentary Film

The first film produced by a Canadian hospital, about a hospital, was premiered this afternoon at the annual meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital.

Some 200 members of the Auxiliary, invited guests, public press and presidents of local societies, attended the first public showing of "The Sentinel," a 20-minute documentary-style movie in color about the facilities and services of the Belleville General Hospital.

The picture, produced by the hospital's public relations committee, tells the story of the hospital community as it follows a surgical patient from admittance to discharge.

Most of the hospital's departments are shown in the film including; emergency and out-patient, admitting office, central supply, operating room, patient wing, laboratories, pharmacy, kitchens, chapel and nurses' residence. There are also scenes of meetings of the hospital's board of governors, the Women's Hospital Auxiliary and the medical society.

Scenes of construction of the new $1,000,000 wing and additional service wings are included.

Actors from the Belleville Theatre Guild played three of the principal roles in the film but all other parts were taken by actual employees. Scenes of departments show regular personnel at work.

DIRECTED BY GUILD

The film was directed by Theatre Guild director Syd Rose and photography was by William Riley. Syl Quinn plays the part of a doctor; Mrs. L. Yanover plays the role of the patient and Mrs. S. Wonnacott acts the part of a nurse.

Hospital administrator Kenneth Box was producer. The commentary was by Dr. Ross Shotton.

Upper and spoken by Phil Flagler.

All work done on the film was volunteered. Cost of production, including processing of the finished prints by Crawley Films, Ottawa, was $600. It has been conservatively estimated that the film been produced professionally it would have cost between $15,-000 and $20,000.

Clubs, fraternal organizations, church and school groups throughout Hastings County are invited to make use of the film, free of charge, at meetings.

Considerable interest in the film was shown at the Ontario Hospital Association, which wants a print for province-wide distribution.

Stirling Voters Turn Down Beer, Liquor Outlet

STIRLING (Special) — Stirling, dry since 1906, will stay dry for three more years at least.

Eighty per cent of the village's 760 eligible voters went to the polls Wednesday and rejected the establishment of a beer warehouse and liquor store.

The vote to establish a government store for the sale of beer only for residents' consumption, was turned down 356 to 246.

The vote to establish a liquor store was turned down 369 to 235.

The vote against the beer warehouse was 59 per cent of the votes cast and the vote against the liquor store was 61 per cent.

In order to establish a warehouse and liquor store a 60 per cent vote of approval is necessary.

Rejection of the outlets means that Stirling will be "dry" for another three years, at least.

Value of Infirmary Wing At Home Outlined to Council

The value of the infirmary wing at the Hastings county home in caring for ailing residents and of saving money for the county, was impressed to members of county council Thursday morning.

Home superintendent Kenneth Yorke told councillors that the infirmary wing at the home was filled. The savings to the county for such patients being cared for at the home instead of being sent to hospital was said considerable.

The 1955 county home report read by Reeve Murray Smith of Madoc village, showed there were 201 residents at the year's end — 119 men and 82 women of which 45 were from the city of Belleville.

Approximately 25 per cent of the total residents of the home are patients in the infirmary wing. There was an average of 45.3 patients in the infirmary each day of the year.

Admissions during the year totalled 70 with 16 of these being from the city of Belleville. There were 50 deaths, 43 from the county and eight from the city.

Following the adoption of the committee report council adjourned early and then went into what the county home in a body.

Council convened in a Committee of the County meeting which asked for 80 per cent subsidy on all approved new construction work in rural municipalities.

No action was taken on a Dufferin county resolution asking for free distribution of tree nursery stock, except trees grown for a commercial project for the growing of Christmas trees.

Reeve William Davis felt that the fee adopted two years ago by the Department of Lands and Forests for nursery stock was a good thing.

"The charge is very minor and I think it should remain," he said. "When trees were supplied free the best of care was not always given in planting."

The same attitude was taken by Reeve Earl Sager who seconded the motion that no change be taken.

A recommendation was tabled calling for the salary of the county home physician to be raised $200 from $600 to $800 per year. The matter was referred to finance.

The county will in all probability continue to present road new insurance liability to one giving comprehensive coverage.

Insurance representative Joe White said the present policy did not cover the county against liability on roads or highways not owned by the county, noting that if part of the load on a vehicle while it was being used on a provincial highway, the county would not be covered.

Renewal of the present policy would cost the county $950, while one giving comprehensive coverage would cost $1185.

Councillors generally approved the comprehensive coverage and the matter was referred to ways and means.

Warden Elmer Wood and Reeve Cecil B. Ketcheson of Thurlow township were elected as county representatives on the 1956 board of governors at Belleville General Hospital.

Soldier Found Guilty Of Impaired Driving

TRENTON (Special) — Before Magistrate R. B. Baxter in Brighton today, yesterday, Albert E. Webster, with the Ornadian army at Kingston, was found guilty of impaired driving and fined $50 and costs. Webster was in charge of a Federal government vehicle when apprehended by the O.P.P. at Brighton.

Donald LaShaw and Arthur Benham, of Trenton, received the benefit of a point of the law. Each was assessed $50 and costs of $2.50 for drunkenness.

The investigating officer testified he had noticed the odor of influence, sitting in a car lodged in the ditch. Because the vehicle was not mobile charges of drunk driving or impaired driving were laid.

The magistrate ordered an adjournment in the case of Douglas Ferguson of 262 Sidney Street, Trenton, charged with theft.

CALLS HOMES A MESS

Robert Glauber, described in a news despatch as a public relations expert, told the student body of Beloit College, Wisconsin, recently, that the average American home is a mess. Such a statement is likely to provoke bad relations with that segment of the American public which derives its bed and board from managing the average American home.

Mr. Glauber, speaking on good taste in the home, concluded that there was not much. He proceeded to itemize his dislikes.

"You hear nasty musical chimes when you ring the doorbell. The newspaper inside too often is selected because it won't show the dirt.' That's because it looks like dirty oatmeal already. Three-fourths of the pictures are hung so high they can be seen only by mounting a stepladder. But perhaps that is just as well, considering the pictures. One may see monstrosities like these: lamps with shades held up by a Chinese peasant in red pyjamas, spleen-colored throw pillows to go with kidney-shaped desks, pillows with Old Faithful on them, and chandeliers that resemble old wagon wheels. The average home interior is a cross between 'early Roxy theatre and late Howard Johnston'."

Mr. Glauber is absolutely right, as far as he goes, but does he go far enough?

Perhaps the lack of a verandah light that imperils visitors is a deliberate attempt to hide peeling paint. No light in the entrance hall is obviously an attempt to conceal the oatmeal-colored wallpaper. Low slung chairs with no backs are another pet peeve. Birds and lush tropic vegetation in the living room are irritations somebody only by cigars in the shape of pirate pistols which smokers have to stare down before they belch flame and smoke.

Has anyone ever seen a clothes closet with enough cost hangers? And why will hostesses never put a partially wrinkled towel in the bathroom so that guests can feel they are solving a problem when they use it to wipe the drying hands? The best way to mar the tone of a piano is to put several tottering objects on the piano such as ashtrays, a mandolin, framed pictures of Aunt Bessie and a plaster-of-Paris cast of Savonarola. Listening to the cacophony which this debris creates is practically guaranteed to drive a guest pianist to the drums.

The list is endless.

Building clean, comfortable and beautiful homes should not be impossible. In fact, clean, comfortable and beautiful homes are being designed and built in greater number than ever.

"Standards of taste are not instinctive but must be acquired," said Mr. Glauber. It is too bad that a standard of taste could be acquired while the debris of a messy home is being done away with.

UNEMPLOYMENT FIGURES DOWN

Reports by the Bureau of Statistics and the Federal Department of Labor indicate that, while unemployment in Canada increased in late November and early December, it was about 20 per cent below the level it reached at the same period in 1954.

This is welcome confirmation of a conclusion which most Canadians had already reached—our economy is in a healthier state than it was last year.

Not only is this reduction in the number of jobless persons encouraging but we should also remember that many of the unemployed will soon be out of work for a long period. The Bureau of Statistics, for instance, says that the 200,000 without jobs on December 11 was 38,000 higher than on November 16. It was thus mathematically impossible to reduce the list out of every six of those unemployed on December 11 to have been out of work for more than three weeks. We can be certain that the actual number with been jobless for this period was lower, perhaps considerably lower, for some of those without work on November 19 unquestionably obtained jobs in the interim.

There is a distinct difference between the pattern of unemployment today and that during the depression years, when being jobless became the normal situation for many men, the lengthy period without unemployment being relieved only by short spells of work during the summer season, and that only for the more fortunate.

Our unemployment problem today is seasonal one. That reduces the seriousness of the situation. We ought to recognize that. But we ought not to let this recognition blind us to the fact that, though seasonal, unemployment can still be a severe hardship for those without jobs. Even if the number unemployed were only a tenth of the present figure, the critical nature of the situation would not be relieved for those who were without work. Unemployment is more than a matter of statistics; it involves human beings. Because it is a problem which affects fewer people personally this year than it did a year ago does not ease the plight of those it does affect.

HUMANS ARE SLOW TO LEARN

A poet once wrote of a bride who hid
In an oaken chest with a snaplock lid.
They searched through the house, sighing, high and low,
But never could find where the bride thought to go.
Although this happened in times gone by,
In boxes and chests still children die.

Will we never learn that chest and box
Are equipped with dangerous springs and locks,
And many a child who has gone
to hide

Before being discovered alone has died?
That hide and seek can be dangerous play
If a lid or a door snapped shut can stay!

The unused chests and the worn-out box
Should never be left with their deadly locks.
They should never be carelessly put outside
Where children in them will run
to hide.
But it's happening still, as we read right now,
As Sayly the poet told long ago.

Old Belleville Boys Get Together. A former Belleville lads writes as follows: "Monday evening the boys of old Belleville, now living in Greater Boston, gathered at the American House in Boston to have dinner, renew acquaintances, talk of days gone by and of the friends at home, for they all consider Belleville to be their home. The room was decorated with Dominion and United States flags and for five hours the boys talked as only those can talk who have not met for years. There were no speeches as all wanted to talk and so of the old school days; stories were told that brought back to memory those happy days. Some of the boys had not met for twenty years. Those at the gathering were as follows: Geo. E. Harris, New York City; W. H. Johnson, Arlington Heights; W. Prince Sills, Somerville; V. A. Wheatley and Arthur Wenley, Lynn; Jack J. Foley, son of James Foley, G.T.R., Belleville; Will M. Joyce, Lynn; Jim B. Johnson, Brookline; Arthur L. Johnson, Boston; Fred J. Wagman, Arlington Heights. The boys intend to have another dinner together in the near future.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the big department stores, you see boys shoving large wooden trucks on wheels—trucks for collecting parcels, I suppose—through the aisles. They shout, "Make way for the truck, please!" and the customers obediently making way.

Yes, that's the case may be.

Very often, two ladies or two gentlemen will choose to be in deep conversation in the middle of the aisle just as the truck comes along. And in the modest dis of the big stores, you will hear the boy polite-ly raising his voice: "Make way for the truck, please!"

Nineteen times out of twenty, the boy shoving the truck will be having his difficulties. He has to manoeuvre it around breathless shoppers, pause long minutes for traffic jams in the aisles. He wears a forlorn look, as a rule. One of my friends who works in the big stores tells me that this collection of parcels is a sore problem.

But yesterday, which was a busy enough day in the stores, I saw a lad pushing one of these trucks that was loaded almost to a height of nearly six feet. He was delivering goods, I suppose, to a department.

He could not see over it. It was to heavy to push while standing to one side of it, as is creative. A most

So he pushed it slowly and steadily ahead, calling out in his normal fashion: "Make way for the truck, please."

He could not see where he was going. He judged his turns by pacing around the edge of the load.

And he proceeded magnificently, without let or hindrance, up this aisle and that, with everyone making way for him as smoothly as if he were a locomotive, whistling.

I followed him to his destination, which was the man's hats. And he never bumped anybody, never collided with anything.

It proves something. But what it is, I am not sure. Maybe it is this: If you can see where you are going you are faced with hundred difficulties. If you can't see where you are going, everything is easy, and everything makes way for you.

One Thing to Another

(Edmonton Journal)

Another example of a chain reaction occurs when a woman starts out to move an ashtray and ends by rearranging the furniture.

Massive Exaggeration

(Montreal Gazette)

George Allen, once a White House favorite, used to tell a story about his early legal career. He was representing a client who was suing for a settlement of $200,000. The judge made an award of $35. Mr. Allen, disappointed, asked, "Your Honor," he said, "I'm just too small to quibble."

Something the same situation has arisen with regard to the role of John Foster Dulles in representing his client, the United States. He has asked and again made the most drastic demands or declarations. But in the end he has had to accept a very modest settlement. Whether so many $200,000 claims are necessary for so small a $35.00 settlements, is, of course, a very real question.

Mr. Dulles' record in foreign affairs abounds in declarations far beyond the possibilities of realization. In 1953 he declared his determination to liberate the Communist "satellites." But in the end he felt obliged to explain that this means only "peaceful" liberation. And peaceful liberation is not exactly an objective as to be in the $35.00 class.

Then he made his threat of "massive retaliation." This suggested that the United States, like it could not produce, conventional armies in all areas of the world, relied on its ability to unleash its atomic power at any point that might be threatened. By later explanation, however, it came to appear that such retaliation would be used only if the Communists embarked upon some attack that threatened the security of the United States as a nation.

Another example of the bridge Mr. Dulles has created to the vanishing point was Mr. Dulles' statement that "continuing reappraisal" would be necessary if France were to reject the European Defence Community. France did reject EDC, but no reappraisal followed.

There was also an expression of large faith in the employment of Chiang Kai-shek against the Communist government of the mainland. But now Chiang Kai-shek has been reduced to the position of nominal position that is really his.

It may be very true, of course, that the exaggerations are based on the expectation of ultimately settling for a smaller advantage. But this is not unusual in negotiation of any kid. But in case of Mr. Dulles the disproportion between the demand and the result is so wide as to make the result appear to be not a compromise but an anti-climax. And when anti-climaxes are multiplied, it makes one increasingly difficult to bring anticipation up to the desired pitch.

The same difficulty appears in Mr. Dulles' most recent statement that he has been following the technique or going right up to the brink of war without actually becoming involved in it. He says that he has followed this technique always in three times against Manchuria and in South China.

Even if it is admitted that this kind of bluff has its uses, it ceases to be a bluff any longer if it is admitted to be a technique. The Bluffer, of all men, must not expose his own methods. It is about as defeating as the magician who explains his trick. It only means that the next time a threat of this kind may be made, the opponent may feel safe in disregarding it, on the grounds that the bluff is not a real threat, but a self-confessed bluff.

It becomes a little like Fat Boy in Pickwick's joke: "I'll tell you to make your flesh creep," he would say. But the object would be defeated when he had pointed out the declaration of the intent.

These exaggerations in Mr. Dulles' statements and methods Mr. Dulles has been less than fair to himself. He has worked hard at his stupendous tasks, never resting but for periods of illness, and carrying arms against seas of troubles, hoping always by opposing to end them.

It is likewise true that the peoples of the western world, anxious and frustrated by the events of later years, make scapegoats of those who are trying their best to avert the worst — and perhaps significant of their restless public mood that Sir Anthony Eden is being lionized as a languid "dilletante" who does not do anything, while Mr. Dulles is being condemned for doing too much too rashly.

Yet the fact would still seem to remain that Mr. Dulles has brought to such bad the grotesque in his own best efforts by placing an exaggerated emphasis upon the aggravation itself. Under these circumstances not only his enemies but his friends may be excused for wishing to awaken sufficiently to a real crisis when it arrives. The peculiar hilary of boast and threat would have been worn excessively thin with excessive use.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE-MATTHEW ADAMS

IDLERS

Idlers are not, as many suppose, mere drones in a swarm. Often they inspire both work and pleasure in those of the hive! I have a book on Walt Whitman that lis author called "The Magnificent Idler." I have also read the book because of its title!

Robert Louis Stevenson wrote a book-length essay which he called: "An Apology For Idlers." A most interesting little volume. I like the same across this statement: "A happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a five-pound note. He or she is a radiating focus of goodwill, and a room is gayer for their coming; a room is as though another candle had been lighted."

I also precisely called lucky over the gift of many companions. In their idleness they have given with which to see what blind men can not, and their engagement in good will is something that is not for sale in the marketplace. Hazlitt, the English writer, Charles Lamb, Oliver Goldsmith, and so many others, were largely idle men. But who put precious moments into those periods of idleness.

Can you imagine what sheer idleness could do to over-busy businessmen, and many another tied up people with fears and worry and no relaxation and change of scene? I once had a friend who was greatly admired because of his idleness which he spent in reading. He had no money for small items of merit. He didn't need the money. He just liked to read.

No one will dispute the greatness that comes to the onlookers at a baseball or football game, or any other game which is enjoyed. We are idle—but plenty noisy—and happily so. I quote again from Stevenson: "Pleasures are more beneficial than duties because, like the quality of mercy, they are twice blessed."

Bicycle Tax

(Victoria Times)

Something more than the Christmas spirit seems to have moved Alderman Millard Mooney to recommend abolition of the annual bicycle licensing tax in Victoria. The tax is a petty. It garners barely cover costs of maintaining the office which issues it. And it falls on children and those people who can ill afford to pay such impositions.

CREATIVENESS

Some months ago I visited a historic church in New England. An elderly woman who traced her descent from the Pilgrim Fathers was the official hostess at this shrine and welcomed visitors.

She was a large, quite substantial man, about her own age, whose farm was a model of neatness. He was quietly interested in the stone fences, and he was truly artistic in the way he placed them. The lady in question wasn't too particular about her fences. She declared that the world liked her as she was. Apparently she was content to let

National Ballet Looking for Sparkling Run

By ROBERT TANNER

In the presence of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, and Mrs. Breithaupt, as well as Mayor and Mrs. Nathan Phillips and Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal, the National Ballet Company of Canada opened what promises to be a sparkling run at the Royal Alexandra Theatre in Toronto last Monday.

After a fall tour through Ontario and Quebec, of which Belleville was privileged to see the opening night, the company will play in Toronto for two weeks, before taking to the road again in Western Ontario and the United States. After that, provided that sufficient financial backing is forthcoming to cover the trans-Atlantic crossing, it is hoped to reach a peak in the company's short five years of life with a visit to England and the continent of Europe.

In their opening presentation of Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker," the National Ballet earned the praise even of its hard-driving artistic director, Celia Franca, as well as the enthusiastic applause of a capacity audience which demanded no less than 13 final curtain calls. Dancing with lightness and refinement, Lois Smith gave two beautiful performances as the Snow Queen and the Sugar Plum Fairy, while David Adams, as the Nutcracker, a Punch-like character who turns into a handsome prince, danced with virile grace and expertness.

In Miss Franca's revised choreography, the part of Clara, the young subject of all the adventures, is of considerable importance, and was shouldered most capably by 14-year-old Judith Dornis, the company's youngest member. The remaining roles showed that the National Ballet has become a company of considerable stature, in which every member can pull his or her full weight. George Crum conducted an augmented orchestra, which was led by Charles Dobias.

At a triumphant party held on the stage after the performance the cast met members of the National Ballet Guild, the organization which stands behind the company, and shoulders the business and financial responsibilities which, as can be imagined, are by no means insignificant.

Earlier in the day, an interesting and important meeting had taken place at which the various Guild branches in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, London and Windsor had been represented. On the invitation of the newly-appointed branch liaison convener, Miss Vida Peene, who chaired the meeting, Belleville was represented by Joan Tanner, in the hopes that in due course a Guild branch might be started in this city.

It is interesting to note that Belleville was by far the smallest city to be selected in this way, a tribute to the wonderful reception given by the local audience to the Ballet's performance here last November.

Girl's Evidence Takes All Day

A 17-year-old girl, the alleged victim in a rape charge against two Belleville youths now jointly standing trial at the Spring Assizes here, yesterday took the stand to testify to events leading up to the indictment of the accused.

Standing trial before Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan of the Ontario Supreme Court are Ronald Sharpe, 17, and Gary Merriott, 18. A third man, Giuseppe Ferrara, 22, will be tried separately on a charge yet to be determined.

The girl's testimony and cross-examination by Kenneth O. M. Ross, defence counsel for Merriott, took up part of the morning and entire afternoon session of the court.

At one point in her testimony yesterday afternoon, the girl was handed a glass of water by Mr. Justice McLennan himself.

"Take your time," he told her. "And if you feel at all faint we shall adjourn for a minute or two."

At his direction a chair was placed in the witness stand and the girl remained seated throughout until the evening adjournment.

Don Templeman is appearing for Sharpe while the prosecution is being handled by Gordon Robertson, acting crown attorney.

'Worthwhile Reading Makes Better Students' Says Librarian

King George Home and School Association met on Monday evening with Mrs. G. Kilfedder presiding. A business session followed. The parents were asked to keep in mind the February meeting which will be a panel discussion. Also the annual euchre and bridge in March.

The attendance banners were won by Miss Bassett's room for the Juniors, and Miss Harris' for the Seniors.

SPEAKER

Mr. Boate, Grade VIII teacher, introduced the speaker, Mrs. Leach, librarian at the Corby branch library for children at King George school. Those who heard her were soon aware of her ability to speak on the subject of books, and her sincere desire to have children given the opportunity to use the storehouse of knowledge gained from reading. A child who enjoys reading worthwhile books makes a better student.

Mrs. Leach gave several illustrations of experiences in dealing with children in libraries.

It is expected that books for the adults of the district will soon be placed in the King George school branch.

Mrs. Leach concluded her remarks by telling a story as she would to the children, making it easily understood why the children are so fond of her.

The parents were invited to browse around the library and to ask any questions about books for children.

Refreshments were served.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHY DON'T YOU MARRY HER AND TAKE HER AWAY?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am a young man 33 years old who has been going steady with a young woman of 26.

This young woman, at one time in her life, made one mistake. Since then she has been victimized by a lot of nosey neighbors who are always looking for scandal.

All this is making my girl friend's life miserable, so she wants to know if she should move away or stay and just grin and bear it as well as she can.

How can she cope with low-thinking people? If they knew more about her, they wouldn't act the way they do. — S.B.

Dear S.B.:

Is there any special reason why this young woman should not move away and more or less start life all over again in some other place far enough away from where she now lives to be completely out of touch with her former neighbors? Unless she has responsibilities that make it impossible for her to do this, I can't see why she hasn't done it long ago.

If you are thinking of marrying the woman, why not do it and take her away from all this? That would certainly be a simple and easy way to solve the problem.

HERE'S A PLAN FOR YOU TO TRY

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 24 years old, and was going with a girl for about a year. We had planned to marry, but one day we had a fight, such a big one that she told me she didn't want to see me ever again. Now if we do happen to meet I say "hello," but she just looks the other way and says nothing. She won't even give me an opportunity to say how sorry I am.

This has been going on for six months, and I wish you could tell me some way to make things right again. — C.S.

Dear C.S.:

If this girl won't even talk to you, why don't you try sending her some reminders of you without trying to get in touch any other way for awhile? For example, send her flowers one day, candy another, a book another day, and other gifts of things you have learned to know she likes.

With each gift, put in a little card saying something like: "I love you. Can't we make up" or "I love you and miss you dreadfully." Just make up something short and loving without asking her to meet you, or talk to you or anything else. If she has ever really loved you, this should soften her up in time. If it doesn't, then I'm afraid you will just have to accept what would appear to be her decision that everything is over.

Of course, if you had told me what the entire quarrel was about, I might have been able to give further suggestions. But try the plan I have outlined anyhow, and let me know what happens.

Triple Play on Organ Meats

By Mary Moore

Mary Garden, noted for her youthfulness and keen mind and lovely body was over seventy when she was quoted after an interview: "In all the years of my singing career I never ate those eight-and-ten course dinners. I have never overeaten. I like everything inside the animal—liver, tongue, sweetbreads I adore, and only vegetables straight from the garden. . . ."

It is those "inside the animal" meats that I am going to dish up attractively to you today, for three major reasons. (1) They high protein high hemoglobin producing and Vitamin B content, (2) their low cost and (3) their versatile flavors.

That ought to be enough bait in the trap for any epicure or food fanatic.

KIDNEY AND BEEF FRICASSEE WITH RICE

To serve 5 buy 6 lamb kidneys or 2 veal or pork kidneys or 1 small beef kidney or 1 large one. Trim off fat (and veinous portion if beef or pork kidney are used), cut into bite-size pieces and soak in cold water 1-2 hour. Drain and to 1-lb piece of fresh or stewing beef. Cut the beef into 1-2-inch cubes, dredge in 1-3 cup of salted and peppered flour and brown in trimmed-off kidney fat in 3 tablespoons shortening or butter. Add the drained kidney, brown it too, and add 3 1-2 cups water and cook 1-2 hour in pressure cooker at 15 lbs. pressure or simmer covered 2 hours. Serve this around a liberal amount of parsley cooked rice on hot platter and garnish with plenty of parsley. (Parsley is so often mentioned in this column because of its extremely high Vitamin B content.) Note—All kidney may be used instead of beef and kidney, but if it is I usually add 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion. The drained kidney has to be dried before it is floured and browned.

BROILED LIVER SUPREME

Wipe 1 lb. calves' liver cut into 1-2 inch slices with damp cloth and rub each side with cut clove of garlic. Sprinkle lightly with salt and over so lightly with nutmeg on one side only. Brush carefully with melted butter. Place on greased broiler rack and cook 3 inches from medium heat until tinged with gold. Turn over, place a slice of onion on each and finish broiling—about 10 minutes in all. Heat is never high. Sprinkle with lemon juice just before serving. This is good with rice too. Pork Liver has an even higher Vitamin B content. Note—A doctor friend of mine told me this week that he has had anemic patients that ate liver when prescribed and showed an increase in hemoglobin count after one week of eating some liver every day.

BRAISED CALVES' BRAINS

(The poor man's sweetbreads)

Wash 2 lbs. brains (calves usually), parboil by covering with cold water with 2 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar in it, for five minutes, after simmering point is reached. Drain, chill, peel off skin, cut into serving pieces. Roll in mixture of 1-4 cup each old grated cheese and whole wheat flour. Saute gently in melted butter five minutes. A "Sunday dish" in Southern Europe.

Mother's Helper

A CLOTHES sprinkler is a useful and easy gift for a child to make. Paint a screw-topped can in a personalized design, add a special cork with a perforated metal or plastic top (available in hardware stores for five or ten cents.)

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

OLDER WOMAN'S MANNERS ARE INSPIRING TO HER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I were married last year, and because his position demanded that we live here, we couldn't find an available apartment or house, his aunt and uncle took pity on us and are most kindly, allowing us to board with them. Although we are "boarders," they include us in many of their social activities, and I am grateful we always to come down to meet her friends who call or come to tea in the afternoon. Her manners are so delightful and graceful that I am having a liberal education just watching her with her family and friends! But one question bothers me. I was brought up to think it is not necessary to rise when saying good-by to a lady who has risen to leave a group. But in this circumstance I have noticed that my husband's aunt and her friends do rise. Is this necessary? — S.R.

Apparently the reason, or at least one of the reasons, why you find the manners of your husband's aunt so delightful and inspiring is that she regards manners as a courtesies and amenities not in the light of whether or not they are "necessary" but whether they are more gracious and considerate of the other person. So also in this case. Although it may not be actually necessary for a woman to rise when another woman rises to leave, certainly this is a courteous gesture, both to the departing guest and to the hostess who has risen to thank hostess as she says good-bye to her guest.

ENGAGED GIRL RIGHT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am 18 and became engaged about two months ago. I have visited my fiance's home several times and enjoy very much being with them. They live in the town next to where we live, my parents and his parents are acquainted with one another, but that's about all. His parents have made no move to have the two families meet and get to know one another better, but lately I've been wondering if I could do something about bringing the two families together, perhaps having my mother invite them to dinner at our house and then playing cards (we're all bridge "hounds").

My mother and father approve of this, but a girl friend of mine, who usually is very right about such matters, insists that, since we aren't going to be married for over a year, we should wait to do this just a few months before our wedding. But really I can't see why we shouldn't invite them now. What do you think? — Joan H.

Your girl friend's advice isn't good advice. You have the right idea—not to stand on ceremony, but to do something, and at once, to establish a good, friendly relationship between the two families. Of course talk over your plan with your fiance. Then have your mother write a note (or telephone) to your fiance's mother, to invite his parents (and himself too, of course) to come to dine with your family on a specified evening, and mention, if you wish, about playing cards afterward. No need to wait—the sooner, the better, for this meeting of the two families.

WHICH FORKS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I don't own pastry forks, but I do have the short, broad salad forks. When I serve pastry would it be better for me to place the salad forks, or would it be in better taste to place luncheon forks?—C.

There is no rule about this. Use whichever forks seem the most practical ones to use for the food item you are serving.

TIPPING FOR LUNCH-COUNTER SERVICE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are soon going on a trip to New York. We haven't been there in several years. We will be wanting to do so many things in such a short time that I am sure we will be stopping for snacks, "coffee breaks," at lunch counters. Last evening when we were talking with some friends who have recently returned from New York, we mentioned about this lunch-counter plan, and they spoke about the tipping that they noticed new at lunch counters, and that they thought was a comparatively new idea. Should we follow this custom? — We . . .

There is, in many big cities, a comparatively new custom of tipping for lunch-counter service, and you will notice it in New York. ("coffee-break") the usual tip may be 5 cents; 10 cents for coffee and one food item, a sandwich or a pastry, for example; 15 cents for coffee, a sandwich, a piece of cake or pie; very often 25 cents if the check is over a dollar.

There is no necessity to tip, and you will not at all be made to feel that it is necessary. Some people do tip, and some don't. For a cup of coffee (in today's famous

W.M.S. — W.A.

CENTENARY — Mrs. Philip Ray was hostess to the members of Centenary W.M.S. on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Harold Hancock opened the meeting with a verse to begin the New Year followed by a hymn and prayer.

Mrs. G. Sills gave the treasurer's report with the allocation of $175.00 being sent.

Mrs. Fred Edmondson gave a full report on the Mission Band work during the last year. Mrs. Aikens reported making six calls on new neighbors. Mrs. Byron Harder was nominated to the office of vice-president. Mrs. E. Hart was made advisory member to the COTT.

Mrs. Byron Harder was in charge of the program on "Discovering Possibilities in the Canadian Indian Reserves." She was assisted by E. Hart, Mrs. W. Shortt and Mrs. G. Sills. This was an interesting study of Christian teaching and development of civilization among the Indian people. Mrs. Hancock closed the meeting.

CENTENARY W.A.

The Centenary W.A. held the January meeting at the home of Mrs. Philip Ray. Mrs. F. M. Robes was in charge of the meeting.

Five members contributed to the birthday box. There were several replies of thanks for Christmas boxes and cards.

Mrs. E. Hart gave the treasurer's report, showing the total amount raised during the year to be $1,568.82.

Mrs. Nobes gave a reading, "Greeting the New Year."

Mrs. Philip Ray was in charge of the devotional, entitled "True Faith Produces Unity." Mrs. E. Hart read the Scriptures from Ephesians 4: 1-5. Mrs. B. Harder gave a reading "We Believe In Faith."

Mrs. Nobes thanked the hostess on behalf of the society for the use of her home and announced that the February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Percy Sutherland. Mrs. F. Aikens thanked the presidents for the fine job they are doing.

Refreshments were served and an enjoyable social half hour enjoyed.

Diet Intelligently!

If you don't want to put on weight, add a tape measure and scales to beauty equipment. Use them at least once a week.

By JEANNE D'ARCY

So you think you're the only one counting calories? Well, you're not! Experts at Harvard University have been doing this — not for themselves, but for 247 obese people they've been studying in an attempt to find out the whys and why nots of weight reduction. They've come up with some interesting facts.

No. 1, they've discovered that non-caloric sweeteners and artificially sweetened foods are of no particular value in a reducing program. The report doesn't go into detail on this point, but we're willing to wager that we know the reason, it's simply this: artificial sweeteners are a poor substitute for will power.

We've often seen women eat their way through a plate of spaghetti, a wedge of chocolate layer cake and then, in the interest of their so-called diet, drop a sweetening pill into their black coffee!

In line with the survey, Dr. Frederick J. Stare, chairman of the Department of Nutrition, School of Health, Harvard University, came up with some Do's and Don'ts that are of practical importance in dealing with the weight problem. We've listed them below along with a few comments of our own.

1. Do remember that prevention is better than treatment. Get rid of surplus pounds as soon as they appear. Don't let them add up.

2. Early treatment is better than late treatment. The sooner you start reducing, the less reducing you'll need to do.

3. Parents should set good examples. Eat haphazardly, overload on sweets, and your children will do likewise.

4. Use the bathroom scales, weekly or monthly, and keep a written record. We also suggest that you gals keep a measuring tape handy and use it on your waistline when you weigh in.

5. Eat three meals a day, starting with a good breakfast. Eat in the daytime, not at night. Those three meals are important. You won't lose any weight, skipping a meal, if you fill in with calorie-laden snacks between times.

6. Eat slowly. This allows the blood sugar to rise and satisfy the appetite before it's time for second helpings.

7. Cut down on your total food intake. It's not necessary to eliminate any single food from your diet.

8. If necessary, use scientific studies to help curb your appetite.

9. It's helpful to take mild to moderate daily exercise.

A LUCKY CATCH

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP)— When Hart Stuart dropped his new glass fly rod overboard while fishing in Torch Lake last summer, he gave it up for lost. Tuesday, while skating on the lake he spotted the rod. With a companion he cut a hole and fished it out—rod, reel and line.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

BEAUTY IN A BANG-UP JOB

There probably isn't a teen-ager living who doesn't think that 11 year old Mamie Eisenhower who started the vogue for bangs. Oh, she may have seen pictures of little Dutch boys with their square cut bangs, but that was different—it wasn't "fashion." Yet our little teen-ager may be surprised to learn that bangs have been in and out of fashion for over a thousand years—in one form or another, of course.

Naturally, the First Lady's hairdo has given the vogue greater impetus in recent years but what's being counted on to lend greater popularity is the current trend toward Oriental styles. However, as with every other fashion, if bangs are to look their best, they have to be cut to suit the individual. What's completely devasting on one girl may make another looking like a monkey. So if you've decided that you want to get in the swim and try them on yourself, here are a few pointers:

First of all, have them cut by a professional. Don't grab the scissors and snip away at random. Chances are you'll make a botch of the job. Your expert will study your face and the bangs that are most flattering to you. Generally speaking, the girl with a very high forehead looks best in full bangs which are slightly waved, whereas the girl with a medium brow looks better if her bangs are thin.

The new Oriental-type bangs which run straight across the forehead are definitely not for everyone, but if one has a face which is perfectly oval in shape and the hair is dark, they're fine. Some bangs look better if they are on one side of the forehead—this is particularly true if the nose happens to be pronounced. The side-swept bang then detracts attention from the nose.

Women with protruding forehead find that bangs which start considerably back from the natural hairline are best for them, especially if they are loosely waved and curled under slightly. Bangs swept back off the forehead help to dramatize beautiful eyes and soft brow curls lend a youthful appearance to the long face. Square faces lose much of their "boxiness" if bangs are worn in a thin, lacy fashion which gives a casual appearance. In most cases brunettes can wear heavier bangs than blondes, but the experts are in practical agreement that all women can wear bangs—if they choose the right style.

Full bangs, slightly waved, are ideal for the girl with an extremely high forehead.

Brothers of Dead Man Fined For Assault

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Ross Knapp, 46, of Newboro, was fined $20 in police court here Wednesday on a charge of assaulting a police officer in a Westport beverage room.

His brother, George F. (Tommy) Knapp, 42-year-old fishing guide who was fatally wounded following a party in the cottage on a Newboro lake island, was slated to appear on a similar charge.

The court was told that the Knapp brothers fought with chief constable Hillery Maloney of Westport while, Mrs. Virginia Hicks looked on.

Mrs. Hicks, 42, fourth-time married daughter of a former mayor of Syracuse, N.Y., is charged with the murder of Tommy Knapp and is to appear for preliminary hearing here Friday.

Driving Licence Life Suspension Is Recommended

TORONTO (CP)—A magistrate Wednesday recommended life suspension of the driving licence of a teen-aged motorist said to have challenged police to a race and then sped through east - central Toronto at a 60-mile-an-hour clip.

Magistrate S. T. Bigelow sentenced 19-year-old William Buckler to 30 days in jail after a police constable testified Buckler told him 30-mile-an-hour speed limits were "just for fools."

Buckler, charged with impaired driving, admitted drinking two beers at a hotel before challenging constable George Wilson to a race.

Buckler was barred from driving in Canada for three years. He also was fined $10 or five days in jail on a charge of obtaining liquor while a minor.

Railroad Head Plans to Resign Due to Criticism

NEW YORK (AP)—Patrick B. McGinnis says he is quitting as head of the New Haven Railroad, citing "unprincipled and unbridled" commuter attacks on him as the major reason for stepping down.

The fiery, self-made financier announced Wednesday night that he has called a special meeting of the line's board of directors here Friday "for the purpose of resigning as president."

The 51-year-old McGinnis took over the New Haven in April, 1954 beating the Frederick Dumaine interests in a bitter proxy fight. Head of the investment firm of McGinnis and Co., he had previously focused two railroads, the Norfolk Southern and the Central of Georgia.

"Those who know me know I do not run from a fight," McGinnis said Wednesday night. "My resignation is presented to the board because I feel that I can best fulfill my obligations to the stockholders and passengers . . . by making this move.

"In recent months I have been a target of abuse and a focal point of attack in a point that defies reasonable explanation. These attacks do not disturb me personally, but their cumulative effect has been bad for the railroad.

"No matter what positive action the New Haven takes to improve service, there is likely to be no acknowledgment of our concerted effort as long as I remain a target of this unjustified propaganda."

Senator Croll Says Time Has Come To Start National Health Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—An immediate start on a national health insurance plan before the government is tempted to cut taxes was urged in the Senate Wednesday.

Senator David Croll, Ontario Liberal appointed last summer to the upper house, said the time has come to begin the health plan by instituting hospital care insurance.

"Surely, in a land such as ours the lack of an adequate health insurance program to replace the patchwork of schemes now in effect can no longer be tolerated," he said.

"We have backed and filled and stalled and looked the other way far too long. There is a desperate need, and we have the means to meet that need. . . We are surely in a position now to begin our health insurance plan with hospitalization."

SECONDED ADDRESS

Senator Croll, former Commons member for Toronto - Spadina, spoke in seconding the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

He said there is expressed or implied agreement from provinces with more than half the population for a start on health insurance.

"The need is overwhelming, and even the argument that 'we are waiting for a substantial majority of the Canadian people and provinces' doesn't stand up."

His mention of "substantial majority" referred to a statement by Prime Minister St. Laurent at the last federal-provincial fiscal conference to indicate the conditions under which the federal government would enter a health plan.

STARTS MONDAY

A federal-provincial conference on health insurance is to open here Monday.

Senator Croll said British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan have hospital schemes and Ontario will introduce one this year.

"If that doesn't meet the formula, surely the government can induce one or two of the Liberal provinces to come over to the side of the angels," he said.

"Where are the Liberal provinces?" he asked. Canadians should no longer be penalized by the laggards.

Say Gold Mines Can Continue To Operate

TORONTO (CP) — A committee of economic and mining experts say that despite serious economic problems Ontario's 32 producing gold mines can continue profitable operations for some years unless confronted with a sudden increase in costs or loss of Dominion government financial aid.

The committee was appointed by the Ontario legislature March 22, 1954, to study the gold mining industry, caught in a squeeze between rising costs and a fixed price for gold. Its report, made public Wednesday night, singled out labor as the chief variable cost which might swell operating expenses beyond production revenue.

It recommended that the Dominion government continue emergency assistance to marginal mines and that the program be reassessed periodically on the basis of mine employment and welfare of gold mining communities. It urged the Ontario government to keep under review adequacy of its regular and special grants to gold municipalities with a view to maintaining a standard of public services comparable to other parts of the province.

OUT OF LINE

In its reference to labor costs, the report said Ontario's 10,200 gold miners work longer hours for less money than men in what is considered comparable work—base metal mines in the Sudbury area and the iron and steel manufacturing industry in Toronto.

Basing its conclusion on statistics for 1952, the report said that if gold mines cut their work week to 40 hours from 44 and selected Sudbury area wage rates their labor costs would rise 14 per cent. This would increase variable costs of 22 mines to an amount larger than their production revenue. Some might avoid actual loss for a few years by mining higher grade ore and by increasing labor productivity.

"But since actual operating losses could not be tolerated for long, the decision of perhaps 18 of these 22 mines, employing two-thirds of the province's gold miners, would probably be to go to a salvage basis if Sudbury's wages and hours had to be met and if no public aid were available to them."

A friend who saw how I was suffering suggested that I try Templeton's T-R-C's. T-R-C's gave me quick and satisfactory relief. You can believe me that I would hate to wake up some morning without T-R-C's in the house. I say wholeheartedly and sincerely that anyone suffering from lumbago, sciatica, rheumatic or arthritic pain should give Templeton's T-R-C's a fair trial!" Find the "Phantom Famous Brand" listed on the check sheet but not illustrated in this advertisement. Next, if your telephone rings between 4 and 5 o'clock next Saturday evening, DO NOT ANSWER HELLO or you will be automatically disqualified from an opportunity to win $3,000.

Instead of answering HELLO, say "DOMINION STORES" and then state the name of this week's "Phantom Famous Brand." If you do, and if it is the DOMINION FORTUNE HUNT calling, you will win the Grand Prize of $3,000.

$1,000 BONUS! If you win the Grand Prize and have to your hand at the time a box top or label from this week's "Phantom Famous Brand" (or a reasonable facsimile) PLUS a Dominion Store cash register slip dated this week and totalling $5.00 or more, you will qualify for a bonus prize of $1,000.

$100 CONSOLATION PRIZES! If the DOMINION FORTUNE HUNT calls your telephone number and you make the mistake of answering HELLO, but can still name this week's "Phantom Famous Brand", you will qualify for a consolation prize of $100.

GRAND PRIZE MUST BE WON! If this week's Grand Prize is not won on Saturday night, it will be added to next week's Grand Prize of $1,000. This will be repeated if necessary until someone wins the accumulated Grand Prize.

Employees and agents of Dominion Stores Limited and their families are not eligible for this contest.

Consolation prizes of $100 each were awarded Saturday night to Mrs. R. J. Finley, 188 Dunraven Drive, Toronto, and to Mrs. N. Doughty, 18 Glenthorpe Avenue, Toronto, in the DOMINION "Famous Brands" FORTUNE HUNT. Both consolation prize winners knew the Phantom Brand, but failed to answer their phones correctly to win the $1,000 Grand Prize.

Parents' League Will Protest Freeing of Man

TORONTO (CP)—The decision of a magistrate at nearby Clarkwille to free a convicted sex offender likely will be protested by the Parents' Action League, a league spokesman said Wednesday.

"This man can become a menace to other parts of the country," said Mrs. Bernard Dorsman, executive director. "Probably we will make an official protest to Health Minister Phillips."

She referred to the case of George A. Jones, 35, found guilty Tuesday of indecently assaulting three little girls, aged 6, 7 and 8. He was fined $450 and told to leave the district.

Mrs. Dorsman said the magistrate's decision was in direct contrast to what was decided last week at a meeting of Dr. Phillips, representatives of the attorney-general's department, the league and Reforms Minister Foote.

The meeting decided that all magistrates be urged immediately to order mental examinations for men charged as sex offenders and to make certain that they are detained until they are found fit to enter society again.

Attorney-General Roberts said today he will ask for a report on the case and would look into the possibility of an appeal.

Aerial View of Marmora Fire

Neighbors and friends, roused by a rural telephone fire signal, were unable to approach the building which was described as "a raging inferno." The fire was noticed first at 6:30 a.m. by Miss Grace Sheridan, who lives about a mile away and Miss Sheridan gave the alarm.

Those first on the scene said the house was still standing but was a mass of flames. Later in the morning the building collapsed into the basement. Only a pile of ashes and twisted pieces of metal remained of the home that had been in the Jones family for 100 years.

Neighbors, police and firemen recovered the five bodies of the seven victims of the fire.

Gordon "Buck" Jones, 40, father of the children, was taken to Peterborough Civic Hospital with severe burns and after three hours of surgery was given a 80-30 chance to live.

Views Conflict With Shippers, Arms Producers

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's best future role is to remain a bewer of wood and drawer of water, says R. M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

This challenging view, submitted before the Gordon economic commission Wednesday, conflicted with that of shippers, arms producers and machinery manufacturers.

They said Canada's great need is to build up manufacturing skills to turn the country's raw materials into finished goods. Protection had to be given to development of secondary industries, even to the point of strengthening tariffs.

Not so, said Mr. Fowler, reappointed chairman centlyhenfrecently appointed chairman of the federal royal commission on radio and television. The world in the future will require huge quantities of raw materials. Manufacturers' suggested buildup of secondary industries demanded an expansion in population.

But, suggested Mr. Fowler, it would be better for Canada to have 25,000,000 people by 1980 with jobs and high living standards than 30,000,000 "busily engaged taking in each others washing."

Mr. Fowler predicted newspaper advertising and circulation will increase in the next 25 years and demand for Canadian newsprint will double to 25,500,000 tons by 1980.

In that period the industry will spend an estimated $4,000,000,000 in expansion. The newspaper chief was sure Canada's forests can yield the extra pulpwood providing there is federal aid in tax incentives and other forest management help.

Eden Warmly Applauded at Party Meeting

BRADFORD, England (CP)— Prime Minister Eden was warmly applauded during his speech at a Conservative party rally Wednesday night when he mentioned the possibility that compulsory military service may eventually be abolished in Britain.

The subject came up as the prime minister spoke of increasing the pay of servicemen. He said:

"Let no one think that increased pay for the services is an extravagance. It is no such thing. There is no doubt at all that if we were able to recruit the regular air land and sea forces that we need, the profit to the nation in manpower and money would be immense.

"Then indeed we could look forward to the abolition of national service. That is our objective."

Alberta Marked Golden Jubilee In '55 But Mayors of Five Cities Say Growth Just Started

Alberta marked its golden Jubilee as a province in 1955 and entered on its second half-century. It also added an eighth city. The Canadian Press asked mayors how the cities fared in the golden Jubilee year and what are the prospects for 1956. Replies from the five mayors who replied are the basis for the following story.

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — The year 1955 marked Alberta's golden jubilee, but to the province's cities it was just another in the many years of almost phenomenal growth.

For instance, take a look at Alberta's oldest city — Calgary—incorporated 12 years before Alberta became a province in 1905. Its population is about 175,000.

"The numerical growth in Calgary alone for 1955 will approximate more than 12,000 people," Mayor D. H. (Don) Mackay said.

"This is the same as adding a healthy, young, vigorous city to your community on the basis of once a year, for this figure has been going on in rather unrelenting fashion for all of the post-war years."

Calgary's experience was not the exception, but the rule.

"The continued development of Alberta's natural resources ... has served to maintain the dramatic expansion that has been Edmonton's experience for the past 10 years," said Mayor William Hawrelak of Alberta's capital and largest city.

"By May of 1955 Edmonton's population was recorded as 269,353, an increase of 11,500 from that of 1954."

What of 1956 and the future? Let Mayor Mckay sum up the general opinion:

"The Calgary citizen looks forward in 1956 with a full realization that it will be a good year for the province and a fine year for Calgary as well."

Not one of the five of Alberta's eight city mayors who replied to a Canadian Press query on 1955 progress and outlook for the future was pessimistic.

Mayor J. M. McAfee, elected chief magistrate of Red Deer, central Alberta city of 13,600, during the jubilee year, included all of Canada in his predictions of a great future.

"Alberta's future appears bright indeed. The natural resources are being developed with a resultant excellent effect on the economy as a whole. We are taking our rightful place in the Dominion. Certainly, the 20th century belongs to Canada."

In the south, Mayor T. R. Haig of Lethbridge, who also took office in 1955, had this to say:

"We are fortunate in being in the province of Alberta. While the development that has taken place in recent years has been largely sparked by oil and gas discoveries ... we have only started on developing the many other rich varied resources which have been lying more or less dormant in the past years."

The mayor of Alberta's youngest city, R. H. Hume of Camrose, incorporated Jan. 1, 1955, said:

"I have a great deal of faith in the future of Camrose. I see on every hand evidence of progress ... and I feel certain the present trend of growth of Camrose will continue."

The population of Camrose is 6,000.

Wherein lies the reason for such growth as the mayors forecast?

In agriculture, in natural resources development and in industry, they said.

Mayor Hawrelak gave these reasons for the growth of Edmonton: continued development of natural resources, particularly those of gas and oil and forest products; the intensified activity with respect to Canada's northwestern resources, and the consequent industrialization of northern Alberta.

To the city itself, Mayor Hawrelak said industrialization is the most important factor. He said that during 1955 work was proceeding on industrial projects amounting to more than $80,000,000 in the district tributary to Edmonton and it appears that in 1956 the total will be more than $100,000,000.

"I feel justified in predicting," he said, "that 1956 will be a year of continued expansion, a year of continued prosperity, for Edmonton and district."

Calgary, in the heart of the ranching and farming area, has long been one of the key distribution centres of western Canada, said Mayor Mackay. Now it comes into the picture of western Canada development as "the financial orbit of the over-all picture more than it does from any other direct point."

"To this," said the mayor, "can be attributed a great deal of its commercial growth. . . .

"Oil companies, of course, are widening their field of applied effort in western Canada and all the executive planning is finding its place on the desks of Calgary headquarters. As a result, a constant expansion and growth of the oil industry has been occasioned and, in turn, Calgary has benefited. Calgary has been favored with tremendous building programs . . . which put million dollar undertakings into the realm of everyday occurrence."

In the future, Mayor Mackay sees his city as a manufacturing centre. It has three of the key qualities for this kind of manufacturing development, he said: "Power resources of unlimited scope, raw resources and ample supplies of water."

Vast amounts of natural gas with rich by-product elements promise that within the next five years Calgary may well be a key centre of petro-chemical development, Mayor Mackay added.

In Lethbridge, where the population has virtually doubled from 11,000 in 1945 to 21,000 in 1955, Mayor Haig says the expansion "is mainly based on agriculture."

"Not the hit-and-miss agriculture of the Prairies pioneering days," he said, "but on the many varieties of crops raised on the irrigated lands, unique in the West is this integrated area where 256,000 acres have been 'under the dich' for many years."

Bonuses to industry's growth are listed by Mayor Haig as the production, which, though it has declined from competition of unlimited quantities of cheap natural gas and oil, in 1954 brought more than 1,000,000 tons of district mines; natural gas fields, from which gas is exported to Montana; plentiful water and power supply, and direct rail connection with the United States.

Increasing discoveries of natural gas and oil in the area promise greater things for the future, he said.

NEED HELICOPTERS

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Nathan Phillips said Wednesday the Toronto Transit Commission should inaugurate a helicopter service between suburban Malton airport and the island airport to get airline passengers into the city faster. The 14-mile trip into the city now is made by bus or taxi.

Eden's Speech No Triumph But Most Agree His Critics Given No New Ammunition

By ADRIAN BALL

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain agreed hotly today whether Wednesday night's much heralded "comeback" speech by Sir Anthony Eden was a success or a flop.

The general view of political observers is that the prime minister did not score a triumphant success —but most also acknowledge that he did not provide ammunition for his critics.

Eden, speaking to a party rally of more than 2,000 persons at Bradford, Yorkshire, was breaking silence for the first time after widespread press attacks on him for alleged indecision on home and foreign issues.

This criticism, in which some of Britain's leading pro-government newspapers joined, was climaxed by rumors—flatly denied by the 58-year-old prime minister—that he intended to resign.

Eden's supporters had prepared the country for fireworks Wednesday night, and the Conservative press had called on him for a firm line of action against inflation.

The speech promised further reductions in government expenditure and in civil service, priority for the development of nuclear energy, the training of more technologists for industry and higher service pay to make the eventual abolition of conscription possible.

Eden also said the government will make a drive against restrictive practices in industry and that he will try to ease disputes in industry by direct talks with trade union chiefs.

Appealing to firms to check rising prices, he declared: The "battle of inflation is still on. If the weapons we are using now do not suffice, we shall not hesitate to use others."

He dismissed his critics as "cantankerous newspapers" and said the country is not on its way down and his government is not on its way out.

He devoted little of his speech to foreign affairs, but delivered this warning to his audience: "It has been for some time generally accepted that the danger of world war and military conflict has receded.

"I do not want to be misunderstood. The risk is always there and a universal explosion could easily be touched off by hostilities in some critical region as the Middle East.

"There is plenty of dry tinder about. Governments should beware lest, in trying to undermine longestablished friendships between others, they embroil themselves in greater perils." .

His supporters gave him a warm reception marred only by an incident in which a woman tried to wrest the microphone from him and shouted: "The British Empire is the greatest force for peace the world has known and you are throwing it away."

Today, newspaper editorials and commentators give the speech a mixed reception, some praising it enthusiastically, some giving it a faint cheer, and the left-wing journals condemning it as a flop.

Here are some leading editorial comments:

The Times (independent): "... While the prime minister was right in saying it is on the government's record at the end of its five-year term that the country will pronounce its verdict, he and his colleagues have to realize that they have little more than another 15 months in which to get on top of events."

WAIT AND SEE

Manchester Guardian (Liberal): "... The question is whether [illegible] and his colleagues have the genius to see answers as well as problems. Bradford was clearly not the occasion for this revelation. We must wait and see."

Daily Telegraph (Conservative): "What was to be hoped for, if not expected, was a new firmness of tone, an assertion of the prime minister's right and duty to tell unpleasant truths, and a fearless restatement of conservative principles. By this standard it is fair to credit Sir Anthony Eden with a modest success."

Daily Herald (Labor): ". . . A miserable, platitudinous flop. The country wanted leadership. It didn't get it. It wanted an end to dithering. It didn't get it. It wanted a fair and reasonable plan to fight inflation and to check the soaring cost of living. It didn't get it."

Builders Agree Should Avoid 'Hibernation'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada should forget her winters and enjoy them.

This, expressed in perhaps an over-simplified way, was a theme which ran through the three-day annual meeting of the Canadian Construction Association which ended Wednesday.

The idea, as stated in a resolution, was that Canadians should get over the hibernation complex and keep their working force at least near full employment the year around.

No one suggested that snow and ice could be ignored but many felt there were ways of dealing with them. In some kinds of work they were even a help and in many cases not the handicap they were thought to be.

Raymond Brunet of Ottawa, past president of the association, said Wednesday that much of the solution lay in a change of mentality.

"Let's have a 12-month year instead of one of eight months."

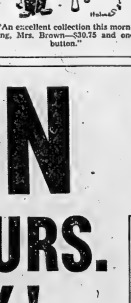
Labor Minister Gregg said Monday night:

"The main obstacles against higher wintertime employment are prejudice, habit and misunderstanding."

Rail Firemen Seeking 25 P.C. Wage Increase

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian locomotive firemen will seek a 25 per cent wage increase, W. E. Gamble, vice - president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, announced Wednesday.

The brotherhood will also ask for time-and-a-half wage rates for work on statutory holidays and payment for statutory holidays which they do not work.



These demands, formulated by Brotherhood chairmen from Canada's major railroad companies at a meeting here Wednesday, will be presented to the railway companies Feb. 1. Current contract expires March 31.

The demands are roughly equivalent to a wage health and welfare package asked earlier by a joint union negotiating committee representing 150,000, non-operating railway employees, officials said.

HORSES DECLINE

STRATFORD (CP)—The horse has not only lost its prestige on the farm but is now in danger of being eliminated from fall fairs in western Ontario, Reeve W. Angus Dickson of Listowel said there are not enough horses remaining in the country to warrant agricultural societies spending money on prizes for horse shows.

King Papers in Britain Sell 46 Million Copies in Week

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Cecil Harmsworth King is the new Napoleon of Fleet street.

At 54, he is Britain's biggest publisher in terms of circulation, probably the most successful newspaper "salesman" in the world. Consider the figures:

His group sells 46,000,000 papers a week, outpacing all rivals.

His brawling tabloid, The Daily Mirror, has the world's largest daily sale, some 4,180,000.

FAMOUS UNCLE

"And we should go higher still," says King, a tough-minded, tenacious man who may become as legendary as his uncle, the late Lord Northcliffe. An eccentric genius, Northcliffe styled himself the Napoleon of newspaper row. Lord Beaverbrook called him the greatest man who ever walked down Fleet street.

Now it is King's turn. From a third-floor office in Geraldine House — named for his grandmother—the tall, quiet-spoken director of the flourishing Mirror fortunes looks to the future coolly and confidently.

"Generally, I think British papers are in for a rather thin time," he says. "Some of the weaker ones may go to the wall. In our case, I see no particular reason for worry."

Spectacular deals last November sent the Mirror marching into Manchester and gave the group new properties in Scotland. These changes will strengthen an already potent newspaper force for the intensified competition that when newsprint rationing ends, perhaps in March.

Some think King's Sunday Pictorial, circulation about 2,500,000, may outsell pass the rival News Of The World, circulation a colossal 8,000,000. "It all depends whether they pick up their socks," King told a reporter. "Otherwise we'll go up and meet them on the way down."

CANADIAN PROPERTIES

The Mirror group has properties near Quebec City and at Dryden, Ont. Once, it considered acquiring a Canadian paper. Beaverbrook urged King to bid for the Toronto Globe and Mail but the Mirror magnate decided it would make an odd stablemate for his left-wing papers.

King used to vote socialist, now considers himself an independent Liberal, and likes his papers to reflect his views.

BIGGEST PUBLISHER

At 54, Cecil Harmsworth King is Britain's biggest publisher in terms of circulation. His tabloid Daily Mirror has the world's largest daily sale, some 4,750,000. The Mirror group of papers sells 46,000,000 papers a week, outpacing all rivals. He is a nephew of the late Lord Northcliffe. (CP Photo).

A heavy-set man with sandy-grey hair and a glinting eye, King has a reputation as a formidable character. He is said to be shy and hard to know. There are signs that success may have softened him. At a recent party he moved from table to table, chatting freely and frankly with editors and reporters of Reuters, the news agency of which he is a director.

"A transformation has taken place," a colleague noted. "He has become one of the best mixers in the business. Why? Success, I suppose."

On a visit to Canada, the newmellow King went to a lumber camp in Forestville, Que. He bent over a juke box, studied the titles and put in a coin. His nervous hosts, awed by the big man's presence, relaxed and smiled at the pair—it was a song about king-size bugs and kisses.

SCHOLARLY MAN

At Dryden, he petrified Canadian officials by "crowding" a circular saw. "I like to understand how things work," said King, who pays the minutest attention to detail. A graduate of Winchester and Christ Church, Oxford, he is a scholarly man whose office contains possibly the world's most comprehensive collection of books about West Africa. He reads voraciously but eschews fiction.

Central heating is one of his hates. He has made about 19 trips to Canada and always comes home spluttering and sneezing. "Had all the windows open and the heating turned off in one of your hotels and I was still too hot, in winter time." He had the heating taken out of his home in Cheyne Walk, Chelsea. Work dominates his life. In spare moments, he goes to his rambling, old-fashioned house in Scotland, which lacks even an electric light. He likes shooting partridge and grouse.

His rise parallels that of the Mirror, to 1934. Its circulation dropped to 1,200,000 and was sinking fast. King was one of a group of lifesavers.

REMEMBERED COUNTERPART

"We remembered that The Daily News, in New York, was modelling on our paper, and decided to see if we could learn something in return. The first step was comic strips.

"Then we called in an advertising agency. The lesson we learned was compression — short, sharp, punch writing."

In wartime, the Mirror was so outspoken that Winston Churchill, then premier, summoned King to Downing street because he thought the paper was damaging national morale.

Now, 34 years later, the Mirror is still slugging away, seeking fresh targets and fresh conquests. For the new Queen, the emperor's clothes seem a perfect fit—king-size, in fact.

PRINTERS' SLOWDOWN

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's provincial newspapers and periodicals face delays in production as the result of a slowdown by about 60,000 printers which began Wednesday. The printers are compositors and pressmen whose unions have called for restrictions on overtime work to back their pay claims.

Anti-Combine Laws Assailed By Papermakers

MONTREAL (CP) — Segments of federal anti-combines laws were described before the Gordon economic commission Wednesday as unfair, shocking and a blot on criminal procedure.

Calling for drastic revisions, the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association charged that the doctrinaire approach of the federal restrictive trade practices commission and the courts results in a "senseless blackening" of the reputation of Canadian business at home and abroad.

Association president R. M. Fowler said that under one section of the act a malicious employee or minor official could have written a document years ago and if anti-combines officers get hold of it, it can be used against an accused company as court evidence.

He said court cases are so lengthy and costs involved so heavy that frequently accused companies plead guilty and pay fines on price-fixing and other charges even when they know they are not guilty.

RESENT TREATMENT

Businessmen were being treated as criminals even before any offence is presumed. They had cooperated with the government during the period of wartime controls. One of the "most damaging" practices of anti-combines officials was to charge offences traced to the controls period. The legislation should be amended to make this practice impossible, Mr. Fowler said.

How is everyone affected by agricultural price supports?

(a) Consumer —In the case of butter and to some extent on eggs, they have assured a regular supply levelling out price swings between seasons of high and low production.

(b) Taxpayer — The cost of price support has to be paid in the form of taxes—estimated during the six years, (1) In operation less than 1-5 of a cent per pound of butter.

(c) Wage-earner. The farmer must sell at a fair margin or he can't buy what the wage-earners produce.

Ways in which the farmer benefits:

(1) No agricultural depression after the war; (2) The farmer has some basis on which to decide what he will produce; (3) Price supports help maintain more stable production.

"thought I'd never bake a perfect cake! (but now I never miss - with Jewel!)

HERE'S MY FAVOURITE RECIPE. WON'T YOU TRY IT SOON?

Arabian Spice Cake

Yields Two 9-inch or three 8-inch layers
Method: Quick-Mix Type
Like every cake made with pure, Quick-Mix Jewel, this one is high, light, and handsome. The flavour is spicy, but delicate—with just a bit of chocolate for extra husband-appeal.

Group 1:
1 cup Quick-Mix Jewel shortening
2½ cups sifted cake flour
2 cups granulated sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon allspice
2 tablespoons cocoa
¼ cup buttermilk or sour milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon lemon extract
1 teaspoon nutmeg

Group 2:
¾ cup buttermilk or sour milk
4 Swift's Breakfield eggs

Place Jewel in a bowl. And do make sure it's Jewel, because this is the shortening with the failure-proof blend—a blend so perfect no other shortening has been able to match it! Sift into bowl the dry ingredients. Add ½ cup buttermilk, vanilla and lemon extract. Beat 2 minutes on medium speed of an electric mixer or use 150 strokes per minute by hand. Thoroughly cut entire mixing time keep batter scraped from beater and sides and bottom of bowl.

Add group 2. Beat 2 additional minutes on medium speed. Notice how smooth and rich the batter is. That's because Jewel is homogenized, for quick, easy, thorough creaming. Pour equal amounts of batter into pans lined with 2 layers of waxed paper or one layer brown paper. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) for approximately 28 minutes.

And now, cut cooing your Arabian Spice Cake—as perfectly delicious as a cake CAN be, because you've made it with perfectly-blended Jewel. Frost and decorate cake when cool.

Swift
Many cost more—
none are better!

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

GOOD CAUSE

Sportswriters are queer animals. And their brothers-in-arms, the sportscasters, are no better. Like everything else they write or put in this world for a purpose. Just what that purpose is a lot of people would like to know. Sometimes the writers and casters wonder themselves.

They wear sloppy clothes. If they're thrifty they have a "good suit for Sunday." They get around, however. They go places. They meet a lot of nice people, mostly sports writers and casters. They're a mighty handy gadget to have around when some sports blabs wants "samples for matzhn." They're often "spanked"—seldom thanked. They get free tickets to all sports events. They come in contact with players, coaches and "brass." They always have a pleasant word of Grey Cup tickets, pasteboards to National League hockey games, or other major events. If they haven't got 'em —they can get 'em.

Usually they wear baggy pants and sloppy hats. There's little benefit the hat—and less in the trousers' pockets. Or so most people will say. If there weren't they would be digging ditches. They make more enemies in a year than all the landlords in the country. Athletes love 'em when they like—and hate their intestinal rajimah when they tell the truth, at times.

But like everything else, as was said before, they were placed on this mortal coil for a purpose other than to work like the night and Sundays and keep a straight face when they count the pay cheque contents.

Some will say they represent but little good. So be it. But put a lot of them together, and it might amount to quite a chunk of something that isn't altogether bad.

Take their organization, The Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters' Association. Secretary of the sports typewriter Joes and the Gerald Brown's of Ontario are members of the body.

Two or three times a year they get together, play golf, curl or just have fun. They even take their wives along—at times.

They are not exactly without friends. In fact there are hundreds of folk across Ontario who think they're about tops. Those are little folk—the crippled kiddies of the province who are more or less the protegee of these sports-recording pieces of humanity.

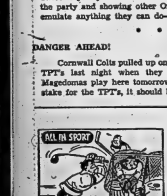
Each year their organization holds a celebrites dinner. It's expensive, as sportscasters and casters go, and inasmuch as coin of the realm is concerned. But not when you reckon peace of mind and the inward glow of a job well done for other folks, is the receipt.

Each year for the past four years, the organization invites outstanding sports figures of Canada, the United States and the rest of the world to be their guests at the dinner. The tab is $25 per plate. And every cent of this goes to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. During the past four years the writers and casters have, from the proceeds of these dinners, donated some $30,000—count 'em—$30,000 to this society.

True they have been assisted by other folks. For instance, the Ontario Hotel Keepers Association, a grand bunch of guys, have picked up the dinner checks at the Royal York, allowing the ticket 'take" to go to the crippled kiddies.

This year the dinner is scheduled for February 2 at the Royal York Hotel. From advance information it looks like the best yet.

Here are some of the world's outstanding sports celebrities who will be on hand: the famous hockey family, the Patricks, Lester, Muzz and Lynn; that pair of famous Dodgers, Johnny Wilson and Rackie Robinson; another baseball hero, Dizzy Trout; Earl Siebert of NHL fame; Lee Dandurand, wealthy sports figure of the Canadiens, Alouettes and Montreal; Al Balding, Canada's great golfer; Norman Kwong, the China Clipper of the Edmonton Eskimos and Canada's outstanding athlete of 1955, and a host of others.



But here's the point. The dinner is not confined to sportswriters and casters. Anybody can attend, if you have twenty-five bucks and get your order in early enough. Already a group of Belleville sportsmen are in on the "play." So how about it? You can get a ticket if you act quickly from this department or Jack Devine. It will be the highlight of your sport's calendar. One where you can fraternize and chat with sportdom's greatest, besides hearing them speak and tucking away the finest dinner you ever laid eyes on. And remember every cent of your "tab" goes to the crippled kiddies.

Attending the dinner from Belleville will be Danny Cox, Lionel Crawford, Ken Vivian, Jack Bush, Orlifit Lloyd, Tom Lewis, Lee Grills, Jack Devine, Claude Tice and this reporter. There is plenty of room for more. So how about getting in on the party and showing other Ontario centres that Belleville can emulate anything they can do—if not better it.

'Ungrateful' Rocket Breaks Five-Game Scoring Famine; Cuffs Hands That 'Cuff' Him

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ma foi! What ingratitude! Maurice Richard scored his historic 500th National Hockey League goal against Toronto Maple Leafs a couple of weeks ago.

For this he received a set of cuff links Wednesday from the city of Toronto. A few hours later Maurice, the great right winger with Montreal Canadiens, helped the Montrealers cuff Leafs into a 3-2 submission by scoring a goal.

In the lone engagement of the eight Canadiens snapped a three-game losing streak in which they had scored only one goal to step eight points ahead of second-place New York Rangers.

The goal ended a five-game scoring famine for Richard. Right winger Bernie Geoffrion also shook off his scoring slump by firing Habs' first goal. Left winger Bert Olmstead scored the winner at 14:56 of the final period. Tod Sloan, with his 25th of the season, and rookie Dick Duff counted for Leafs.

ALL SMILES

Even though Richard helped slish Leafs, Maurice Maurice was all smiles after the game. He went to Canadiens' dressing room to help Graduate Richard on his performance.

Duff opened the scoring at 8:14 of the first period with a 20-foot backhand shot which beat goalie Jacques Plante, who had saved moments before on Sloan's close-in bid, which beat goalie Hugh Bolton drew assists on the play.

Geoffrion made it 1-1 near the midway mark of the second frame with a low shot. Richard and Olmstead gave Canadiens a 2-1 lead at 13:50 when he pounced on a loose puck in the Toronto end and scored. The standing room crowd of 14,541 in the Forum gave him ovation after the play.

Sloan, the league's top goalscorer, tied the count 39 seconds later after a close-in passing play near Plante. Olmstead won the game when his low shot from just inside the Toronto blue line slid through a maze of players and chided goalkeeper Harry Lumley.

Floyd Curry almost added another Montreal goal in the closing minutes. With Lumley removed from the net in favor of an extra attacker, Curry drove out of Canadiens' zone and hit the goal post of the open net.

TORONTO (CP) — Maurice Richard, hockey's greatest scorer, was honored by Toronto Wednesday, the city which often gives him jeers and jibes.

The great right winger with Montreal Canadiens was presented with a pair of gold cuff links by Mayor Nathan Phillips in recognition of his 500th National Hockey League goal, scored two weeks ago.

The presentation was made in city hall a few hours before the league-leading Canadiens met Toronto Maple Leafs in a league engagement.

Mayor Phillips said:

"It was once felt you belonged to Montreal. You are a great Canadian sportsman and you represent Canada. Toronto is very proud of you."

THE FIRST TIME

It was believed to be the first time a hockey player was so honored by the city. The links, a traditional honor to distinguished guests, bear the city crest. It was a noisy and happy gathering. Photographers jammed into the hall leaving footmarks over the mayor's new leather furniture.

The 34-year-old Richard took his fellow Canadiens to the ceremony. He said there is a lot of hard feeling or jealous rivalry let between Montreal and Toronto.

"It is nothing like it was 10 or 12 years ago."

That was in the early 1940s, when Richard was a rising star with Canadiens.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, attended the ceremony. So did Leaf coach Howie Meeker, soon to earn captain Ed Smith and Canadiens general manager Frank Selke.

Mayor Phillips told Richard:

"We hope you go on to score another 500 goals. I just wish you would be a bit more careful about too many against Toronto."

To this, Selke said:

"Maurice always comes up with a superlative performances after a presentation."

Richard scored one goal as the Canadiens defeated Toronto 3-2 Wednesday night.

Russians Shine In Pre-Olympic Winter Trials

By STERLING HAFFEZO

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—In the competition going to be tougher in next week's winter Olympics? Well, the Finns left their world champion skier at home and brought along 10 unknowns who say said he better.

That should give you an idea.

The Games, which open a week from today at this Alpine village, figure to be the toughest yet.

In addition to the evident increase in competition among the usual Olympic countries, Russia will unveil its "mystery" team in its first appearance at the winter Games.

And from what the Russians have shown in warm-up meets, it may be an auspicious debut.

SWEPT SKATING

Only Wednesday the Russians swept the 500-metre race in the international speed-skating meet at nearby Davos, Switzerland.

And here, at Italia—the graceful Olympic ski-jump mountain—one Russian made a leap of 362½ feet, far and away the best yet in practice.

The Russian speed skaters left the others in their wakes. Rafap Gratch, an unknown, 20-year-old army officer, won the event, and in near-record time made the field "slow" by rain. The slim youth was timed in 41.3 seconds. The record is 40.8 held by Russia's Jurij Sergeev, who finished second.

Del Ewbank, U.S. coach whose best were out of the first 10, was amazed.

"On good ice," said Lamb, "Gratch would have done 39.8 or 39.9."

SURPRISE WINNER

The Soviet surprise in the ski jump was Koha Yaskacie, from the Ural mountains. His form was considered shaky, but there was no faulting the length of his leaps. Two other stars, Finland's Antti Hyvarinen and Japan's Hiroji Yoshizawa, hit only 343 feet in their best jumps.

Art Devlin of Lake Placid, N.Y., was the only U.S. squad member to try the jump. He was disappointed with his leaps of 205 and 200 feet but said his legs still were "rubbery" after the long trip here.

Most of the early arrivals among the skiers and bobsled teams hoped, but the real test will come when the Norwegian check in, probably Sunday. Lakes in Norwegian are really test a hill and prooounce it fit.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

But, No Raiding

National League Will Respect Contracts Signed by Yanks

WINNIPEG (CP)—The dove of peace fluttered over Winnipeg today as delegates began arriving for a Canadian football conference.

Bert Bell, commissioner of the U.S. National Football League said from Los Angeles Wednesday night that NFL clubs will respect contracts signed by U.S. players with Canadian teams.

His statement, in a telephone interview, set at ease the minds of Canadian football fans who saw at least 13 players who had signed Canadian contracts leave to play American teams in the annual football draft.

Bell gave assurance he will not approve any U.S. contract for a player already signed in Canada.

"You are not going to get the courts to uphold that kind of deal" he said.

CRITICIZES BONSHINE

But at the same time he warned Canadian clubs that the NFL will not tolerate raiding in the U.S. Singled out for criticism was Harry Sonshine, team director of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four.

"Toronto has been the worst offender and still is the worst offender," Bell said. "I don't think Sonshine has done the game of football any good."

The commissioner appealed to the Canadian clubs to clear up "this ridiculous situation." He said the solution lies with the commissioner whose word would be law, much as his is in the U.S.

As it is, the appointment of a commissioner is one of the topics to be discussed by the two Canadian leagues, both at their annual meetings and in joint sessions.

MEET TONIGHT

G. Sydney Halter, Western Interprovincial Football Union commissioner, said Wednesday night the leagues will meet jointly today, hold their separate annual meetings Saturday and Sunday, then meet jointly again Monday.

Coaches of the five WIFU clubs meet tonight to set down their recommendations to the annual league meeting. They will press for additional blocking, on punt returns, pass interceptions and 10 yard blocking by all five backs.

Delegates attending the joint sessions, the first such meeting for the two leagues, will tackle the question of an interlocking schedule, a national college negotiation list and a possible draft list of college players similar to that of the National Football League.

Bell offered another suggestion for the agenda—a series of exhibition games with NFL teams. He did not elaborate.

BEAT GERMAN TEAMS

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP) RCAF Flyers overpowered Duesseldorf 11-3 Wednesday in an exhibition hockey game.

The Flyers, on a west European tour, built up a 6-2 lead in the first period and then coasted to victory.

In Mannheim, Germany, the United States Olympic hockey team defeated a picked West German squad 6-2 Wednesday night in a 2-3 game hockey game before 7,000 spectators.

Dutchies Solving European Rules; Whip Czech Second Team By 9-1 Score

Score Six in Third Period Of One-Penalty Exhibition; Czech Goalie Star of Game

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PRAGUE (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, trailed and getting accustomed to the European interpretation of hockey rules, today stoned Jerry Toberga's second Exhibition victory in two days over a Czech team.

Canada's Olympic entry, taking advantage of the lessons learned in Monday's 4-2 victory over Scotland's Paisley Pirates, Wednesday routed Czechoslovakia's second team 9-1. The Dutchmen coasted home with six goals in the third period.

"To my mind, the best thing was the way my boys stuck to the European rules," said coach Howie Meeker. "They played a good solid game and took the penalties in stride."

The Dutchmen's single minor penalty was a great difference from Monday night. At Paisley, bewildered by a rule preventing bodychecking beyond the opponent's blue line, they sat out 25 minutes. The Czechs had two minor infractions.

Bauer reported the first casualty of the long pre-Olympic warmup tour. He said winger Charlie Brooker suffered a knee injury in Monday's game and will be unable to play today. Brooker was not dressed as a spectator for the game.

But Bauer said the rest of the team is in good shape.

A crowd of some 15,000 in Prague's ancient Sports Hall — the most constantly applauded the clean, spectacular play of the Canadians. The Dutchmen, led by 23-year-old Ken Laufman with two goals, put on a Canadian display in shooting in contrast to the Czech defence which often missed the mark.

The Czechs took the lead after two minutes but George Scholes got a tying marker 47 seconds later on a power play. At 14:15 of the first period Art Hurst shot the length of the ice for what proved to be the winner.

Jerry Toberga, Paul Knox, Bud Horne, Bob White and Billy Colvin added additional scores in the final two periods as the Dutchmen brewed up a steady bombardment against Czech goalie Josef Zaborsky.

"Zaborsky was the best player on the ice," said Kitchener-Waterloo coach Howie Meeker.

Before the game, the Czech team gave the Dutchmen dolls dressed in Czechoslovak native costumes and the Canadians gave the Czechs pucks signed by the Dutchmen's green and white colors.

Canadian charge d'affaires G. B. Summers of St. John's, Nfld., congratulated the team in their dressing room after the game.

The Czech team, which held Russia's Olympic team to a 5-5 tie in an exhibition game about six weeks ago, zoomed into a short, lived lead when the puck was less than two minutes old.

Karel Pokorny netted a perfect pass to Miloslav Charouzad, who cut in from the left wing to whip the puck into the net behind Hurst.

Czechoslovakia continued to dominate the game with fine six-minute mark when a penalty gave the Dutchmen a one-man advantage for Scholes to score.

Star of the Czech team was Zaborsky who repeatedly picked up close-in drives and in one hectic scramble blocked successive shots by Laufman, White and Knox. But in the third period not even Zaborsky's fine play could hold the Canadians.

Crawfords Win Opening Game Basketball Loop

By DON DOLAN

If the rest of the basketball games played in the Belleville and District Y.M.C.A. Senior Men's Basketball League are as exciting as the opening game last night, spectators are in for a treat.

The Crawford crew got away to a flying start and threw in 14 points before the visitors hit the scoring column. As the first quarter ended Belleville had a lead of 24 to 10, thanks mainly to the phenomenal shooting of Ted Batchelor, who contributed 14 points during the first period.

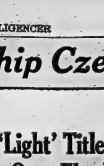
The local squad increased their lead to 18 points, leading 45-27 at half time and it appeared that they would coast to an easy victory.

But such was not the case. The Flyers got red hot in the third period and it appeared that basketballs were being thrown in against Belleville almost as fast as those jet planes which the Flyers pilot can travel. Deadly accurate scoring by Merv Billings and "Woody" Woods pulled the visitors to within six points of the Crawford squad at the end of the third quarter 61-55.

Flyers kept the scoring pace at the Belleville lead and near the four minute mark of the final period the score was tied at 67-67. However, the Belleville basketeers settled down and gradually built the lead back up again.

It was a fine game for the first match of the season and the outstanding feature of the second half was the brilliant shooting from the free throw line by Merv Billings and Woody Woods of the Flyers. Each made nine free throws in nine attempts.

Ted and Bill Batchelor were the stars in the Crawford's victory, they led the scoring with 28 points. John was second high man with 13 points as well as being great floor guarding.



Billings and Woods played very well in defeat, contributing 25 and 24 points, respectively.

Belleville Crawford 55 — Ted Batchelor 28; Parkhurst 5; Jackson 4; Ashland 2; Whadsley; Jeffrey 11; John Batchelor 13; Soule 2; Smith 2; Mathews.

Trenton RCAF 77—Eckley 7; Billings 32; Plummer 4; Garnett; Brougum; Woods 27; McCrudden; Williams 9; Kowk; Clarke 3; McCrudden 2; Hamilton 3; Jeffrey.

Officials—Bill Gault, Bill Spafford. Scorer, Bill Dickey.

Saddler Sights 'Light' Title After TKO Win Over Elorde

SANDY SADDLER
. . . Still Champion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ringwise Sandy Saddler, his world featherweight crown still intact although somewhat battered, set his sights today on a crack at the lightweight title.

The 32-year-old Saddler, retained his 126-pound championship Wednesday night with a technical knockout over Flash Elorde of Manila at 39 seconds of the 13th round. Referee Ray Torres stopped the scrap, a bloody melee the final rounds, because of a long, deep cut over Elorde's left eye.

The game little challenger, who scaled 122 pounds to Saddler's 126, suffered the cut in the eighth round and a pop in the nose which unsettled the rest of the way. He insisted after it was over, though, that he could have gone on. The crowd, almost 100 per cent on his side, took hardly when Torres decision to stop it was concurred in by ring physician Dr. Robert Ladson.

"I finish strong," Elorde said later. "The eye was no bothering me, he never did hurt me."

DOCTOR DISAGREED

Dr. Ladson disagreed on his third. He said Elorde's left eye was "mushy—in the 10th and 11th rounds —Flores had stopped the action to an accumulation and had ordered Dr. Ladson sent Elorde back. In the 13th, as the referee obeyed Flores' request, he called a halt.

"It was too deep to take chances on damaging the eye itself," Dr. Ladson said. "He's just a kid and he'll have lots more opportunities worse, deeper and longer."

It was obvious at the ringside that the physician's diagnosis was correct. The cut was almost minute in the eighth round, but blood streamed from it the rest of the way. Saddler's white trunks were pink and Elorde's black ones bore big splotches of crimson.

Saddler, whose delighting tactics brought frequent boos from the crowd, took full advantage of the injury to swing the fight in his favor. Several times in the clinches the crowd thought he was using his thumb to rub across the eye.

Saddler continued after the fight that Elorde failed to hurt him at any time. However, he took what looked like a good right to the eighth round and had none the better of it in the ninth when Elorde uncorked his best two-fisted attack.

Bulldogs Down Maroons 6-1

CHATHAM (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs scored three goals in both the second and third periods Wednesday night to down Chatham Maroons 6-1 in an Ontario Hockey Association clash. A League crowd of before 2,100 fans.

After a scoreless first period, Bulldogs collected three in the second period with Frank Bolingate getting two and Ray Abbott the other.

Danny Blair notched his fourth goal against the Bulldogs in two nights at the 37-second mark of the third period. A tripping penalty to defenceman Dick Kotanen spoiled the way for Gord Haidy at 6:37 and by coach Jim Peters at 7:07. Peters added his second goal at 11:10.

The 'Eyes' Had It

Canadian Puck Stars Suspended By Michigan U.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Two University of Michigan hockey players, Mike Buchanan and Wally Maxwell, have been temporarily suspended from competition pending an investigation of alleged professional activities, it was announced.

Michigan coach Vic Heyliger said Wednesday Buchanan and Maxwell, both Canadians, have been charged with working out for three days each with professional hockey teams while still high school students in Canada. He said the charges state that Buchanan and Maxwell accepted expense money during the period.

Heyliger said both boys would still be considered amateurs in Canada. However, such expenses from a professional team are definitely against Big Ten Conference and National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

Buchanan, of Ottawa, is charged with receiving expense money while practising with both Chicago Black Hawks and St. Louis Flyers. Maxwell, of Toronto, was charged with working out with the Toronto Maple Leafs for a short period at home.

NO VACANCIES

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—Increased interest in the winter Olympics starting Jan. 26 has left hotels here without a vacancy for the duration of the Games. A spokesman for the hotelkeeping association, however, said Wednesday that space is available in private homes.

Brighter Future Is Forecast For ORFU

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario Rugby Football Union, whose future became almost extinct last weekend, may be heading for a brighter future.

Despite reports that Sarnia Imperials might not be back, St. Catharines and London entries may join with Toronto Beaches and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen to form a four-team circuit. There is also a possibility that Sarnia will reconsider, making it a five-team union.

Ralph Dufton, spokesman for a London group formed a favorable report that said London would not have an ORFU senior team in 1956.

"What I did say was that if Kitchener, Sarnia and Toronto field teams in 1956 London would have an entry. Otherwise we wouldn't enter."

Dufton also revealed that Annis Stukus, former head coach of Vancouver Lions and Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, turned down a bid to act as coach and promotions manager for the proposed London entry.

Stukus, approached by Dufton about the deal, reportedly approved the London group considering him for the post but stated that he has decided to retire from football coaching and devote his time to sports writing.

St. Catharines interests are reported ready and eager to jump in as a replacement for Sarnia, and ex-Hamilton Tiger-Cat star Vince Mazza is reportedly the coach.

Sarnia, having temporarily at least, dropped out of the ORFU is making overtures toward the Big Four Football Union.

Ralph Sazio, leading football figure at Sarnia and a former Canadian Football Union president, has received word from Ralph Misener of Winnipeg that he will approach Big Four football officials on the subject when the league meets in Winnipeg with the WIFU this weekend. Misener is a former Sarnia resident and a former president of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

US--Canadian Relations Head for Peaceful Existence

By ED SIMON.
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian-American football relations, frequently strained during the last five years, appear to be settling into a period of competitive coexistence.

Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League sounded the new and non-belligerent keynote Wednesday night when he pleased that United States professional club owners will respect the contracts of their Canadian counterparts "unless those fellows up there do something to us."

"Those fellows up there—team officials of the Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union —plan to take up a settlement of differences with the NFL at their meeting in Winnipeg next Monday.

The competitive arises from the scramble to sign the 241 United States college graduates parcelled out by the NFL in their annual draft meeting which ended Wednesday night at Los Angeles.

ALREADY SIGNED

Thirteen of them already are signed to Canadian contracts and made known Wednesday night that he intends to see that they stay signed.

"I would not approve any contract of a player who has already signed in Canada," Bell said. "You are not going to get the courts to uphold that kind of deal."

The NFL commissioner said the naming of such players in the draft would protect the drafting club's rights to deal with them if they were released by their Canadian owners and waived out of the league.

But Cleveland coach Paul Brown still had hopes of signing Bob Davenport, UCLA's burly fullback. Brown signed with Calgary rather than an NFL club because of religious scruples against playing football on Sunday. The league schedules no Sunday dates while practically all NFL games are Sunday fixtures.

Asked Wednesday night why he drafted Davenport despite his Winnipeg contract, Brown simply replied:

"Because he's known to change his mind."

Three Canadian clubs announced successful shopping expeditions among NFL-drafted players Wednesday. Chicago Cardinals lost Defensive guard Jim Bolliger to Edmonton Eskimos and Michigan State tackle Norman Masters to Montreal Alouettes. Bolliger and Tiger-Cats beat Washington Redskins to Vince Gonzales, an USC back.

Helfand Boxing Probe Enters Second Phase

NEW YORK (AP) — The next phase of Julius Helfand's investigation into boxing was scheduled to open today with promoters Tex Sullivan and Willie Gilzenberg appearing to show cause why their licences should not be revoked.

There was a report, however, that the hearing might be postponed.

The St. Nicholas Arena promoters, who operate as the London Sporting Club with a network television outlet, must answer eight charges. They will be represented by Francis Adams, former New York police commissioner. Reports said Adams would ask more time to prepare.

Sullivan and Gilzenberg are charged with "consorting with persons convicted of crime, bookmakers, gamblers and persons of similar pursuits" in connection with their attempt to buy television rights to Baltimore. They also are charged with trying to bribe members of the Boxing Guild of New York "sabotage" the New York State Athletic Commission, of which Helfand is chairman.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Jack Dempsey has commended Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, for his fight to clean up boxing.

Dempsey, scheduled to referee a fight at Troy, Ohio, tonight, said: "I'm all for anybody who tries to clean up boxing. It needs to be cleaned up."

HAWKS LOSE STANLEY

CHICAGO (AP) — Defenceman Allan Stanley will be lost to Chicago Black Hawks at least for their next two National Hockey League games.

Stanley suffered a charleyhorse in Tuesday night's 3-2 tie with New York Rangers at Omaha and a blood clot which later developed burst Wednesday. He was taken to hospital.

OSLO (AP)—Aud Borgen, ace Norwegian runner who holds the world 1,000-metre record, said Wednesday he will have nothing to do with the Melbourne Olympics in November—even if chosen for Norway's small Olympic team.

'Well Balanced, Collective'

Czech Writers Hail Dutchies 'Without Stars, Prima Donnas'

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PRAGUE (CP)—Czech newspapers today hail the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, Canada's Olympic hockey representatives, as "well balanced, collective . . . without stars or prima donnas."

All agree the teamwork, speed, clean play and adaptability of the Canadians in their 9-1 victory over the Czech "B" team here Wednesday night.

Many sports editors draw comparisons between the Dutchmen and Pentiction Vees who played an exhibition matches here last year before going to Germany to win the world hockey championship for Canada.

The general comment is that although the Dutchmen had no individual stars to match Pentiction's colorful Warwick brothers, perfect teamwork was their strongest suit. One newspaper says the Dutchmen were "obviously holding something in the reserve for Cortina."

STRESS TEAM PLAY

The Czech word for "collective" in effect means "single unit" or "team" with emphasis on co-operation.

Ceskoslovensky Sport, official publication of the state sports committee, says:

"Canada's decision to send a real collective to the Olympic Games is interesting and shows they correctly appreciate the strength of their chief rivals."

The Canadians' concentration on the game and positional play was praised.

The newspaper singles out defencemen Howie Lee and Floyd (Butch) Martin for "special praise," saying they were "impregnable" in front of the net.

"The two defencemen threw up a wall that held four attackers and allowed their forwards freedom to counter-attack," it said.

FORWARDS PRAISED

Also praised as "initiators of successful attacks" were forwards Ken Laufman, Jack McKenzie, Bob White and Buddy Horne.

Rude Pravo, Communist party newspaper, says "the Canadians played a hard but very clean game. They used the boards well."

Svobodne Slovo, newspaper of the Socialist party, says "we must praise the Canadians for their exemplary performance without a single disturbing element by which they won the goodwill of the Prague public."

"They played clean, elegant, spirited hockey."

Prace, a trade union publication, says the Dutchmen treated the fans to a display of "perfect hockey" and adds:

"If the Canadians play the same brand of hockey in Cortina as they showed here they will probably win the Olympic hockey championship."

ADAPT QUICKLY

Prace pays special remark on the short time in which the Canadians, accustomed to Canada's heftier bodychecking style of play, have adapted themselves to European hockey rules.

The general tone of comment is that in the Dutchmen Canada has sent to Europe a team which will undoubtedly win greater esteem for Canada and the Olympic Dominion.

This afternoon the Canadian players attended a reception at the home of the Canadian charge d'affaires in Prague, G. B. Summers of St. John's, Nfld. Also present were the first secretary of the Canadian legation, Peter Dobbell of Montreal, and Group Capt. A. S. Bryan, air attache and former commanding officer of the RCAF station, Summerside, P. E. I.

A shopping tour is being arranged before the team leaves Friday for Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, and the Olympics.

Flyers Whip Marlboros 5-3

BARRIE (CP) — Barrie Flyers stretched their winning streak to three games Wednesday night as they defeated Toronto Marlboros 5-3 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league game before 1,200 fans.

The win moved sixth-place Flyers four points ahead of Hamilton Cubs and four behind Marlboros and Guelph Biltmores, tied for fourth place.

Billy Forhan and George Rainert paced Barrie with a pair of goals each. John Chaszewski was the other Flyers marksman. Bob Nevins, Ron Farnfield and Bob Pulford scored for Toronto.

In a duplicate title match, all tables play the same deals at some time or another. Since each pair gets exactly the same hands, results do not depend on the run of cards.

The first impression you may get from this is that there is no luck attached to it. Or that the most expert pair will surely get the best result in every deal handled.

Far be it from such, however. Plenty of luck still prevails in such contests. As can be seen in this simple deal:

	NORTH
	♠Q 9 5
	♥J 9 7 5
	♦A K
	♣K 9 6 3
WEST		EAST
♠6		♠A J 8 4 3 2
♥6 4 2		♥K
♦8 7 6 4 3 2		♦Q J 10
♣10 8 2		♣A 7 5
	SOUTH
	♠K 10 7
	♥A K Q 8 3
	♣Q J 4

The best results went to a few pairs that landed in a no-trump game. To be there they must be good guessers or hard in the head or telepathic, because the proper contract is in hearts.

The correct bidding goes like this:

South	North
1 Heart	3 Hearts
4 Hearts	Pass

Although undeserving of such terrible fate, many of the heart contractors took a loss instead of a gain. They were defeated by the opponents in a very simple and efficient manner.

This happened with the opening lead of the singleton spade that east took promptly with the ace. A spade return was ruffed by west. A club came back to east ace and west ruffed another spade.

Mostly it was luck that some had in the no-trump contracts. But with the defence against four hearts it was all science. In each of the details the defenders were absolutely confident of their acts.

For instance, west knew definitely why his correct lead was a singleton and his second lead a club. And east knew the west first lead was a singleton. All scientific. I'll tell you more.

Mules show defiance to bridge that is science.

Bears Scalp Indians 6-2

HERSHEY, Pa. (CP)—Hershey Bears fought off Springfield's bid to join them in fifth place in the American Hockey League standings by defeating the Indians 6-2 Wednesday night.

The first of two goals by Dunc Fisher and another by Lorne Davis in the first period gave the Bears a lead they never lost. Graham Hastings counted for the losers in the second period but his tally was offset by Fisher's second and another by Gordie Wilson.

A second Hastings goal for Springfield and two for Hershey by Okie O'Brien and Floyd Smith completed the scoring in the finale.

SIGN CONTRACTS

Television Has Good Effect On Book Trade Sales Show

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—A couple of years ago some book publishers were concerned over the effects of television on the book trade. Today they are not. For the book trade has just completed what appears to be its most successful year since the war.

Many good books were published and widely read. No major publishing house closed its doors, and most must have made satisfactory profits. The happy year of 1955 in the book trade, remember, occurred at the same time as a happy year in the television industry when sales reached an all-time high.

Let me talk about myself for a moment and so possibly explain what happened to many people. Last weekend, when I was in a reading mood, my wife and I spent about six hours looking at television. About half of this time was pleasurable; the rest was dull. Much of the remainder of the weekend was spent reading.

Television has made me jealous. I went to read something specific instead of "anything." Television now affords me the "escape" that some readers once did. When I read these days I seek something that television cannot possibly offer.

EASY EXCUSE

What I read last weekend aside from the Sunday papers—never will appear on any TV screen. I read a book I've intended to read for some time, and finished reading another.

Whenever I hear someone say that television prevents him from reading I figure he hasn't much interest in reading. Books and television are not mutually exclusive. But a television set can be an easy excuse for a lazy mind.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Murray Rose, Australia's 17-year-old champion swimmer, Wednesday bettered the world record for 880 yards by 3.2 seconds in winning the New South Wales championship.

The husky youngster was clocked in 9 minutes, 34.3 seconds in the North Sydney Olympic pool. The record of 9:37.5 was set July 22, 1939 by Australia's John Marshall, then a Yale student, at Seattle, Wash.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, Jan. 20, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Tie up loose ends and try to get things finished and your desk, bench or other matters cleared for an unworried and pleasant week-end. Worthy endeavors, mental tasks, planning favored.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Ideal sort of time to put finishing touches to work, adding necessary details to improve any plan or undertaking. Necessary travel, transporting goods, handling machinery among top sponsors.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Testing equipment, airplanes, all items used in government, military, naval, (etc.) interests under fine aspects now, but usual precautionary measures should be strengthened and time taken to re-check.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Speed up a little or slow down some, according to how you are accomplishing. You be the careful judge. Some days we can do more in quantity but quality may suffer. Good: FRI.

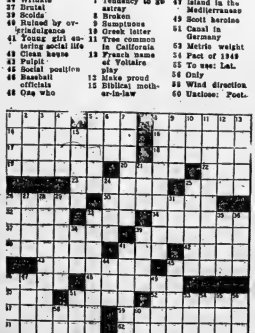
July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Follow your conscience and your excellent intuition but don't turn down sound suggestions and hints. Very often advice from others is just what we need for that right lead or solution.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Spoilsport of the zodiac today between the number of tasks you undertake and the speed with which you handle things. A slower but surer tempo may be best. You tend to overdo — don't anticipate trouble.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — You, too, should avoid extremes, keep a smooth, progressive tempo. New obligations can be studied and not started until later if not urgent. Fine aspects for familiar matters, due rest.

October 24 to November 23 — (Scorpio) — May not be exhilarating rays but urgent matters, new duties can be handled deftly and thinking you can be very efficient. It's up to you.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Can make headway through determined application of your best efforts, steady persuency. Don't be sidetracked by others who perhaps are not interested in your welfare.



December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Many branches to the success line now. Look it over carefully and choose those leading to ultimate definite achievement. Right manoeuvring, thought of future results and you'll gain.

January 22 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Youth and up to old age have happy indications this stimulating, can be profitable period. All have virtues and each can aid the other by wise observances and productive deeds.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — A time in which zeal is encouraged but it should be tempered with sensible caution lest to overdo. Your intuition plus fine capability can turn this day into real accomplishment.

You born today have great imagination, are intuitive, ingenious, have a gift for story-telling, writing, organizing, leading groups of people. It is indeed important that you keep your spiritual development compatible with material learning. May be a tendency to be dictatorial at times; correct this always, also inclination to extravagance and occasional indolence. These are possible faults but normally you are industrious, hard working and ambitious. Always pray for God's daily help and guidance. Birthdate: Eugene Sue, famed Fr. novelist; Josef Hofman, pianist; Robert Morris of Revolutionary fame.

20 Mile Ice Jam In St. Clair R. Blocks Traffic

WINDSOR (CP)—A second ice breaker today was to join the United States coast guard vessel Naokia which Wednesday started efforts to clear a 20-mile ice jam in the St. Clair river.

The coast guard breaker Acacia was ordered to sail from its Detroit river berth today to join the 835-ton Tupelo from Toledo, Ohio, forcing its way north from Lake St. Clair to clear the waterway and restore normal levels in the St. Clair and Detroit rivers.

The coast guard was called in by U. S. Army Corps of Engineers after the ice, piled up last week by heavy winds, lowered the level in some places by as much as 4½ feet, endangering water supplies.

INTAKES THREATENED

Water officials of several Michigan communities said they feared a further drop in the level would expose their intake pipes. Several private intakes were reported already dry or ice-clogged.

On the Canadian side there was less apprehension. Water officials in this area said they were "not quite" as still were several feet below the surface. But Chatham it was feared further lowering of the sag disposal outlet.

The Wednesday night the Tupelo reported it had progressed eight miles since encountering the first ice jam earlier in the week.

The vessel still was in the mouth of the river and when the jam had not yet been sighted, Ice so far encountered was between six and eight inches thick.

RECORD REWARD

Dr. Lawson said Linda's appearance was tossed from the car as it was driven along the street. She was still wearing her bonnet and a dark brown skirt and pink V-necked sweater.

Judges was wheeling his fuel truck along Commissioners street when he saw the body lying across the curb about 10 feet away from the car. He said it was a d. d. He stopped and glanced briefly at the girl. Then his eyes fell on the bundle of scarf around her neck.

Within minutes police were called and roped off the area. Said one police official: "There was little clue around. We'll have to start back-tracking."

LATEST IN SERIES

It was the latest in a rash of sex crimes in Ontario. A five-year-old Scarborough schoolgirl was violated and left to die of exposure in a London industrial area field. The case is unsolved. At least four rapes have been reported in Hamilton alone since the beginning of the year.

Linda, described as "very pleasant" by teachers at the Louise Burns dancing school, left for her lesson at 5:30 p.m. She joined the other girls in her class in the mid-town school.

Linda's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lamphin, expect to her back about 7 p.m. when the last dancing school at 7:30 p.m. but when the child failed to arrive home the father, a milling company clerk, notified police.

Instead of arriving home to bed, Mr. Lamphin had to go to the city morgue to make the identification. The mother fainted when she heard the news.

OTHER GIRLS THERE

Linda had been studying dancing in a business girls' class since last November. Most of the other girls are in their late 'teens.

The street on which the body was found is well lighted. There is little traffic in the area at night, with the exception of trucks making gasoline and oil pickups from nearby storage tanks.

Constable Harry Eastman was checking parked cars in the district when Judges happened on the murder victim. He was on the scene in minutes but there was no sign of the slaughterer.

Early today police were on the lookout for a panel truck reported seen in the area. William Sullivan, an oil company worker, said he saw the vehicle while going to work around 10 p.m.

Jean Chowen, 13, a classmate of the dead girl, said Linda had a date for the evening with a new boy friend. However, police said the boy, Ted Williams, 16, went to an athletic club after supper and returned home at 9 p. m.

Jean described Linda as an average student. She had no eight class but said she looked much older than her class mates.

Police had warned Linda and her girl friends several times about getting into cars with strange boys, Jean said.'

Will Stand Trial For Murder Of His Wife

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Gerrard Raes, 58, at a preliminary hearing Wednesday was committed to stand trial before the Supreme Court of Ontario on a charge of murdering his wife in their tobacco farm home Dec. 2.

Raes' adopted son, Daniel Murray, 8, told the court how he, his mother and the hired man, Hendrik Werbrouck, 47, watched television the night Mrs. Edna Mary Raes, 36, and Werbrouck were shot to death.

The bodies were found sprawled on the living room floor in the Raes' farm home, 17 miles north of Tillsonburg.

Medical evidence was that Mrs. Raes was shot four times, and the hired man was shot five times.

The boy, who was not sworn to an oath because of his age, said "Mom and Hendrik sat together on the studio couch to watch television."

He said there had been an argument between his mother and father following the evening meal. He said his mother "wanted to go out."

WENT OUTSIDE

Young Daniel said he then went outside. "I thought I heard a noise, but could not remember what the noise was. He said he then returned to the house and saw the bodies of his mother and the hired man on the floor.

His mother did not talk to him, he said.

Daniel said Rees then called a neighbor, Mrs. Susan Denys, whose husband was a witness, on which Raes was a sharecropper. He asked her to call the police.

After telephoning Mrs. Denys himself, the boy said his father sent him to the Denys home. Mrs. Denys said that when Raes called her he mumbled: "Edna and Hendrik, kissing."

Felt Tired, Rundown, Back Ached; Stomach Rebelled

MR. DOUGLAS LOZON

"For a number of years I was rundown, but since I've been taking Syntona I am delighted with the improvement in the way I feel," said Mr. Douglas Lozon, 31 Lewis Street, Chatham, Ontario, in a recent report.

Couldn't Sleep Well

"I couldn't get my proper sleep at night and I felt worn out almost from the time I got up each morning. Constipation, bad breath, indigestion, heartburn and sour stomach. I would get sick headaches and nasty pains my limbs, joints and muscles were very sore and painful.

"I heard of so many people who had used Syntona that I finally decided do try it and to my surprise I felt better from the first few doses. As I kept on using it, I noticed that I was getting rested. I could eat my meals without all that distress afterwards, and I found I could eat many things that previously used to give me trouble.

"The backache and other pains are also relieved and now my nerves are calmed down so I sleep better, and as a result I feel better than I did for several years."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Ship Crashes Into Texas Tower 100 Miles At Sea

Vessel Badly Damaged; Tower Escapes Unscathed

BOSTON (AP) — A ship today crashed into the Texas tower radar installation 100 miles off Cape Cod. The vessel was seriously damaged but the tall tripod structure was unscathed. There were no casualties.

The ship was the Sagitta, operated by the U. S. Military sea transport service and sent to the tower with fresh water and other supplies.

The $10,000,000 Texas tower is so named because of its resemblance to offshore oil-drilling rigs used in the Gulf of Mexico. It is one of a chain being constructed off the Atlantic coast as an advance warning system against air attack.

While servicing the tower, the Sagitta's starboard side crashed into the structure, tearing a hole in tanks in her No. 2 hold. Water flooded in and caused a severe list. However, pumps took control of the water and the vessel was able to proceed for Boston under her own power at five knots.

The Texas tower is located on a Georges bank shoal — dangerous waters to shipping.

Sporadic Violence Flares Again Around Bombay

By D. S. V. RAO

BOMBAY (AP) — Sporadic violence flared early today across India's seething southern Bombay state for the fifth consecutive day.

Official figures put the death toll at more than 40 since the riots erupted Monday in protest to a government plan to make the city of Bombay a separate state under a realignment of state boundaries.

There was no estimate of the total number of persons injured or arrested. Property damage from wrecking, burning and looting was widespread.

(An official report from the Bombay government received in New Delhi this morning said the riot situation was "fast improving and definitely under control.")

Authorities were besieged in dozens of towns by demonstrators who demanded that the officials resign. At Poona all 36 city council members quit after a rock-throwing mob stormed the municipal corporation building.

In this city one of the most severe battles came after midnight Thursday night when the main police armory was attacked by a mob seeking arms and ammunition. Police gunfire turned back the attackers.

The outbreak was the second in two months against the plan by Prime Minister Nehru's government to revise state lines on a language basis. The program calls for the division of Bombay state, with one new state taking in the Gujarati-speaking peoples of the north and another the Marathi-speaking south. Bilingual Bombay is inside the area designated for the Marathi state, but the central government has announced plans for a separate state under New Delhi administration.

A hotel and some houses nearby caught fire.

When it disintegrated part of the plane fell in the main street and the other half missed the village church spire and landed in a field.

Wadhurst is a small town in the borders of Kent and Sussex in southern England, has a population of 2,674.

The fire engines raced to the scene. One careened on the way, injuring two of the crew.

Fifteen inches of snow has fallen in the Lakehead area where the snow has been the heaviest. Another low pressure area, which is moving eastward over Pennsylvania this morning, caused varying amounts of snow from two to eight inches, in the Lake Erie and Niagara regions. As the second low moves eastward off the coast, the light snow will end over most of the southern Ontario region. However skies will be mainly cloudy today and scattered snowflurries will persist. The flurries will be heavy and most frequent in areas where northerly winds are offlake.

HOUSE DEFEATS NON-CONFIDENCE MOTION BY CCF

Opposition Dissatisfied With Wheat Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commons vote, first of the session, has defeated a CCF motion of non-confidence in the government based on opposition dissatisfaction with its policy on farm-held wheat surpluses.

A vote of 150 to 80 Thursday night rejected the motion accusing the government of "failure" to provide cash advances on farm-stored grain of at least 75 per cent of the initial price. All three opposition groups and four independent members voted together against the Liberal majority.

In six days of throne speech debate, which began last Jan. 12, members of all opposition parties have attacked the government program of guaranteeing bank loans of up to $1,500 at five-per-cent interest on farm-stored grain.

A new non-confidence motion was expected to be injected into the debate by the Social Credit party today.

PC MOTION

Still before the House is a Progressive Conservative motion saying cabinet ministers do not deserve the "confidence and support because of "indifference, inertia and lack of leadership in the face of serious national problems."

Vote on these two motions is scheduled for Tuesday night, with the throne speech debate—limited under new rules to 10 days —ending Wednesday.

The debate Thursday centred mainly on prairie grain-growing problems and other farm issues, but also ranged over such topics as divorce, gas pipelines and health insurance.

Opposition leader Drew spoke briefly—his second entry into the debate—to comment on an earlier statement by Trade Minister Howe that all four members of the Canadian wheat board would be out of office in four days if cash advances were put into effect.

MUST APPROVE

Mr. Drew said this suggestion was plainly nonsense unless Mr. Howe or any legislation is brought in approve of any legislation is bureaucracy needs is an utmost to every member of Parliament.

"We've had enough arrogance from ministers without having arrogance from public servants," he said.

Victor Quelch (SC — Acadia) called for a government-guaranteed wheat price averaging $1.81 a bushel for the top No. 1 northern grade, to be paid by the actual delivery price paid by the wheat board if not a support price. He also established that the senate the board loses no money.

He said farmers in countries other wheat-producing countries which have floor prices, instead of falling in line with them.

DEFENCE CHIEFS TO MEET

Monarchy Is a 'Substitute Religion' States Church of England Journal

LONDON (Reuters)—An Anglican weekly journal has called the monarchy a "substitute religion," tinged with superstition, and urges that "any member of the Royal Family" should be able to "slip easily and without fuss into private life."

The Church of England newspaper, which reflects the views of the "evangelical" party, said the element among Anglicans, says in an editorial:

"It is not only foolish but becomes wrong when one family is so separated from the people that no member of it can behave as other, decent people would without losing the nation to the disaster in the Scandinavian countries the attitude to monarchy is much more sensible and realistic."

Declaring that the monarch "is surrounded with a thick hedge of taboos that deter inquiry," it asks "whether the uncritical worship bestowed upon the Royal Family does not do grievous injury to the persons principally concerned or whether the nation is not laying up for itself a future danger."

"We have now had two warnings: That of the abdication and that of the Princess Margaret affair."

It notes that "the two previous disturbances have related to the morality of a ruler" and asks "whether the next occasion might not be more troublesome and not perhaps connected with marriage at all."

"It is utterly unreasonable to expect that every member of a family, by accident may be suddenly forced into a symbolic, semi-religious position by the accident of birth and without any training for it, whether will be able to live in the manner required as a symbol.

"In fact, monarchy is a psychological symbol suspended in midair. It is almost other than fickle mass emotions that could destroy its every qualifications and much less worthy objects."

The journal says that "the only effective direction of a large business firm with no qualifications other than that of being the son of a particular father."

It asks why "we go blindly on expecting every member of the Royal Family to carry out the highly specialized responsibilities of parents, and that one should be trained specially for that and/or she happens to be the first?"

Toronto Girl, 13, Strangled, Raped

The body of Linda Lampkin, shown, 13-year-old Toronto girl, was found Wednesday evening on a waterfront street in Toronto. Linda had been strangled with her own scarf and her body had then apparently been tossed from a vehicle. Toronto police have laid a murder charge against Robert Fitton, Jr., 23, a Toronto mail truck driver and father of two children. Raymond Lampkin, father of the slain girl, shown at right, says his daughter looked much older than her 13 years and was very popular. She was on her way home from dancing school when the assault occurred. Reward totaling $7,000 were posted for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Linda's murderer before police laid a charge of murder against Fitton after questioning him for eleven hours. — (Central Press Canadian.)

Liberals Say Quebec Govt. Uses Charity for Patronage

QUEBEC (CP)—Liberal opposition members have described the Quebec government's $12,000,000 public charities service of the health department as a "gigantic instrument of "political patronage."

Three opposition members said Union Nationale party organizers who have influence with the government collect hospital bills and promise to get them paid through the department of health.

Health Minister Albini Paquette said he has no knowledge of any such practice and said it is "totally condemnable."

The Liberals said in some ridings Union Nationale organizers have stepped up their activities appearing in view of a forthcoming provincial election.

Bernard Pinard, Liberal member for Drummond, said "I accuse the minister himself of tolerating this situation in his department."

Debate was adjourned before Mr. Paquette could reply.

At adjournment time Premier Duplessis described Liberal charges as "insane statements."

Fear Wolfe Is. Man's Car Fell Through Ice

KINGSTON (CP)—Police said today they fear Clarence M. Ogle, 60-year-old Wolfe Island hardware merchant drowned Wednesday when his car plunged through the ice of Lake Ontario between the island and the mainland.

Mr. Ogle, a bachelor, was reported missing Thursday, more than 24 hours after he left the island. Police said he left the island village of Marysville at 1:15 p.m. Wednesday and did not show up at the mainland. He was to have visited a doctor.

Carry McAllister, operator of the island taxi service, said he followed Mr. Ogle's car part way across the three-mile channel but lost him when he stopped to check the ice.

SHIP NO MORE ARMS UNTIL ISSUE DEBATED

Pledge St. Laurent's Reply to Drew's Plea

OTTAWA (CP)—A call by Opposition leader Drew for an emergency Commons debate today on Canadian arms shipments to the Middle East prompted a statement by Prime Minister St. Laurent that there will be no further arms shipments until the matter is fully debated.

Mr. St. Laurent made the statement after the Commons Speaker, Rene Beaudoin, said he could not accept Mr. Drew's proposal that normal business be suspended to discuss "the need for effective supervision of arms shipments.

Meanwhile it was learned here today an export permit has been granted for the shipment of $30,685 worth of 25-pounder ammunition to Israel.

A government informant said Canadian Commercial Corporation, a crown company, received authority to ship the arms last fall. The contract with the corporation is dated Nov. 3, 1955.

The ammunition was provided by Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, another crown company. The official said 10,000 rounds have shipped yet.

A full report on all export permits granted by the government for military equipment now is being prepared for Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The government official said the quantity of 25-pounder ammunition approved for shipment to Israel is "peanuts." Other countries asked for 1,700 rounds and could be used up in practice in one day by the Canadian Army.

Eisenhower Starts 4th Year As President

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower today started his fourth year as president of the United States, still facing the decision on whether to seek re-election.

He addresses "Salute to Eisenhower" dinners tonight in his first appearance before a Republican party group since September, But his remarks, to be piped by closed-circuit television to an estimated 60,000 persons at fund-raising dinners in 53 cities, are not expected to shed any definite light on whether he will run again.

At least one national radio network, the Mutual Broadcasting System, announced "as soon as it is firmly fixed in my mind" that he dicated at his press conference that the chief factor will be the degree of recovery he makes from his Sept. 24 heart attack.

"It would be silly for a 65-year-old president said, "to pretend that my health can be wholly restored to the excellent fine in which the doctors believed it to be in mid-September."

Adding that his doctors report his progress is normal and satisfactory, Eisenhower said "my future life must be carefully regulated to avoid excessive fatigue."

So he again left some politicians predicting he will seek re-election, and others saying he won't.

Toronto Truck Driver Charged As Girl's Killer

Father of Two Is Held As Strangler and Rapist

TORONTO (CP)—A 23-year-old truck driver, father of two small boys, was charged Thursday night with the rape-murder of Linda Lampkin, 13-year-old schoolgirl.

Robert Fitton, Jr., today was remanded one week in custody on the charge.

Police said Fitton gave the ma statement during 11 hours of continuous questioning. He was charged at 6 p. m., less than 24 hours after the girl's ravished body was found in a waterfront street.

After being fingerprinted and photographed, Fitton was taken to the waterfront, where police said they found Linda's missing right shoe and compact.

Fitton was picked up at his home early Thursday, Linda, throttled with her own scarf and raped, was found eight hours earlier on the corner of Sautter and Commissioners streets. She had disappeared while returning home from a dancing school.

APPEARED OLDER

Alive, Linda was a pretty, blue-eyed brunette who appeared older than her 13 years. In death she looked like a frightened child.

Her underclothing had been torn away. She had been wearing three pairs of pants—briefs, dance tights and shorts. All had been removed at once.

Police said she wore her scarf knotted on the left side of her throat and that she had probably been killed by a fist twisting the knot.

She was raped afterwards. The killer then apparently dumped her on the lonely street.

Police said Fitton told them Linda had been in his truck before but not at the night of the slaying. He drives a red mail truck, similar in color to one reported seen in the industrial district where the body was found. The area is two miles east of downtown Union station.

LEFT SCHOOL

Detectives established Thursday that Linda, after leaving the dancing school in mid-central Toronto, was making her way home to the west end. She is believed to have been only two blocks from home when she disappeared at about 9 p.m.

Police said the suspect was in the same area about the same time in a taking collections from mail boxes.

The suspect's clothing was examined by Dr. Ward Smith, medico-legal expert. Flecks of blood were found on Fitton's clothing. Police said Fitton explained them by saying he had gashed his finger on a mail box.

$221,000 Profit on Sale of Farm Not Enough for Widow Says Judge

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court Thursday refused to approve the sale of a farmhouse for near Oakville for $240,000 because he thinks it's worth more.

Mrs. Teodosia Samborski, whose husband was gored to death by a bull last year, asked the court to approve the sale. The price is 13 times the $19,000 she and her husband paid for the farm years ago.

Court permission to sell is needed because the three Samborski children, beneficiaries of the estate, are under 21. Their interests are looked after by the official guardian.

It was disclosed that at least five syndicates are trying to buy the farm. C. J. Cannon, counsel for Mrs. Samborski, said the widow agreed to sell the property for $240,000 last October, although she had since received an offer of $241,000.

"I want the infants to get every cent they are entitled to," declared Wells. "I'm not going to approve unless they can get more by other offers."

Sea Returns His Picture After 38 Years

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Theo Sall put his picture in a bottle and tossed it into the sea. He can't remember where or how, but it is coming back to him later.

"It must have happened on the way over or on the way back" during the First World War, he said Thursday night.

He had enclosed a note with the picture asking the finder to send it to Ann Wajda at Depew, N. Y., a suburb of Buffalo. The crusty old bottle washed up on the sand of Corpus Christi, Tex., on Jan. 10, and was turned over to postal authorities. They traced Ann, now Mrs. Sall, to Niagara Falls.

250 Old Tanks Reach Egypt And Israel

LONDON (CP)—The government said Thursday that at the most only 250 old tanks had reached Israel and Egypt from British "disposal sale dock" methods in the last year.

A white paper claimed this had "in no way upset the balance of power in the Middle East.

It said the tanks were "obsolete, ineffective and unreliable for war." A parliamentary debate on the question will be held Tuesday.

Pair Convicted Of Car Theft

Two teen-agers were convicted of car theft in magistrate's city court this morning.

Lionel Maynard, 18, of the Royal Canadian Navy, whose home is in Toronto, and his cousin, Russell Hambrook, 17, of Montreal, were convicted, one stealing a 1952 model car on January 15th.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills remanded the two youths for one week for sentence.

The car, belonging to Harvey Young, Thicker Ave., was taken from in front of his residence early in the morning of Jan. 15th. The youths were on their way to Montreal and had arrived in Belleville by train. Hambrook and Maynard then hitched a ride and riding a freight train.

The car went off the highway three miles west of Brockville and hit a tree causing damage amounting to $300 to $700.

Maynard and Hambrook were taken off a Montreal-bound bus at Morrisburg later the same day after a complaint had been issued by Belleville police.

O.P.P. Constables D. R. Smith of Brockville and E. Zolman of Morrisburg testified during the separate trials of the two accused.

Following conviction of Maynard, Lt. A. E. Leonard, of the R.C.N., Kingston, said that during his year of service with the navy Maynard had been reported as being of good character and having done good service. He said that if Maynard were given suspended sentence the navy would not discharge him. If Maynard was sentenced he would be discharged.

Magistrate Wills, in remanding the two youths for sentence, indicated that he wanted more information about the possibility of restitution.

Maynard has no previous record. Hambrook was given a suspended sentence of one year for car theft in Montreal last June.

Costs for Indigent Patients Criticized by County Councillor

A request from the Belleville General Hospital board of governors for a committee from county council to sign over indigent hospital costs with them provoked a spirited discussion at the January county council Thursday afternoon.

Discussion centered principally around indigent patients' costs and the amount of special services given to hospital patients for which the hospital claims that it is losing money.

Taking a leading part in the discussion was Deseronto Reeve Dr. D. C. McVicker who declared that many of the patients did not require laboratory tests, special services and extensive nursing given.

Referring to the rising hospital costs at Belleville Dr. McVicker claimed "overlapping" of services on the part of the administrative and maintenance staff was one of the reasons for this.

The nursing school had instructors who lectured for two or three hours a day and then did nothing for the balance of the day instead of being used as supervisors in wards where they could better check on the work of student nurses he declared.

Dr. McVicker was also critical of the hospital's staff. In 1946, there were two persons in the office, yet today despite the fact the clerical staff had increased many times over office work was still not being done and often a patient would settle his bill and leave the hospital only to receive a statement later for services admitted from the original bill.

"The hospital needs an overhauling to cut costs," he said.

Reeve Charles Rutherford wanted to know how hospital costs at Belleville compared with costs in other centres.

"Kingston is cheaper than Belleville," was Dr. McVicker's reply.

SAYS COSTS HIGHER

Reeve Cecil Ketcheson of Thurlow as one of the county representatives on the hospital board last year said it may be well to have representatives from the hospital address council on the matter. "It is not fair to the judge and jury to cut in a position to refute them," he said.

The reeve said he had not utilized the impression of overlapping of service in the hospital but pointed out that it cost more to run any business today.

Dr. McVicker said the accreditation received recently by the hospital was to indicate to both the administration or operation of the hospital. Rather it had to do with the condition of the patients.

Reeve James Sprackett thought it would be a good idea to have the hospital state how it arrived at the figures with regard to patient costs, while Reeve Buskard said each hospital was entitled to attend at county council to explain the figures and any action was taken in this when it was pointed out that this would mean a delay until the next session.

Council then approved of a motion by Deputy-Reeve Ira Babcock of Thurlow, calling for the committee to be appointed as requested by the hospital board.

Committee members appointed to discuss indigent patients' accounts with the hospital Board of Governors are Warden Elmer Wood, and Reeves Cecil Ketcheson, T. C. Graham, Dr. D. C. McVicker and Leslie McLaren.

"The hospital claims that these special services are ordered by the doctors," Reeve Sprackett commented.

Reeve Irwin McCoy welcomed the statements of Reeve Dr. McVicker and stated that this was the first time council had had any explanation of why costs at Belleville hospital were high.

"We were under the impression that the county and rural municipalities contributed heavily towards the cost of the new wing and he saw no reason why the county should "come back at us for more money."

"The hospital makes a profit on the drugs. It doesn't handle them for peanuts," he said.

GRANTS EXPLAINED

Reeve Ketcheson noted the hospital financial report showed patient costs of $13.45 per day while the indigent patient rate to be paid by municipalities was set by statute at $5 per day. To this $2 a day was added an indigent patient grant of $1.71.

"According to hospital figures they lose well over $5 per day on the indigent patients for which by only statute rate is paid," he said.

He urged an examination of the high cost of special services received by indigents whereby a patient from his municipality may receive a bill of $137 in only eight days. The man had been attended by a ward doctor for what was supposed to be a check-up for high blood pressure as he would be interested in knowing who was responsible for running up the high bill for special services.

We are told by the hospital that they have no control over the special services given indigents, that these are ordered by the doctors," noted Reeve Buskard.

"Until four or five years ago there was no demand for special services," Dr. McVicker said. "Then some doctors moved to the city and a "closed society" had been formed and with hospital consent special services were given."

"All they have to do is to turn things back the way they were before. Then we can request for special services at Kingston," he said.

It was moved that the hospital matter be laid over until hospital representation could attend at county council to explain the figures and any action be taken on this when it was pointed out that this would mean a delay until the next session.

Council then approved of a motion by Deputy-Reeve Ira Babcock of Thurlow, calling for the committee to be appointed as requested by the hospital board.

Dr. J. Russell Scott Given Second Term as Fair Pres.

Dr. J. Russell Scott last night was given a resounding vote of confidence by the Belleville Agricultural Society.

His re-election to office was unanimously voted in at the society's annual meeting.

Frank Wilson and Jack MacArthur were named first and second vice-presidents respectively.

It was the first general meeting the fair-goers' parcel of entertainment, agricultural and commercial displays was August 19th. The society has already begun work on the fair grounds.

REMEMBERS INCORPORATED

In his president's address he congratulated the members for their fine showing at the exhibition and last year's fair and looked forward to another 18 months of smooth sailing.

He also dwelt on the contribution of the society to the Belleville community in past years.

"I think that it is very fitting to hold our meeting in the city hall because this agricultural society is going to be much for the city of Belleville in years gone by.

"Many years ago it contributed some $75,000 towards improvements in city grounds and the Exhibition Fairgrounds through the years," he said.

"It has been stated that the contributions toward the present grandstand and the paving laid down on the property.

"It has been stated that the grandstand was paid for by the proprietor of the Conklin midway shows with the profits he made in seven-year contract. "The society is paying no money over that," he said.

"One of the finest additions to our city in the last year had been our Memorial Gates at the Fairground," he said, adding considerable comment had been passed on them.

"The society's relations with parks board have been mutually advantageous to the parks board and the society appreciated the cooperation it received from the board and the city," he said.

WANTS BETTER OPENING

Harry Rollins, named director last night, commented on what he called "the weakest feature" of the Fair — the official opening ceremonies. "Last year, the Kiddies' show was the official platform to open the event than there were people in the grandstand watching it."

He suggested the official ceremonies be held in the evening, on nightime, probably on the second evening of the exhibition. Fair Manager Arthur agreed with the change in time, but thought it should be held on the first day of the Fair.

Criticism of last year's midway also was voiced by Mr. Rollins.

"I thought our midway this year did not live up to the previous year's midway," he said. "The Kiddies' show fast summer was a 'letdown', he said, and urged that something should be done about it this year.

He had high praise for last year's grandstand show but stressed the necessity of combining variety and one so much presentation of the show.

One society member suggested the numbering of seats and tickets as holding the possibility of making more revenue out of the grandstand show. "This would provide more space in the stand and also allow for a sliding scale in admission prices," he said.

Eric Denyes thought another weakness in the organization was that more care did not avail of the parking space west of the grandstand. He thought another four to five thousand cars could park on the grounds.

WANTS MORE RACING

James Cowan thought an additional day's horse racing might be necessary this year. At present the schedule calls for two days of horse racing, but Mr. Cowan said many last year wanted a third day of such events.

Last year's show was a proud one for the society's organizers of its horse shows. Reporting on this, William Reid said it was the best show of latter time held at the fair and commented on the interest shown in it by prominent horseflesh exhibitors.

Said Dr. Scott in this respect: "I think it is one of the finest bits of advertising this community can get — that is a good fair, it is a public piece of advertising."

It is probably forgotten how much it does for the community but in bringing these people here."

Don Spencer was appointed on the removal of cattle classes from exhibitions because the fair ended, they might not allow visitors to view their fancied breeds on the day they attend the fair, he said.

CATTLE SHOW BETTER

"Last year we had one of the best cattle shows we have had in a number of years," he added.

Fred Wilson said the weather also interfered with the plants and flowers exhibit in 1955, although it probably went unnoticed by the public. On one occasion, Alf Symons told the meeting his committee had to send to Brantford for $00 blooms for the show.

Sam Nicolson said the fruit show this year was good due to the early dates set for the fair. Such conditions are necessary if the success of the exhibition is held at early dates.

Delegates named to the February Ontario Fairs convention in Toronto were the president, secretary and treasurer.

Directors elected last night were: Barber, Ben Bleecker, Jack Bush, Erle Denyes, Fred Denyes, Jim Denyes, Corah Howard, Jack McArthur, W. D. Reid, Harry Rollins, Elmer Sander, Dr. J. R. Scott, W. Smith, Don Spencer, Fred Wilson, Jim Cowan, Fred Chamberlain.

Several Systems Of Reproducing Sound Outlined

Several of the many systems used to give highly realistic sound reproduction with wide screen motion pictures were described to the Belleville Section of the Institute of Radio Engineers at a meeting held last night in Belleville by Mr. A. D. Turnbull, chief engineer of Dominion Sound Equipments Limited.

Mr. Turnbull, who has been active in motion picture sound reproduction since it began in 1927, gave a short historical review of the field and described the six major features, and techniques that had been developed throughout the world until within the past few years when competition from television in the U.S.A. forced development of the various wide screen systems. These large scale investment in the necessary projection equipment. Each of these new processes has a number of loudspeakers located about the theatre in front of the stage and used formerly and the sound is made to come from the one or more nearest the area where the action is taking place to add to the illusion of depth. Because of this illusion the scheme is known as stereophonic sound. Overall quality of the sound has also been improved by the use of magnetic tape recording which has almost completely replaced the optical system.

However, the similarities between the systems end there and Mr. Turnbull described in some detail each of the major systems.

Magistrate McCoy has reserved decision in the case of Mrs. Ethel Mae Hall, 27, Belleville, charged with driving a motor vehicle while her driver's licence was under suspension.

Mrs. Hall was charged following a collision on Front street at the corner of Bridge street on Jan. 7th.

Evidence was given by Constable Ernest Hall that Mrs. Hall's car struck the rear of a car driven by Mrs. Ruth Hall, 27, Belleville, which was stopped for a red light.

Mrs. Ruth Hall testified that she had stopped for the red light when she felt a jolt from the rear. She said that Mrs. Ethel Hall had admitted to her that she had been driving.

Mrs. Ethel Hall testified that she had not been driving the car and that she had been a passenger in the car driven by Mrs. Ruth Hall.

Dow Brewery firmed 52 at 32 on 100 shares. Aluminium was up $1.75. Building Products dipped $1.50. Dominion Bridge and McColl each lost $1.

Senior base metals advanced fractionally, led by Noranda up ⅜. Hudson Bay firmed ⅛.

In western oils, Great Plains and Merrill Pete advanced fractions to respective highs of 2¼ and 13. Calgary and Edmonton added ⅛.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Cattle prices were steady to $1 a hundredweight lower this week at the Ontario public stockyards. Calves were unevenly steady to lower. Hogs were steady. Sheep and lambs were generally unchanged.

Receipts of cattle were comparable to last week and about 500 head more than the same week in 1955. Western cattle receipts were 763 head as compared with 924 head last week. Western stock calves totalled 128 head.

The westerns were mostly replacement cattle. Six loads of cattle were shipped to Eastern Canadian slaughterers and there were no exports to the United States.

Feature of the week was the active demand shown by buyers for the comparatively-light run of good and choice slaughter steers and dry-fed heifers. All these grades cleared at fully steady prices.

For the second consecutive week cow prices declined with the week's rates fully 50 cents lower and to about $1 a hundredweight lower. Good beef canning bulls sold easier.

Dressed-beef trade was falsely active. An estimated 300 cattle, mostly stockers, would be unsold at the close.

Prices

Choice Steers $19-19.50, sales to $19.75, a few early sales at $20; good steers $18-19; medium $15-18; commons $13-15; good heifers $18-19, odd choice to $17.50; medium heifers $14-17; commons $12-14; boner steers and heifers, $8-12; choice dry-fed yearlings $22; good fed yearlings $20-21; medium $18-20; good cows $10-10.50, with good lightweight cows to $12; canner and cutter cows down to $6; good heavy bologna bulls generally $12; common and medium light bulls down to $9.

Replacements were continued in light demand with offers at sharply lower prices; the few sales were on a 50 - cents - a hundredweight lower basis; good stockers sold at an extreme top of $17; medium ranged from $15-16 with commons down to $13.

Calves were mixed; some good and choice vealers sold steady with good vealers at $27-29 and odd choice to $29 and fractions higher; common and medium grades were slow; sales ranged from $18-26 with commons $13-18; grass calves sold for slaughter were $9-12.

Grade A hogs were steady at $23 with several sold out at $23.50; sows were $16 dressed and stags $13.

Lambs were fully steady; quality was mixed; good handyweight 90-100 pound ewes and wethers sold at $22; extra-heavy lambs were heavily discounted; common and medium lambs sold from $13-18; good light sheep sold up to $16 with common and heavy sheep selling down to $3.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged today.

The egg market was steady with offerings sufficient for a quiet demand.

Quotations, provided by the Dominion department of agriculture: eggs, in fibre cases, graded: large 40; A medium 36; A small 36; B 37; C 34. Wholesale to retail: A large 43; A medium 43; A small 41; B 41; C 39.

Milk Production Of 17.7 Billion Pounds Predicted

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (CP)—Record-setting Canadian milk production of 17.7 billion pounds this year was predicted Thursday by D. B. Goodwillie of the federal agriculture department in an address to the annual meeting of the Dairy Farmers of Canada.

This would be about 500,000,000 pounds more than last year, when production was about 400,000,000 higher than in 1954.

Mr. Goodwillie said the higher milk production, if properly handled, would not add to surplus production problems. Consumption of fluid milk should account for more than 300,000,000 pounds of the anticipated increase and it was estimated that Canada will produce slightly more creamery butter (this year) than in 1955.

The cheese industry once accounted for 10 per cent of Canadian milk production. This figure had dropped to six per cent.

Exports have been reduced, production increased and imports have occurred.

"In spite of this, it is believed the cheese business is in a much better position today to meet competition with the future of the available milk supplies than ever before."

During the last three years cheese production varied between 171,000,000 and 94,000,000 pounds annually. The 1956 total might be more than 85,000,000.

Charge Reduced By Magistrate, Man Fined $100

BANCROFT — Michael Irvin Twomey, appearing on a charge of drunk driving, was fined $100 and $13.50 costs after the original charge had been reduced by Magistrate R. C. Jackson to driving while his ability impaired. Defendant's license was suspended for three months. The charge of criminal negligence was dismissed for lack of evidence.

The charge arose after an accident on September 11 last in which Twomey's nine-month-old son, Terence Irvin, died. OPP Const. John Hawking told the court that, when called to the scene of the accident at 2.15 a.m. he found accused's tractor lying on its side in a water filled ditch on Highway 28 near Faudah. The lower side of a car was in the water and body of the boy was still in it, although not in the water at the time. He did not see the driver at the scene but Twomey admitted being the driver when the witness saw him later at the Bancroft hospital. The first thing the constable said he noticed when speaking to accused was a strong smell of liquor and a blood test was taken.

CONDITIONS

In reply to defending counsel J. D. Templeman, the police witness agreed that driving conditions at the time of the accident were bad and that someone must have lifted the boy from the water.

Two other drivers, who saw Twomey before he was conveyed to hospital said that he was extremely excited, calling out for help for the boy and complaining of pain in his back. Neither said he was thought him drunk. A brother of the defendant said he was with Twomey in a Faudah tavern-beverage room on the afternoon of the day in question where each consumed seven glasses of beer.

In reply to Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson, witness said he did not know how long his brother had been in the beverage room or how much he had consumed before they met. The brother said Twomey was in good condition when he left to drive home at 10.15 p.m.

Mr. Templeman pleaded that the results of a blood test should be supported by other evidence, which in this case he did not consider strong enough. The magistrate decided that Twomey's ability was to some extent impaired and registered a conviction.

Church Warns Against Membership in I.R.A.

DUBLIN (Reuters)—The Roman Catholic bishops of Ireland warned Irishmen Wednesday night that it is a mortal sin to join a private organization which claims the right to bear arms against its own country or another country.

The warning, in the form of a statement to be read at all masses on Sunday, Jan. 29, follows recent terrorist activities by members of the Irish Republican Army. This organization, which is outlawed in both parts of Ireland as well as Northern Ireland and Britain, is dedicated to the unification of Northern Ireland with the Republic of Ireland, by force if necessary.

Two Youths Given 4 Months On Reduced Charge of Assault

Two Belleville youths today were sentenced to four months each when they pleaded guilty to common assault after a charge against them of raping a 17-year-old girl was quashed.

Sentenced were Rodney Sharpe, 21, and Gary Marriott, 18.

In the sentence, the Ontario Supreme Court Justice Mr. J. L. McLennan granted a warning to all potential wrong-doers in the community.

Purpose of the punishment was not punitive in the sense of revenge, he said, but rather for the youths' own good and the good of the community.

The sentencing was held the convicted youths, would give them a little time to think where they were heading . . . "because if you continue in this life you are not going to end up in a provincial institution but in the penitentiary . . . spending with a noose around your neck. That is where these things lead to."

The reduced charge and verdict against the pair followed a conference Thursday of both defence and crown counsels in the second day of the joint trial the rape indictment in the Spring Assizes here. A petit jury concurred with the argument that the youths plead guilty to common assault. The verdict was set Wednesday morning but was secured pleaded not guilty to the rape charge. Defence lawyer Kenneth G. M. Ross (for Marriott) and Gordon Thompson (for Sharpe) held there was no rape but only intercourse with consent in the case.

YET TO STAND TRIAL

A third man accused in the case, Joseph Edward Giuseppe Arras, has yet to stand trial on a charge in the same matter.

Sentencing the two this morning, Mr. Justice McLennan told them they were exceedingly fortunate . . . because you might very well have found yourselves in very serious trouble.

It is better to go bad than it is to be decent, he reminded them.

"You have heard people referring to decent things as being soft."

They are not. It is just the easiest thing in the world not to be decent.

What happened was "an abominable thing, consent or no consent," he said.

Most of the trial was occupied with testimony and cross examination of the girl which ended Wednesday morning and ended yesterday afternoon.

ACCEPTS LESSER CHARGE

After Thursday lunch recess the court adjourned for 15 minutes at the suggestion of the bench, after which both defence counsel told the court they had conferred with crown attorney Gordon Robertson and proposed entering a plea of guilty to common assault.

Mr. Robertson agreed he was prepared to accept the lesser indictment.

Addressing the jury Mr. Justice McLennan said the verdict of guilty on common assault was perhaps the strongest verdict they could reach on the evidence.

Testimony during the trial showed the assault occurred on the night of by Purdy side road east of Belleville returned to Belleville on Nov. 7th. Afterwards, the girl said, the three youths drove back to the city where they stopped at a restaurant and at Sharpe's home. On the way she said Marriott told her there was no sense in going to the police. When she got home she would not say at first what happened. Police were called after she had been questioned by her sister and brother-in-law and a third girl staying at the residence.

In cross examination the girl agreed her first answer to calling the police was "No". Asked why she made such a reply, she said at first "I didn't see there was much sense" in doing so.

Explaining the reason for introducing the lesser charge, Mr. Justice McLennan reviewed the evidence relating to the rape charge and the points he would have to put to stress in his charge to the jury that the trial reached that conclusion.

The only issue to be decided in the rape charge would have been consent or not there was consent, he said.

Consent, he said, is permission, compliance or acquiescence.

"It must be a submission with the will and the crown must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the complainant in this case did not consent."

Noting the two stop-overs on the journey to the girl's home, he said the first was a completed act of rape to be given at the first opportunity to the jury to weigh.

Summing up he told the jurors he was not having a verdict of not guilty in the rape charge would have had any reflection on the girl's character. It would mean the crown had lost a case.

The charge suspended was a bad thing and a wrong thing on that lonely road that night, and it is unknown what else may have happened."

The jury recessed at 2.40 p.m. and returned in a few minutes with their decision.

Said jury foreman C. N. Heath: "The jury has considered the proposal and has agreed to go along with that suggested by the defence counsel and the crown."

"I think that is a wise decision gentlemen," commented Mr. Justice McLennan.

Most of this morning's proceedings were taken up with testimony on the youths' characters before the sentence was passed.

Air Vice-Marshal Will Testify Before Inquiry

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Air Vice-Marshal F. V. Heakes, civil defence co-ordinator for British Columbia, will appear here, it was announced today.

Vic Dwyer, associate commission counsel, said Air Vice-Marshal Heakes, who declined to state what form his testimony will take, will be among a number of witnesses called.

When the commission ended its 30th session Thursday, it had heard testimony from a former detective sergeant that he was offered $1,000 a month "to lay off certain bookies."

The statement was made by Percy Alan Moore-Gilbert in a 1950 gun battle in which three men died.

Mr. Hoare, now security officer for a utility company, said: "I was approached with an offer of $1,000 a month to lay off certain bookies, for whom, I refused. I was just taking over the policing squad."

He said the offer came from a man known as "Milo the Hat," and that he reported it to the police commission.

Constable Lorne Tompkins, 10 years on the force, testified he had seen detective inspector Peter Lamont, then a sergeant, receive a handful of bills from an "extremely well-dressed man." Under questioning, he said he didn't know the man.

David Smith, a gun dealer; George Salisbury, shipyard worker; George O. Shaw, a drug-gist; Nick Radik, who said he was a welder; and retired inspector Robert Gill testified at Wednesday's session.

Lengthiest testimony came from Mr. Radik, who admitted a police record of 14 convictions ranging back to 1934 when he was nine years old.

He said he saw inspector Lamont, deputy chief Gordon Ambrose and "another detective" drinking in a downtown gambling establishment.

Mr. Shaw said he "and friends"

TWO BAIL OUT

EDMONTON (CP)—Two airmen escaped without a scratch Thursday when their fighter out of their CF-100 after the fighter plane developed engine trouble on a routine training flight. The two were Flt. Lt. John M. Sorfleet of Winnipeg and P/O. M. J. Woods, 19, of Regina.

Howard Fleming, Publisher of Sun-Times, Dies

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Howard Fleming, progressive publisher of the Sun-Times and devoted citizen of this Georgian bay city, died Thursday night. He was 73.

A victim of heart disease for many years, he suffered a seizure and died in hospital.

For more than 50 years a newspaper man, Mr. Fleming was an active community leader most of his life. He was an avid student of history and the pioneer days and keen one of the finest collections of pictures and data on the area.

His interest in the printing trade in a shop connected with the Northern Business College, established by his father, Christopher A. Fleming, in 1881. Father and son bought the business college, established a semi-weekly, in 1904, and 14 years later founded the Owen Sound Sun-Times paper. The Times, in 1922, The Sun-Times emerged from thrice-weekly to daily publication.

WELCOME ADVANCE

The paper marked the occasion of the paper's centenary, Mr. Fleming recalled:

"The daily was a welcome advance for Owen Sound. Before the days of motor cars, electric trucks, transports landed outside papers from Toronto and Hamilton, and before radio broadcasting was in general use. The Daily Sun-Times met with a hearty welcome and displaced outside dailies in thousands of homes."

In 1928 he headed a company which purchased the Cornwall Freeholder, absorbed the Cornwall Standard, and in 1941 started daily publication as The Standard-Freeholder.

The Fleming interests established radio station CFOS Owen Sound in 1946 and station CKSF in Cornwall four years later.

ON BOARD OF TRADE

Mr. Fleming was on the executive of the Canadian Daily Board of Trade for many years, a board member of General and Marine Hospital, and a former director of the Great Lakes Elevator Company.

A lifelong member of the Church of Christ (Disciples) and an active supporter of its missionary movement, he was also a charter member of the Owen Sound Rotary Club.

Survivors include his widow, the former Marion Ingall; a sister, Miss stock; one son, Donald T. Fleming, secretary - treasurer of Fleming Publishing Company Ltd.; two brothers, George D. Fleming of Owen Sound and Stuart Fleming of Niagara Falls. Four sisters, Mrs. Andrew Thomson of Toronto, and Lillian, Helen and Frances Fleming of Owen Sound, also survive.

A second son, FO George Fleming, was killed in action with the RCAF in the Second World War.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

ASK SEX CRIME CHECK

TORONTO (CP)—The council of nearby Peel county Thursday endorsed a resolution asking for a "complete and exhaustive study of the whole problem of sex crimes." The resolution, addressed to Attorney-General Roberts of Ontario, said it be submitted for endorsement to all other Ontario county councils.

DID NOT USE KEY PHRASE

John Foster Dulles, U.S. secretary of state, is the target of criticism from many sources as the result of statements attributed to him in an article in "Life" magazine.

Tuesday he explained these statements at his weekly press conference.

He made a remarkably good job of justifying his views, or perhaps it would be more correct to say of justifying the statements attributed to him in "Life." These statements, he said, were quotations or close paraphrases of what he had actually said elsewhere. It is refreshing to discover a statesman who, when in trouble about some remark, does not 'claim he was misquoted.

Mr. Dulles, we are told by the Associated Press reporter, "took issue only one passage, that quoting him as saying 'the ability to get to the verge (of war) without going into war is the necessary art'." He maintained that going into war is the last thing that the U.S. had been brought this did not make it the last thing that the U.S. would be brought to the brink of war by the actions of others. It certainly does not. He added he never would have used the phrase "the necessary art" in that connection.

It is just that phrase, the phrase "the necessary art," which is the target of criticism. The Associated Press reporter, Mr. Dulles, we are told, "took issue only one passage, that quoting him as saying 'the ability to get to the verge (of war) without going into war is the necessary art'." He maintained that going into war is the last thing that the U.S. had been brought this did not make it the last thing that the U.S. would be brought to the brink of war by the actions of others. It certainly does not. He added he never would have used the phrase "the necessary art" in that connection.

It is just that phrase, the phrase "the necessary art," which is the target of criticism. This makes him appear a valiant champion of a free press, scrupulously avoiding any attempt to control what "Life" printed. The question arises, though, whether the foreign secretary of a great power has any right to permit a magazine to put phrases into his mouth, without making certain that the phrases are, if not his own, at least phrases with which he can wholeheartedly agree. If magazine articles are going to present views of Mr. John Foster Dulles, it would be much more desirable for him to write the articles himself, as did Hon. Lester B. Pearson when his opinions were published in "Life's" rival, "Look."

There may not, as Adlai Stevenson has charged, have been guilty of suicidal folly in bringing the U.S. to the brink of war, but he has, by his own admission, been guilty of gross carelessness in permitting a magazine to publish an article in a form which made it appear that Mr. Dulles had, as a matter of policy, deliberately steered the nation to the verge of conflict. A request that he be permitted to examine the proofs of the article for accuracy before publication, to correct that phrase, "the necessary art," before, instead of after, publication.

SENATE IS REFORMED

The Senate has been reformed!

Who can doubt it when it grabs the lead paragraphs in the daily Canadian Press roundup of the doings in Parliament?

Of course the feat was achieved by a veteran headline grabber, Jean-Francois Pouliot, late of the House of Commons, now of the "other place."

Senator Pouliot came out swinging, his target being the CBC. Assailing the CBC is a ridiculously safe occupation, like denouncing man-eating sharks. But it pattern, the announcing of Senator Pouliot's opponents, but is never the identity of Monsieur Pouliot's opponents, but the fresh spectacular style of jabbing, the sudden thrusts the ringside comments and, by remote control, rocks the blasphemies perusing their newspapers as far away as Vancouver.

On this occasion, if Senator Pouliot had really wanted his attack on the CBC to be taken seriously, he should have refrained from quoting the "very crazy" song to which he objected on finishing the Senate.

Chorus of the song, says The Canadian Press, went as follows:

Ain't agonna need this house no longer,
Ain't agonna need this house no more;
Ain't got time for no committee,
Ain't got time to cross the floor;
Ain't got time to listen to babies,
Even them what wears the pants;
Ain't agonna need this house no longer,
I'm getting ready to join the Saint.

"The Saint," apparently referred to Prime Minister St. Laurent.

This strikes us as one of the CBC's better efforts and well worth a chuckle. In fact, in this instance, the song is funnier than Senator Pouliot, an achievement of no mean status.

We do not expect, though, that the CBC will enjoy its lead for long. It isn't every day that the CBC comes up with a gem like this, but the Senator almost invariably scores a smash hit when he speaks.

The Commons' loss is the Senate's gain.

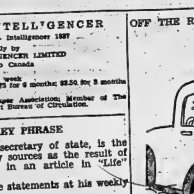
SALT-FREE DIET

I've had my share of bitter foods and sweet,
I've called to maids the chill sauce to bring.
I've struggled with a piece of leathery meat
I've finger held a turkey leg or wing.
I've had the dressing tangled up with the string,
I've every thing dined on breaded veal,
Yet all delight is stripped from everything;
A salt-free diet means a tasteless meal.

Whatever's served I'll bravely try to eat.
Some day I'm going to rare roast beef I'll sing.
Some think that peas and carrots are a treat,
I pass them by when I am hungered I'll order chicken
It is king.
But I must ask for rattle snake or eel.
Now, there I'll've what the doctor's ordering.
A salt-free diet means a tasteless meal.



I think he knows that now and then I cheat.
Why live if man sometimes can't have a fling!
Should steak be dry and flavorless as peat?
Is breakfast good without a coffee ring?
Can death be caused by gravy poisoning?
What deadly germs can apple pie conceal?
Is spinach fatal? I am questioning.
A salt-free diet means a tasteless meal.

Refrain

Doctor, if you behold me doddering,
Shaky of head and arm and leg and heel,
You'll know my appetite is vanishing.
A salt-free diet means a tasteless meal.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE OUTLOOK

Every time a new year appears I do read in our newspapers the opinions of the "experts." Many of the predictions and theories are far apart. The cheerful outlook that each one of can formulate I think is the best. Mere possessions are not a true happiness but what we think in our own hearts. The healthiest and happiest human beings are those who have the fewest fears, and no worries. People do not succeed with these, but by mastering them and living outside of them. A spiritual outlook will take each one of us over all the bumps and through all the difficult years with the least friction and with an abiding faith.

In the earlier days they had what were called "Town Criers," who went about the town crying out: "All's well!" What a lift to morale and spirit, if each one of us could be one of these and encheer each day with that "All's well!" A cheerful and hopeful outlook is what the world itself needs during these critical times.

Thomas Carlyle once wrote: "Our main business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand." In other words, do the thing at hand, today, with a vision toward the days ahead, but mastering the work of the day. That will create the outlook and be an incentive to drive us on.

We know so little about what lies ahead, but we can work and plan as though it were the purpose of our lives. Every day is hidden, concealed within our mind and heart. Work today to make it a beautiful memory. We should conserve our forces and energy so that our minds are not overblind. The body and mind should always remain "in training," with an intelligent will in full command.

Ike's Privilege

(Milwaukee Journal)

Few Americans apparently are aware of the fact that President Eisenhower in England during the war, was given the freedom of the city of London — intended as a high and justly deserved honor. This carries many privileges — one of them particular rather surprised us. Having freedom of London by law, guarantees a man against arrest for being drunk and allows him to be hanged, in special robes in case he's the convicted of murder.

New Brunswick's Panthers

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

Caribou, walrus, wolves, polar-bears, pigeons and wolverines are among the kinds of wildlife which New Brunswick once knew but which are missing from the present day scene today. Some vanished species were hunted to death; others fell prey to disease; what befell still others is a mystery.

The next on the list to go is probably the panther—for it appears that unless conservation regulations are introduced, before very long this province will be shot either for the so-called sport of it or because some farmers do not trust the breed.

We have been reading lately about a pair of panthers reported near Penniac, only about 10 miles from Fredericton, which have been terrorized by a hunter's surround, relased by a hunter's shot, jumping four feet in the air and "went like the wind".

On another occasion a group of hunters from Maryland heard a "dreadful howling" in an orchard about three miles from the hunting camp, and after arming their car lights and spying the panther, they chased it out of a possible automobile when the animal started advancing toward them.

The questions that most people would like answered are how to make up their minds as to whether the panthers should be protected, or are they dangerous to humans? And are they dangerous to the livestock?

Mr. Bruce Wright, director of the Northeastern Wildlife Range in the University of New Brunswick, who vigorously opposes the shooting of panthers, and others, points out that "they've lived with us in this province for 200 years and they haven't hurt anyone we have heard of".

For that matter, he doesn't know of panthers ever killing cattle or sheep. There may have been occasions when baby panthers, just after they had been deserted by their mother, molested cattle because they were famished and had not yet learned to fend for themselves but no livestock had been slain. Certainly panthers cause less damage to livestock, for instance, packs of wild dogs.

It is entirely possible that they are no more to be feared than moose—which, when pressed, will charge humans. But unfortunately for the panthers, their appearance and voice do not appeal to most people against them.

They are a formidable-looking beast—an adult male may weigh close to 200 pounds and measure eight feet from snout to tip of his tail—and in the mating season their eerie screeches have been guaranteed to lift the hair on brave men's scalps.

This does not necessarily mean they're ferocious, any more than a tomcat's midnight serenade makes him a going to eat anybody. But it doesn't help people to want to befriend such beasts. Particularly when the screaming is much the same as if somebody were being amplified many times through a loudspeaker.

Until such time as the eastern panthers (a species which is exactly similar to, the western mountain lion or cougar) are proved harmless, it will be up to each hunter's conscience whether to shoot. But naturalists insist that there's case ask people to remember there are only about 60 of them in the province and they are the rarest and least-known mammals in North America today.

How U.S. Army Defeated Reds

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

A most interesting story is the manner in which the U.S. Army has intervened to save Italy from its with the Reds in the Italian port of Leghorn. For, as the president of Leghorn canal, the Communists run Leghorn, and when the Italian government asked the U.S. Army to establish a base in Leghorn in the summer of '51, the Red labor leaders and workers announced that not a ton of American military supplies would be unloaded.

But he was wrong — one million tons were unloaded, and not one hour's working time has been lost because of labor trouble.

At the start, the strongest non-Communist labor federation in the country, the stevedores, who showed up for work under police protection, were given the same tonnage rate as other dock workers, but they had to do the work of three men. They could, therefore handle three times as much in a day as before and they made an average of $135 for 14 days work which is considered excellent work $60 for 26 days work.

Communists soon began longing for jobs like these, and Red leaders raised no objection when 1,000 more were hired, temporary jobs with the Americans. Americans advertised that they had plenty of work for some agitators among the temporary workers, and they succeeded in getting over 50 Reds employed.

One officer is having said: "If they did, either the agitators found that they could not make as much money to be agitated about anything—or they found themselves with so like that fat pay envelope too much to risk losing it."

Whatever the case, the resulting U.S. Army fiscals now, it is said, is living on well off Red offers of cooperation! The former slogan: "Americans — Go Home" has been forgotten. For, instead of being a hindering like a little prosperity is a redder of Communist capitalistic leanings!

Change Date On Shovels

(Winnipeg Tribune)

News reports from France tell of a citizen who bought 40,000 surplus army shovels for a cent apiece in a state auction. The buyer paid for the shovels in francs in Eastern France to pick up his shovels. He was told by the seller where he could purchase from the base because the ministry of supply in Paris had ordered the shovels to replace those he had bought.

The 40,000 shovels were to be like those he had, bid on. He was assured they were exactly the same, and then suggested it might be simpler if the ministry simply sold the new shovels to his place of business in Normandy and leave the old shovels in the depot where they were.

He was told, with regret, that this was impossible. The shovels he had bought had 1945 stamped on the handle. The new shovels were stamped 1955.

The new shovels were to cost the French taxpayers to change the date on the handles.

The official mind seems to be the same the world over.

Price Pegs Prove Costly

(Financial Post)

To keep a favored group of American farmers "living in the lap of luxury and indolence," says writer in Harper's Magazine. And that was only half the tale. The other half is rigged to rick the taxpayer twice; once when he pays higher prices in the retail market, thus propping up prices; and again when he has to pay higher retail prices at the grocery store."

Under this particular American writer nor any other realistic observer expects that the dole will end in the reasonably near future. With the national elections approaching in 1956, the biggest subsidies will be offered. To both Republicans and Democrats the farm vote may be decisive.

Over a while Agriculture Secretary Benson trek his political life in his hands and he did not shrink from subsidies and the enormous surpluses that directly resulted from them. Nevertheless, of the worst scandals were checked.

Under fantastically high support prices Maine potato land doubled in value overnight, with acreage being paid $20 a day to collect potato acreage. Sugar growers in Uncle Sam and beyond, persuaded of American spuds were held so high that Cuba's economy turned to Canada for supplies. The same blank cheque was signed for commodities. U.S. stocks bought from American farmers already affected the price of butter, cheese and other cheaper Canadian supplies were imported.

Some of that crazy business was corrected by the public outcry and support prices generally were reduced. But the principle of one section's reorganization and only on from growers of the special crops favored by Don's. Scholars have devoted a lot of time trying to determine the very root of this farm studying rhymes in poetry. They have found fairly plentiful evidence that our pronunciation of English today differs widely from the pronunciation of two or three hundred years ago. Which may be a reason to believe that English is spoken in England today as it was in the 17th century. When our Canadian pioneers came out here in the 1820's and 1830's, and in America a hundred years earlier, they brought with them the language as it was pronounced at that time in England. Are we to suppose that they and their descendants changed it, while those who stayed home did not? The probability is that they did not. There was as much change in the one as in the other, and when a Shakespearean actor is at Oxford today and that spoken in North Bay or Los Angeles, there is surely strange to the ears of say Englishman of the year 1700.

I heard recently a Shakespearian drama on our Canadian TV, played pressumably by a majority of Canadian actors. About fifty percent of the delivery was barely intelligible. Apart from the variety which many producers believe to be the essence of Shakespearian delivery, and the habit of grinding the words out between the molars instead of passing them smoothly through the front teeth, the chief trouble appeared to be the attempt on the part of the actors to adopt and "English" accent.

Now we have poyts, poyms and poytry.

Let's ponder this a little

The lady continues:

Deseronto Reeve Says Town 'Forgotten Corner of Hastings', Wants Causeway Across Bay

Hastings County Council, before the conclusion of its January session on Friday, will be asked to approve of a 1956 roads and bridges by-law calling for the expenditure this year of $338,000 on the county roads system.

This figure was suggested on Thursday as roads and bridges committee chairman Reeve Tracy Adams prepared to present the committee estimates for approval of council. It is the same amount as was approved for 1955.

The roads budget failed to reach the discussion stage, as Reeve Charles Buskard, Deloro, called for mimeographed copies of the roads estimates to be placed before councillors. The roads committee agreed and discussion was left over until Friday.

However, the brief introduction of the roads and bridges estimates did allow for a request by Reeve Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto, for action to be taken to get the Deseronto causeway across the Bay of Quinte completed as soon as possible.

FORGOTTEN CORNER CLAIM

Declaring that Deseronto was the "forgotten corner of Hastings," the reeve said it was expedient that something be done about the matter now. Through lack of bridge or causeway across the mouth of the bay visitor and travel distance between Kingston and Picton was lengthened by 45 miles, while the distance from Deseronto to Picton was increased by 28 miles for motorists were forced to drive around by Belleville.

"Think of what a causeway would do for Deseronto toward opening this part of Hastings and Prince Edward up for tourists. It would also make other sites available for industry. All that is lacking is transportation and easy access for workers."

Dr. McVicker said Deseronto was the nearest township site for the causeway. "A bridge at Glenora would cost 15 or 20 times more," he said.

At the present time many people are forced to travel what he termed the "dinky ferry" at Deseronto because they felt it was dangerous.

Referring to the proposed eight million dollar bridge to be built by the province across the Humber at Toronto, the Deseronto reeve called for "something to be done in this part of the province."

SUPPORTED MOVE

In reply Reeve Tracey Adams said council had been trying for at least the past 12 years to get something done about the causeway. He claimed the Federal government was holding up plans by its delay in making known the number of openings required in the proposed causeway.

Deputy Reeve Charles Long of Tyendinaga agreed that the Deseronto ferry was inadequate and supported the move of the reeve of Deseronto for action on the ferry. Reeve Lloyd Price of Elzevir suggested the Atlantic seaway might be the reason for the causeway being held up. This was denied by Dr. McVicker, who said the seaway could go only as far west as Deseronto in the Bay of Quinte, dredging costs any farther west would be prohibitive.

County engineer Larry Langlois supported the claim of the roads committee engineer that the Federal Government was responsible for the delay in plans being prepared. He said a special committee had made a trip to Ottawa in an effort to see how many openings would be required in the causeway.

NEVER GOT ANSWER

"The committee didn't get an answer then and haven't got it yet," he said.

County assessor Cecil Green reviewed his work of last year among the various municipalities, at the same time asking for a boost in increase. He said he was presently one of the most paid county assessors in the province.

He referred to assessment of federal government properties in Sidney township, noting this had now been approved by the government for taxation purposes. Sidney Reeve Bruce Harder said his township expected to receive between seven and eight thousand dollars annually in taxes for the air station and connecting residential property.

Reeve Clarke Rollins of Wollaston objected to the basis of assessment used for certain sections of Coe Hill village, which he claimed was grossly out of line with other parts of his township. Coe Hill is an unincorporated hamlet. This basis of assessment he said was making tax payments difficult for old age pensioners who had no other source of income.

County Assessor Green pointed out that under the assessment act, assessors must assess property, not people, and suggested there were mechanisms of giving relief to people in extreme hardships. He pointed out that each municipality had to meet its own expenses and if assessments in some instances were reduced others would have to take up the difference.

"It was the aim of the assessing department to have Wollaston assessed the same as other municipalities," Mr. Green said.

Reeve William Davis agreed that assessing presented difficult problems and it was for this reason that assessors should be the best brains obtainable and should be the best diplomats. "Then we can iron out many differences," he said.

Warden Elmer Wood and Reeve D. C. Graham were named representatives on the Eastern Ontario Tuberculosis Association.

On Jack Brown of Bancroft presented a request from the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital for an increase in the county grant from $1,000 to $1,500. The request was referred to ways and means.

Mr. Robert Hamilton, secretary manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce spoke briefly in reference to the tourist folder published jointly by Belleville and the county of Hastings. He suggested the same number of folders — 10,000 — would be adequate for 1956.

Several councillors expressed regret that more North Hastings tourist resort owners did not take advantage of advertising in the county tourist folder. It was pointed out, however, that many resort owners put out their own folder while there was also keen competition for folder advertising. He suggested it might be a case of "first come, first served" with owners not being anxious to take out advertising in the county publication.

A recommendation for $500 to be paid to the Chamber of Commerce as the county's share in publishing the folder was referred to ways and means.

Considerable discussion was expected for Friday when a motion asking for the county of Stirling to be detached from the Central High District was understood to be scheduled to be presented. The motion would also ask for council approval for the formation of a new Rawdon School district.

The afternoon council session ended in a caucus meeting called for the appointment of an assessment advisory committee. No action was taken on a suggestion that the warden appoint the committee members in open council, while opposed to the appointment by caucus was the suggestion of the possibility of the lack of fair representation of the various municipalities.

The result of the caucus appointments was scheduled to be made known Friday morning.

Accused Conducts Own Defence And Wins Case

BANCROFT — Pleading "not guilty" to a charge of having liquor at a place other than his residence, Cecil James Burns, of Centreview, defended himself successfully and Magistrate R. C. Jackson dismissed the case.

OPP Constable John Hawkins gave evidence that he found two bottles of beer on the back seat of defendant's car, which was parked outside a dance hall on the evening of Dec. 18.

Replying to defendant, police witness agreed that the car was not locked and that anybody could have put the beer inside it. Jones denied having any knowledge of the beer and said he did not know where it came from.

FINED $50

Burns pleaded guilty on a charge of driving while his ability was impaired. Delbert Dupuis, of Maynooth, was fined $50 and costs. His licence was suspended for three months.

OPP Constable Ray Hooker told the court he followed a car driven by accused on highway 62 on Nov. 19. The car was travelling very slowly and weaved continuously. After stopping the vehicle he testified that Dupuis staggered, his speech was thick, he smelled strongly of alcohol and, in witness' opinion was in no condition to be driving. The case was conducted only by defending counsel J. Arthur Fair, defendant said that the lights of the police car following bothered him. Two mirrors on the front fenders reflected light into his face. The steering on the car was not too good and the dazzle caused him to weave. He expected the following car to pull ahead, and kept moving slowly.

GUILTY OF OVERLOADING

Six drivers pleaded guilty to charges of overloading. Leonard Porath and Herbert Maschke, both of Maple Leaf, were each fined $50 and costs. Peter Wuytik, of Prince's Lake, Roy Wannamaker, of Ormsby and Pat Malloy, of Bancroft paid $25 and costs and Lee Dafoe, of Gilmour was fined $10 and costs.

Ivrit Godfrey, of Bancroft, was fined $10 and costs for being drunk and Milton Mayhew, of New Carlow, paid a similar amount for causing a disturbance.

Prince Edward Road Budget $27,000 Higher

PICTON — Prince Edward County Council has approved expenditures on county roads this year amounting to $302,000. This is an increase of $27,000 over last year. Of this amount $134,000 is for construction of roads and bridges; $138,000 for maintenance and $30,000 for machinery. This will mean a mill rate for the road purposes.

Warden Clifford Wilson said roads are in bad shape. More construction will cut down on maintenance costs.

Home for Aged Over-Crowded; 2 Sleep in Hall

PICTON — "The situation is serious. I do not know what we will do if there are any more admission," William McWilliams, superintendent of the Prince Edward County Home (for the aged) told County Council yesterday. "There are 82 persons in residence and two of them are sleeping in the hall.

"At the moment the home's more of a mental hospital than a home for the aged. Only ten to twenty per cent of the 82 residents are able to sit down and eat in dining room in a normal manner. The rest need special care," said Mr. McWilliams, who urged consideration be given to expanding the building or to the building of a new home.

"Prince Edward County Home is the third most cheaply operated home of its kind in the province. It costs but $1.82 per day per person to operate," the superintendent said.

Deputy reeve Bruce Hyatt of Hallowell, declared: "We have a good building. It would cost too much to build a new home."

DISCUSS ALARM SYSTEM

The matter of a fire alarm system for the home was discussed. An estimate seven years ago put the cost at $3,500. Now it would cost $6,000.

Superintendent McWilliams said Delbert Dupuis, of Maynooth, was responsible if anyone was injured during a fire, since there was no alarm system.

Deputy reeve Hyatt declared: "I'm not in favor of an alarm system. It would not get a patient out any faster. I have confidence in the watchman at the home.

He felt the installation of a fire alarm system as laid down in the regulations, and if it will take the onus off council, let us install it."

Council approved calling for tenders for the installation of a fire alarm system.

Dutchmen Take In Prague Dance And Stop Show

By KEN METHERAL

PRAGUE (CP) — Canada's hockey ambassadors went to a high school dance in Prague Thursday night and stopped the show.

In a spontaneous demonstration which underlined the extent to which the Dutchmen have won the admiration of Czechoslovakia's sport-loving population, Czechoslovak students deserted the dance floor and cheered the members of the Olympic team.

The reception came after the Dutchmen had swept a two-game exhibition series against the Czechoslovak "B" team with an easy 10-1 triumph.

Blushing girls queued to dance with the Canadians, students cheered wildly as Bob White, Bill Colvin and Jack MacKenzie jitterbugged and jammed 20 to 30 deep around the players seeking autographs. Dennis Brodeau signed autographs for minutes without a break.

The dance followed an official reception for the team from the Czechoslovak Ice Hockey Association at which the players were presented with cut glass cigaret boxes and team officials received cut glass vases. James Dunn of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, presented official pins to Czechoslovak officials and when the Dutchmen learned that the number of pins was not sufficient to present to all the Czech team, they took off their own Olympic badges and asked Dunn to present them to the Czechs.

Czechoslovak and Canadian players joined in a rousing sing-song during the official state dinner. Czechoslovak officials repeatedly emphasized the similarities their country felt the conduct of the Dutchmen both on and off the ice. Dunn said he felt the series had demonstrated "the value of sport in giving countries a better understanding of each other."

Coach Bobby Bauer said "I am naturally pleased at the result of the series but much more so by the way the boys conducted themselves."

Dunn said there is practically no chance of the Dutchmen accepting an invitation to return to Prague for exhibition games following the Olympics, due to the team's league commitments in Canada.

Trade Deficit With Canada Is $300,000,000

TORONTO (CP) — A group of leading British businessmen said Thursday Britain cannot afford to keep importing Canadian goods at the present rate unless it earns more Canadian dollars to pay for them.

During the first nine months of 1955, Britain ran up a $300,000,000 trade deficit with Canada, the group told the first big meeting between Britain's Dollar Export Council and the Canadian Export Trade Council.

To try to improve the situation, British industrial missions will come to Canada to study the market and make buyers aware of British entries in their fields.

Leading industrialists will also continue to visit British firms making goods needed in Sirms here.

Leading the British delegation were A. R. W. Low, minister of state for the British Board of Trade, and Sir William Rootes, chairman of Rootes Motors Ltd. James S. Duncan, president of Massey-Harris - Ferguson Ltd., headed the Canadian group.

Women who are mothers should be with their children in their early childhood, this is the time that love and kindness is shaped in their minds so, as they grow up, with the many ways that have put before them of evil; they can still recall in their minds mother didn't teach me like this, "Love was her motto, and kindness was her way."

Mrs. George Burkitt gave a further talk on "Mothers and Young Children". A child should have his mother's teachings until at least six years of age. A good home is the truest gift to heaven. Unloving mothers should be the working wives of Canadian home life.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

Marsh Hill—The January meeting of Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Grace Bartindale with ten members and two visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Leslie Finkle, opened the meeting with a reading of the year's message, 1956 is a New Year, what sort of trail are we going to make in it? Will it be clear, straight and true? The year will be new if we allow God with all His Grace, wisdom and love to make us creatures for Him".

"We see not a step before us but we have left this in God's keeping. During the year 1956 let us leave the 'Spirit of Love', in our W.M.S. work. Love is a bond that binds our hearts together in a unity free dazzling to behold; Love is a shining candle in a darkened world."

"Let us have the spirit of friendship. Friends cheer us and help us bear our inner troubles. Let us have the spirit of co-operation, where one alone can accomplish little, many working together bring about great things."

"In 1956 may we recognize the goodness in others, and appreciate their friendship, and seek God's counsel, guidance, and strength through faith in Christ, daily prayer, and tireless devotions to the things of God."

They probably know no one and when a port worker or a minister speaks to them in their own language, they receive encouragement. We find it difficult to come into the church because everything is so different.

Mrs. Bartindale closed the program with a reading, "Making Church History".

The hostess served refreshments.

Kingston Presbyterial W.M.S. Meets in St. Andrew's, Trenton

The Kingston Presbyterial of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church in Canada held its annual meeting in St. Andrew's church Trenton, on January 16, with Mrs. C. A. Smart, president, in the chair.

The service of worship in the morning session was conducted by the Belleville Auxiliary, and in the afternoon by the Picton Auxiliary, and Mrs. Mantle led a fitting In Memoriam service for member who had died within the year. When the roll was called by Mrs. Rollins, about 70 members responded, representing most of the 17 Auxiliaries from Gananoque to Trenton.

Mrs. McLean welcomed those who had journeyed to Trenton for the meeting, and she and the other hostesses provided a substantial and delicious luncheon and a refreshing afternoon tea when the meeting was ended.

DISCUSSION PERIOD

During the morning and afternoon sessions the present were divided into three groups and discussed three subjects, (1) proposed revisions in the constitution and by-laws of the society, presented by Mrs. MacDonald, Pittsburg; (3) stewardship, presented by Miss M. Nesbitt, Kingston; (3) the place of women in the church, presented by Mrs. Walker, Stirling. These discussions were admirably arranged, so that all could participate in the subject presented and take part in the discussion, helped also by Mrs. Keefer and Miss Ruby Walker, regional secretary.

Miss M. Nesbitt, treasurer, gave a clear report, thanking the auxiliaries for more than meeting the objective. She also praised their work and that of the children's groups. For 1956 the objective has been set; the amount is left to individual consciences and gifts. Mrs. Rollins briefly summarized the reports sent to her from the auxiliaries, showing the active and varied work done; in mission study; in visiting new-comers, and the sick; and in other ways; she also spoke of the visits of missionaries to conferences within the Presbyterial.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The following officers were elected, and were dedicated by Miss Ruby Walker in a dignified and moving ceremony; president, Mrs. C. A. Smart, Kingston; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Craig; recording secretary, Mrs. Rollins; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Rolls; treasurer, Miss M. Nesbitt; secretary for senior auxiliaries, Mrs. Bateman; secretary for Evening guild for Young Women's Auxiliaries, Mrs. Houston; girls' organizing secretary, Mrs. M. Shaw; children's groups secretary, Miss Bessie Fleming; Helpers' secretary, Mrs. E. Pigden; Welcome and Welfare secretary, Mrs. C. Barzgar; literature secretary, Miss Tena Waite; "Glad Tidings" secretary, Miss M. Mackintosh; press secretary, Miss W. Gordon; supply secretary, Mrs. J. Gollen; life membership secretary, Mrs. B. Blakeley and historian, Mrs. W. Shaw.

At an executive meeting plans were made for the annual tea to be held on May 1, in St. Andrew's church, Kingston, of the 70th anniversary of the forming of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church in Canada, west of the Maritime Provinces, which took place there on May 1st, 1886.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Allan Gowthorpe and those assisting her were, Mr. Alex. Allison, Mrs. Bill Rodgers and the Rev. R. McCrea.

Mrs. Amos Whitmore gave the treasurer's report showing a good balance. Mrs. Gowthorpe reported on the flower and card fund in the absence of Mrs. C. Barlow. Rev. McCrae thanked the retiring officers for their work during the past year. Mr. M. Robinson moved the vote of thanks seconded by Mrs. C. Chambers.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

For a long time I have followed your cooking column with great interest . . . I wonder if you would be kind enough to let me have good recipes for chocolate and lemon cakes and brownies. These are our favorites and I am still looking for a better recipe than the ones I have.—Mrs. S. O.

ANSWER:

The following chocolate cake recipe is the one I am currently enthused about.

QUALITY CHOCOLATE CAKE

One-half cup butter or margarine, 2 1-3 cups firmly packed brown sugar, 3 eggs, 3 1-oz. squares unsweetened chocolate, 1-2 cup sour or buttermilk, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1 cup boiling water, 2 1-3 cups sifted (before measuring) cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking soda, 1-3 teaspoon salt. Sift cake flour, and sift it again after measuring with the soda and salt. Cream the butter until it is very light and airy, then gradually add the sugar beating constantly to make them both light and fluffy. Beat in the unbeaten eggs, one at a time beating well between additions. Beat well again. Melt the chocolate in a measuring cup over hot, not boiling, water, then add to the butter mixture, using rubber scraper to scrape all of it from cup. Sift about 1-4 of the flour over batter and mix in; add about 1-3 of the sour milk and stir about 3 stirs; repeat finishing with flour. Mix in vanilla and water. Pour this thin batter into greased cake pans, bottoms of which are lined with 1 sheet buttered wax paper. Three 8-inch cakes require 25 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr.; larger cakes take longer. Cool on cake rack.

Since I am not sure what you mean by "lemon cakes" I am giving you an excellent recipe for

LEMON QUEENS

(If I have not guessed right, write to me again with more details.) One and one-half cups sifted cake flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt and soda, 1-3-3 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1-3 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 4 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored, 3-4 tablespoon lemon juice, 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten. Sift flour once, measure, sift three times with salt and soda. Add the lemon rind to the butter and cream until light and fluffy; cream in sugar gradually until both are very light. Beat yolks in thoroughly and add lemon juice. Add flour, a small amount at a time, beating well between additions. Fold in stiffly beaten whites. Bake in greased cup cake pans or ungreased fluted paper cups) at 350 deg. Fahr. 25 minutes.

BROWNIES

Melt together in top of double boiler two squares bitter chocolate and 1-2 cup shortening (or butter). Beat. Sift 3-4 cup sifted-before-measuring flour with 1 teaspoon baking powder. Beat 2 eggs until very light and add 1 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla, beating very well until thick. Add chocolate mixture, beat well again, mix in flour and 1 cup chopped nuts. Bake spread on greased 8 x 8 inch pan at 350 deg. F. 30 minutes.

Perk Up Winter Costumes With Light Accessories

White accessories, which gives new life to winter outfits, need special care.

Tired of the heavy winter clothes? The woollen dresses? The sweaters you need to ward off Jack Frost's most devastating blasts? Of course you are. We all are. But you can rid yourself of some of these mid-winter doldrums if you "freshen up" with light accessories. Depending on your own choice, have them in white or in pastel shades, but do get some. Not only do crisp white blouses, collars and cuffs, white hats and handbags give you a foretaste of spring in your outfits, but they also do wonders for your complexion. There's nothing quite like light colors — especially about your throat — to make your skin look more radiant, fresh and youthful.

You'll have to give them special care, however. For, wearing them as you will, under heavy winter coats, they'll quickly lose their fine look if you don't. One of the most important things to remember is to wash them at the first sign of soil. Actually, "white touches" such as collars, cuffs and neckline frills should be washed after each wearing. If they aren't detachable, it's easy to make them so. Before snipping the trimming off the dress, mark both the garment and "accessory" with a knot of thread or with tailor's chalk to indicate where snaps should be sewed on both pieces accurately. "Pre-treat" soiled spots with a well-sudsed soft brush or soapy fingers before laundering.

Blouses need special care, too. For blouse beauty is a sure way to achieve a truly bandbox look. Be honest. Was there ever a pastel or white blouse that could be worn a second time without making you feel a bit embarrassed about the shadow along the neckline or the spot you tried to hide: Don't squirm, hoping someone won't look too closely at your blouse today. Go along serene and confident because you washed it out after each wearing. Nylons that need no pressing are a great boon. But if it's white nylon, remember to keep it away from all other colors in the washing. Don't even drop it into suds that have been used for a soiled slip. Fresh suds is what keeps white nylon fresh-looking.

Cotton blouses can be sudsed or rubbed inside. With rayons and silks, take lukewarm suds, lukewarm rinse waters, and gentle squeezing motions. Rayons and silks iron easily when nearly dry, but need a low iron heat and a leisurely pace while ironing. Washable blouses repay good care by looking flower - fresh after each laundering.

When your clothes go limp, don't go limp with them and think their usefulness is over. Many's the beloved blouse or slip that gets a new lease on life with a bit of starch. Modern starch comes already prepared in bottles, and the plastic kind lasts in the garment through many washings. Study the directions for how much to use. A little starch will revive the crispness of rayon blouses and slips. Cottons perk right up with plastic starch and stay that way. You can even starch in a washing machine, if you've got that much starch! Starch keeps clothes fresh and clean longer.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

NICE GESTURES FROM AN APPRECIATIVE GUEST

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

A young man I know very well (we aren't engaged, don't "go steady," are just good friends) lives in a suburb quite a distance from the city where I live. The week before Christmas we dined together in a restaurant here, and he introduced me to two friends of his, man and wife, who live in the suburb where he lives. We had a most pleasant and friendly chat together. Today I received a very cordial note from the wife, saying that Ken is coming to dine with them on a Sunday soon, and they would like to have me come, too. I've written her that I'd love to come, and Ken has offered me he would drive in to pick me up. I want to be very right about my guest-responsibilities, for I really want these people to like me. So (1) should I take a gift of some kind, even though a simple gift, to the hostess? And (2) should I write her a thank-you note next day?—Reader

(1) Of course no gift-to-the-boss is necessary—but it would be proper and thoughtful gesture for you to take a bit of a present to your hostess. Some Spring flowers, if you wish, or such a simple corsage as one gardenia or camellia; or a box of interesting candies. Or a "household" present: a box of sweets of several varieties or a box of salted nuts, assorted or all of one kind. Or a book, a best-seller you think they might enjoy.

(2) And yes, without fail, write your hostess a note of thanks the next day, the very nicest note you can write.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ARE YOU AS UTTERLY IRRESPONSIBLE AS YOU MAKE YOURSELF APPEAR?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

In school, I met a girl who appealed to me very much. I kept tabs on her for about four weeks before making any move, then I finally asked her for a date. I felt I was almost in love with her at that time. She refused the date, however, which made me want her all the more.

The second time I asked her out she accepted. I asked her where she would like to go and she said she didn't care. Since I myself like to go to night clubs, I asked her if that was all right and she said yes. So I picked the best night club I knew. We had a few mixed drinks, danced and had a good time. The next day she wasn't in school, so I called her and her sister said she was sick.

Three days later I saw her in school. She said she had to tell her parents about the drinks we had. It was the drinks that made her sick. She said her father wouldn't permit me to go with her and she said for me to forget her. Now she just says "Hi" and tries to avoid me.

Well, for about a month I have tried to forget her, but every time I see her it makes me love her more.

What shall I do? —V.B.

Dear V.B.:

For a boy so cautious that he watches a girl for four weeks before deciding to ask her out, you suddenly lost all your caution very fast, didn't you? I can't possibly imagine how you could have done such a wild thing as to take this girl out on a drinking party. Have you no judgment, no sense of the fitness of things, no commonsense at all? Were you trying to show her that you are very sophisticated and grown-up, for heaven's sake? If that was what you had in mind, then you certainly proved yourself just the opposite.

What would you expect any proper parent to do but put his foot down on any further association for his daughter with a boy so utterly irresponsible? Frankly, I have no sympathy for you whatsoever.

As for what you can do about this, I see just two things, and you can take your choice.

The first is to accept the fact that you made a colossal blunder and that you well deserve what has happened. Let it be a lesson to you that will make it impossible for you to commit any such error again with any other girl you take out. Realize fully that your behavior would give neither this girl herself nor her parents any reason to trust you, and let it go at that.

The fact the the girl agreed to go to the night club meant nothing. She was probably too naive to know where she was going, trusted you, and you let her down.

Or, if you want to make one more try, you can do the second thing.

This would be to write a note to the girl's father—you'd better not telephone, because he might hang up on you—and apologize fully, sincerely and humbly that you did. Tell him how sorry you are; that you realize your conduct was inexcusable and that you would like an opportunity to show him that you are a more trustworthy boy than you have seemed. Ask him if he will let you come and see him and talk it all over with him, because you are very unhappy about what you did and you don't want him to carry that impression of you forever.

What he does in response will, of course, determine your next step. If he doesn't answer your note, or if he refuses to let you come and see him, then you will have to accept the fact that it means the end of any opportunity to take the girl on a date again. But if he is willing to see you, then, if you act like a self-respecting young man who made a serious mistake, deeply regrets it and is anxious to mend matters, you might be lucky enough to get a second chance.

CAMPBELLFORD

Spirit of Unity' Address Given At Rotary Club

CAMPBELLFORD — The Rev. E. C. Kelloway, pastor of Trinity United Church, in Colborne, was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon here on Monday. His subject was the "Spirit of Unity" or "Living," he said, "has become complicated by the wonders of science. England to-day is closer in travel hours than many parts of our own country were a few short years ago. The orient is almost at our door step as measured by standards of modern travel. Science has made remarkable transformation in relation to time and space.

"Consequently, we have a new problem of living that is not like that of all the other nations of the world. The oceans are no longer buffers between the continents, as they are spanned in a few hours. We must therefore, cultivate unity with the other peoples of the world."

NOT MECHANICAL UNITY

"It is not a mechanical unity which is required; not a standardization of the individual; nor is it a uniformity of all individuals. It is a thing of the spirit, a conciousness that we are children of one Father; We must find a way to live together or to die apart."

"Is it not reasonable to suppose that we can find a formula for co-existence," the speaker asked. "We have seen it worked out in many fields. In our country, many races live peacefully. In this continent United States and Canada share thousands of miles of unfortified boundary. The British Empire has long held a common loyalty to the crown. Why then can we not find spiritual union and peace among the worlds millions?"

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. Gordon Whiteberne and thanked by past president Harold Carr.

Sunday School Lesson

When Jesus Was a Dinner Guest

By Ray L. Smith

We have so long listened to the theologians as they have discussed the city of Nazareth that we have well-nigh lost sight of the very human person that he was. The reasons why we do about him, and the explanations we try to find concerning him, are all very important, of course. But his redemptive work wit-begin in us when we really understand how he lived, and now he utilized the forces and powers that are available to all the rest of us. It is for this reason that it is to our very great advantage that we get a glimpse of him as he sat in a Pharisee's house as a dinner guest.

Big Places for Small Men

As Jesus was being conducted to the seat of honor which had been reserved for him as the guest of honor for the evening, he watched something with considerable pity and amusement) the wild scramble that ensued among the other guests. According to Oriental standards, the nearer one could be seated to the host and to the guest of honor the more honorable he seemed to be.

In this case, or so it appears, the host had not assigned the seats. Each guest was left to his own devices to find his own sitting. If any man were to sit in a high seat, it would be because he was able to out-scramble all the rest, and if any other man were required to sit in a low seat he could blame no one but himself. As if the size of the seat determined the importance of the man!

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for January 22: "PARABLES ON DISCIPLESHIP," Luke 14.

The silliness of the assumption is not peculiar to the ancients. Even today we are very apt to judge a man by the size of the type in which his name is printed in the papers, or the brilliance of the billboard which proclaims his greatness. As if flamboyant advertising could "add one cubit" to any man's stature, or one virtue to his character.

Cost of Conceit

There is probably nothing in our modern life more expensive than conceit. No one can estimate, for example, how many tears have been shed because of the fact some names have been omitted from the list of "those present." Whole weeks, and even years, have been ruined because we have not "been invited." Careers have been ruined by typographical errors, and businesses has been washed out completely by failures on the part of the post office to deliver invitations on time!

Jesus saw the havoc wrought by such false standards of values, and warned us against them with all seriousness. No man will ever be great or happy who is all wrapped up in himself. That's the basic teaching of this lesson. And it is sound psychology, too.

Excuses That Do Not Excuse

There is something just a little pathetic about the way we excuse ourselves, dismissing responsibilities and living on the lower levels of life. There is scarcely a day that we do not accept excuses from ourselves that we would not accept from any other living person and, oddly enough, in almost all cases they are excuses designed to provide us with a graceful reason for being less than that of which we are capable of being.

Any of us will find it an exceedingly wholesome exercise to sit down some day and count up all the excuses we have offered which do not really excuse us.

NO WINGS
-but a wing-ding take-off!
And at only part throttle — with Buick's new Variable Pitch Dynaflow*!
OF COURSE, you don't get wings with this sleek and stunning new '56 Buick—but you can get the nearest thing to them.
It goes under the name of Variable Pitch Dynaflow, because it uses the principle of the modern plane's propeller.
But the 1956 version of this great transmission goes airplanes one better now.
It's all as simple as it's thrilling.
At take-off, a pilot sets the pitch of his propellers for all-out acceleration. Aloft, he switches to cruising pitch for top mileage.
You can do that, too, in a '56 Buick. Just floot the pedal and you switch the Dynaflow blades to high-performance angle. That gets you going instantly at full-power sweep. Then, just ease up on the pedal, and you switch to cruising pitch —and a lot better gas mileage.
But now you get something a pilot doesn't get —a new quick getaway response even without switching the pitch. A sizzling new take-off at only part throttle. A wonderfully solid new take-hold that you use in all your normal driving situations. And you get it with Dynaflow smoothness—plus another boost in gas mileage.
Why not come try it?
Why not get the feel of it by taking the wheel?
And there's no better place than right there to learn about the great new record-high horsepowers, the sweet new ride, the superb new handling, and the long list of safety features that make this, literally, the best Buick yet.
Drop in on us soon—this week would be fine—and let this sweep-styled new beauty show you what pure automobile can do.

Ross L. Dobbin Pays Rotary Official Visit

STIRLING — Mr. Ross L. Dobbin, governor of Rotary International, District 247, paid his official visit Tuesday evening to Stirling Rotary Club.

Mr. Dobbin is a member of Peterborough Rotary Club, and just recently he has travelled extensively all across Canada. He represented the Engineering Institute of Canada at the convention of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

BETTER FELLOWSHIP

Each Rotary Club aims to develop better fellowship and understanding among the business men of each locality, and they endeavor to raise business standards. There are approximately 8,700 Rotary Clubs with a membership of 414,000 in 92 countries. During the year 416 new Rotary Clubs were organized in fifty countries.

President Edwin Warren and secretary Carl Bateman were in charge of the arrangements of this special visit.

R. A. Patterson led a rousing sing-song of old favorites which got the evening off to a good start.

Mr. E. Gillespie, a past president of Peterborough Rotary, introduced Governor Ross.

ROTARY'S ACHIEVEMENTS

Dr. Ralph Vandervoort voiced thanks for the timely address which was filled with interesting accounts of what Rotary has done, as Mr. Ross gleaned from his travels. He also made the presentation of a suitably engraved pencil as a gift of remembrance.

At the close Mr. Ross interviewed all the various departments of work.

HOUSE DEFEATS

G. H. Castleden (CCF—Yorkton) said the overprice problem of western farmers can lead only to bankruptcy. If government officials did not take immediate action "they are going to have a revolt on their hands of a kind they have never heard of before."

The wheat problem was raised in the Senate where Senator John T. Haig, Opposition leader, said low-grade grain now blocking elevators should be disposed of as feed grain, with the government absorbing the loss.

He said that would make space in elevators for farmers to deliver last year's crop. Otherwise they could not realize cash on it.

W. M. Howe (PC—Wellington-Huron) said in the Commons that Canadians should be enabled to buy government butter stocks, accumulated at the 58-cent-a-pound support price, at the same cut rates of 37, and 39 cents granted in recent export sales to Communist countries. That would help in the dairy farmers' fight against margarine.

"GOOD ADVERTISING"

"If this . . . storage butter were thrown on the market at prices comparable with those at which it is being sold to Communist countries, I feel that such action would be a good advertising medium for the butter producers of this country, that it would get butter into homes that have not used it for years and that the people of Canada would benefit thereby."

The government has sold about 2,600,000 pounds of surplus butter to Communist East Germany and Czechoslovakia at 37 and 39 cents a pound after buying it from producers at the floor price.

After she left Humbercrest public school, where she was a grade eight student, Linda went home for supper and then on to her dancing class. Police said the girl had been warned about accepting rides with boys at night.

In announcing that the charge had been laid, police chief John Chisholm said:

"Toronto is a large city, and the larger a city becomes the more supervision and guiding of young people must be extended."

Rewards totaling $1,000 were offered for the arrest of Linda's killer. The city of Toronto put up $5,000, York township, where Linda lived, offered another $1,000 and Attorney-General Kelso Roberts put up $1,000 on behalf of the province.

Meanwhile, there were new demands from various organizations for quick action by government officials to deal with the recent outbreak of sex crimes in the province. Commissioner E. V. McNeil of the Ontario Provincial Police warned parents to keep their children off the streets at night.

Howe Brilliant In Detroit Victory Over Bruins; Habs Wither Leafs 3-1

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

MAGGIES TONIGHT!

The Brockville Magedomas flashed their scoring potential brilliantly for four games starting the new year—and as suddenly dropped back to the "defeat" column, losing two in a row. However, it must be said one of the defeats was an 11-2 shellacking at the hands of the potent Whitby Dunlops, while they, the Maggies, were shorthanded. However, they bowed to the Cornwall Colts who flashed a brilliant brand of hockey to whip the Maggies 4-2 in the riverside town.

The Maggies are here tonight in combat with the TPT's. And that looms up as being one of the classics of the season. The Teeps are now tied for fourth spot with the upsurging Colts, while the Maggies rest in third place five points in front of the cellar pair.

So once again, after the brief Brockville flurry that caused the Kingston Goodyears a spot of mogrin-scrabching after they dropped four in a row, the loop is resolving itself into a two-bracket circuit, with the "five" boys, the Goodies and Dunnies, rumbling along in the winand-place spots and the Teeps, Maggies and Colts girding their loins for a bitter struggle for the third and fourth playoff positions.

The Colts and Maggies have a slight jump on our side inasmuch as they have seventeen games left to play while the Teeps have fifteen. Both the Dunnies and the Goodies have played 25 with fifteen to go.

With Cornwall showing a marked resurgence, and the Maggies still holding a slim hope of catching the second-place Goodyears, plus the fact that the Teeps are now in the stage where every victory counts, tonight's tussle should provide some red-hot puck action here.

o o o o o

FLOATING POWER

Bus Gagnon, Whitby playing coach, and one of the stormy petrels of the senior "B" circuit, appears to be somewhat mellowed by age and maturity insofar as the Dunnies are concerned. While this department will not go along with the Blair boast that Gagnon is the best player in the league it cannot be denied that he is one of the best.

The former professional appears to wield a powerful influence on the club. While they did not appear to suffer too much, nor show an appreciable lack of strength while Gagnon was serving a recent suspension, the club roared back to its high-scoring potential when he was given his "freedom."

It may be coincidental, but the fact remains that the group's leading point-getter, Bobby Attersley, went into a goal-getting slump when Gagnon went into the suspension boxcorner. It is a startling fact, however, that with his return, the blonde sharpshooter swept back into form, racking up six points in two games (two goals and four assists) to hurl back the threat of Kingston's Don Murray who had crept to within a two point of the Dunnies' star.

As of now Attersley has 24 goals and 23 assists for 24 points, while Murray has 20 goals and 27 assists for 47 points. However, Murray, who has not been going so well of late, had better look to his laurels for another Dunny is starting to crowd him. Freddie Etcher, the leading goal-getter of the group with 28 tallies, has checked in 17 assists for a total of 45, just two points in arrears of the Goodyear flash.

That the scoring power of the Dunnies is well distributed is seen in the fact that seven of their shock troops hold down positions in the top fifteen point-getters. Harry Sinden (4) has 14 and 28 for 42. (An error in calculation last week gave Sinden a four figure total.) Frank Bonello (5) has 13 and 24 for 39; Tom O'Connor (7) has 15 and 19 for 34; Sandy Air (9) has 16 and 17 for 33 while Gagnon (11) has 17 and 14 for 31.

That puts six of the Dunnies in the top ten bracket and one in the next five.

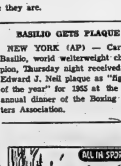
Kingston has Murray (3) and Senior (10) in the top flight with the latter good for 13 and 17 for 32. Cornwall's Moe Savard is in sixth position with 16 and 20. (This also includes the Brockville-Cornwall game of Wednesday night.) Erwin Duncan, who with brother Edwin staged a powerful scoring splurge in the Maggies' fourgame win streak, leaped into the top ten with 17 and 16 for 33.

In twelfth is George Samalenko of the Goodies with 15 and 16 for 31 and tied with him is Edwin Duncan with 3 and 28. A point behind is Vern Geyer of the TPT's with 15 and 15 for 30, while bringing up the fifteenth slot is Don Bellmore of the Goodies with 14 and 16 for 30.

So there you are—and there they are.

Dutchies Popular With Czechs

PRAGUE (CP) — Czechoslovak hockey officials Thursday night extended an invitation to Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen to return for an exhibition game against the Czechoslovak A team immediately following the Olympic games at Cortina, Italy.



Czech officials also asked the Dutchmen to return for an exhibition series next winter. The invitation reflected the high esteem which the Canadians' clean play had won from the Czech hockey fans.

The mayor of Prague, Adolf Svoboda, in a special meeting with Mayor Fred Dreger of Kitchener Thursday night said that "Your team by their clean play have won the respect of all Prague citizens and we shall be delighted to acclaim you as world champions if you beat us at Cortina."

Last year the Czechs gave Penticton Vs their toughest battle of the world hockey tournament in Vest Germany before losing 5-3.

BASILIO GETS PLAQUE

Registers Three Goals, Assist To Take Over Scoring Lead; Sloan Gets Toronto Marker

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

As Gordie Howe goes, so go Detroit Red-Wings. That seems to be the case lately around the National Hockey League.

The big right winger was never better this season than Thursday night when he scored three goals and set up the other in Wings' sixth straight win, a 4-2 conquest over Boston Bruins at Detroit.

It was the first clash between the two teams since their recent swap in which Real Chevrefils and Jerry Toppazzini went to Boston in exchange for Lorne Ferguson and Murray Costello. Toppazzini got an assist in Thursday night's game.

The four points lifted Howe, who has produced 12 goals in Detroit's last eight games, to the top of the league's individual scoring race with 30 points. Howe overtook Jean Beliveau despite the centre's two-goal show as Montreal Canadiens defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1 at Montreal in the other NHL engagement.

Howe's three-goal outburst was the first turned in by a Detroit player this season. He now is only four goals away from the select 100-goal circle. Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal, hockey's greatest scorer, and Ted Kennedy, Toronto Maple Leafs' great with Canadiens, exceed Howe. Richard has 445 goals in regular season play and Stewart scored 324 during his career.

Howe scored his first two goals in the first period and fired the winning marker in the third. He assisted on Ted Lindsay's insurance counter with little more than five minutes remaining. That was Lindsay's first goal in 18 games. Ted Kennedy and Henri Bonin scored 32 seconds apart for Boston midway through the second frame.

Howe opened the scoring before the 9,701 customers had much of a chance to get seated. At the 24-second mark he fired a 55-foot screened shot that beat goaltender Terry Sawchuk, back in the Bruins' net after missing two games because of an injured hand.

Slasiuk evened the score with a long shot which fooled netminder Glenn Hall. Bonin put Boston ahead 2-1 with a close-in drive from a scramble. At 13:07, Howe tied the score again when he batted in Earl Reibel's rebound.

After a scoreless second period, Howe won the game at 8:25 of the final frame after completing a play with Reibel and Red Kelly. Lindsay closed the scoring on a pass from Howe.

Canadiens' win, before 13,897 fans, was their second in as many nights over Leafs. They defeated Leafs 3-2 at Toronto Wednesday.

The Toronto team, shut out or closely held in the game, managed only 11 shots on goalkeeper Jacques Plante, one of Leafs' poorest offensive showings in years.

Bernie Geoffrion scored Montreal's second goal and drew an assist on Beliveau's second marker.

Right winger Bernie Geoffrion was the other Montreal marksman. Last winger Bert Olmstead, the league's top playmaker with 33 assists, set up both goals by Beliveau. But Sloan scored his 26th Leaf goal and maintained his lead as the top goal scorer in the league.

Beliveau took Olmstead's centre-ice pass and cut in between Tootoo defencemen Marc Reaume and Hugh Bolton to beat goaltender Harry Lumley with a backhander at 16:37 of the second frame. Geoffrion fired a hard 20-foot shot past Lumley at 11:16 of the final 20 minutes after taking Ken Mosdell's pass and Beliveau made it 3-0 17 seconds later.

Sloan averted a shutout by getting past Doug Harvey and Butch Bouchard on the Montreal defence to score from close range at 14:58.

Russ Skaters Are Favored

DAVOS, Switzerland (AP)—Years of practice, training and discipline have brought Russia's speed skaters to the winter Olympics sharp, ready and heavilyfavored.

The 12-man Russian team gave an example of its means-to-an-end Wednesday and Thursday, sweeping the first three places in the 500-metre Swiss international race, and first and fourth in the 5,000.

At other contestants headed for their hotels and lunch, Russia's speedsters appeared to the rink for a 15-minute preview of turns and straightaway work.

One Western coach commented: "If I attempted to get my boys to do that after a race, I'd be told off properly."

HELD TO DRAW

LONDON (Reuters) — San Lorenzo, the touring first division soccer team from Buenos Aires, was held to a 2-2 draw here Thursday night in a floodlit match against Brentford, the English third division south league.

American Skating Queen Suffers Leg Injury

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—Tenley Albright, America's world figure skating queen, grabbed her right leg in a skating accident Thursday, but Instists she will make a bid for an Olympic gold medal.

The slim, 20-year-old law ballerina from Newton Center, Mass., regarded as a virtual championship cinch, was practising on Cortina's glazed rink when she struck a hole in the ice. As she fell, the sharp edge of her left skate struck her right leg above the ankle.

Dr. Giuseppe Gasparini, U.S. team physician, said there appeared to be no muscular or bone damage but Miss Albright suffered a "severe flesh wound." The cut did not require stitches.

HOPES TO SKATE

"It hurts but it doesn't seem real serious," she said after receiving treatment. "I'll do what the doctor says, but I hope to be on skates again in a couple of days."

The figure skating event is scheduled for Jan. 30 with Miss Albright and Hayes Allen Jenkins of Colorado Springs, Colo., favored for the singles championships.

The American team's pre-Olympic trials have been marked by accidents and such - par performances. The Games open here next Thursday.

Katy Rodolph of Reno, Nev., finished last in the downhill skiing competition, suffered a fractured shoulder in the giant slalom and is out of the Games. Uncle Sam's bobsledders, skiers and skaters finished behind in the downhill, slalom and giant slalom, but the all-ways formidable Scandinavians in preliminary tests.

'Sheer Hypocrisy'

Helfand Looses Lusty Swing at NBA Then Takes Retaliatory Light Jab

NEW YORK (AP)—Julius Helfand took a roundhouse swing at the National Boxing Association Thursday night but association official laid it back in defence of a resolution that caused Helfand's ouster.

The chairman of the New York state athletic commission was angry over a resolution passed by the NBA executive committee which would permit a boxer to sign for a fight himself when his manager is under suspension.

Speaking at the annual dinner of the Boxing Writers Association Helfand called the resolution "sheer hypocrisy."

"You know," he said turning toward Lou Radzienda, president of the NBA, "that after a fight the fighter will go back to his hotel and whack up the purse with his suspended manager."

Radzienda, a member of the Illinois state athletic commission who had praised Helfand's campaign against the undesirables in the sport just before Helfand rose to speak, said later:

"We believe the fighter comes before the manager. Just because his manager is under suspension we doesn't have a license is no reason to penalize a fighter.

"What he does with the money is no concern of ours. Under the resolution a suspended manager or one without a licence can't come running to a commission for help if the fighter refuses to live up to their personal contract."

Henry Lamar, executive secretary of the NBA who introduced the resolution at the meeting in Chicago last Saturday, asserted: "A fighter is entitled to earn a livelihood. You can't penalize him for the action of his manager."

Helfand mentioned the welterweight title bout between champion Carmen Basilio and Johnny Saxton scheduled for Feb. 15 in Chicago as a case in point. Saxton's manager, Blinky Palermo of Philadelphia, is not licensed in New York or Illinois.

"I was very anxious to have the fight in Syracuse (Basilio's home town)," Helfand declared. "But not at the cost of licensing Palermo or letting Saxton sign for himself."

LOLLAR SIGNS

CHICAGO (AP)—Catcher Sherman Lollar signed his 1956 contract with the Chicago White Sox Thursday at a figure club vice-president Chuck Comiskey called "substantially higher" than last year.

Lollar, 31, was the second highest paid hitter for the Sox last season with 16. He hit .301 and batted in 61 runs.

Friendly Pre-Games Warmups Augur Harmony for Olympics; Dutchmen Wallop Czechs 10-1

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PRAGUE (CP) — An unaccustomed degree of harmony attending the pre-games warmups is beginning to suggest that the Olympic hockey championships may be run off with considerably less international friction than the world championships of the last few years.

Thursday Canada's Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen defeated Czechoslovakia's B team 10-1 drawing nothing but cheers from the home crowd. Earlier, Sweden and a single penalty from the referee. The previous night, the Dutchmen had received only a single minor and another round of Czech applause for a 6-1 victory over the same side 9-1.

In another exhibition game at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, site of the Olympics, Russia's Soviet Wings drubbed Italy 10-2 with only three penalties being awarded.

GOOD FAIRS NOTICES

While it is conceded that the sticks may go up as the chips go down in actual tournament play, the Dutchmen headed for Italy with considerably friendlier press notices than were served by their immediate predecessors in international competition.

Bob Hamilton Tu, who won the world title in Germany last year, and Thomas East York, who lost to the Russians in Sweden in 1954, aroused disapproving comment with their rough tactics in pre-tournament exhibition play.

But west since they cut out 25 minutes in penalties and drew husky bons from the crowd with a 6-2 victory over Paisley Pirates in the Scottish League last Monday, the Canadian hockey reputation has been impeccable, even by exacting European standards.

And other favored entries—Russia, Czechoslovakia and the United States—will have to be on record as rougher style of play in last year's tournaments also in order to avoiding official displeasure in their tune-up matches.

"I think we've shown we can play top-flight hockey in the European style," was coach Bobby Bauer's comment after the Canadians' second lopsided victory over the Czech second-stringers.

Billy Colvin scored three goals, Buddy Horne and Paul Masor got two apiece and Don Rope, Bob White and Gerry Theberge added the others as the Canadians breezed to a 4-1 lead in the first period, set up by Colvin in the second and coasted home with a single tally in the finale.

Josef Selier scored the lone Czech goal in the penalty-free game.

Centre Ken Laubman collided with Czech second-string goal tender in the third period and suffered a mild concussion. He was taken to hospital overnight for observation.

TOOK CZECHS' FANCY

The 15,000-odd spectators, who packed Prague's open-air stadium were so impressed with the Dutchmen's play that besides giving the usual form of applause — handclapping — the final game they featured "let's go" every time a Canadian player grabbed the puck.

Horne scored the game's most spectacular goal midway in the first period when he took a pass from Butch Martin at centre ice and stickhandled his way through the entire Czech team.

The Czechs pulled goalie Josef Zahorsky, star player in Wednesday's game, at the beginning of the final period. He was replaced by Jaroslav Bartos but by this time the Dutchmen had begun to ease up.

Meanwhile the Russians, all but three of them veterans of the team that finished second to Penticton in last year's world competition, added to their strength by easily mastering an Italian entry heavily crammed with players of Italian ancestry who learned their hockey in Canada.

Held scoreless for 15 minutes, the Russians then scored three quick goals, and held the upper hand thereafter. Carmine Tucci, formerly of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., accounted for both Italian tallies.

Canadian scouts—members of the skiing and skating teams—commented that the Soviet team shot and passed well but would have to show more speed to cope with the Dutchmen.

Prospects for Common Draft Appear Bright in Grid Meet

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prospects for a common draft of American college players for Canada's two professional football leagues appeared bright today as the Western Interprovincial Football Union and the eastern Big Four opened a four-day session.

The two leagues hold a joint session today, then move into separate annual meetings Saturday and Sunday, and wind up with another joint huddle Monday. Most meetings will be closed to the public.

The common draft seems to be favored by many delegates who arrived at the hotel headquarters Thursday night.

Harry Sonshine, team director of Toronto Argonauts, called it the "key salvation," and would mean that the Canadian teams would only be bidding against National Football League clubs instead of against themselves and the NFL.

The views received support from coach Al Sherman of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, manager Dean Griffing of Saskatchewan Roughriders and several club executives, both east and west.

Sherman went as far as to suggest an over-all draft, with both Canadian leagues and the NFL participating.

That would "end all our troubles," he said.

Thursday night Sherman, Griffing, coach Frank Ivy of Edmonton, and coach Chris Crowe of British Columbia discussed in private a few rule changes they thought would improve the league, including additional blocking. They said they hoped to hold an official meeting later today when all five western teams would be represented. The Calgary contingent was late in arriving.

Another item high on the agenda of the joint session was the possibility of an interlocking schedule between the two loops. Indications were that there would be much opposition to the proposal unless tight financial arrangements could be made.

The interlocking schedule is "a must," said Joe Wright Jr., Toronto club executive, one of its strongest advocates.

The two leagues also hope to get some uniformity in the number of American imports allowed on each team. Last year, the WIFU went along with 13 while the Big Four permitted only 10. The West has to drop two going into the Gray Cup final.

A bid will up on the program are a proposed Canadian college draft, relations with the National Football League; rule changes; and a possible revival of the Grey Cup semi-final. Ivy said the WIFU west Rugby Football Union champions—favored that likely will be turned down.

McGill Redmen Team to Watch Says Tindall

GANANOQUE (CP) — Coach Frank Tindall of Queen's University says McGill Redmen, who place finishers in last season's Intercollegiate Football League, are the team to watch next season.

Coach of the 1955 champion Queen's Golden Gaels, he said in an interview Thursday that Redmen "had the potential last season and could have beaten us in the last game except for a fumble."

The former Syracuse player, who will start his 10th season at Kingston next fall, says the 1956 college league will be even better balanced.

Coach Bob Masterson's move from Toronto Varsity to a front-office job with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union may or may not affect Redmen's fortunes, he said, depending on whether his successor is a Canadian gamer.

Johnny Motras' Western Mustangs would probably be improved over last year. As for his chances Queen, most of whom will be back next season, he said team was still to find a replacement for quarterback Gus Brancia, voted the league's most valuable player. Crawfords Crush Napanee 103-37 For Second Win

(Contributed)

The Belleville Crawfords made it two in a row last night, by crushing Napanee 103-37, thus proving that their entry into the Bay of Quinte Basketball league is a strong one.

From the opening whistle the Crawfords poured in basket after basket and by half time they had built up a 35 point lead as the score read 50-15. The Crawfords took full advantage of the large floor as the Napanee high school and on numerous occasions worked fast breaks to score on easy lay-ups.

The second half proved to be repetition of the first and with Ted Batchelor and George Parkhurst finding the range on numerous shots the visitors more than doubled their first half score and passed the century mark. When the final gun rang every player on the Crawfords team had scored.

The brilliant shooting of Ted Batchelor netted the Quinte lads 34 points while George Parkhurst played a fine game under the boards and hooped 16 points. Doug Soules and Stan Mulvihill were not far behind with 16 and 12 respectively, Jim Ablarde and John Batchelor were the pick of the defence.

For Napanee who dressed two injured players from Merrydale had 13, while Mills had 12.

Two Popular Actors Will Never Set Bobby-Soxers Afire

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Two of the most popular actors in Hollywood these days are fellows who will never set the bobby-soxers afire.

They are Robert Middleton and Arthur O'Connell, character actors who are working more than most stars. Each hit it big with a showy role during the last year—Middleton in "The Desperate Hours" and O'Connell in "Picnic." They'll be in the running for the supporting Oscar.

The friendly contenders are acting in the same film these days, 20th-Fox's "The Proud Ones."

Middleton is a tall, hulking man of 44, dark, baddish and deep-voiced. His size and manner have suited him for heavies, which he has played during 75 per cent of his career.

Like most actors, Middleton has had his struggles, but unlike most of them, he has had an ace in the hole: His family runs a big construction firm in Cincinnati.

"I started in the construction business when I was old enough to wield a shovel," Middleton said. "But I got the acting disease bad when I was in the first grade.

"I acted all through school and went to New York when I got out in 1932. But there were no jobs for actors then, so I went back home."

He worked in the family business by day and did local theatricals and radio work by night. He got the courage to brave Chicago radio and became a soap-opera actor. Later he returned to Cincinnati and resumed his double career, but acting won out over building.

So he tried New York and started eliciting a television and on the stage. After scoring in "Ondine" with Audrey Hepburn, the movie offers came in. He's been working steadily on the sound stages ever since.

O'Connell is a wry, soft-spoken bachelor of 42 years who claims he never got married because he couldn't afford it. Judging from his testimony, that could be true.

"I've had leaner days than most anybody you could name," he replied. "I've slept in subways and parks and freight cars. I've worked in soda fountains and lunch counters to earn $200 so I could start touring the casting offices again."

You can see why he appreciates success at his stage in life. But it continues to amaze him.

"Once you've had a hit the directors will give you free rein to do the tricks you have learned over the years," he observed. "But without a hit, you have to do what they say."

High Praise Given 'Lost' Seen on Television This Week

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—The directing genius of Arthur Penn received full expression this week with the production of "Lost" on "Playwrights 56" (NBC-TV). The Tuesday evening drama was one of the best studies of emotional disturbance ever seen on television.

"Lost" concerned a man who suffered from amnesia. The script by Arnold Schulman was based on a factual study of such an actual man in the New Yorker by Berton Roueche. It was not tragedy in the classical meaning of the word, since the victim had no choice in confronting his fate. But its impact on the TV screen was that of tragedy.

Walter Uhlan, superbly played by Steven Hill, was a man who forgot his identity and lost himself in New York. Without indulging in any of the clinical hocus-pocus that so often mars dramas of emotional disturbance on television, Penn and Schulman made it abundantly clear that Uhlan suffered from dementia praecox, a mental disease whose victims are unable to face reality.

The cause of this mental illness is unknown. Its definite cure is unknown. We can only suffer with its victims. The utter truth of the drama shone through the closing moments when no bromide was offered. It was television at its best.

There's only one noteworthy program making its network debut this weekend. It's "Camera Three" which will bow onto CBS-TV at 11:30 p. m. EST Sunday. Its previous productions through the New York CBS outlet have received high critical acclaim locally.

As its initial presentation "camera Three" will dramatize "The Dream of a Ridiculous Man" by the 19th-century Russian writer Fyodor Dostoevsky. In this one-man show John Drainie, Toronto radio actor, plays the role of a man who contemplates suicide.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, Jan. 21, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — The road ahead might be a bit slippery today so be sensibly careful in all things. No headstrong or unruly tendencies. All gain pleasant cooperation by amenable attitude.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Remember, New Year's resolutions can be keen, exercised better every day. Mediate controversial problems, don't try to force your opinions. You have a fine mind, tailor, use them rightly.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Enlivening day for your versatility and inventive ideas. However, you Gemini folks need more rest and recreation than you take. Enjoy some leisure hours in healthy fun.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — May not find others willing to cajole you but many will cooperate for your good if you are your usual pleasant and persuasive self. Without worry, do tasks, then enjoy recreation.

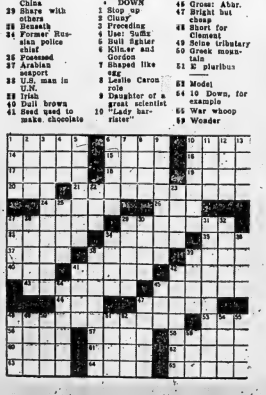
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Defer unessential matters at some hours to indulge a hobby or avocation. This is not waste of time but improving your scope of activities and knowledge. We all need healthy change.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — The sort of day you are ambitious and often low reminded. Folks need for restful diversion, homey things, perhaps catching up with social obligations, correspondence, etc.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — May tend to repeat, persist more than should. It will help you, others, to be brief but not curt, direct but still kind. Necessary work favored, also necessary rest. Equalize all.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — "He is more noble that deserve than he who confers benefits." Strive for the sake of worthy achieving and mind not right. God knows all.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — A little with contentment is great gain but there are times that we can and should achieve more than we do. Useful free-time occupation, needed rest and recreation are advanced.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Criticize softly if you must but also praise. We know that sensitive Capricorn deeply appreciates recognition — most of us do. Today encourages useful work, play, study.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — To promise is easy, to keep it honorable. And today urges promptness, accuracy, directness of speech and action. These fine assets are needed every day in many ways. Rest, relax.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Both personal and general interests, activities favored for some advancement, gains. But you will have to give support for results desired. Make time for recreation, family needs.

You born today are friendly, amenable, often inclined to be easily distressed, sometimes stubborn about taking advice. You have many splendid qualifications that can be nurtured, directed at a useful goal. You were born on the Cusp of Capricorn and Aquarius but have more traits like Aquarius. Strongly control changeableness and desire for pleasures. Time once lost is never regained and you can reach a high pinnacle of achievement if you but give your talents the chance they deserve. Self-control, determination are everyone's needs. Prayer always an aid. Birthdate: Thos. ("Stonewall") Jackson, Confederate leader; Zane Grey, author.

Greatest possession is our children! Someone once penned three lines about them, which we think are so true:
"Give them a home where they can play

A home with love within its walls
Will make them strong when dad calls."

Dry Cleaners Want Protection Against Outside Competition

TRENTON — (Special) — The Trenton dry cleaners expressed concern over outside competition in a letter to council Wednesday night.

Jack Goldberg, local cleaner, spokesman for three of the four firms requesting protection stated the local cleaners are the victims of cut-throat schemes and are certainly feeling the pinch. He blamed outside operators. Mr. Goldberg, director of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce charged that an outside cleaner is giving away a television set to divert busines to its out-of-town plant. He told council that Trenton cleaners employed 100 workers, bought trucks and other commodities locally and he personally subscribed to all local projects and in return expected consideration. He disclosed that the 30 persons employed in his establishment shared in a $35,000 payroll annually.

Mr. Goldberg disclosed that council had the authority to set prices according to the Ontario statutes. He suggested fixing a minimum and maximum price.

TIRED OF LITIGATION

Mayor Ross Burtt informed Mr. Goldberg that he was of the opinion council should ask solicitor Ramsey Park's advice before proceeding with the request from local cleaners. He said he was fed up with council giving approval to by-laws then having to face action in the courts. He asked that in the event of litigation the cleaners would pay costs instead of town.

Dr. Goldberg Expresses Belief That the Town Should be Responsible.

Town clerk O. W. Lazzy suggested the cleaners wished to stabilize price factors rather than discourage another cleaner coming into town. Mr. Goldberg mentioned a cleaner who had opened an office in town.

Councillor Bert Strong's comment was not in favor of council setting prices for local cleaners. Councillor J. MacDonald said he could not see how council had authority to peg prices since he thought the government sanctioned legislation four years ago abandoning controls.

Councillor Brown agreed with Mayor Burtt's argument. He couldn't see the town involved in legal action. Councillor Grant Gooding followed Mr. Brown's views. Councillor Vahn Lange wanted to know how council would know the right prices were being set for cleaning and service charges. Mr. Goldberg replied, "We (Trenton cleaners) would get together with the town solicitor." Solicitor Park asked, "Do you think this would be better than the present $200 licence fee charged cleaners by the town?"

Mr. Goldberg answered, "We're not objecting to those establishing agencies, we're objecting to cut-throat work."

Councillor Strong said he'd understood Mr. Goldberg's trucks picked up business outside the town.

"I don't go into Belleville," retorted Mr. Goldberg.

"You could," replied Councillor Strong.

"Yes, but I could not do business against cheap prices," Mr. Goldberg answered.

Mayor Burtt's comment to this exchange of words was, "It's a funny thing," to which Mr. Goldberg replied, "Yes, but I don't undercut. I operate fairly and legitimately."

MIGHT SET PRECEDENT

Mr. Goldberg would not commit the cleaners to paying costs in case legislation fixing prices was attacked in the courts. Mayor Burtt expressing his personal views, maintained the cleaners are just one class of business and that if the councillors protected one they would have to protect dozens of others. "I don't see why all the town people have to pay for you to get something," the mayor pointed out.

Mr. Goldberg felt that council should give some protection to the local cleaning industry by-law.

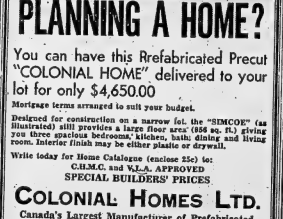
Councillor Brown, while he sympathized with the local cleaners' problems, consoled Mr. Goldberg with a prediction that cut prices would not last forever. "They are out to catch the business that goes by," he said.

Yes, but in the meantime they do a lot of harm," Mr. Goldberg stressed.

Councillor Strong remarked that the cleaners request to council looked to him like the cleaners were asking council to foster a monopoly. Mr. Goldberg pointed out that the dry cleaning business only offered service and had to be controlled. At that point Mayor Burtt asked, "Hof about a carpenter, the plumbers and other trades people."

Council unanimously agreed to seek legal advice then give consideration to the cleaners' request.

Council is also giving consideration to a request by Assessor K. E. Kenny for an increase in annual salary.



APPROVE PROPOSAL

Councillors approved buying 22 acres, the former Canada Iron Company site on the east side of the river for $5,000.

The request by C. N. I. B. for a grant of $100 will be dealt with when council brings down the budget.

Council decided against second reading of an agreement between the Merchants Gas Company and the town and approved negotiating a Limited Natural Gas.

An increase of $100 wages to all regular firemen was approved. Mayor Burtt warned council that police and utilities commission employees will be asking for increased salaries.

Pickerel Fishing Is Proving Good

TRENTON — (Special) — Trenton fishermen have been reaping a harvest for the last week. Pickerel catches have been reported from many sources. One man was observed lugging a string of them toward shore Wednesday. Another local fisherman pulled in three beauties Tuesday night.

NEW CHIEFS

Larry Hunter, Indian affairs branch superintendent on the Blood reserve in southwestern Alberta, administers the oath of office to four members of the Blood band who have been elected to the council of chiefs. Largest Wheat Field in West On Blood Indian Reservation

By DAVID OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CARDSTON, Alta. (AP) — The 253,000-acre Blood Indian reservation in southwestern Alberta boasts the largest wheat field and one of the biggest piles of wheat in the British Commonwealth, but farming operations among the Indians are not described as a success.

Almost 1,000,000 bushels of wheat and coarse grains jam all available storage space on the reserve, but most of it is the result of efforts by the Bloods' white neighbors.

A Blood who wants to start farming or ranching under the band's assistance program is required to make almost no contribution of time, money or effort.

ON CUSTOM BASIS

Practically everything is done for him. The first thing he must do is to pick out land and have the location approved by the band's council of chiefs. The council, working with Indian agency superintendent Larry Hunter, then arranges to have the farm work done for him on a custom basis.

The novice farmer is not even required to help with the work or pay to get the land tilled, seeded and the crop harvested. The cost is advanced from the band's government-held $700,000 trust fund.

The farmer, however, gets no return on his "farming operations" until the cost of producing the crop has been paid and all grain harvested is stored in supervised bins at the reserve's farm headquarters.

So far Indians who started farming in this way have amassed a $150,000 debt to the trust fund. Many of them also have bought machinery on credit but few have kept up the payments.

MANY FAILURES

In recent years about 200 Bloods were assisted to start farming in this way. About 20 are described as successful.

This is the record, despite the fact that treaty Indians are not hampered by income or land taxes, succession duties or school taxes. There also is plenty of room for a Blood to expand his farming operations, since much of the reservation still is virgin prairie.

One official attributed the poor showing on the assistance scheme to high operation costs. It was also reported that many Indians would be farmers were "taken for a ride" by unscrupulous machinery dealers who sold them unwanted and which could not be sold to other farmers.

THE BIGGEST GRAIN FIELD

The biggest grain field in the Commonwealth is part of the 61,000 acres of reservation land leased to white farmers seven years ago. The operators turn over to the band a share of the crop produced and pay the band a yearly bonus on the acreage, whether the land is producing or not.

BETTER WITH CATTLE

Indians who turned from raising horses to raising cattle have on the whole been more successful. It has been estimated that individual Bloods will net a total of about $100,000 from the sale of cattle this year.

Mr. Hunter described the reservation land as more suitable for ranching than farming. He felt grain farming should not be expanded and that an effort should be made to expand ranching operations.

About 4,000 cattle now graze on the reserve, but experts estimate it could support three to four times the number.

It's just as easy for a Blood to start ranching as it is to start farming. Each year the band council decides how many bred cows can be spared from the band herd and donates them in groups of five to prospective ranchers.

Repayment is easy—the rancher returns to the band herd one steer calf for every bred cow he has received until the five animals have been repaid. The cattle are allowed to graze anywhere on the reservation, but usually when his herd gets bigger, the rancher fences off a section for his range.

SHOULD LEAVE TOWNS

"The Blood Indians will never become ranchers or farmers if they continue to live close to town," said Rev. M. LaFrance, an Oblate missionary who has worked among Indians for about 15 years.

"The government and the band council should adopt a policy of building houses on the reserves where the Indian claim to have their land."

Rev. J. E. DeWolf, principal of St. Paul's Anglican residential school, stressed the importance of a vocational training program for young men after they leave school to encourage them to learn more about ranching and farming.

This is to be started on a limited scale by the federal government this year. Mr. Hunter said the first phase will be a two-week agricultural school, to be conducted on the reserve some time before spring. Instructors will be experts in farming and ranching operations.

If a large enough number show an interest in this course, expectations are it will be extended to cover the subjects in more detail.

Bombay Rioting Spread Feared To Other Areas

Demonstrators Put Torch To Big Cotton Warehouses

BOMBAY (AP)—Rioting erupted anew in Bombay state today and threatened to spread to other parts of the country as protests mounted against Prime Minister Nehru's plan to redraw the map of India.

Angry demonstrators battled police and put the torch to big cotton warehouses in the scarred city of Bombay. Reports of fresh violence came from other parts of the state in the sixth straight day of disorder.

Word of disturbances also came from the states of West Bengal, Orissa and Bihar where demonstrators, apparently aroused by the Bombay riots, began staging their own protests against Nehru's reorganization plans.

The Bombay crisis stemmed from the government's intent to split the state of Bombay into three parts: the Marathi-speaking south, the Gijarati-speaking north and bilingual Bombay city, where the city would be under federal control.

Nehru's ruling Congress party faces a dilemma over Marathi demands for the inclusion of Bombay city in the Marathi-speaking state. About half the city's 3,000,000 people are Marathis.

Some observers believe the party will lose its long-time stronghold of Bombay unless it bows to the demands.

Nehru declared the riot situation was improving here this morning, but before noon they had counted two new dead, raising the official toll to 51. Some observers say the actual count may be double the official tally.

Thatcher Wants Livestock Sales To U.S. Increased

OTTAWA (CP) — Strengthening of the Prairies grain economy by greater emphasis on livestock production was proposed in the Commons Friday by a Saskatchewan Independent.

Ross Thatcher, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre, urged a doubling of present immigration to increase domestic markets and increased livestock sales to the United States.

"We are missing the boat," he said.

Last year Canada had taken advantage of only 1.6 per cent of its minimum market for calves and 14 per cent of the minimum market for cattle under the trade agreement with the U.S.

Mr. Thatcher spoke in the throne speech debate after the Social Credit party had protested the debate's third motion of non-confidence in the government.

The motion, by George Hahn (SC—New Westminster), criticized government failure to implement policies which would keep farm income at "a just and economic level" and charged neglect of federal responsibility to help provincesin setting up a broad tax base through resources develop ment.

Also before the Commons is a Progressive Conservative motion stating that cabinet ministers do not deserve the House's confidence because of "indifference, inertia and lack of leadership in the face of serious national problems."

Both motions will be voted on Tuesday night. A CCF motion of non-confidence was defeated previously.

Sex-Deviate Problems Will Be Discussed

TORONTO (CP) — A special committee of representatives from the Ontario attorney-general's office, health and reform institutions is preparing recommendations for presentation to a provincial commission on sex-deviate problems, it was reported Friday.

The commission, conducted by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer, meets in Toronto next month and it is said the Ontario government will advocate criminal courts be able to hold sex offenders in prison or reformatory until they are considered cured.

Until such changes may be made, Deputy-Attorney-General Porter said to favor use of provincial powers to commit suspected sex deviates to hospitals.

Section 35 of the Ontario Mental Hospitals Act now gives a court in order the admission of any apprehended person to an institution for not more than 60 days, during which their mental condition may be examined by mental health ill, the suspect may be certified.

Mr. Roberts said attention of magistrates in all jurisdictions had been drawn to the provisions of the act.

Kingston Woman Believed Oldest In Ontario

KINGSTON (CP)—Mrs. Leconora Adeline Vanluven, who will be 105 years old Sunday, says she thinks she is the oldest woman in Ontario and perhaps in Canada.

Born January 22, 1851, she has lived through two wars and six reigning monarchs.

Longevity runs in the family. Mrs. Vanluven's great grandmother, Mrs. Polly Smith, lived until she was 100. Her grandmother, Margaret Jean Smith died at 103 and Mrs. Vanluven's mother, Johanna Ferguson lived to 102.

Born in Ernestown township, Mrs. Vanluven has been confined to bed since last year.

Pair Arrested For Cattle Theft

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Police chief Ed Weston Friday foiled cattle rustlers by combing fields and woods until they decided to turn up a pair of registered holstein heifers.

Soon after the animals were reported missing, the 67-year - old chief drove 30 miles to Toronto and with owner Robert Stevenson wandered through three stockyards until they found the heifers.

Henry Venhof, 27, and his brother, Theo, 19, of nearby Oshawa were charged with the theft, remanded to Jan. 24 and released on bail.

Planes to Guide 10 Tractor Trains On Non-Stop 3-Month Arctic Trek

MOOSONEE (CP)—Four tractor trains snaked out of this James bay village Friday, triggering a giant ice-lift of supplies to the mid-Canada radar warning line.

They're hitching for next five feet of snow toward Cape Henrietta Maria, 200 miles north on the west coast, laden with electronic equipment and other materials. For the next three months a 10-plane supply train will shuttle across, frozen muskeg, night and day, seven days a week.

They'll bear vital parts for the 3,000-mile radar ring rising along the 55th Parallel from the Labrador coast into the Peace river district of Alberta. The $170,000,000 defence project is scheduled for completion in 1957.

Throughout the massive moving operation the radio-linked trains will be guided by aircraft. The

FATHER OF TWO FACES RAPE-MURDER CHARGE

A 23-year-old father of two children, seen here on his wedding day, has been charged with the murder of 13-year-old Linda Lampkin of Toronto, who was found strangled with her own scarf and criminally assaulted on a lonely street near the city's waterfront. Police linked the driver of a Royal Mail truck—with the victim as Robert Fitton had, in the past, been out with public school student and a red panel truck—the color and size of a mail truck—had been seen in the area where the body was found only a half hour before the discovery. Detectives established that Linda was returning home from her dancing school when she was accused who was picking up mail near her house. (Central Press Canadian.)

ONT. SEX CRIMES BRING PLEA FOR HEAVY PENALTIES

Hamilton Member Criticizes Roberts

OTTAWA (CP)—A recent series of violent sex crimes in southwest Ontario has brought a demand in the Commons for ruthless enforcement of maximum penalties against sex offenders.

"We must be ruthless in dealing with these men," Russell Reinke (L—Hamilton South) said Friday. "Some said his city, Hamilton has experienced eight cases of sexual assault in the past two weeks, five of them brutal rapes, in the most serious and despicable wave of sex violence in the city's history.

Mr. Reinke demanded the maximum penalties of life imprisonment and the lash for rape and 10 years and the lash for attempted rape. The Criminal Code provision for indeterminate prison terms for criminal sexual psychopaths should be applied to all sex deviates who molest children, he said.

HOUSE APPLAUDS

Mr. Reinke was applauded by members in all sides of the House for his speech on how sex crimes should be dealt with.

Mr. Reinke said he vehemently disagrees with Ontario Attorney-General Dana Porter, who was quoted as saying authorities have no more sloppy on the problem and cannot just go around locking up each and every sex deviate.

"I should like to know why in heaven's name we cannot lock up a man who is guilty of molesting small girls or full-grown ones, for that matter, is a sex deviate."

"I suggest that if the act of molesting, which in effect is an indecent assault, takes place more than once society should be rid of that person at least until this complex problem is solved . . ."

He said rapists are "callous, hardened beasts" who deserve no sympathy. Most were sane, although they might try to plead insanity.

STRICT ENFORCEMENT

The Criminal Code should be strictly enforced, and also be more strictly enforced, he said. The latter likely was the answer. Since 1947 only 20 persons had been given indeterminate sentences for criminal sexual psychopaths. In a great many cases such persons might be.

"I maintain that these men who are urged to seek psychiatric advice to molest children, even though it may be in a minor way at first, should be held in custody and if they have not been guilty of indecent assault . . . We should get another section to . . . the code to deal with those who begin with a minor act and progress.

"Our children must come first. We are not going to have them locked up or under surveillance while this sort of deviate runs at large."

Set up Trust Fund

TORONTO (CP)—A trust fund is being set up for the dependants of Eric Andrews, Canadian missionary to Asua Indians in Ecuador earlier reported murdered, was announced today.

Miss Norma Culbertson of the World Radio Missionary Fellowship said the fund will be named the Five Missionary Martyrs' Memorial Fund.

Receipts would be used to maintain the missionaries families and to pay for their children's education.

Says Post Office Thefts Result Of Inefficiency

OTTAWA (CP)—A Progressive Conservative charged in the Commons that many post office thefts are the result of inefficiency and lack of care on the part of senior officials of the department.

"The post office is considered a good by a hunting ground for thieves," said William Hamilton, Montreal Notre-Dame-de Grace.

More stringent safeguards on investments thefts will have to be taken, he said, suggesting that they might be given "complete, final and absolute" responsibility for post office security.

Mr. Hamilton asked the post office to restore the two-day delivery system on a five-day week basis instead of the present one-day system six days a week. This would not require a major increase in cost and would reduce continual complaints about mail delivery.

At another point, Mr. Hamilton said the St. Lawrence seaway authority has awarded a contract for a $120,000 seaway model and a $300,000 building to house it. He said he has grave doubts about the need for the building even if one admitted the necessity for the model.

Whether Candidate or Worker Eisenhower Promises to Fight For Policies of Republicans

BY JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Either as a candidate or as a "worker in the ranks," President Eisenhower has promised to battle "with all my strength" for the policies of his Republican administration.

Despite the uncertainty with which he viewed his role, Eisenhower's promise of support Friday night cheered more than 60,000 Republicans whose "Salute to Eisenhower" dinners up to $100 a plate raised an estimated $5,000,000 for national, state and local campaign purposes.

Responding to demands that he run again, Eisenhower said: "My future role remains undetermined, whether to be a candidate for renomination or a worker in the ranks." But he promised his help to either case.

The president arose smiling and outwardly hale and hearty to return the salute of 53 dinners throughout the country. But tears clouded his eyes as he acknowledged the tributes, saying "my heart is so full that it is indeed dangerous to say more than 'Thank you.'"

Eisenhower told 1,700 diners in Washington and about 60,000 more over the United States that his decision, when it is reached, will not be a selfish one.

"I could devoutly wish that there were some other method by which the American people could, under the circumstances, point out the path of my true duty. But it appears that this is a question that first, I alone must answer."

The Republicans who cheered his entrance with Mrs. Eisenhower, gowned in purple and carrying red roses, left no doubt that they would like to help him make an affirmative decision.

Neither did the closed-circuit television flash-talk, from Los Angeles to New York, leave any thought that the Republicans aspiring his leadership were in the White House have in mind any other candidate but Eisenhower.

Some of them obviously were cheered by Eisenhower's statement that he hopes his decision when it comes, "will not unduly reflect concern for self . . ."

Party members interpreted this as indicating that the president will make no secret of it if he finds he has reached what he called at Thursday's White House news conference "a reasonable level of strength" physically.

Almost without exception Republican speakers at dinners across the country stressed a "peace and prosperity" theme. They defended Eisenhower's foreign policies as aimed at promoting world peace.

Sen. Homer Capehart (R—Ind.) however himself appeared more cautious in describing the current world situation as an "uneasy peace."

ARMS SHIPMENTS HALTED UNTIL ISSUE DEBATED

St. Laurent Makes Promise to House

OTTAWA (CP)—Amid mounting opposition criticism of the government's policy on arms shipments abroad, Prime Minister St. Laurent Friday agreed to halt shipments pending a Commons debate on the matter.

His statement that "there will be no shipments pending the debate" came soon after Opposition leader Drew charged that the House suspended regular business to discuss arms shipments as a "definite matter of urgent public importance."

Two days ago, the prime minister rejected a CCF demand that the government stop export of harvard training planes to Egypt. Alistair Stewart (CCF — Winnipeg North) who invoked the question of arms shipments last week, described the government's policy as "disastrous folly."

It was not clear whether the prime minister's statement referred to shipments to NATO countries as well as to the Middle East.

However, the army said it has received no instructions from the government to stop arms shipments to the Middle East. Shipments in the next four weeks include ammunition, explosives, artillery tractors, trucks and jeeps for Turkey, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Norway.

DENIED BY SPEAKER

Mr. Drew's request for a special debate was denied by Speaker Rene Beaudoin, who noted that the throne speech debate still is in progress. During this debate members can discuss any topic.

Jesse Maclean (CCF—Vancouver Kingsway) said that in the throne speech debate the government would not be compelled to make any statement of policy on arms shipments.

External Affairs Minister Pearson was brought short twice on Mr. Stewart's questions on arms shipments, said he will make a statement on the matter Tuesday on the subject.

The debate probably will come the week after next during a general discussion on foreign policy.

Mr. Drew said he based his request for a special debate partly on a Toronto Globe and Mail report of a day which said the government on Jan. 11 had signed a contract with Israel to supply $20,000,000 worth of artillery ammunition.

DENIES ANNOUNCEMENT

On Sept. 27, more than a month before this contract was signed, Premier Nasser of Egypt announced that Communist Czechoslovakia had agreed to supply military equipment to Egypt.

Earlier this week, Mr. Pearson told the House of Commons that "every last rumour" before the Commons had been a reference to the Middle East.

Mr. Drew, in reply, to Mr. Stewart, he said he knew of no shipments of Canadian aircraft to Egypt or Israel.

When Mr. Stewart asked whether the Harvard trainer, to which Mr. Pearson said he didn't see how a gun could be mounted on a trainer, Mr. Drew produced pictures and photographs appeared showing a Harvard firing machine-guns. Mr. Pearson said the trainer "apparently" could be armed.

Diver to Probe Section Of Ottawa R. for Bodies

OTTAWA (CP)—A diver was to probe a section of the Ottawa river today seeking the fate of occupants—their exact number is not known—of an automobile that skidded off theChaudiere bridge Friday night.

There were several reports from various sources concerning the number of persons in the car, but the closest thing to certainty was that there were more than the driver in the luckless auto.

Const. Percy Lewis, Ottawa, who heading in the opposite direction on the bridge, said the car sped and dsewly swerved across the wrong lane in front of his auto, plunged through the metal guard railing, skidded about 15 feet on the ice and splashed into the water. It sank immediately.

A battered right front door of the car was found on the ice afterward, but there was no sign of any survivors. Other witnesses said there was not time for any to get out of the car before it disappeared into the dark waters, 30 feet deep at that point.

DRIVER MISSING

The bridge forms a main artery between Ottawa and neighboring Hull. The car, heading northward Ottawa, plunged into the waters dlling a gap between the river's flow into powerhouse turbines.

Ernest Montpetit, a Hull diver, volunteered to go down into the icy waters in search of the car tonight, but police, fire department and other officials feared that the swift current might sweep him against the sluice gate below the point where the car disappeared.

Upstream locks were being prepared during the night to cut the flow of water through the sluice to lessen the danger to the diver when he went down today.

Police kept an all-night watch on the spot for any bodies that might float up to the surface.

Dear mother, you are sleeping,
Now sweet their memories still;
Dear mother, you are sleeping,
The world can never fill
Your place.—Remembered by Ethel, Jack and children.

BENEDICT. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mary Jane Benedict, who passed away on January 22nd, 1953.

If I could at the world to give,
I would give it, yes, and more;
But I'd give it all to live with mother,
And greet her at the door.
But all I can do, dear mother,
Is to think of you and pray,
And leave behind tokens of love,
Till we meet you on that day.
—Love ever remembered by daughters Minnie, Ethel, Grandchildren and Friends.

BELL. — In loving memory of a dear sister, Carrie Bell, who passed away January 22nd, 1955.

Gone, dear sister, gone to rest,
God thought best to take you home,
But in our hearts you hold a place,
Until we meet again.
—Sadly missed by sister Reda.

GRIMSON. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Edward Grimson, who passed away January 22nd, 1954.

Asleep in God's beautiful garden,
Where flowers never fade,
Some day, when life's journey is over,
We shall be together again.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

GRIMSON. — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Edward Grimson.

Deep in the heart lies a picture,
One that time can't erase,
Of a face we all loved dearly,
Because he was one of the best.
—Ever remembered by daughter Agnes, son-in-law Bill, grandchildren Billie and Linda.

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

JESUS LOVES ME!

Jesus loves me! this I know,
For the Bible tells me so;
Little ones to Him belong;
They are weak, but He is strong.

Jesus from His throne on high,
Came into this world to die;
That I might from sin be free,
Died and died upon the tree.

Jesus loves me! He who died
Heaven's gate to open wide!
He will wash away my sin,
Let His little child come in.

Jesus, take this heart of mine;
Make it pure, and wholly Thine;
Thou hast bled and died for me,
I will henceforth live for Thee.

Anna B. Warner wrote the words for this popular children's hymn and William B. Bradbury, who collaborated with Fanny Crosby in the writing of some of her best-loved gospel songs, provided the music.

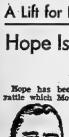
The hymn-message tells, in language which boys and girls and young people can understand, the story of Christ's atonement for sin. His death on the cross so that Heaven's gate might be "opened wide" to sinning humanity. Some folks regard it as the finest of Miss Warner's hymns. She wrote two others which are widely used in worship, "We Would See Jesus"; worship, "We Would See Jesus"; and "One more Day's Work for Jesus."

The foreign field some years ago, told an interesting anecdote involving Miss Warner's Sunday school hymn. She said:

"I translated into Telegu the children's hymn, "Jesus Loves Me", and taught it to the children of our Sunday school. Later, as I was going through the narrow streets of the native town on horseback, I heard singing down a side street. There was a little heathen boy, with heathen men and women standing around him, singing at the top of his voice:

"Jesus loves me, this I know
For the Bible tells me so".

can develop patience by teaching us the divine pace. We must learn that we cannot say, "Step lively" to the Eternal. We cannot eat tomorrow's dinner today. Why then should we expect to get tomorrow's answers and rewards today? When we live one day at a time, we discover that what looks like defeat today may often look like victory by tomorrow.



Thus "patience worketh experience," or "staying power," as another translation puts it. Russell Conwell delivered his popular lecture, "Acres of Diamonds" so many times that he made enough money to start Temple University in Philadelphia. And no one can measure how much that lecture enriched its hearers by reminding them of the wealth, both material and spiritual, which could still be mined from the places they were about to abandon as hopeless. "To make good" is to make something good out of bad situations.

Thus experience leads to hope. America and Canada are lands of hope. And not merely because of their rich resources, but because their settlers had "staying power." Our pioneers were not "fly - by - night" but "settlers" who "stuck it out" with patience until tribulations begot hope. In such staying power is our hope of a better world here and of heaven hereafter.

A Lift for Living

Hope Is a Saving Virtue

BY DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Hope has been likened to the rattle which Mother Nature gives to man, her fretful child, to still his crying while she busies herself with his teeth on the hard facts of reality.

Schopenhau e r the German philosopher, put it even more boldly. He said hope is the bait by which Nature gets her hook into the nose of man and thereby leads him toward her ends rather than his. It is hope that keeps the gambler at the gaming table while he distpates his fortune expecting the lucky strike. It is hope which lures the criminal further into the coils of crime in the futile belief that he can beat the racket. Hope leaves a trail of disappointments along the course of our lives. Who says that "we are saved by hope?"

Well, that's the point which commands our hearing. The man who declared this was no starry-eyed youth whistling in the dark to keep his courage. He was a veteran of life's largest campaigns. When we look at him we feel as did the officer who conferred the Order of the Purple Heart on the wounded soldiers who had been brought back from service overseas. When the officer came before these boys, lined up for ceremony, some with broken bodies, some in wheel chairs, but all with a courageous smile, the officer did not stand up to receive their salute. He saluted them.

SAVED BY HOPE

Likewise when we stand before Paul, for it was he who said, "We are saved by hope," we feel like standing at salute, for he was a wearer of the Order of the Purple Heart in life's campaigns. He had been through peril, sword, and persecution. He bore the marks of wounds and chains. He at least deserves our attention when he says, "We are saved by hope."

I should like to ask this seasoned campaigner a question covering his assertion. What is this hope that saves us?

We can know at once, I think, that Paul's hope was not mere optimism. He was not by nature an optimist. I can sympathize with Paul—for I am not by nature an optimist. I once belonged to an organization whose treasurer was a born optimist. In fact, he took such a rosy outlook that his books were in the red!

It must be a very comfortable thing to have a natural optimism. One catches the radiant spirit of the late Sir Thomas Lipton, the British yachtsman, when he bears the gallant old sportsman say: "I am the world's greatest optimist. I am proud of the distinction. There is something buoyant and healthy in being an optimist . . . I am always in good humor and good fettle." I often wish I were like that, but I am not. And neither was Paul.

Paul tells us the links in his living with hell to hope: "Tribulation worketh patience; and patience, experience; and experience, hope." It is a noteworthy fact that hardship often breeds hope while comfort frequently makes for pessimism. The cynical, sophisticated writing of our day is more likely to come from steam-heated penthouses than from the school of hard work.

WHY VLA LOTS ARE LARGE

The Conservation Council of Ontario has presented a brief on "regional planning" to the Gordon economic commission.

Several of its contentions provide food for thought.

For instance, it observes: "Veterans Land Act administrators (with good intentions) seek the very best farm land and then divide it into lots too large for homes and too small for economic food production. This uses up land and adds to the cost of urban services for the area. In some regions this policy may be undesirable."

Complaints against the size of VLA lots have been voiced before. Generally, though, they have been regarded as the personal complaints of individuals who wished to take advantage of the provisions of the VLA without conforming to the objective behind this program for "small holdings" by veterans. The Conservation Council's brief, however, draws attention to the fact that the regulations may be annoying not only to individuals directly concerned, but also to those charged with the responsibility of providing those veterans with required services. From realization of this fact to questioning of the whole purpose of the VLA scheme is just a step. Once that step has been taken a moment's thought suggests that the same difficulty may arise from an error in judgment which was almost universal at the time that VLA regulations were drafted.

These small holdings were primarily designed to provide veterans employed in urban centres with a type of bombproof shelter against depression conditions. Most VLA holdings are in close proximity to a town in which the veteran works. The theory was that, when unemployed, the veteran could at least feed his family, and perhaps obtain a small cash crop by raising crops on his small holding. We said "when" unemployed. In those immediate post-war years the question was not "if" another depression would come but "when." It was in the atmosphere of almost unanimous conviction that a post-war slump was inevitable that the VLA plan was drafted. Some veterans with VLA holdings may have found their acres profitable, many, no doubt, have failed in the effort of putting their land to useful purpose, have certainly not utilized it to full advantage. Whether it is now too late, or too early, to change the regulations is a moot question.

SPACE-FILLER

Editorial writing is sometimes difficult. Sometimes ideas won't come. Sometimes, when the ideas arrive, the words required to properly present them will not arrange themselves in orderly fashion. It was on occasions like that that a colleague was wont to declaim: "Today I couldn't write a laundry list."

Perhaps the fault lies in our modern education. A century or more ago people did not seem to have this difficulty. If we are to judge by a letter published on October 25, 1849, in "Victoria Chronicle and General Commercial Advertiser." The letter announced the formation of the Belleville Literary Association. Its writer was certainly not at a loss for words. We quote one sentence:

"No one who considers its usefulness, and who has a taste for the intellectual improvement of society, can but perceive the incalculable amount of good that will arise to every one of its members—having their minds enbellished, their taste refined, and their knowledge of ancient and modern literature extended—as well as the influence it will produce on the minds and characters of those around them, and as this country is only progressing on to the scene of future greatness, and Belleville rising to compete with her commercial neighbors, I only desire to see more of that spirit of enterprise, enlightenment and patriotism that has been displayed throughout the community —something of that spirit which characterized the inhabitants of ancient Greece and Rome, and raised them to that superior which has never yet been equalled by any nation under heaven."

It's an art; a lost art.

MISMATED

Politics, it has been said, makes strange bedfellows.

Nothing can be stranger than the pipe-dreams from which the Fort Erie Letter-Review manages to make out of a pipeline.

Agitation grows," it says, "for the entire (Trans-Canada) pipeline project to be built by the Canadian taxpayers."

Principal proponent of this is Leslie Frost, premier of Ontario," it continues. "Mr. Frost was elected as a Conservative and Conservative his government likes to be called. The fact is that Mr. Frost is today the biggest socialist in Canadian public life."

Statement like this is are not apt to win friends and influence people. It is difficult to guess who will be most offended, Mr. Frost and his Cabinet or Messrs. Coldwell, Donald MacDonald et al. — It makes no difference whether one interprets the adjective "biggest" as meaning "most important" or "most thorough-going." It is not the adjective but the noun that displeases all concerned.

JUST FOLKS

PURPOSE

Boys are often reckless when they start to play games
Boys are full of mischief; boys are made.
Boys at times are noisy. That we all agree.
But tomorrow's craftsmen shortly
they will be.

See that healthy rascal playing second base?
Some old priest or parson maybe he'll replace.
That grinning imp in youngster eating chocolate fudge
May become a lawyer and later on a judge.

Look beyond a little. When their games are played
Out of small boys only men to be are made.
Somewhere now among them,
could we clearly see,
There are skillful doctors;
Merchants soon to be.

All they need is guidance and a little aid.
Friendly men to help them when they seem afraid,
Men who understand them and are glad to show
They themselves were youngsters not so long ago.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 21, 1936

His Majesty King George V died last night at his Norfolk country estate. Following is the bulletin issued by the royal physicians: "Death came peacefully to the King at 11.55 p.m. in the presence of Her Majesty the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Princess Royal and the Duke and Duchess of Kent." His late Majesty was born at Marlborough House on June 3, 1865, thus being in his 71st. year. He was the second son of the late King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, and the late Queen Alexandra, who was Princess of Denmark. He visited Canada on the Prince of Wales' accession and if by the Princess in 1908 and attended the Tercentenary celebration in Quebec City. He ascended the throne in 1910 upon the death of Edward VII and the Coronation ceremonies took place in 1911. In 1935 His late Majesty celebrated the Silver Jubilee of his Ascension with the full pomp and pageantry of the entire British Empire. King George V. will pass down in history as a democratic King and Father of the people; a kindly man who exercised untold influence. It rests upon the accession of his father King Edward VII in 1901, that he was proclaimed Prince of Wales. Prior to this time he was Duke of Cornwall and York and as such he and the Duchess visited Canada in 1901 on their tour of the Empire. On December 9, 1901 at the Guild Hall in London a public reception was tendered to him as the Prince of Wales to which rank His Royal Highness was now elevated.

The Belleville Intermediate hockey team defeated Queen's at Kingston last night, the score being seven to four. Every player was at his best and local fans are proud of the boys. Without doubt they will win this group and be well up in the running even if they are not successful in winning the championship. The following composed the Belleville team: Phillips, W. Symons, Whitty, Finkle, Whalen, R. Symons and Mulligan. Referee Murch of Toronto was the thirdtree. The whole-souled and good natured manager of the local team, B. Shorey is naturally greatly pleased with the results of the game.

Belleville defeats Picton. Picton's husky bunch of juniors blew into town last night and gave Sandy Burrows' team a strenuous run for their money. However, the locals won, making the score being five to three. The following composed the teams: Belleville, — Phillips, Pepper, Connolly, Spangenberg, Aikens, Burke and Weller. Picton, Goal, Croft, Tulley, Bedborough, Illsley, Welsh, Collier and Reid.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In my garden, I have a bird feeding station which has caused me no end of grief. I don't want to feed all the pigeons in the district. I want to feed only the birds that are starving population. Indeed, the little house sparrows, the English sparrows, I hope to see reduced in numbers in me.

First, I tried a feeding tray, as it is called, fixed to a back window ledge. What I hoped to attract were wistful wanderers, the native birds who had lingered too late in their southward journey, maybe because they were injured or ill, or maybe just stupid: robins, song sparrows, juncos. I hoped to see chickadees at the feeding tray, and nuthatches. Cardinals are still at winter in my clime: I dreamed of seeing a cardinal at my window.

But the pigeons and never have I seen a leah or hungry pigeon—looped down; and the house sparrows and the starlings dashed in, and all the pretty melon seeds, sunflower, millet, warming buckwheat and nourishing canary seed was gobbled up, at two and three dollars a week's providing.

So I resorted to social reform. I decided to protect the innocent. Like a statesman devising legislation, I devised tricky feeding stations that would foil the pigeons, frustrate the starlings, defeat the house sparrows.

All in vain. The greedy, the aggressive, the masterful will have their way, come what will, as I watch my feeding station from the back window, with all its social reform, think of socialists and wonder which is worse: Bulgasin with his thick-necked Russian cronies, or my self-appointed benefactor guarding his interests? What sort of masters do we prefer? There will always be masters.

And there will always be fat pigeons. For my feeding station now is so rigged that only little birds can get at it, tender, helpless little birds.

And the tender, helpless little birds are English sparrows, and so greedy and quarrelsome are they that they land on the feeding station and fight furiously and flutter: and the fluttering and slashing of their quarrelsome wings blow all the seed down onto the ground, where the instinctive, pot-bellied pigeons, commissars if ever I saw any, bob and gobble and utter encouraging noises.

History of Hallmarks

(BBC Summary)

Britain's hallmark laws, which govern the standard of precious metals, have undergone many changes since they were first introduced in 1300, in the reign of King Edward I, and they are soon to be renewed once more by a departmental committee set up by the Board of Trade. Hallmarks are the guarantee of quality and a guide to the date of the ware in question and Mrs. Mona Curren, Director of the National Jewellery Association, traced their complicated history in the BBC's "Radio Newsreel". When they were first introduced, she said, no article made of gold or silver could be sold until it had been tested by the Guardians of the Craft and struck with the leopard's head which was known as the King's Mark. In Edward III's reign a statute provided that every goldsmith should have his own Mark for which he would answer and which would be struck beside the King's Mark, for the next hundred and fifteen years King's Mark and Maker's Mark were used together. The Maker's Mark might be something like a pineapple or a leaping bottle. It taken maybe from his shop sign, but later on the use of the initial letters of his name became compulsory. In Edward III's reign yet another law was introduced—a letter of the alphabet to identify the various years, and for a time each piece sent to be assayed and marked, and this letter was changed every year and was known as the "Date Letter". Even today most of the hallmarks and hallmarks are put on precious metal changes its date letter in May. Mrs. Curren quoted the alphabet of the twenty letters A to U, omitting J, thus making the complete alphabets cover a century.

As it was inconvenient to have all silver hallmarked in London other Assay Offices, each having their own mark, were established—Edinburgh has a castle; Glasgow, a tree, bird, bell, salmon and ring; Chester, the three castles and a sword; Sheffield, a crown on top of a castle; and York, the Lion, Lymington, an anchor.

Since 1300 many acts relating to hallmarking have been passed and about thirty of them are still in operation. Only people who have had to deal with the legal side of hallmarking can be aware of some of it is. Certain articles are exempted but there are also exceptions to the exemptions—silver plate, for example, are exempted but sterling articles must conform to it. Every article sent for hallmarking is chemically tested by taking minute scrapings from a separate part before it is marked; any ware falling short of the very high standard demanded may be returned unmarked and returned to the makers. These last are low, or precious metal ware imported from foreign countries, returned to the country's laws and be hallmarked: if it falls short of the required standard it can be re-exported to the makers.

BOOKS AT NAP

I hope I may be forgiven for my endless references to books and my library. It's the library of an average man, but one that is loved by, visibly printed on every shelf. Though I give many volumes and many to friends and neighbors, I am always saddened at any departure. Like parting with a beloved dog. I want to be sure that each book will have a "good home."

Now so long as life is we all have to our credit, we can read only so many books and so many that a lover of books never stops welcoming others. Hundreds of these books are often relegated to their long naps—asleep, awaiting, like the sleeping beauty, the kiss of a prince.

Hardly a day passes, however, without stirring the long nap of many a volume, reaching for it, and blessing its thoughtful host to put this mind and body away for the night. I have dozens of books I like to make my last companions before bed time. Naturally they are of the inspirational type. Few before bedtime.

books are so comforting as New Testament. But what an experience it is to take from one's shelf a book, read a few pages, and note the markings in it and welcome back to the old companionship.

Just to touch a beloved book is something to announce kinship. My favorite is the one filled with underhold of me rather late in life, but that does not lessen the regard for worth and personality of such items. Take an item like the first book that I have taken from my W. H. Hudson with the author's inscription in the fly leaf, dated in a small boy of eight, if you know such a one," and then signed by W. H. Hudson. A book embellished with love has no other competition!

How true it is we have taken a book from my shelves, after a long nap of its own, and then joined with it, and to be awakened by a kindly hand with the statement: "I'll take this for your sleep!" There is no tonic or sleeping pill so effective and delightful as a great book read before bedtime.

ON THE SIDE OF THE ANGELS

Saint Theresa once set about to found a much-needed orphanage. She had only three pence in her pocket. People laughed at her and told her she was crazy. Her answer was, "Theresa and three half-pence can do anything; but Theresa and three half-pence can do all things."

This reminds us of the statement often made that God and one right is not only a majority — he constitutes a unanimous vote. Abe Lincoln, after putting an important matter to his cabinet and receiving unanimous rejection, remarked good naturedly, "I vote yes, and so the motion is unanimously adopted."

But we have to have something of Lincoln's great spirit to be good natured in the face of a situation such as this. Usually we tear our "little hair" and moan and groan and then, as often as not, give in weakly to what we know is wrong. Did God by Theresa? Did God by Theresa and three half-pence? Abraham Lincoln and ten associates glaring at him and yelling "No," and Lincoln saying "Yes". Those are overwhelming majorities —triumphs. That is, according to standards of the world's success.

Get on the side of the angels and you will have nothing to fear. And the angels are delighted to have you on their side.

Peasants In Revolt

(New York Times)

A quarter of a century ago Soviet peasants struck back against forced collectivization by slaughtering their livestock. For many who did so it was a reaction of blind, primitive rage. If their livestock were to be taken from them by the collective farms, the peasants reasoned, the animals might as well be killed and eaten. The result was a massive reduction in Soviet livestock, the consequences of which are felt even today.

Now from Communist China comes news of a new variation on this "scorched earth" theme. The Peiping regime has ordered that cattle can neither be sold nor slaughtered without Government permission. It is no mere coincidence that this new period of "wanton slaughter" of livestock has also been one of tremendous pressure on China's peasants to join collective farms. This pressure has been so great that in the few months that it is now officially claimed that 60 per cent of the farmers have been in cooperative farms, the precursors of full-fledged collective style collectivization. Whether this method of protest will be employed in China than it was in the early Nineteen Thirties in Russia remains to be seen. But we should not forget that Communist China today is a far poorer land than the Soviet Union was in 1930, and it can even less afford a tremendous loss of agricultural capital.

Among New Inventions

(Milwaukee Journal)

The United States Patent Office has just reported that the latest invention by American geniuses that hold great promise for people who have other pursuits or jobs is to carry parasols in hot weather.

For the parasol comes in a pair of hand puppets wearing boxing gloves. You put one on each hand, with thumb and forefinger to trip and fill the arms. As the puppets are manipulated, the oxygen in the blood (in the form of red ink) is released with each poke to the jaw of the challenger.

For parasol carriers there is a battery-driven fan, the motor-driven in which fan blades are mounted under the canopy. A lever is mounted in the handle, the finger ing and releasing the lever the carrier makes the blades revolve, sending a cooling air current down on his head.

The combination of these earthshaking booms to mankind drives you to the Patent Office has another new listing. It's a gaspowered corkscrew guaranteed to open bottles faster than you can empty them.

Have Your Baby at Home

This business of making a federal case, so to speak, of every childbirth has been a routine in large cities ever since trick specialists and "clinic" establishments took over in Yankeeland. From the reports of the situation in small towns, east, west and south, it begins to look as though childbirth is no longer a natural process but a serious major operation complete with men in white and nurses running around as in Medic.

Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd (Buck) Rodgers, Jr., are the parents of two children born in 1951 and 1954 at home in Wilmette, Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. The Rodgerses are partners in marriage, in parenthood and in business (photography) — a studio started by (Betty Stuart) Mrs. Rodgers after she was graduated from Northestern University and joined by Buck a year later when he returned from World War II service. How come they had their babies at home? Mrs. Rodgers said about it:

"I didn't want to associate illness and hospitals with having a baby . . ."

"I didn't want to be separated from my husband at such an important time in our lives. So we decided that our children would be born at home where we could be together."

Having mixed hospital routines and delivery rooms, I understand these self - respecting Americans set out to find a doctor who would deliver at home.

The doctors in and around Chicago are no better and no worse than the general run about this. One author another in Boston and suburban practitioners and "specialists" canvassed by the Wilmette couple gave 'em his nonchalogue:

(1) It is so much easier to keep things sterile, germ-free in the hospital.

(2) The latest and best anaesthetics available in the hospital.

(3) Nurses and interns right at hand, say to spell the doctor.

(4) Transfusion and other emergency equipment is not immediately available even in the finest home.

This usually discourages people who would like to have their babies at home. But it didn't discourage the Rodgerses. They began searching until they found a Chicago doctor who attends childbirth at home.

Their first childbirth at home Mrs. Rodgers said:

"There was some discomfort but no actual pain. I had no anesthetics and felt no need for them."

And I had no stitches. Of course there was some fear of the unknown the first time, but there was none with Buck to assist that tension. If I ever wanted to hold Buck's hand, he was there. Actually it was so simple and there was so little fuss I could hardly believe it. Half an hour after Betty Ann's born my mother wouldn't believe anything had happened." (Betsy weighed 8 lbs. at birth.)

As I have said home is the best place to have a baby, provided you have a home fit to live in.

Allow Women To Tell Fibs

(Enid, Mich., News)

Men who have long been puzzled by women who fib their ages need no longer be awake nights trying to figure them out. A life insurance company has come up with a happy solution. In fact, all of us should be happier because it evens things a little in the loeing battle of the sexes. The life that its female policy holders may fib within a three year radius of the awful truth, because, they brightly conclude, women have a longer life expectancy than men anyway. So it's all to the good. Or almost so.

Now if you really want a problem, try to find out from anyone of those feminine even-uppers specifically which three years she is forgetting.

Turn Whales Into Coats

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

There are a lot of whales going into milady's new mink coats. The Federal Department of Fisheries has reported that 4,000 pothead whales were driven ashore in Trinity and Bonavista Bays during 1955 by private rations of mining oil — about a dozen newly-established companies in Newfoundland.

The year saw the transfer of a number of mink ranches from other parts of Canada to its newest province. The movers were spurred by the possibility of a low cost wholesmeat as food for the province's growing animals. Before the fall pelting season the pothead whales were supporting about 12,000 minks.

The Fisheries Department's year-end report says that while some whale meat was wasted, most was frozen and later fed to the minks. All of the whale fat and blubber was used in the production of whale oil.

Nobody Flees 'Salt Mine'

(Ottawa Journal)

Mr. Elmore Philpott, a newspaper columnist who doubles as a Liberal member of Parliament — or perhaps it's the other way about — begins a message to his readers in the Ottawa Sun with these deathless words:

"I am writing this piece just before Christmas. I have no time for another session of work at what the boys call the salt mines."

Salt mine, Eh?

Ever hear the shrieks of anguish when the drivers for a redistribution committee separate an MP from his honorarium in that dreadful place?

Ever note anybody rushing from a nine appointment to the senatorial branch of the salt mine?

Has Cy Sharp of the forcerded case of a man doing a term at this salt mine agist his will. He will do his darndest to get the job — and his darndest to keep it.

Building of Madoc-Foxboro Road Held up by Delay in Purchase of Property Needed

Delay in the purchase of property and arriving at settlements with holders of leases on land in the Moira Lake area is said holding up a start in construction of the Madoc-Foxboro county road as a provincial government road development artery.

This was learned by Hastings county councillors Friday after some rather spirited discussion led to the county roads and bridges committee being given a free hand to complete purchases of required right of way as soon as possible and get the construction program underway.

The discussion on the Madoc road problem followed reports being given by council to a $326,500 roads and bridges by-law for 1956.

Of the $326,500 estimated expenditure on the county roads system, an amount of $250,000 is earmarked for actual construction; $60,000 will go for maintenance; $16,700 for overheads; up to $13,000 will be required for rebates to villages and $8,000 will be spent in machinery repairs.

In by-law form the various totals for both county and suburban roads will amount to $326,700 for construction: $240,000 for maintenance; $13,000 for rebates and $19,200 for miscellaneous.

The total amount of the by-law — $326,500 — is the same as that of last year.

However, with fixed requirements up from last year; the purchase of a new grader and the cost of settling for property requirements for the right-of-way for the Madoc development road, the amount left for general construction work will be very much less.

Referring to the delay in getting construction of the Madoc-Foxboro driveway, Reeve Rollins asked what a start could not be made on other sections of the road, such as the area around Moira Lake until the last.

ZONE AGREEMENT MADE

He was told that the only agreement so far entered into by the county with the property owners was the two-and-a-half miles south of Foxboro.

Reeve James Sprackett noted, however, that if the road committee got nearly ready in one area no reason why construction could not be started there.

Reeve Charles Buskard agreed with Reeve Rollins that construction might be started on other sections although purchase of property in the Moira Lake area being held up.

"The Madoc Road is an important link, but the highway department is not taking any initiative," he said, "county solicitor has got to come from us."

Let's get busy and get the survey completed for other sections of the road and buy the land," he added.

The discussion ended with the roads committee being given a free hand in the purchase of required property in the Moira Lake area.

"I hope that we will have a good report by the April meeting," commented roads committee chairman Reeve Tracey Adams.

Under other orders council moved that the city of Belleville be asked to co-operate with the county in respect to administration of justice costs. A committee of Warden Elmer Wood, County Clerk-Treasurer Eric S. Denyes, with Reeve Lloyd Price as chairman of finance with Reeves Harder and Buskard were named a committee to consider the matter.

The following grants were approved by council: Department of Agriculture at Stirling for Junior Farmer work—$800; Crop Improvement Association, Central Ontario Spring Show at Peterborough, $25; Canadian National Institute for the Blind, $800; Quinte Sanatorium, $200; Rehabilitation Centre, Belleville, $100; Quinte Rehabilitation Centre, Belleville, $100; Quinte Rehabilitation Centre, Belleville, $100; Quinte

Thruways Enhance Auto Travel

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

How would you like to drive from New York to Chicago without stopping for a single traffic light or intersection?

Fantastic? You just haven't looked lately. By next fall it will be possible.

The recently opened Ohio Turnpike links the eastern thruway systems of New Jersey and Pennsylvania with the Indiana line, one state away from Chicago. A thruway across heavily travelled northern Indiana will be completed next year, and you'll be able to drive non-stop from Manhattan's George Washington Bridge to Chicago's Loop for toll charges totalling only $19.45.

Maybe Congress didn't buy the administration's national highway program, but the states themselves have done a better job of untangling the mess our highway system is generally realized.

Only five years ago there were 48 miles of toll roads in the country, mostly on the Pennsylvania Turnpike and Connecticut's Merritt Parkway - Wilbur Cross Highway system from the New York City suburbs northeastward toward Boston, the grandaddy of all superhighways and still one of the best maintained and most heavily travelled.

MORE SUPER HIGHWAYS

Today there are more than four times as many toll highways. Another 1,500 miles are under construction and 5,000 miles are in the planning stage.

Even Mexico, long notorious for its atrocious roads, now boasts thruways from the highways from Laredo and El Paso, Texas, and Nogales, Arizona, to Mexico City. It's now another from Mexico City to the rapidly growing resort of Acapulco. The 150 miles between the two cities are anything like the Ohio Turnpike. The road looks like you've seen much excuse any more for staying home and feeding over highway routes and a number of other bumping along.

Mainstay of the new Ohio Pike is $3 for a passenger car, and it's all toted up electronically as motorists toss the coins. Sixteen service areas include not only service facilities but also rest rooms and playgrounds.

All bridges are divided so an accident in one area won't tie up the traffic from the other direction.

The speed limit is 60 miles an hour and the road cuts three and a half hours off the time otherwise needed to traverse Ohio.

There are accesses to all the major cities in the section's central part of the populous state.

Also opened this year was the New York Thruway, shooting north from New York to Albany and thence west to Buffalo on the route the most populous part of the state.

You probably could drive it in two hours saved by keeping off the picturesque but generally dated highways through Hudson River's York State.

There isn't a major hill or curve

Looking out over the cavern we found that the floor of the cave the floor was literally non-existent, all being a wilderness of stalagmites which in many places require special equipment and definitely old clothes and boots. Jim and I turned back, passing through different galleries some of which were very large chambers, so low that one must needs duck the head to get into the next.

THE BLACK BEYOND

The real test came when we were obliged to climb up onto a large rock and jump from there into the blackness beyond. Other than the first, which was not flat on top. The prospect made me feel somewhat nervous, handing over all my dangling equipment, cameras, tripods, and knapsack bag to a guide, I simply sat down on the first rock and eased myself over and down the second. I was too fearful of slipping off the edge into the black beyond to look. My knees were slightly damp. Several of the guides slipped down behind me, but I was not to hear a 'ka-plunk' behind me; a yell of surprise followed by general laughter, signifying that somebody had slipped. We saw one bat only in the cave and this whistled past my ear grazing its teeth in rage. It was the first and probably last once, more, we all sat down for a much needed rest, while the guides were gorging themselves with the cenote' water, I did a little drawing of the cenote and surroundings. I also made a point to remember the view near to the entrance of the chamber. The dark gloom of enormous stalactites outlined against the bright light and green around the corner, and the other more subdued pillars peering out of the light.

Then as we advanced to the cenote, the beauty of light filtered through the cave—beautiful beyond description. The rock formations were taken in the cave; but to do a proper job of such a huge thing as this cave was not great. At the end of the other corridor we emerged into a third enormous gallery which was characterized by both stalactites and stalagmites joined, which I call the "Temple of Columns." Near the entrance of this huge gallery was a large bowl supported by four legs the hollowed out of stone, just as the ancient Mayan inhabitants of the cave had left it.

How would you like to drive from on the entire new route and Buffalo to New York City can probably be made in ten hours or so (don't quote us, we're not policies).

A link from Buffalo to Pennsylvania line, near Erie, is already under construction and it will connect with a spur from the Ohio Turnpike near Cleveland, which will make the New York Thruway an alternate to the Pennsylvania Turnpike in the New York-Chicago marathon.

The New York Thruway is also an excellent way of getting from the east to Detroit by way of Niagara Falls and the Canadian border and using southern Ontario's new Hamilton Highway.

A toll road from Oklahoma City to Tulsa, opened a few years ago, eventually will run to the Missouri state line, near where Arkansas and Kansas also come close to intersecting. Nothing yet planned from there to Chicago, but from St. Louis through southern Illinois, southern Indiana and central Ohio, proposed toll roads will eventually go up to Cleveland.

Finally, the Kansas-Oklahoma line north of Oklahoma City a turnpike to Kansas City already is under construction. Only 250 miles away from the Nebraska-Iowa line at Omaha and 500 miles through Iowa from Illinois to Chicago.

The spectacular Blue Ridge Skyway between Virginia and West Virginia will become a link in a major north-south superhighway between North Carolina and Virginia to the Pennsylvania line just north of Harrisburg. The Skyway route from Pittsburgh is planned to the Ohio Turnpike will pick up the New York Thruway link.

EASE IN THE EAST

Much has already been done about the knotty New York to Florida jam. Baltimore and Washington, D.C., are linked by the Baltimore Turnpike and improved roads through Maryland and Delaware to Wilmington.

A fine expressway has also eliminated the bottleneck from New York to Baltimore to Washington, which was probably the most hazardous section of the old Route 1 before there was an alternate. The Pennsylvania states also have been considering expressway plans to speed the ever-increasing Florida traffic flow.

Connecticut and Massachusetts have already built toll roads, and Maine is working on one from its southwest corner straight to the Canada. Even now you can travel four-lane most of the way from Portland to Boston.

With more than 85 per cent of all vacation travel already being done by motor auto, the states appear to be moving wisely and well to-wards making driving as safe, speedy, comfortable, and safe for all concerned. And you'll be able to get logical use out of that extra horsepower in the new cars after all.

A Good Book Is a Good Companion

On a weekend everyone likes some kind of entertainment. There is the radio, the television or the movies. Then, there is the choice to listen to music all evening or watch TV, but the latest show you might have seen already. So, what else is there to do? Why not spend evening with a good book-companion? I am not talking about reading a party, the companion I am thinking of is a book.

Books can take you places which you never had a chance to see. Books will tell you the most fascinating stories about people and famous people, how they made great discoveries, how they came to some remarkable ideas or how some poor fellow made a fortune. Sitting in my armchair I have travelled to the farthest corner of the globe. What a good time did I have in Tibet. Through books in the South Seas! With Emile Zola I have been down in the coal-mines. Somerset Maugham introduced me to the most unusual people whom I have met in my life, but otherwise. They became my friends and I learned to like and appreciate them. What is most important, they will stay with me as long as I live.

Which book would you like to read this evening?

For men I would recommend "A Night To Remember" by Walter Lord, recently published by Henry Holt and Company, price $3.75.

This book belongs to the best sellers and tells the dramatic story of the Titanic disaster in 1912. The sinking of the Titanic. When the Titanic left Southampton it was "unsinkable." A few days later in a cold April night it struck an iceberg during the Atlantic Ocean carrying 1,502 passengers to their death. Only seven-teen more than twenty eight years with survivors and relatives of the victims.

For ladies I selected "Gift From the Sea" by Anne Morrow Lindbergh, published by Pantheon Books Inc., price $3.00.

Anne Morrow Lindbergh speaks about every-day's problems in the life of a woman about the restlessness of the heart, conflicts that arise and how to overcome them. She writes: "Woman today is still searching. We are told that we have more freedom, but still ignorant of what will satisfy them. With our garnered free time, we are more apt to drain our creative springs than to refill them . . ."

For youngsters (especially studying French) I like "Le Petit Chose" by Richard Armour, published by McGraw-Hill Book Co. Inc., price $3.20.

The author dedicated this book to history students and to those teachers who have for generations made each other equally unhappy. The book is a delightful but humorously written that they will forget most of what they learned for a little while. The story begins with the cavemen and ends with the present time. Every historical events, no dates to remember, no boring discussions but a lively picture of human progress and perhaps a help for the next history exams.

The book answers many questions. Why did most of the French kings called Louis? Why ordered Mussolini everybody to wear a black shirt? (N. M.)

This and That

BY HARRIET STEVENS

"Mr. Robert Saunders was attending a conference at Washington, on April 30, 1932, as one of three speakers brought in by Mr. Lawrence Seaway Aluminum. While one of the speakers was called away, he turned toward Mr. Saunders and said "You know, Bob, I'm going to Ottawa, and this St. Lawrence Seaway from Canada," he said, "is the best idea."

When Mr. Saunders asked him if he really believed that, the American official replied, "of course." Mr. Saunders is now the chairman of Ontario Hydro that Canada paid taxes to Knight's and will be named at the meeting from an official, especially when in 1953 the people in Ontario voted overwhelmingly then the largest users of electricity to pay more.

The following scale is illuminating: Per capita consumption in 1953 was as follows: Canada 4,279 kilowatt hours, Ontario 4,620 kilowatt hours, United States 4,807 kilowatt hours. United Kingdom 1,300 kilowatt hours. In June of 1954, Mr. Saunders was appointed to Milwaukee, where he made an address, and from there he called cases to Britain but was actually owned by England.

Girl Guides' Work Does Much To Promote Christian Living

Editor's note: In view of the increasing interest in Girl Guide work in the city, the editor has asked Mrs. G. A. Bradford to write a short history of Girl Guide activities. Mrs. Bradford and the executive members of the organization have devoted time to promoting Girl Guide work in Belleville.

By DORIS BRADFORD

Lord Baden-Powell, soldier, author, and artist, whose early love and knowledge of the out-doors served him well in his military career in Africa during the Boer War, believed that young boys would achieve greater understanding and a happier life as adults if they developed an appreciation and love of nature in their youth. Through books and articles Baden-Powell gave his knowledge of scouting to the youth of England, and then like chaff blown before the wind, the association was allowed 25 per cent of the proceeds. The book sold in the most tickets received a prize.

MONEY RAISING PROJECTS

The Guides themselves raised money for their own needs. At the Ontario Intelligencer dated December 30, 1916, it was reported "Earning money by rummage sales; selling papers; delivering parcels; and other odd jobs" the Guides were able to care for their needs. Also they enjoyed camping each week (80 pounds of beef were distributed), potatoes, onions, carrots, turnips, butter, bread, candy, nuts, fruit, toys and clothing."

ESTABLISHMENT MEETING

There was no record of council meeting from 1941-46 but in 1947 Mrs. Sparling, wife of Rev. Sparling of Christ church, was organized, and through his efforts Mrs. Bowen, wife of Rev. Bowen from Kingston, came to Belleville to arrange for an organization meeting. Representatives from most ladies' organizations in the city were present. Mrs. Armour was chosen by Mr. Sparling and Mrs. Bowen as officer was nominated for the new local Guide Association.

Since that time increased interest of adults has encouraged an active organization. Guiding and Brownie work gradually reached its highest peak from 1951-53, when Mrs. R. A. Armour was first division commissioner and later district commissioner.

Mrs. Stothers W.A. E.B. Elects 1956 Officers

The annual meeting of the Evening Branch of the W. A. Thomas Hall was held with Mrs. W. E. Jones in the chair. The reports of the local activities were evidence of a successful year's work.

The following slate of officers was elected for the coming year:

President, Mrs. Jones; past president, Mrs. M. Smith; secretary, Mrs. A. Abey; treasurer, Mrs. Hurst; assistant secretaries, Miss Lois Sarnell, Mrs. W. E. Jones; literature secretary, Mrs. Lillian Hartley; flower secretary, Mrs. Fenn; card secretary, Mrs. Hurst; assistant secretary, Mrs. Hurst.

The ladies of the Evening Branch joined the Dorcas group of the senior branch on Friday for the exchange of colored pictures of the Rev. Mr. McConnell's recent trip to the Old Country. The variety of the subjects, the skill of the photographer, the excellent Rev. Mr. McConnell's descriptions and comments on their tour of parts of Scotland, Belgium, France and Ireland, and the fact that many of the pictures were of places near or at the former homes of many of the Auxiliary members combined to make this an hour of more than usual pleasure.

Following the pictures the Senior Branch entertained Mr. and Mrs. McConnell and the ladies at a delightful informal potluck supper and a happy evening ended with a sing-song.

USING INFORMALS TO REPLY TO INFORMAL INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

As a Christmas present I received a box of informals, with my name and address on the "cover page." I know that various kinds of invitations are written on these, but may I also properly reply to invitations on the informals? If so, how? For example, replying to an invitation to a Sunday evening buffet party? — Mrs. B.

Yes, you may correctly use your informals to reply to invitations written on letters or indeed to other informal invitations. For example, when accepting, write:

I'm delighted to accept!
Sunday, February 12, at 7
Or, to regret:
I'm so sorry I can't come—
I'll be out-of-town that week-end
Thank you for asking me!
Or it's a nice idea to write a friendly little note on the inside page or pages of your informals: Dear Betty,

You and Phil are so kind to ask me to come to your buffet supper on Sunday, February 12th. I'm so happy to accept, and I'll be ringing your bell at 7 o'clock. Thank you!

Devotedly,
Mina

INCORRECT FORM OF ENVELOPE-ADDRESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow, and my son, 36 years old, lives with me. Today we received an invitation to dinner, from a very charming woman and her husband. We have met quite a few times at our church and at the homes of mutual friends. We were very delighted at their gesture of hospitality to us. But the envelopment the envelope of the note was addressed to "Mrs. Mary Smith and Son." To me the form "Mrs. Mary Smith" is always distressing, and I have never, and used that form my name, always using "Mrs. John Smith," but apparently she has heard me called "Mary" a n d thinks a widow should use her first name with the "Mrs." And what about " . . . and Son" — is that a correct form of address for a guest of an invitation? —Reader

Her form of the name on the envelope is indeed wrong on two counts: (1) She should have written "Mrs. John Smith," the correct form of name for a widow, And (2) she should not have used the word "and Son." Her note of invitation to dinner should have been addressed to you, and you should then have included your son in the invitation, for example, like this: "My husband and I would like very much to have you and your son dine with us on — etc.

DON'T SEEM TO "EXPECT" THE INTRODUCTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am never certain as to what to do in this circumstance: I am walking with a friend and we meet someone who stops to speak to my friend, someone whom I don't know. What, exactly, should I do? I'm always so afraid that I will seem to expect an introduction. — Cathy Walk slowly on while they hold their brief (I hope) conversation. Don't "hang back" awkwardly, as if you'd like to be introduced. If the third person is invited to join you and your friend, or if there is any other reason for an introduction, they can overtake you and the introduction is then made. In the meantime you will not have given the impression that you "expected" the introduction.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENTS FOR SECOND BABY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to send announcements of the birth of a second baby, as it is for the birth of the first baby? — Mother-to-be Certainly! Why not?

CUTTING THE CAKE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

After the bride and groom cut their first slice of the wedding cake and have shared it with each other, who then finishes cutting and serving the cake for the rest of the guests? — E.H.

A cater's assistant may cut and serve the rest of the cake. Or very often a relative or friend is asked to take on this pleasant responsibility; if it is a large cake, several relatives or friends may be asked and they take turns.

How To Look Your Best

Whether too tall or too short, you can't overemphasize good posture and good grooming, if you want a pretty picture.

By JEANNE D'ARCY

Everybody has beauty woes — can easily combine and form lines The tall, lean lady and the short, of soil in the neck's indentations. plump one, too. One towers, the Hands are always an index other seems to be standing in a whether they're long and slender hole. Either way, what can a girl or short and plump. Make sure do? you use a nail brush on them daily

LIKE A QUEEN

Whichever your problem, we suggest you'll look better if you carry yourself like a queen. Stand tall. Practice this daily exercise for tall girls who tend to slump down to the height they'd like to be. As a result, they begin to resemble a question mark. It's not pretty. For the shorties, standing straight will make them appear an inch or two higher up in the world than they really are.

Both types should pay extra attention to grooming. If they're spotlessly turned out, nobody will notice the long or short of their stature.

The daily bath is a basic. But instead of being general, let's go into the particulars.

ABOUT NECK CARE

First, let's consider neck-washing. The girl with the long, swanlike neck should give it the same hand-and-water care she gives her whole face when she's at the sink. And her neck should be held high. The same is true for the girl with the short neck. She should take extra pains with washing, because perspiration and dust and manicure them once a week.

Feet can be sore spots to tall and short misses. Finding smart shoes to fit roomy long or very small feet may pose a problem. Don't settle for handsome shoes if they don't fit properly. Watch out for corns and calluses. Remember that a cooler foot bath will add to your comfort.

HAIR CARE AND COIFFURES

Hair should be shining bright. This means a shampoo at least once a week.

Have an expert style your coiffure. Contrary to general opinion, short hairdos don't make a tall girl look taller. They're usually becoming. It's long, long locks that give a face that sad, droopy air. Choose the coiffure that flatters you most, and don't worry about height.

If you're short, avoid the too-cute, curly coiffure. Concentrate on simple lines, with hair drawn back and up. You can achieve the illusion of height with the proper hairdo.

Whatever your size or shape, keep well groomed and your appearance is bound to be attractive.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT SHOULD BE POSSIBLE FOR YOU TO GET A DIVORCE

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Five years ago, when my husband was in Texas in Air Force, I could not take my little boy, then 4, and go to join him, as I was expecting another child shortly. Instead, my husband was to come home when the baby was born and take all of us back with him when the baby was old enough to travel.

But instead of coming home, he wrote me a letter asking me to sue him for divorce. He said he knew neither his parents nor I would approve this things he had been doing—drinking, gambling, lost all the money he had saved and got a 17-year-old girl in trouble. The reason he wanted a divorce was so he could marry this girl.

I wrote and told him I would neither sue him nor give him a divorce, So then he sued me, saying that I had refused to come and live with him. His parents got me a lawyer who proved that everything my husband said was false, and his suit was thrown out of court. He has never written to any of us since then, except to send his parents three announcements of babies born to him and this girl. His parents are very good to the children and I. They send my father-in-law told me that, when he was gone, his son's share of what he has, will go to my boy. They do not want me to get a divorce, though.

Now that the allotment—the government suddenly stopped. I found out that my husband had been discharged from the Air Force. I swore out a warrent for him, but was told they didn't know where to start hunting for him. So I had to go on Public Assistance in order to get my divorce! Quite two children, and have just $64 a month to do everything on.

Now I would like to get a divorce, because I am married, and I think he would go with me if I had the money. I have my sisters and brothers here to see whether I am interested in me and my children. He has been very

District Editor of Cornwall Paper Completing 65 Years in Trade

By GORDON MESLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP)—A silver haired editor who this summer will complete 65 years in the newspaper business is not too impressed because a modern office building is to be erected at Cornwall's main intersection.

"Why all the fuss?" commented George Wilson on the announcement that the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority will occupy the new offices. "I remember when there was a livery stable on that site."

Now district editor of The Standard - Freeholder, this city's first and only daily newspaper, Mr. Wilson's first regular job was as a printer's devil on The Weekly Standard.

WORKS FULL WEEK

At 82 he still works six days a week and frequently puts in a few hours on Sunday.

The livery stable long ago was replaced by the Cornwall post office. When this was demolished last year the cornerstone was found to contain copies of newspapers. Mr. Wilson helped publish one of those newspapers.

Today the veteran editor writes a weekly column, "Down The Lane" which deals with local news events and personalities of 50 years and more ago. He has been writing the column, a Saturday feature, since 1932.

As a red-haired youngster, he recalls that he used to carry a pail of milk to one of the printery customers while on the way to work.

Still spry, he now walks to the newspaper office each morning before most members of the editorial staff are on the job.

WRITES IN LONGHAND

But despite his years of reporting and editing, he has never used a typewriter.

Every line of copy he has written for publication, and there have been millions of them, has been written in longhand. His neat and legible script familiar to everyone in the office and departments.

Mr. Wilson was weaned in the newspaper business in the days when type was set by hand and the flat-bed press driven by steam power.

He probably would not admit it, but before Mr. Wilson left the back shop to move into editorial department work, he gained a reputation as one of the fastest hand setters in Ontario.

When the two Cornwall weeklies, The Standard and The Freeholder, were united under one owner in 1932, he went along to become district editor in charge of 39 correspondents and contributed news from throughout the area.

His friends describe the genial editor as "a fabulous old man." He enjoys the quip "are you still alive?" from old friends, many of whom have worked with Mr. Wilson at some time or other in his long career.

C. J. McTavish, now secretary-treasurer of the newspaper and a former editor, said this about Mr. Wilson:

"George Wilson has given to his life work a loyalty and devotion of which few men are capable. The paper has been second in his affections only to his wife and family. No task has been too onerous, no sacrifice too great, if he believed it to be in the interests of his newspaper. Such friendship is a thing to be treasured."

Mr. Wilson once was Cornwall's fire-alarm telegraph operator. He won the title at the old rink for cutting the most spectacular capers on the spinning wheels. He was a star at roller-skating broomball.

And he once played in the Cornwall city band. He says his main claim to shining for fame was to get into lacrosse and hockey games gratis.

Mr. Wilson has been correspondent for the Montreal Gazette for about 45 years. He has also been correspondent for the Ottawa Journal, the old Ottawa Free Press, the Montreal Witness, the Montreal Standard and the Watertown, N.Y., Times.

Garden Notes

Storing Fruits and Vegetables

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

If you have a garden you must have wished for a storage unit in your basement. Even if you have no garden, you are going to have tables in laundry iois is a saving of money.

Building a storage room would be a good project for the winter. It has many uses.

The aim of all storage equipment is to control the temperature and relative humidity of the air in the storage room. The average basement temperature is too high, and the air is also too dry to keep food in good condition for the required time. The best temperature for storage for most fruits and vegetables has been found to be 30 to 40 degrees F.

Decide upon the size of the room and do allow space for plant bulbs and tubers if you grow flowers. The room will need at least one window and it should be on a shaded wall. Choose a north wall if possible.

Wooden construction is good if you use a "moisture barrier. The construction must be tight enough to prevent air moving in or out of the room.—F.

Insulation is provided by using loose filling material as shavings, sawdust, rock wool and compressed peat. Where such material is used 20 to 40 pounds of hydrated lime is mixed with a yard of baled shavings to make it vermin and rodent proof. It also acts to keep the filling dry.

Board type insulation is provided by sheets of rigid insulation fibre board. This is used inside and outside the studding.

A caulking material is used where ceiling and sidewalls join. This prevents heat leaks and moisture absorbing into the insulating material. If the basement is warm, more insulation is needed than a cool basement.

DOOR AIR

Ventilation is needed to bring in cool air. If a window is used it can be hung on pivots which will allow the top and bottom to open at the same time. Open half of the top window by painting the glass black. Cool air can also be carried down the floor level by building a cool air duct. Use the window to carry off the warm air from the upper area of the room. Screen the duct opening to keep out rodents and insects.

Before stocking the storage room the ventilation system should be opened. The evening before is the best time to have the room ready at night. Bring in the food to be stored early in the morning, while it is still cool, and before it has absorbed day-time heat from outdoors.

Watch the latter and outdoor temperatures to regulate the degrees of heat in the storage room. In the fall, generally speaking, the vent should be open at night and closed in the day time. During the winter daytime ventilation is practiced. In cold weather the outside air may provide enough cold to keep the temperatures at the right degree.

Fruit and vegetables to be stored should be of the best quality. Bruised, cut frosted or otherwise damaged material should be discarded as it will soon become infected and will spoil other material.

KEEP BEETS FIRM

Certain varieties of apples, and pears keep better than others and these varieties should be chosen when ever possible. Potatoes, squash, beets, carrots, celery and cabbage, either home - grown or bought on the fall market, will help to keep the winter food bills down—if properly stored in the basement storage room.

The Department of Agriculture has a good bulletin — publication 743—on "Construction and operation of home storage for fruits and vegetables."

You can buy lily-of-the-valley pips, specially prepared to bloom indoors, from your florist. In a large flower pan, or wide pot sow six to 10 morning - glory seeds. Pinch out the center when the third set of leaves have formed and keep pinching the plants back to form compact plants. They will bloom in four to six weeks. French marigolds, (the dwarf types), will bloom in three weeks. Nasturtiums will bloom indoors also.

MISSION BAND

The first meeting of the Alice Taylor Memorial Mission Band in 1956 was held recently in the church basement, with ten members and three visitors present.

The new officers appointed, Betty Lawer, vice president, Velma Vanderwater; treasurer, Linda Osterhout; secretary, Beverley Hicks. After quiet music played by Carol Ann Lawer, singing the Mission Band hymn,

"Jesus calls us o'er the tumult
And hymn, came to the platform.
Mrs. Osterhout presiding with Mrs. Lawer asked the following questions of the new and retiring officers of the Mission Band, will you try to be present at each meeting? Will you try to do whatever is asked of you cheerfully and happily? Will you bring a gift and would like them to do to you?

All answered in unison with God's help to do my best in the office that has been given me."

Mrs. Lawer then asked other members: "Will you all help your new officers to have happy, successful meetings by taking your share in the work of your Mission Band?" All answered "We will." All stood and repeated the Mission Band benediction. The meeting was then closed with a short prayer.

Following the business Mrs. Gilson Hubble receiving offering, a few favorite hymns were sung and the meeting dismissed.

The next meeting will be on January 25th, members are reminded to bring pictures for scrap book.

Mid-Canada Warning Line Gets Equipment

Radio equipment is loaded in a Sikorsky skyhook helicopter at Knob Lake, one of the Mid-Canada line will stand. The RCAF helicopter is being flown in equipment to test for a suitable signal and this accomplished, they move on to another location, leaving the tattered flag as mute evidence that a detection unit will take form there. Only faint traces of snow had fallen when this photo was taken. (National Defence Photo).

'Copters Playing Major Role In Building Radar Stations

(By CPL. DARREL EAGLES, RCAF)

KNOB LAKE, P.Q. — "Knob Lake Radio, this is Chopper two zero — two miles north — request traffic and clearance to land."

The voice was that of Flying Officer M. W. (Milt) Sills, 33, of Toronto, reporting to the radio shack at Knob Lake, 700 miles north-east of Montreal. P/O Sills was returning from one of the many daily flights he and other pilots of the RCAF's No. 108 Communications Flight have been making seven days a week to help build the Mid-Canada Early Warning Line.

Ferrying men and material to desolate hill tops, uncharted a few years ago, the helicopter is saving precious time, the value incalculable, in the job of stringing a band of detection stations across Canada's middle.

They transport men and tons of material over mountainous terrain north of the tree line that is covered with soft spongy muskeg or just bare rock in summer, and deep snow during the whiter months. The multitude of lakes, rives and streams to be hard to visualize until seen. No other form of transportation except the helicopter could perform in this rugged region. Hordes of mosquitoes and black flies in the summer and 50 below zero winter temperatures have played operations from the start.

To begin the job, estimated to cost $170,000,000, the RCAF, 408 Photographic Squadron, Rockcliffe, Ont., and civilian photographers photographed a 50-mile area almost from coast to coast. Extremely accurate maps showing the terrain hill and lake were then printed at a scale of one mile to the inch.

PICKED HILL SITES

Operation Rock Top One then started. This consisted of picking out hill top sites for positioning the actual detection equipment and lake-head supply depots suitable for amphibious aircraft operations in summer or ski-equipped planes in the winter. Over these sites were to be used for supply aircraft carrying in cargoes from places like Knob Lake, RCAF and Bell Telephone Co. engineers were landed on the frozen lakes during the winter. They checked the thickness of the ice and the depth of the water to make sure the sites would serve air transport purposes.

Flying Officer J. C. Smith, 33, of Winnipeg, commanding the 108 Communications Flight detachment at Knob Lake, and Sergeant G. W. Durham, 33, of Toronto, went along as helicopter experts to select suitable landing sites for the "choppers".

COPTERS MOVED MATERIAL

Materials were then flown into the lake-head sites by civilian aircraft under the direction of the Bell Telephone (the site management contractor) for the construction of camps at the lakes and on the hill-tops. It took three and a half tons of material and three to four days to build each lake-head site. On the average it required eight hours flying time and 20 round trips to transport material from the lakes to the hill sites by helicopter.

Barrels of diesel oil for fuel were carried in slings under each helicopter, three at a time. Each of these sling loads weighed 1,325 pounds. As soon as the lake camps were completed the helicopters were used to check the proposed detection sites.

Meanwhile supplies were constantly being flown into the lake sites to build up the caches for the summer's operations. Canso amphibian aircraft were used to transport gas and oil. The wing tanks of the Canso's were loaded to capacity that especially with gas that was emptied into gas barrels at the lakes. The heavy work of loading and unloading fuel drums was made easier and this method served as a safety measure. In case of emergency the fuel could easily be jettisoned from the aircraft's wing tanks.

CARRY CREWS TO SITES

The helicopters have been flying in men, generators, radio masts and radio equipment from the lakes to the rugged hills. A second 'copter carries a crew to set-up and test the equipment. When this had already been constructed on the hills, so if weather delayed the transporting of a crew and radio equipment to the next site, they merely tried their hand at light house-keeping until a helicopter could get to them.

The next phase, to be carried out this winter, consists of transporting several hundred tons of building material and equipment to each lake site, where the helicopters of No. 108 Communications Flight will lift it to the hill tops for the permanent construction of a station.

No. 108 Communications Flight, a unit of Air Transport Command, is based at Bagotville, P.Q., and is slated to move to Rockcliffe, outside Ottawa. The pilots, however, have seldom been at the home base during 1955. The men find their work interesting with a definite sense of accomplishment seen in the immediate results of their work. The only disadvantage is the temporary separation from their families.

One cheery crewman philosophized along these lines: "One advantage of being away on detachment is that the family really appreciates their old Pop when he gets home."

Manitoba's Highway Safety Program Bringing Results

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Bob Baillie is fast becoming Canada's best-known back-seat driver. As Manitoba's registrar of motor vehicles and the man behind the province's highway safety program, he is slowly nagging death and destruction out from behind the steering wheel.

The success of the five-year-old program is being watched in both Canada and the United States. New Brunswick has already adopted a similar scheme. Ontario is now studying its operation and traffic safety experts in many states are keeping tab on the results of the program.

Combining persuasion, strict enforcement and streamlined administrative techniques, Mr. Baillie and his staff have given Manitoba a safety program which the registrar describes as "astounding" and "fabulous."

BACKED BY STATISTICS

Mr. Baillie attributes the decrease in the number of traffic accidents and traffic fatalities during the last five years to his program. Statistics appear to back up his claim.

In Winnipeg, centre of the program, the total number of accidents dropped last year to 5,344 from 5,980 in 1954. Fatal accidents decreased by four, from 17 to 13, and accidents involving no-fatal injuries from 1,054 to 951.

Within the last five months the total number of accidents showed a 14.5 per cent drop and the number of accidents involving non-fatal injuries dropped 20.7 per cent.

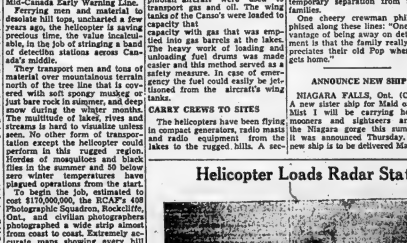
Key to the program is the driver-point, or demerit system and the driver - improvement clinic. The adoption of techniques devised by the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators.

The point system is made possible by the introduction of a permanent driving license number.

When a driver is involved in an accident or convicted under the Highway Traffic Act his licence number is noted. If it is a first offence a card is made out and filed in the service branch. On this card is listed the nature of the offence and the demerits.

Traffic marks vary with the degree of the offence. Two marks are given for speeding, six for dangerous driving and 10 for major offences, such as drunken driving, hit-and-run, etc. Three points are given for an accident followed by a conviction, two for a chargeable accident, and one for a non-chargeable accident.

Within a few days following the first offence the motorist is notified that the driver improvement clinic is keeping a record of all his convictions, violations and accidents. He is informed that drivers who accumulate a certain number of demerit points will be examined with a view to improving their driving record. If no improvement is shown their licences are suspended.



A motorist is allowed to accumulate six points before he is notified that his licence is suspended. Before he must take a driving test before a certain date under threat of suspension.

If he passes the test the driver is placed on probation for 12 months. However, if during the probation period he receives a further conviction or is involved in a chargeable accident, his licence is automatically suspended, generally for one month.

But if the probation period is free of incident the driver's demerits are gradually reduced until, through maintaining good driving habits, his record is clean.

New Railway Line Will Open Vast Resources in North Que.

Canadian Press Correspondent

AMOS, Que. (CP)—A vast new empire of natural resources is being opened up by a railway stretching from the mineral-rich Abitibi district to a once isolated and uninhabited area of northern Quebec.

The 331-mile railway is still one to two years away from completion but already there is talk of the resources it will make accessible—new mines, new farm lands for colonists, new sources of power, and extensive pulpwood forests.

The Canadian National Railways line will run northeast from Beattyville, in the northwestern Quebec district of Abitibi, to the Chibougamau mining centre in north central Quebec. From there it will swing southeast to join the existing CNR line at St. Felicien, near Lake St. John.

TAPS MINING AREA

In effect, the railway will form a belt line linking Quebec and Ontario points with a 30,000-square mile area where deposits of gold, copper and iron ore have already been found.

Traffic from Chibougamau to Quebec and the east will move via St. Felicien. In the opposite direction, traffic will go from Chibougamau through Beattyville to Barraute, Que., where it will link with the CNR's trans-continental line.

Building of the railway began in 1953 when the CNR completed a 40-mile branch line from Barraute through a timber-rich area stretching to Beattyville.

In 1954 Parliament authorized extension of the line another 150 miles from Beattyville to Chibougamau where copper and gold mines now are in production and where approximately 120 companies are interested in various development phases of the area.

In 1955, Eastern Smelting and Refining Company announced it would establish a copper and nickel refinery in an old newsprint mill at Chicoutimi, Que.

EXTENSION PRESSED

In the wake of that announcement le Conseil d'Orientation du Saguenay-Lac St. Jean, a group interested in industrial development, pressed the federal government for extension of the railway 133 miles east from Chibougamau to St. Felicien.

The government agreed and work now is progressing from west to east and from east to west. The Chibougamau-Beattyville link may be completed by early 1957. The Chibougamau to St. Felicien line is expected to be finished in 1958.

Cost of the railway has been estimated by the CNR at $35,000,000.

Two companies were awarded contracts for construction of the 159-mile line from Beattyville to Chibougamau. La Societe d'Entreprises Generales Llee. of Amos, headed by Edouard Pare, was awarded the contract for the first 70 miles and the Albert Lemieux Company of Montreal for the remaining 90 miles. Approximately 50 miles of rail have been laid, with work progressing at the rate of a mile a day once the roadbed has been formed.

A two-span steel bridge across the Bell river has been completed and another will be placed across the O'Sullivan river next spring.

Contract for wood-cutting along the 159-mile-right-of-way has been let to J. E. Lelel, Senneterre, Que.

PLENTY OF PULPWOOD

Pulpwood resources are such that there is speculation newsprint mills will be established in the area when the railway is completed.

Contract for 66 miles of the 133-mile link between Chibougamau and St. Felicien has been awarded to McNamara Construction Company and Therrien Construction Company. No contract has been awarded for the remaining 67 miles.

Pending completion of the railway the bulk of traffic into Chibougamau moves over a provincial government highway built from St. Felicien in 1949.

When the railway is completed, ores from Chibougamau mines will move to Noranda, Que., Montreal and Chicoutimi for processing.

Some predict that eventually the railway will be extended to join the line that now runs from Seyfles to Schefferville in the iron-rich region of Ungava.

This would provide additional access to an area whose resources, in the words of experienced miners have only been scratched.

10 Deputy Reeves of Grey County Council Challenged by Paper

OWEN SOUND (CP) — The weekly Durham Chronicle says 10 of Grey county council's 41 members may have been elected invalidly and challenges them to prove their right to sit. All are deputy reeves.

The weekly says: "A preliminary investigation made by The Chronicle indicates 10 men are occupying county council seats on the basis of false records filed as true voters lists."

It named them as Wilfred Daly, Egremont; Joseph Radley, Artemesia; Neil Campbell, Proton; Joseph Wright, Osprey; Harold Holding, Derby; C. H. Thompson, Euphrasia; Lyall McInnis, Holland; Harry Porter, Keppel; Everitt Reid, St. Vincent and Ivan Aitcheson, Holland.

The paper calls upon "all 10 of these men to either refute the charges or resign from Grey county council."

It says section 54 of the Ontario Municipal Act "provides that a township is entitled to a deputy reeve where it has more than 1,000 municipal electors. The same section goes on to say that a wife cannot be counted unless listed as an owner nor can a husband."

Durham had approximately 1,300 municipal electors but only 867 were counted for county purposes because most properties were registered in the name of the husband only. Durham had a population of 1,905.

Also, some townships had not filed their voters' lists with the county clerk in the prescribed time.

"The town or township clerk is required by law to file a sworn certificate with the county clerk prior to the annual nominations. When we checked with the county clerk, Mrs. Audrey Rutherford, at that time last December only 13 of the 23 clerks had complied," the story says.

Warden Carman Werry said today he does not intend to discuss the matter in the council, which meets today, unless it is raised by a member as new business.

Charges Govt. Refused to Back Plane Project

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government rejected the offer of Canadair Limited to build a new plane which the company says has considerable potential as a military transport for use in Canada.

J. Geoffrey Notman, Canadair's president, said Friday that if the government had shown some interest, the project could have been undertaken with very little cost to Canada and yet with good chances of making export sales.

He told the Gordon economic commission the Canadair lost the chance of building that particular plane because, since the company was turned down by the federal government, an unnamed foreign power decided to support production in its own country.

Mr. Notman brought up the case as he argued that a long-range production program was vital to the Canadian industry's survival.

Mr. Notman's brief was one of several heard by the five-man commission as it prepared to wind up its Montreal sittings and move to Toronto where it will begin two weeks of hearings Monday.

While the commission continued to hear a lot about aircraft, it also got some startling information from the builders of the big, durable railway freight cars. They disclosed they were toying with the idea of building the cars just a little less durable to help boost sales.

The industry's production prospects were not dull, with the railways required only about 8,500 new cars a year to replace worn-out stock and meet traffic expansion. That required only about 50 per cent of the industry's production capacity.

But it could be, said A. P. Shearwood, chairman of National Steel Car Corporation, "that the combination of the use of new materials, the conception of building cars to wear out quickly plus designing the product to meet the view of shippers might radically change the whole market in the next 10 to 20 years to something far above the 8,500 cars mentioned."

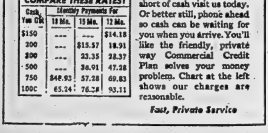
The question of how to start this column simply answered itself. We decided to begin at the beginning and write about the origin of the game.

It all began in 1910 when Ontario's own "Tommy" Ryan took it on himself to break away from the conventional ten-pin game which was then firmly established.

At the time "Tommy" was operating the Toronto Bowling Club, and he was experimenting with variations of the game. He had some ten-pin scores down on slate, devised some rules and the 5 pin game was born.



In the beginning players were more enthusiastic than skillful. 150 was considered a high average. It was not until 1918 that the first score of over 200 was recorded. As most bowlers know, the first perfect game was bowled in 1921 by the outstanding late Bill Bromfield.

Through the initiative and enthusiasm of bowling alley operators and Bowling Associations the game has grown from these simple beginnings to its present status with over 600,000 bowlers in the Province of Ontario alone. In fact there is scarcely a centre of population today that does not have a bowling alley.

Boston Bruins Turn Grizzly; Chihawks Tease 'Em, Get Slapped Down 3-0

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

GO—DUTCHIES — GO!

Much has been written about the puck-chasing ability of the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, Canada's Olympic representatives. Some writers have proclaimed the Dutchies to be the finest team ever to represent Canada in a world championship series. Others disagree. One reporter claims the Dutchies are not to be compared with the former Turnote Granites.

That's, like trying to prove that Jack Dempsey could have whipped Joe Louis.

There are some who believe the Penticton V's who whomped the Russians 5-0 to bring back the world's puck title to Canada, are a much better squad than the Dutchies. Better take off your coat and don the knuckle-busters if you dare breathe such a thing down around Kitchener way.

Some out-and-out optimists believe that the Dutchies will waltz through the European opposition with consummate ease and then "take" the Russians with the not-too-nerve-wracking effort that a well-known northern general captured an equally well-known southern city reputed for its good-looking gals and hams.

The greater part of these predictions are based on the performance of the Russians last year. The Soviet athletic were a heavy beaten crew at that time. However, it should be recalled that Russia teaches and expects its athletes to win or else. And win means the top, not second or third. It is therefore conceivable that the Reds have profited by their bitter experience with the Canadians last year — and have gone to no small measure to vindicate Russian hockey honor.

Opinions in British differ. So-called hockey experts over there have come up with the predictions that the road to the world title will not be the beer-and-darts the Canadians think it will. Others say the Canucks should have little trouble knocking off the European opposition and retaining the title for Canada.

As a matter of fact some pick the Czecho-Slovakians over the Moscovites for the main opposition to Canada. These opinions are based mainly on the showing put forth by British hockey teams, which are not supposed to be better than average intermediate "A" standard over here and which were beaten by both Czechs and Russians.

And one for the book is the opinion of one Jolly Jawn Adams, manager of the Detroit Red Wings, National Hockey League team, reputed to be one of the world's hockey-wise men extant. Mr. Adams feels the United States has an excellent chance of reaching the finals. Could be possibly be thinking of smoking Howe, Lindsay and Kelly into the Yankee ranks? Windsor hockey people who have seen the American Olympic crew perform say there is no comparison between it and the Canadian senior "A" squads.

All these predictions on what the Dutchies will do to the foreign countries are splendid for Canadian morale. But what we need not worry about are championships. Keep your chins, especially the Russ and Czechs, can hardly be classified as stupid. They may in some ways, but not by a dangsite when it comes to athletics of any sort. You can bet your grampappy's sister teeth both Czechs and Russ learned a lot from their experience with the Penticton V's and have gone to no little effort to perfect their games against the Canadians.

We firmly believe the Dutchies will come through. But we have always been a firm believer in the old sports adage that a hockey game is never won until the final whistle blows, come what may. And that is the way it will be in the Olympics.

It is nice to read comments like those of Jack (Windsor Star) Dulmage, who thinks "there isn't the slightest reason why the Dutchmen shouldn't get past Russia, Czecho-Slovakia and the United States with comparative ease. There is more hockey and top-level competitive experience on the K-W club than the Russians could ever scrape up in 100 years of clobbering European teams. When the spectators in Italy get a load of Laufman, Theberge, Schnoor, Rupp, Knox and McKenzie, they'll be viewing a shooting, scoring, passing, darting circus the likes of which will pop their eyeballs. The Russians may faint as they almost did against Penticton when the V's got down to business in the second period."

One good thing about the Olympics hockey for our side, is the Dutchies won't be half worn out playing a lot of silly pre-Olympic exhibition games. They have already found their skating legs in two or three games—and that should be sufficient for the big test.

But come what may, the Lady of the Snows, that grand young gal who spurred hockey, is solidly behind her Kitchener kiddies. And there is not one of the rest of the family who doubt for a minute that the gallant Dutchmen will come home with all flags flying and the world championship wrapped up in a compact little bundle for the second year in a row.

AS A SPECTATOR — LOS ANGELES (AP)—Jill Kinmont, who once planned to participate in the winter Olympics Games in Italy, let Friday to attend as a spectator. Register All Goals in Third Sawchuk Gets Sixth Blank In Otherwise Listless Game

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins may be stragglers in the National Hockey League race but nobody can play them for patsies.

Chicago Black Hawks tried it Friday night. What happened? Bruins slapped them down 3-0 for their 10th win in 44 games this season.

It was the only game of the night and the 5,100 customers at Chicago Stadium had little to cheer about. It was a Bruin show, particularly in the final period when Leo Labine, Cal Gardner and Johnny Peirson came up with goals.

Bruins threw up a stiff defence against Hawk forwards and helped goaltender Terry Sawchuk record his sixth, shutout of the season. He handled 24 Chicago drives.

IN BRIEF PLACE

The win left Boston in last place with 29 points, eighth behind the Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs who are tied for fourth spot. Montreal Canadiens lead the league with 61 points, a total in front of New York Rangers and 12 ahead of Detroit Red Wings.

Neither Hawks nor Bruins play tonight. In two engagements the Red Wings beat the Leafs and the Rangers clash with Canadians at Montreal. On Sunday Maple Leafs, Detroit, Canadiens travel to Chicago and Rangers are at Boston.

Leafs will be without defenceman Jim Morrison back in the lineup tonight. Morrison has been out for a couple of weeks with a hip injury.

Canadiens decided Friday to retain Bob Turner on their defence corps. Turner was retired from Montreal Royals of the Quebec League when forwards Doug Harvey and Dollard St. Laurent were hurt.

Barrie Flyers Whip Canucks; Teeps Trim Bilts

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At the rate they're going it may not take Barrie Flyers long to barge in among the leaders of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A race.

Flyers Friday night registered their fourth straight victory by defeating the tough Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks 4-3. Flyers are in sixth place but are only six points behind the second-spot Canucks. A win tonight would move them well up in the parade.

In the only other league game, the league-leading St. Catharines Teepees stretched their margin to six points over Guelph Biltmores by tripping Guelph Biltmores 7-5.

At Barrie, 1,200 fans were on hand to see Flyer jump into a three-goal lead in the first period and then stall off a Canuck drive in the dying minutes of the game. LEAD IN FIRST

Little Billy Forhan led Barrie with two goals. Roy Partridge and Jack Kane got the others. Stan Baliuk, Wally O'Ree and Jim Thurby tallied for Canucks.

At Guelph Ab McDonald led Teepees with three goals. Len Ronson scored twice for Guelph. The others went to Ron Howell, Tom Watson and Ryan Webber.

Guelph had a territorial edge and outshot the winners 35-18. However, Teepee goalie Roy Edwards had a good night, stopping Biltmore snipers time and again.

Russians Will Skate Faster Toss Bodychecks

OTTAWA (CP)—Players on Russia's hockey entry at the winter Olympics will skate faster and throw harder bodychecks than the club which lost the world title to Canada last year.

That's the gist of a report on the team in Friday's edition of the Soviet News Bulletin, published in Otawa by the Russian embassy. The report by G. Yefimov refers to "body-charging" as an integral part of "Canadian-style hockey." It adds:

"The last year saw some changes in the technique and tactics of the Soviet team and probably the most important of them all is still greater speed. Their body-charging has improved, too, and their shots on the goal have become more accurate.

SWITCHED OVER

"When Soviet sportwriters saw the play of first - class foreign teams for the first time, they were inclined to characterize it in such words as "rude play," "foul pushing" and the like. Soon they realized that it was nothing else than the very body-charging for which the Canadians are so famous and switched over to approaching our players for a too 'polite' style of play."

The Russians, world champions in 1954, lost the title last year to Canada's Penticton, V's at Krefeld, Germany. The championship will be defended at the winter Olympics by the Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen.

Sarnia Angles For Franchise In Big Four

WINNIPEG (CP)—A group from Sarnia has started an apparent move to get into the Big Four Football Union.

In a brief presented Friday to a joint meeting of the Western Interprovincial Football Union and the Big Four, the group asked what was needed to obtain a franchise in the eastern league. The brief was presented by Hala Misener of Winnipeg. It was referred to the Big Four's annual meeting today and Sunday.

The Sarnia group named Misener, former Winnipeg Blue Bomber president, to represent it due to his wide experience in football.

Misener told the closed meeting the group wants to know what the Big Four requires in the way of finances, seating capacity and general organization before it will consider granting a franchise to Sarnia.

Misener said the Sarnia Football Park now seats 7,000 but it can be boosted to 15,000. The group felt it could do well in drawing from Sarnia's 40,000 population, the 35,000 in nearby Port Huron and from well into the United States.

YOIDS LICENCE

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland athletic commission disclosed Friday it has voided the licence of the Arena Sports Club headed by Benny Trotta to promote boxing in Maryland.

Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York athletic commission and former racing hustling district attorney from Brooklyn, charged recently that Trotta was an associate of Frankie Carbo, described as boxing's underworld boss.

Not Worried About Club Fire Power Bauer to Work on Dutchies Defence

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (CP)—Coach Bobby Bauer is confident that Canada has more "fire power" than the other nine countries entered in the Olympic hockey tournament, It's the defence he's concerned about.

Bauer says his Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, the Canadian entry, will concentrate on strengthening their defence in the final workout period beginning today.

"One of our main problems is to make sure other clubs can't score against us," Bauer says.

The former Boston Bruins star plans to give his Allan Cup champions two hours of intensive drilling each day before the opening game with West Germany next Thursday.

"We'll concentrate on defence weaknesses and shootings," he says.

The coach feels certain the Dutchmen will be able to out-shoot their opponents. In winning three exhibition games, they have scored 25 goals to seven for the opposition.

The team arrived in this Italian winter resort by plane and bus from Prague, where they beat a Czech team twice by lopsided scores.

Centre Ken Laufman, who suffered a mild concussion in the second game against the Czechs Thursday, is fit but probably will be rested a day or two.

"We just can't risking any chances," Bauer says.

Charlie Brooker, who injured his knee in Monday's win over Paisley, also is recovering and team officials expect the side to be at full strength by Thursday.

Figure skaters Norris Bowden and Frances Dafoe, considered along with the Dutchmen as Canada's best hopes for gold medals, were among the first to greet the hockey team on their arrival at the Olympic village headquarters for the Canadian Olympic contingent.

Coxmen Fail To Improve Position; Drop 5-3 Decision To Brockville

Costly Penalties Play Part In Loss After 3-Goal Rally; Richardson Sparks Magedomas

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Costly penalties and the failure to capitalize on scoring opportunities cost the TPT's two valuable points here last night when they dropped a 5-3 decision to the Brockville Magedomas. The victory enabled the Maggies to pull away from the Teeps and Colts at present tied for fourth position.

Down 4-3 going into the third period, due to the somewhat easy winning goal by the Maggies, the Teeps fought desperately to tie the count. Penalties to the Maggies gave them a near two-minute two-man advantage but they failed to hit the hemp behind the brilliant Bourada in the enemy net.

Penalties were costly for both sides. The Teeps' entire output of three goals was scored in a little over two minutes in the second period when they had manpower advantage while the Maggies rammed home the tying and winning tallies in the same heat in 62 seconds with the Teeps man-shy.

Whatever the breaks, was the winning goal appeared to sift past Tony Parisi with little or no effort on the puckster's part to stop it. Coach Dunny Cox put Yurk Barclay in the pair for the third frame and he came through with an outstanding performance.

Cox pulled Barclay with a minute to go in the final frame and boxed out six forwards, but the strategy backfired and Gibson broke into the clear to score the Maggies' fifth goal in an empty net.

The game was a clean but hard-hitting affair with the teams splitting a dozen minor penalties.

Arch Richardson and Ed Duncan twins proved the most potent line for the winners with Richardson scoring three goals and an assist, Ed Duncan good for one and one, and brother Ervin an assist. Jake Wade, Bert Hill and Sammy Mulholland were the Teeps snipers.

Coach Cox benched Bill McMaster and Joe White and sent out Doug Murray and Gibson with Harvey Rockburn. Maggie defenceman Gibson made a table entry in the melee and retired for repairs - and the rest of the pastime.

The Maggies went up their two-The Maggies racked up their two-finished out after positioned hockey. The Teeps had several fine chances to score on splendid plays but they did everything but put the puck in the net.

Bob Wade's four-minute minor penalty was a costly one. The Maggies powered an offensive and Richardson drew first blood with Ed Duncan and Rockburn at 5.54.

The Teeps battled desperately but they were not untracked. They gained heavily but hit everything but the net.

Richardson put the Maggies two up after twelve-minutes of fast, wild goalmouth scramble.

Again the Teeps powered their offence and again they hit every thing but the net. Ed Duncan got the gate with two seconds to go.

Penalties paved the way for the five goals scored in the second period. Goyer and McManus got the gate and, with Erwin Duncan already in the penalty box the Teeps had a 4-3 edge.

Then it happened. They struck suddenly and swiftly, racking up three goals in a little over two minutes. Jake Wade, Bert Hill and Sammy Mulholland hit the hemp in a series of power drives to give the Teeps a 3-2 lead.

The Teeps had a wide margin of the play up to here and hemmed the Maggies behind their own blueline with Bourada pulling off some sensational saves.

Then the tide turned. Pat Gilmour got the gate at 12.46 and the fortunes reversed. The Maggies swept into the attack scoring twice in 62 seconds to grab a 4-3 lead. Richardson snared his third goal of the game with Ed Duncan getting the other.

Parisi did not look too hot on the fourth. Murray got the gate with 39 seconds to go in the period.

The Maggies tossed opportunity squarely in the laps of the Coxmen early in the third period but Kuntz and Goodwin drew penalties seventeen seconds apart.

They flung pucks at Bourada from all angles and once Goyer broke in close, beat Bourada and hit the goal-post. Over 7,000 fans yelled themselves hoarse as the Teeps threw desperately for a score but as before they hit everything but the target.

Penalties in mid-period robbed the Teeps of their offensive power with Wilson, Scott and McDonald following each other into the sin-bin. They had been forced to go. The Maggies threw up a stubborn defence and buried both the drives of Teeps.

Then Barclay was pulled - and you know the rest.

The teams:

Brockville — Goal, Bourada; defence, Rockburn, Easter, McManus; forwards, Ed. Duncan, Erwin Duncan, Richardson, Barnard, Gibson, Kuntz, Baldwin, Lockhart, Goodwin.

Guild Officers Plead Innocent To Indictment

CLEVELAND (AP)—Three officers of the International Boxing Guild pleaded innocent Friday to an indictment charging them and the Guild with violating the anti-trust laws of Ohio with violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

Released on $2,000 bond each were Charles Johnston of New York, general president of IBC; William Daly of Englewood, N.J., IBC general treasurer, and Albert W. Del Monte of Cleveland, president of the Boxing Guild of Ohio.

Federal judge James C. Connell said he would set a trial date later.

The two guilds and three officers were named in a 15-count indictment charging violation of anti-trust laws filed Thursday in federal court.

The trial was filed by Herman I. Spero of Warrensville Heights, prosecutor of studio boxing shows televised by station WEWS here from April 2 to Oct. 1 last year.

He charged in his petition that the defendants combined to force him to break contracts providing the studio boxing shows by boycotting and refusing to permit their boxers to participate in the shows.

Indians Whip Bulldogs 6-2

STRATFORD (CP) — Stratford Indians moved into second place margin in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League standings here last night with Bulldogs Friday night with a 6-2 victory.

Penalties to Frank Bathgate and Jim Peters, two seconds apart in the first period, proved costly to Windsor, as the Indians counted three times in 46 seconds.

Tommy Walker scored twh for Stratford, while other four went to George Aitken, Herb Jordy, Doug McKay and Mickey Rodo, who shot the puck into an empty net.

Bob Brown and Frank Bathgate necked Windsor's goals.

Roth tallied a second goal but it was disallowed.

American Stars Stay at Home

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bobby Moss, West Virginia halfback, signed a contract with Cleveland Browns Friday, the club announced.

He was a fourth round choice in the National Football League draft in Los Angeles.

At Winnipeg, Doug Walker, coach of Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four, said he had heard previous reports that Moss was signing with the Browns.

"It's just another case of a boy going back on his word," said Walker, attending a meeting of Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union officials. "Moss had accepted our terms, but it was all verbal. Nothing was signed."

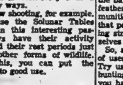
WINNIPEG (CP) — Harry Sonshine, team manager of Toronto Argonauts, said Friday he knew two University of Southern California football players he tried to sign with the Argos had joined National Football League clubs.

Ezat Chuck Griffin is reported to have signed with Cleveland Browns and halfback Gordie Duval with the Green Bay Packers.

Sonshine said both of them telephoned him after the NFL draft list came out. They asked him to make an offer higher than an earlier one made by the Argos.

Sonshine said he flatly refused to quote anything over the telephone and had asked the two players to wait until an Argo representative could go to California to talk contract.

The players did not want to wait and Sonshine said he then called off "my deal."



Solmar Notes

Crow Shooting and Solmar Table

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables.

Most folks think of the Solmar Tables as "fish books" or "fishing charts." Believe me, that is not their proper designation. To be sure, they do forecast for you the feeding and activity periods of fish, but their usefulness by no means stops there. You can put your Solmar Tables to work for you in a great many ways.

Take crow shooting, for example. You can use the Solmar Tables very well in this interesting pastime. Crows have definite feeding periods and their rest periods just as do all other forms of wildlife. Knowing this, you can put the knowledge to good use.

Crows are apt to be active and feeding first thing in the morning, regardless of the weather. Period. However, as soon as they have had their breakfast they go right back on schedule. If a big crow roost is in progress, they leave the feeding fields and fly in a wooded patch of their choosing. There in the high trees they roost and talk things over.

However, when a Solmar Period comes in they become restless. No longer are they content to sit in the trees. Instead, they move about, flying from place to place and coming back into the fields. Then the big birds will take a small two. Sure they'll be shooting, as the birds are alert and looking for excitement or trouble.

CROWS HATE OWLS

A great deal of our crow shooting used to be done with the aid of live owls, our stuffed great horned owl. We have him mounted on a perch and he has an upright standard. Thus, it is an easy matter to fasten Gus in a prominent place above the top of a bush or a small tree. Then we build our blind and break out the crow call.

Incidentally, a good crow call is not easily come by. We have used a great many different makes but the one which we have finally settled is known only by a gentleman name Lee A. Hiester, of Strausstown, Penna. It is fairly expensive, retailing at around three or four dollars, but it really does bring in the crows, since we have to use it correctly.

Usually, this call will bring in crows from any place in the area. They seem to come for miles and once there, they will circle and circle to find out what the trouble may be. Then when they see Gus the fun really begins. Often it takes a deal of shooting to keep poor Gus from being dismembered.

But response to the call and the reaction to Gus seems to be proportionate to the status of the Solmar schedule for that day. Should they be a major period in progress, the birds react to the call quickly and in quantity. Once they catch sight of the owl they refuse to leave, circling and screaming even when you have shot some out of the flock. If they do fly away they soon return. It takes only a little calling to bring them back, noisy and angry as ever.

Conversely, when there is no Solunar Period in progress the response to the call is made by comparatively few birds. They may give you a long shot or two and that is the end of it for that particular flock.

SHOOT NEAR FLYWAY

One afternoon we were shooting down by the river flyway that the birds use each morning on the way to roost. It was early and the evening flight had not begun but there were plenty of birds in the trees. We set up Gus in a promising place, concealed ourselves in the underbrush, and went to work with the call.

The birds that responded came in high. They were curious but that was about all. Moreover, they paid not the slightest attention to Gus.

There was no question about their seeing him; they simply were not interested in starting a war. We had little or no shooting that afternoon.

About a week later we returned to the same location, tied Gus in the same little tree and hid ourselves. This time there was a major Solunar Period in progress. It took only a few blasts on the crow call to do the trick. The birds came by the hundreds.

In all that excitement a gun shot or two made little difference. Even our best efforts could not keep a few birds from breaking through the barrage and Gus lost a few feathers. Only unused and ammunition shortage put an end to that party. The birds were still going strong until we showed ourselves and took down the owl.

In a day, you can find plenty of uses for your Solunar tables. Try using them as an aid in pheasant hunting or your nature walks. If you have not already done so, we are betting that you are in for a big surprise.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Undefeated Rochester Institute of Technology basketball team Friday night beat Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, 96-49.

Fight Features Hornets' Win Over Bears

PITTSBURGH (CP)—A total of 92 minutes in penalties, including seven misconducts, were handed out when a fight broke out midway in the second period of Friday night's American Hockey League game between Pittsburgh Hornets and Hershey Bears.

The Hornets, paced by centre Willie Marshall's three goals, went on to win 5-2 and extend their winning streak to eight games.

The fight started between Pittsburgh's Gerry Foley and Hershey goalie Norm Defelice. Players from both benches joined in.

Referee Frank Udvari gave Foley and Defelice received majors and each side was given three 10-minute misconducts. Hershey was given another bench misconduct later in the period.

Record Crowd Sees Goodyears Defeat Whitby

Before a season's record crowd of 3,500 jammed the Civic Ring, Sion Goodyears turned back the challenge of Whitby Dunlops by a 7-4 score in the Community Centre last night.

It was the fifth defeat for the leaders and enabled the Goodyears to move into a tie with Orangeville for third-place Brockville Magedomas who defeated the Belleville TPT's at Brockville.

The teams were tied at one-all at the end of the first period with Kingston firing home two unanswered goals in the second.

The Goodies slammed in three goals in less than two minutes in the third to tuck the game away. They added another with Whitby scoring their only trio of tallies in the period.

Ken Eicher scored two for Whitby with Beiringer and White each getting a pair for Sion Goodyears.

Bobby Atterley and Don Murray were the group's top scorers each scored a goal.

No Commissioners?

Big Four, Western Grid Union To Form Own Board of Control

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union go into separate sessions today. Their main task will be naming their representatives each to sit on a 10-man board which will control the workings of the two leagues.

Formation of the over-all organization does not mean a breakaway from the Canadian Rugby Union. Both league's executives emphasized at Friday's closed meeting they wish to continue affiliation with Canadian football's governing body.

They feel however, that they want an organization of their own to deal with matters of common interest to Canada's two major professional leagues and which are not pertinent to other football clubs in the country.

Earlier talk of a commissioner to control Canada's professional football seems to have died out with the setting up of the board, which was given the responsibility of dealing with:

Uniform player contracts; starting dates for training sessions; number of players permitted on club rosters; salary control for league and playoff games; relations with the National Football League; standardization of playoff and Canadian bowl game rules; the CRU; recommendations of playing rule changes to the CRU; rules on conduct, and the power to discipline; and territorial rights on junior and intermediate players.

One item on Friday's agenda was a interlocking schedule between the two leagues. Several clubs submitted proposals for partial or total interlocking games, but no agreement could be reached and the matter was referred back to the annual meetings of the respective leagues today and Sunday.

It likely will be discussed again on Monday by the 10-man board, although executives are that the move will not go through—at least not this year.

Agreement was reached on a Canadian college draft for 1956, involving graduates of McGill, Queen's, Western, Toronto, McMaster and British Columbia.

Each League will hold its election of officers, with Earl Siscomb of Winnipeg expected to succeed Jack Rowand of Regina as president of the WIFU, and Jim McCaffrey of Ottawa, present CRU president, to take over as Big Four head from Hamilton's Ralph Cooper.

The WIFU will consider recommendations from its five coaches for playing rule changes. These that are accepted will be presented to the rules committee at the CRU's annual meeting in March.

Added to the seven rules changes suggested by the coaches Thursday night and Friday morning were two others: That the restraining line on kickoffs be increased to 10 yards from the present five; and that all five backs be permitted to block 10 yards. The coaches differed somewhat on whether the motion should be allowed with the blocking.

Included in the suggested changes were:

1. Unlimited blocking on punt returns, but retention of the five-yard limit elsewhere.

2. Blocking on pass interception.

3. That an incomplete, third-down pass into the end zone be given to the defending club at the previous point of scrimmage and not on the 25-yard line as at present.

4. That a ball going in touch be brought out 30 yards from the sideline instead of the present 15.

5. That a touchdown be worth six points instead of five.

6. That no double penalties be handed out on a single infraction.

7. That the last minute of play be recorded second by second on the clock and not just signified by the timekeeper's flag as at present.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Lives there a man with soul so dead who never to himself has said: Gimme the aces, kings and jack; and I'll make up what my system lacks.

A mule will tell you there is no science to bridge. But only a fool of a mule will keep on believing it to long. Unless, of course, he is a pinochle player or some other low form of animal life.

Take a lesson in the defensive science in this deal:

NORTH
♠Q 9 5
♥J 9 7 5
♦A K
♣K 9 6 3

♥A Q 10 4 2
♦6 5 4 3 2
♣10 8 2

EAST
♠A J 8 4 3 2
♥K 6
♦Q J 10
♣A 7 5

SOUTH
♠K 10 7
♥A K Q 8 3
♦9 8 5
♣Q J 4

South is the declarer at a contract of four hearts that goes down one trick. Would you say the defence was lucky in selecting their defeating plays or do you call it scientific play?

East has not made a bid but the opening lead from west is his singleton spade. East wins at once with the ace and returns a spade that is ruffed by west with one of his trumps.

West comes back a club that is won with the east ace. When east returns another spade, west ruffs again to kill the contract. How did the defence know what to lead advantageously?

With nuild of his own that are absolutely worthless, the best chance for west to win a trick is to find east with the spade ace. Then if east returns a spade, west can ruff it fast.

This is a simple science that operates on the normal process of elimination. From here on, however, the steps of the hair cover ground that takes a little more brain work.

How does east know it is a singleton that his partner has? He can count the number of numbers on the card led from 11. This tells him how many higher cards to look for in the other hands.

Is this enough to intrigue you? If so, give me a little more room and you will know more about it in the next few days.

Science is a buddy that it pays you to study.

Basketball Star Not Eligible

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bob Pickell of Vancouver, perhaps the top basketball player in this country, Friday was declared eligible for a berth on Canada's Olympic team.

Following a two-week investigation, Gordon McIntyre, registrar of the Canadian Olympic Amateur Basketball Association, announced that the six-foot-five west had not violated the amateur code.

McIntyre said the inquiry showed that Pickell obtained "nothing more than legitimate expenses" when he played basketball in Honolulu in 1953, travelled to Bellingham, Wash., with a barn-storming team, and tried out with the B.C. Lions professional football club in 1954.

McIntyre said the national association, which asked for a report on the 27-year-old player, will accept the B.C. body's recommendation.

Buddy Ebsen Blesses Lessons Learned in His Low Periods

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "No matter what the experience is, bless it."

Buddy Ebsen heard that quote on a religious broadcast the other day and he confirms it as his philosophy. Buddy has had plenty of ups and downs in his 47-year show-business career and now he blesses the lessons he learned in his low periods.

He can afford to. His career is at its peak. He became a well-known figure in most American households as Davy Crockett's sidekick, Georgie Russell. He'll soon be seen in another Walt Disney story and "Girl Crazy" and "Silk Stockings," to be serialized on the Mickey Mouse Club. At present he's doing a dramatic role in a war movie, "Fragile Fox."

Between extremes he recalled days when he wasn't doing as well.

"I was out of pictures for five years," said Buddy, who started in films 20 years ago dancing with his sister Vilma. "I was a year in "Good Night Ladies," which set records for long runs in Chicago. Then I was in the service for three years. After that, I leaned in the revival of 'Show Boat' for a year."

AGAIN TRIED FILMS

He came back to Hollywood to try his luck at pictures again. But his agent always met this inquiry from producers: "Why hasn't he been working in pictures?" The agent told about Buddy's five-year stretch but the questions was repeated: "Why hasn't he been working in pictures?"

Said Buddy: "They figured something must have been wrong, if I'd been out of pictures that long, they suspect there is a reason."

At one point an executive advised Buddy to find another line of work. But at this low period in his career he was fighting mad and wouldn't consider it.

He managed to support his wife and daughters the now has five) with occasional vaudeville, night clubs and TV. Then he landed a slum role in "Night People" with Gregory Peck.

"I got great reviews," he said, "It was a complete departure for me to do a dramatic role and I thought it would mark me a whole new career. So what happened? I didn't work for a year."

That was the lowest point in his history. He seriously considered ending his career as a performer.

FILLED WITH DOUBT

"If I can't succeed after having a good picture, what hope is there?" he asked his agent.

The agent asked him to keep trying for another six months. Shortly afterward, he landed Buddy a job in a John Steinbeck play on TV. Director Norman Foster saw it and tabbed him as a prospect for the Davy Crockett film.

The rest is familiar history to any observer of the American scene. Buddy now is under contract to Disney but has the right to do outside projects.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, January 22, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Pleasant, constructive indications. You can attend to necessary work without strain or complaint and win accepting very worth while. If you have free time, enjoy wholesome pleasure after church.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your interests and those of your family are particularly honored now. Show appreciation to God for blessings by going to church and giving to charity, making others happy.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Use your bright ideas and clever knack for managing entertainment, etc. to aid church and charity affairs. Don't be too forceful, however.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — This Sunday honors, along with spiritual devotions, healthy sports, recreation, children's and old folks' interests. Essential duties can be handled, speedily if you accept them cheerfully.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — You gain in many ways this benefic Sunday — if, of course, you do your best. There's no need to strain but do not neglect important duties. Smile!

August 23 to September 22 — (Virgo) — Ideal aspects for mental work, scientific research, medical study; for music and other arts. But do not seek unnecessary work.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Help keep this a happy, productive day — with good intentions carried through. Good aspects for unique but useful ideas, methods, materials.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — A most propitious day. Personal affairs, occupational or business advancement, improvement generally is under splendid influences. Aim to do well all week. You can.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Wisdom in spending and saving is strongly advised now. This day also stresses the need for relaxation, pleasant activities and prayer.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Influences may be on the over-exciting side now but you can use this impetus as inspiration for greater ambition and to further plans for future security.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Bow your head in thanksgiving for past and future blessings. Many good things are in store for those of you who work and aspire for that which will benefit family, community, church.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Encouraging aspects! However, you must think and act rightly if you are to benefit by them. Spiritual development must go hand in hand with the temporal.

You born today are a Capricorn-Aquarius Cuspal, born during the waning Capricorn, but mostly in the ascending Aquarius. You can be two different people occasionally, sometimes riding like the wind, gentle but sweeping opposition before you; at others, uncertain, not sure whether you are right or wrong. You are inherently good-natured and friendly. Cultivate your talents, to attain the heights your versatility promises. Self-reliance and constant optimism are also "musts".

ABOVE-NORMAL TEMPERATURES

Most of Canada can expect temperatures above normal during the next 35 days, according to this map prepared on the basis of the long-range forecast of the United States weather bureau. Parts of the Atlantic provinces, of Quebec and extreme northern Ontario can expect temperatures much above normal. Small sections of Manitoba and Saskatchewan can expect near-normal temperatures. Complaints Are Smothered By Bouquets Tossed at Experts Conducting Safety Campaign

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's highway safety program has been assailed and praised. The complainers are usually those motorists who run foul of the law or flunk their driving tests.

But the compliments are smothered by bouquets tossed by safety experts throughout Canada and the United States and by Manitoba's 225,000 drivers in general.

"It is a strict, not a tough program," says C. R. Baillie, registrar of motor vehicles and the man behind the program.

PROGRAM NOT CAMPAIGN

"This is no safety campaign. It is a safety program working day and night and remorselessly."

It is a program that weeds out accident-prone motorists and the bad drivers. They are not yanked from the highway but are given a chance to mend their ways through the driver improvement clinic.

But if they show no sign of improvement they lose their right to drive. As of Dec. 31 last, 6,582 motorists were under suspension, or 2½ per cent of the driving public.

Of this total, approximately half were rural drivers. These rural drivers are more likely to be until this year only the greater Winnipeg area was served by a driver improvement clinic. This March a similar clinic is to be established in Brandon and the province will reach the six-point limit under the province's demerit point system automatically have their licences suspended.

Mr. Baillie says licences may be suspended for five different reasons:

1. Failure to pay a judgment arising from an accident.

2. Being involved in an accident without insurance.

3. Failure to file proof of insurance following a major conviction.

4. Poor driving record under the point system.

5. Failure to pass a driving test following a call-in under the point system.

RIGHT TO APPEAL

Persons under suspension have the right to appeal to county court within 30 days after the suspension is made.

Manitoba has set a high standard for its drivers. Motorists called in to the driver improvement clinic, as well as those seeking their first driving licence, go through a stiff test.

They pay one dollar for the first test. If they fail on the initial try they are allowed two free exams. After the fourth try it is necessary to get approval from the registrar before another attempt is made.

Motorists, who have reached the six-point limit under the demerit system, have their driver's licence on reporting to the clinic. If they fail the test they walk home.

They first take a knowledge test composed of 34 questions. The answers are contained in the motorists' handbook which applicants must read beforehand. They are allowed four demerits on this test. This is followed by vision and reaction tests.

The actual driving test follows. An examiner accompanying the applicant carries with him a check sheet on which he checks off mistakes.

COUNSELLING EXAMINERS

The check list notes errors in starting, stopping, signal violations, passing, speed, backing, parallel parking, etc.

The applicant is allowed 50 demerits.

Drivers who have been called in are counselled by examiners. Their file card is reviewed and their infractions pointed out.

Mr. Baillie stressed that the call-in is not questioned drivers or "punishment."

"We merely want to find out what's wrong with the driver and point out to him just what he is doing wrong."

Statistically-speaking, Manitoba's safety program is showing considerable success. For example, the registrar pointed to the reduction in insurance claim frequency in Winnipeg.

In 1947, four years before the program was started, claims for 19.6 per cent of the cars on Manitoba highways were made. In 1952, the year following the start of the program the percentage dropped to 13.5. In 1954 it dropped again to 13.

And for a case in point Mr. Baillie tells of a Winnipeg dairy farm which sent its driver to the clinic. In the last four years the staff of 34 driving nine trucks and five passenger cars were involved in two small property damage accidents—cars rammed into the rears of two trucks.

Traffic Deaths Cut 13.6 P.C. by Safety Drive

TORONTO (CP)— Attorney-General Kelso Roberts of Ontario said Friday highway traffic deaths were cut by 13.6 per cent in the first two months of a proposed year-long provincial safety campaign.

Injuries and accidents had also decreased since the police drive began last November.

There were 182 traffic deaths in Ontario in November and December, compared with 209 for the same period in 1954. On roads patrolled by provincial police, there were 106 deaths compared with 134 the year before.

Provincial police reported 1,578 injuries in the last two months of 1955, compared with 1,670 in 1954.

Mr. Roberts said:

"The figures show a trend. They show that death and injury can be halted."

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Reginald Harrison, 25, was sentenced today to five years' hard labor in Kingston penitentiary and nine lashes on conviction of a charge of rape laid by a 48-year-old Desbarats girl last October.

The girl alleged she had been raped while returning from a dance by Harrison and Forrest Varcoe, also of the Sault. Varcoe's trial was traversed to the fall assizes.

A Supreme Court jury Friday acquitted John Elliot, charged with raping the first victim's older sister.

John Gosse, charged with assaulting the same girl, jumped $3,000 bail before his preliminary hearing and has not been seen since.

New York Critics Praise Acting In 'Tamburlaine'

NEW YORK (CP)—New York drama critics Friday welcomed Canada's Stratford Festival Company's "Tamburlaine the Great" as a well-acted, energetic contribution to theatre.

But they are divided as to whether Christopher Marlowe's 16th century blood-and - thunder writing should be regarded as basic conquerer suits the tastes of present-day playgoers.

Marlowe's play, being produced in New York for the first time, began an eight-week run at the Winter Garden theatre Thursday night.

Reviews of Tyrone Guthrie's production ranged from virtually unreserved praise as expressed by Brooks Atkinson of The Times who called it "a triumphant theatre occasion" to the almost complete indifference of the World-Telegram and Sun's Walter Hawkins, who found only the acting to his liking.

AFTERNOON PAPERS

Richard Watts, Jr., of the afternoon Post, found the Stratford production, "graphic, spectacular and visually ingratiating."

John McClain of The Journal-American said the production from Canada has certainly brought us a stupendous and studious evening in the theatre.

Hawkins, The World - Telegram critic, said the play has "a magnificent deal of talk, but not much of it soars." However, he said there were many moments of splendid performances among the enormous cast, "often by unidentifiable actors."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Negroes are being wantonly murdered in Mississippi and their murderers either are not punished or Negro leader Dr. T. R. M. Howard has charged in a letter to Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI.

In reply to a letter from Hoover, Howard also said: "The fact remains that the FBI cannot secure a single conviction in Negro is murdered by a white man in Mississippi."

Hoover had accused Howard, president, of the Mississippi regional council of Negro leadership, of "false and irresponsible" charges against the FBI's handling of several racial killings in the southern state.

Howard repeated in the letter statements which he said he made in a Baltimore speech. He also wrote that he has talked with "many top-ranking persons" in the last month and:

"They are as dismayed as I am that murder after murder has gone in the United States and that murderers are not indicted, tried under the George Lee and Lemar Smith cases, or win acquittal as in the Emmett Till case. In each of these cases, the facts about the cases are on file with local law enforcement authorities, federal as well as state."

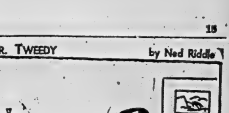
Builder Hints New Airplane Will Be 'Fast'

MANCHESTER, Eng. (Reuters) A leading British airplane manufacturer disclosed today that his secret work is going ahead for the British government on an airplane "or something else"—which he hinted will have a sensational speed.

The manufacturer, Sir Roy Dobson, said: "There is an airplane or something else which will go through the air very fast—and it is going to go very fast."



Dobson is managing director of A. V. Roe and Co., Ltd.

Addressing a prize-giving meeting for apprentices here, he said: "I am not going to tell you what it is, or anything about it, because it is on secret work. But I can tell you this—the popular press invented the term sound barrier and in little later it invented stories about heat barrier.

"We have an airplane, or something else, which will go through the air very fast—and it is going to get very hot.

"If you try, you will be able to form a picture of the aerodynamics of the sort of problems that are going to confront our chief designer, Roy Evans, and his staff in trying to design [illegible] that can fly when they are really rather hot."

There is joy in living
Whatever the grooves may be,
There's happiness in giving
And forgiving every day;
In passing by the hurts,
In plucking roses red,
In strewing life with flowers
Whatever path we tread.

There is joy in labor
Though tiders may deny,
A heartfelt satisfaction
We know it, you and I;
There is joy in helping

Best Game Forests Are Young Says Wildlife Service Chief

By DON PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Hunting wasn't necessarily better in the so-called good old days.

The ancient virgin forests thick with tall, mature trees through which Canada's early explorers made their way were not thick with game, says Victor E. F. Solman, assistant chief of the Canadian Wildlife service here. And the only game such forests will support is the squirrel.

The huge trees choke out all other vegetation and their crown branches are too high for the hungry deer, moose or elk to reach them.

Experienced hunters likely know this already, but Mr. Solman's statement, in an interview, may surprise the fledgling.

The best game forests, he said, are the young ones, with small trees sparse enough to allow grass and other vegetation to grow on the forest floor. Stands of hardwood trees—maple, beech, oak, birch and the like—provide the most food for deer, moose, elk, woodland caribou and other game animals.

There are large areas in Banff and Jasper national parks, for example, where the forests are solid with lodgepole pine. But for game they are foodless deserts. Evergreen coniferous forests, once they have grown so dense that the shrubbery beneath them is blotted out, offer virtually no food supply.

Only the moose habitually feeds on conifer leaves and even it cannot live continuously on such a diet. In winter, deer — Canada's most common game animal—will feed on cedar if they can find nothing else, but they prefer birch twigs and poplar leaves.

"From the game point of view, selective cutting of hardwood forests is the real answer to increasing the game population," said Mr. Solman.

Even forest fires are a mixed blessing from the standpoint of the game conservationist, he said. For some the flames have passed, the young saplings begin to grow, providing a ready source of food.

Champlain, in notes on his Ottawa valley explorations, mentioned evidence of recent forest fires. As a result, Mr. Solman said, Champlain found game plentiful in the area. Then the forests grew up again. In its early days 100 years ago, the Ottawa area was a great lumbering centre. But game was scarce.

Now forests in the area are thinner and younger and deer are moving in in numerous. Moose has completed another cycle.

In British Columbia, Mr. Solman said, the moose population has risen considerably in the areas where lumber operations—or forest fires—have cleared the woods.

Forest fires struck Prince Albert national park in Saskatchewan about 16 years ago. Beaver thrived briskly on the young poplars growing up afterwards that now officials are carrying out a beaver-thinning program.

In some areas where civilization has come and have cleared away the dense forests, deer particularly have increased to such numbers that the best means of conserving them has been to encourage hunting. Otherwise, Mr. Solman said, they would soon eat themselves out of forest and food.

Your Car

Tail-End Hum May Be Tires Or Bad Axle

By EUGENE MILMOE

A strange sound coming from the tail end of your car may convince you that your axle trouble is developing until your mechanic finds that nothing more serious than tire noise is at fault. Many motorists have had this experience, much to their relief. But the less fortunate ones have their suspicions confirmed and find themselves faced with an expensive repair bill.

Too often, the car owner can blame only his inhumanity for rear axle troubles. If he doesn't give some attention to the lubricant level, is careless about the grade used or never investigates obvious signs of leakage, grease gets dry and bearing wear will be the penalty. The importance of maintaining adequate rear axle lubrication is emphasized by car manufacturers who recommend inspection at 1,000 mile intervals.

J.D. asks: "My brake pedal must be pumped in order to bring up a good pressure. Will fluid leakage cause this?"

(A) Yes—and so will air in the hydraulic system or too little fluid in the master cylinder reservoir.

CARBURETOR TUNING

From E.N.: "My carburetor has a lever with three holes which, I am told, governs the accelerating pump stroke to be adjusted according to the season. What hole should be used for winter driving?"

(A) The number three or outside hole position gives the longest pump stroke — for allowing more fuel to be discharged, and is meant for winter use.

C.T. writes: "There is a humming noise in my new car which I first blamed on the rear axle. The dealer had it checked, found nothing wrong and told me to let it go until the 3,000 mile checkup. Could this be a transmission noise? The car is a 1955 six-cylinder model with conventional shift."

(A) It could be. If the transmission gears are meshed too tightly, for example, hum will be noticeable.

SALT RUINED CAR BODY

A.S. asks: "Our street and highway departments spread salt on the roads in melt snow and ice. The body of my last car was ruined by lime salts and I am anxious to know what I can do to prevent my present car from suffering a similar fate."

(A) Undercoating the body plus a good coat of wax on the finish and chrome parts will offer protection. If possible, you should also wash down the car each time it has been exposed to these corrosive salts.

J.A. writes: "Since I had work done on the carburetor of my 1955 sedan, gas mileage is below par and the engine seems to have lost some of its pep and smoothness. My wife said a black smoke came from the exhaust as I drove away, so now I wonder if a rich gas mixture is causing the trouble."

(A) It sounds like it. The carburetor float level might have been set too high or the idle adjustment may be too rich.

May Be Changes In Division of Labor Offices

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Changes are possible in the agreed-upon division of authority soon at the head of the 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress to be formed in April from an amalgamation of Canada's two biggest union bodies.

Groups in the larger federation of labor congress are understood to be protesting an informal agreement of leaders that would give the Canadian Congress of Labor a better-than-even break in number of personnel at the head of key departments.

The result could be an attempt to reshuffle a lineup of high positions agreed upon privately by the TLC-CCL unity committee last November in advance of the parent merger convention of next April.

However, any present divergences over the departmental positions will not throw a block in the way of unification of the 600,000 members of the TLC and the CCL's 400,000 members, problems will be ironed out before the April 23 joint convention.

LEADERSHIP NOT AFFECTED

Nor will the top leadership be affected. The congress will continue as president Claude Jodoin, TLC president; as secretary-treasurer, Donald MacDonald, of the CCL, with office in the CCL, and as executive vice-president Gordon Cushing, secretary-treasurer of the TLC.

Rank-and-file objections within the TLC over the allocation of department top jobs, it was understood, followed a meeting on Nov. 29 saying that of the nine key departments in the merged congress, four would be CCL men, three to TLC men, one jointly to a man from each congress with the ninth to be filled later.

The post left open was that of chief of the department of international affairs.

However, president Jodoin and secretary-treasurer Cushing of the TLC now hedge on confirming or denying the published list of committee-chosen departmental heads. Both are congress members.

From other sources they were confirmed, but one official declared a Canadian Press story of Nov. 29 as premature in that it had been hoped to save up the information for a general announcement with an explanation of the allocation of jobs among officials of the two congresses, for the benefit of members of the TLC.

Meanwhile, it was learned TLC officials will propose to CCL officers that selection of a director for the new congress' international affairs department be left to the TLC-CCL April convention, which might result in the post going to a TLC man.

Road Diversion Blamed for Loss Of Business

CORNWALL (CP) — A seven-mile diversion stretch of Highway 2 was blamed today for a 50-to-75 per cent decrease in business for the nearby hamlets of Mille Roches and Moulinette.

Milton Matheson, president of the Mille Roches-Moulinette Businessmen Association, said the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission so far has not shown "any consideration for our loss in business and has not told where or when we will be relocated."

The road was opened last November to divert vehicular traffic from the St. Lawrence power project's main construction area three miles west of Cornwall. The diversion road by-passes both Mille Roches and Moulinette, scheduled to be relocated during 1958 in a new township to be called long Sault. Work on the new community already is under way.

Harry Bushey, Hydro property director in this area, said the commission is considering a letter from the businessmen and action to be taken will be announced soon.

Monopoly Control Of Gas Stations Is Claimed

LONDON (Reuters)—An Ontario retail gasoline dealer said Thursday that a "pernicious" system of monopoly control of gasoline stations has bankrupted many Canadian dealers and also threatens British retailers.

Douglas J. Fletcher, executive secretary of the Ontario Retail Gasoline and Automotive Service Association, told a meeting of the Motor Transport Manufacturers Association that 85 per cent of Canadian service stations now are owned outright by big gasoline companies. Most of their small businessmen tenants had small-term leases which could be cancelled on as short as 24-hour notice without explanation.

Remaining stations were independently owned and tied by exclusive selling contracts or owned and staffed by gasoline companies.

Similar agreements and methods for forcing independent British retailers to sell one-brand merchandise now are being introduced into Britain, Fletcher said.

Humane Society Seeks Support For Better Treatment of Horses

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said Wednesday it seeks public support to win humane treatment for horses working on lumber camps in northern Ontario.

"Most of the horses employed in lumber camps come from southern Ontario or Michigan," said Mrs. Noel Eaton, president of the OSPCA.

"One can't take a horse from its good existence in southern Ontario and plunge it suddenly into heavy bush work 10 hours a day in 30-below-zero weather without proper shoeing and accommodation and expect it to live more than three months."

Mrs. Eaton said that 30 per cent of the horses so used are fit only for the slaughter house by spring.

Dairy Farmers Advised to Pay For Publicity

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (CP)—Canadian dairy farmers were told at their national meeting Friday they must get their program of public relations is to be accomplished.

The advice came from F. W. Walsh, deputy minister of agriculture and marketing for Nova Scotia. In his absence because of illness, his address was read by his assistant, J. McNeil.

Mr. Walsh said an assessment of three cents per 100 pounds of milk would create a fund of $5,250,000. The dairy industry must be prepared to contribute at least half of that amount for the program.

The Dairy Farmers of Canada obtained $330,000 from its members last year. This meant that "455,000 Canadian dairy farmers are willing to spend only little over 72 cents apiece on behalf of their own industry, and they expect a handsome promotional job for their widow's mite," Mr. Walsh continued.

NEEDS PROMOTION

"We talk glibly about the importance of milk as an article of diet, and we fail to go much beyond that." If farmers completely "sold" on the health-giving qualities of milk and dairy products, milk consumption would be higher and there would be no butter surplus or worry about margarine.

Mr. Walsh said margarine sells as it does because it is cheap. The manufacturers turn out a good product and they have taught the public to believe it is "just as good as butter."

Fast-Thinking Mother Saves Six Children

OTTAWA (CP)— A fast-thinking mother saved the lives of six children Thursday after one of them set fire to the house while playing with matches.

Six-year-old Robert Lamoureux told firemen he set fire to the curtains in his home while his brother and sister played with the children of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Chenier who lived in the upstairs of the duplex.

The boy called Mrs. Chenier who, with the aid of a neighbor, took Robert, 8, Michael, 3, and Donat Lamoureux, 1, and her own three children, Susan, 4, Norman, 2, and Danny, seven months, out through a rear entrance.

The fire caused heavy damage to the home.

Thirty Are Killed As Calif. Train Careens On Side

Engineer Blacks Out, Train Rounds Curve Too Fast

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A two-car Santa Fe diesel train, its engineer apparently blacked out, rounded a curve too fast Sunday night and careened over, killing an estimated 30 persons and injuring at least 90 in one of California's worst railroad disasters.

Bodies were so badly mangled and flung about that the coroner's office had difficulty identifying them and determining exactly how many were in the morgue. At least two were children.

Deputy coroner Richard Davis said, "We believe that there are 30 bodies here."

The train was en route to San Diego, 125 miles south, of here, with 161 passengers, about half of them servicemen returning to their bases. The two cars overturned and their left sides a few minutes after leaving the station.

HAD NO CHANCE

"The people sitting on the left side were sucked right out of the window and caught on the ties when the train overturned on its side," said Flagman Bill Hines, one of the crew. "Those people didn't have a chance."

Sparks showered as both overturned cars skidded along with a deathly screeching sound for about 200 feet on the concrete of the track. Each car contained a diesel unit and room for passengers.

The accident happened inside the city limits, about four miles from Union depot.

Thousands of motorists, hearing of the wreck on their car radios, drove to the scene, creating a serious traffic jam and delaying some ambulances.

Stunned, injured survivors lay, sat or stood along the ground. Some searched for missing relatives. Many of the badly injured screamed in pain and panic.

Raymond D. Shelton, general manager for Santa Fe's coast lines, said, "engineer Frank Parrish estimated his speed at the time of derailment at 50 miles an hour. I think this curve would take about 30."

HAD BLACKED OUT

Parrish, 51, who has been with the railroad 37 years, said he had slowed the train after passing a 35-miles-an-hour marker, then apparently blacked out. The next thing he remembered was the train beginning to turn over.

Emergency calls went out for doctors, nurses, every hospital bed. Scores of ambulances lined up at the scene. Clergymen of all faiths circulated among the dead and injured, administering final rites or giving comfort.

The first ambulance attendant to reach the scene, Daniel Cesarotti, said:

"We gave them morphine until we didn't have any more—and still there were people screaming out in pain. It was like a nightmare.

"When we got there, the top of the two cars tipped over. We climbed on top of the cars and broke windows so we could climb inside.

HORRIBLE SCENE

"There were moans and moans all about us. It was horrible.

"Bodies and parts of bodies were everywhere. Many of the passengers had been crushed in their seats. Others had been thrown through the windows of the railroad cars and crushed under them.

"This is the worst I've ever seen."

Firemen used axes and sledges to smash into the cars for victims still inside. Heavy cranes later righted the cars.

When it brought up one, the assembled crowd gasped. A body hung out a jagged window. At the rear door were parts of two or three other bodies.

SOLDIERS HELP

Many victims were strewn along the right of way in the wake of sliding cars. More than 40 physicians were there. Others were dispatched to hospitals. The Red Cross sent 1,500 pints of whole blood available.

A detachment of soldiers joined police, firemen and railroad men to keep back the throngs of morbidly curious who poured in from all over the southeastern part of the city.

Many servicemen struggled to help the injured and the passengers had been crushed in their seats. Others had been thrown through the windows of the railroad cars and crushed under them.

"People were numb with fear," said a seaman marine, Bruce Corbett. "All around us servicemen were telling the passengers to "lie still and relax."

Medical crews from the marine air station at El Toro, Calif., were rushed into care for injured servicepersonnel. A base hospital was set up beside the wreckage to care for the most seriously hurt. There also was a temporary morgue.

Gunman Glad To See Me Says Policeman

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The robber was jumping out the House of Jazz when a cat in the bar pulled a .45.

He pointed the smoker at the man with the jugs and said, "Climb your mooey or you're gonna die."

Bartender John Giardina forked over $270.

Then the place began to rock and roll.

Waitress Phyllis Dixon hit the gunman on the head with a chair. Giardina slugged him with a blackjack.

Customer Robert Kirkpatrick conked him on the head with a bottle of beer.

Waiter Bachnik, another customer, jumped on top of him.

By the meantime another customer had slipped out and telephoned police, and the bartender's mother, Mrs. Vita Giardina, had run out the door and locked it.

When police arrived the whole bunch was pounding on the would-be robber.

He seemed glad to see me," said a policeman.

Driver Asphyxiated

TORONTO (CP)—Police said a 23-year-old woman recovered consciousness in a parked car Saturday morning to find her boy friend dead of asphyxiation beside her.

They said Doreen Allen, told them she and Vic Sheridan, 26, had parked the car a ir his house early in the morning and left the motor running.

She said she woke up later and after trying vainly to wake Sheridan, called for help. Doctors said the man died of carbon-monoxide asphyxiation.

U.S. AND CHINA ARE DEADLOCKED OVER FORMOSA

Talks Started August 1 At Geneva May Not End

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Red China have reached some common ground in their negotiations at Geneva over lifting the dangers of war from Formosa. That is made clear in a set of six documents and a statement on American-Red Chinese talks released by the state department Saturday.

The U. S. statement, blaming the Red Chinese for the breakdown, pointed out that the differences between the two countries are essentially over recognition of the Nationalist-held island, and not primarily over the question of renouncing the use of force.

Because of this, the prospects of breaking the deadlock appear slim.

State department officials said, however, that they believe war over Formosa can be avoided after the Geneva talks which started Aug. 1 can be kept going indefinitely.

THERE TO STAY

At the same time the United States provided another firm indication that it is in the Formosa area to stay.

State department officials agreed that the meantime another customer had slipped out and telephoned police, and the bartender's mother, Mrs. Vita Giardina, had run out the door and locked it.

When police arrived the whole bunch was pounding on the would-be robber.

He seemed glad to see me," said a policeman.

WILL REST SPINE

OTTAWA (CP)—Fisheries Minister Sinclair said he will leave this week for the West Indies to recuperate from spinal injuries suffered last summer in Siberia. Following a five-day examination at the Montreal Neurological Institute, he is understood to have been advised to take more rest.

Slush Delaying Operations by Almost Month

WINNIPEG (CP) — Snow on lakes and rivers in southeastern Manitoba and Ontario is turning to slush, delaying giant tractor-trains hauling supplies to the most a month and holding back construction of a road to the new Canada radar line.

Under normal conditions the big trains would have made a record loads of equipment to sections of the 3,000-mile line. Instead, only several northern mining sites, should have started two weeks ago.

But unusually heavy snowfalls and mild weather in recent weeks have formed insulation layers, weakening the muskeg's ice cover and forcing the crawling heavy vehicles. Trails being blazed are not expected to be in full use until next month.

RECOVER LOOT

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Four men and a woman were arrested Saturday by police and charged with burglarizing the homes of Ginger Rogers and Kirk Douglas. Officers reported "about half" of the loot—estimated at more than $50,000—was recovered.

Federal Govt. Confident Conference to Make Start on National Health Insurance

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is confident that weekly federal-provincial conference can make a start on national health insurance, Health Minister Martin said today as the conference opened.

At the same time Ontario Provincial Treasurer Porter indicated Ontario will ask that the federal government increase the share of the cost of a plan starting with a comprehensive hospital coverage program.

Both key officials talked to reporters before going into the closed conference in the railway committee room of Parliament's Centre Block at 10:15 a. m. EST.

All provinces except Newfoundland had delegates on hand for the opening session. The Newfoundland delegation was tied up by transportation connections en route.

Mr. Martin said the federal government approaches the conference "with confidence that out of it can come, at last, the realization of an important start in this matter."

"Our attitude will be clearly stated," he added. "We will be unequivocal but we are not pursuing the provinces. We want cooperation."

The federal authorities, it was understood, were prepared to outline a bill of principles and other federal contributions, depending on the type of hospital program eventually adopted. The Ottawa government, informants said, takes the view that any plan should start out with diagnostic and hospital services and then be broadened such as medical costs should come later.

Provincial Treasurer Porter said that, though Ontario would submit to the conference a plan for start of a comprehensive hospital services plan, it was not taking a rigid attitude.

Premier Hicks of Nova Scotia, the only premier present, said his province intends to listen to any proposals.

Mr. Porter handed reporters an outline of Ontario's position prepared primarily for the meeting, though he said he was not sure it would be delivered officially. It contained these Ontario views:

1. The meeting should plan the federal-provincial machinery necessary to be developed in partnership between federal and provincial governments.

2. The program should have fairly uniform national standards but should be flexible enough to let provinces adapt to their particular parts when and how it best suits each one.

3. Decision of one or more provinces not to proceed at this time should not bar the province from launching of a national plan or the granting of federal aid to provinces that have existing plans or are ready to introduce them.

4. The larger the federal share of the costs, the greater the coordination among the provinces. A 60-per-cent federal share of the estimated cost would be reasonable, provided the estimates were realistic.

5. Part of the provincial share should be raised by personal tax premiums, and this should be made mandatory on all groups as soon as administrative machinery can be set up. Other parts of the provincial share should come from general revenues and co-insurance. Each province should determine how it allocates amounts between these three types.

6. Hospital care for the mentally ill and tuberculosis patients should be considered as insured benefits.

7. The federal government should share costs of administration at the same rate as costs of service. Ontario's estimated administration costs at around five per cent. (It has been suggested that the provinces would administer the program.)

8. A comprehensive hospital services program should be introduced first, covering hospitals, hospital care and home care.

Ontario's study document, an 18-page booklet published to date figures it submitted at the October federal-provincial conference, estimates costs of its suggested plan for the first year at $285,500,000.

The overall cost in Ontario was estimated to range from $181,500,000 to $285,500,000 by 1960. By 1960, For 1957, which would be the first year of the plan, however, the breakdown was as follows:

Active hospital care, $120,400,000; convalescent and chronic hospitals, $13,400,000; diagnostic services, $6,000,000; out-patient services, $6,000,000; mental hospitals, $31,500,000; tuberculosis sanitoria, $7,000,000; administration costs, $5,400,000.

The Ontario blue book said that, in addition to a 60-per-cent federal contribution for hospital care, the province's share will be so large that new sources of revenue will have to be tapped.

It is proposed," the document said, "to finance the province's share of a hospital services plan in part from direct personal premiums. Among other revenue sources are an administration charge by patients at the time of receiving service and payments made on their behalf by other agencies."

So as not to overwhelm hospitals at the start of a program, patients should be called on to pay a part of the cost from the last week and a small payment for each day's stay. The latter is what Ontario terms co-insurance.

Co-insurance payments would be familiar to unemployment units, to encourage the use of lower-cost facilities.

U.S. Expects Eden to Agree To Hold Line Against China

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States officials hope to get agreement from Sir Anthony Eden here next week to hold the line for another year against admitting Red China in the United Nations.

American officials believe Eden will not press for any changes in basic U.S. and British policies.

Britain recognizes Red China; the U.S. does not. There have been growing pressures in Britain for the past several years to support Peiping's effort to seat Red China in the UN, and Britain has gone along with the U.S. each time the issue has come up and voted to shelve it for the year on the agenda of the Assembly session.

Officials say there is no doubt that Russia will raise the matter again next fall.

The expectation of American leaders is that Eden fully realizes the strength with which the government here is faced in a presidential election year, and will not do anything which would clearly result in making those problems more difficult.

Eden and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd are due next week here for four days of discussions on a global range of subjects, with President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles.

While there is little concern about the Red China question, there is less optimism among U.S. officials about their ability to hold the line on restrictions on trade with the Communist bloc countries.

Britain has been described as wanting to expand trade with Russia and the eastern European countries and ease substantially restrictions on trade with China. Washington is opposed to such moves now.

Highland Regt. Goes to Cyprus

LONDON (AP)—Scottish Highland infantrymen took off today for the troubled Middle East to the skirl of bagpipes wailing "Will ye no come back again?"

Colorful ceremonies marked the departure of the 1,000-man unit carrying 600 troops to strengthen the British military bastion on Cyprus.

The Highlanders will join paratroopers who were flown there last week as "fire brigade" battalions to protect Britain's lifeline in the area that further trouble broke out in the eastern Mediterranean sea.

The Highlanders climbed aboard transport planes in batches of 50 at Blackbushe airport west of London. They will be used not only to help keep order in the divided island but anywhere in the Middle East to protect British lives and interests.

Eden told the British people Saturday night he prays that out of his forthcoming meeting with President Eisenhower "can come a message of hope and a sense of guidance to the world."

Eden spoke in the British Broadcasting Corporation's television network. Eden said:

"That is what we want—a message which will give greater confidence in peace. I pray that our mission will succeed."

Eden said Britain is making the hydrogen bomb—just as the previous Labor government made the first A-bomb—because she believes it is today's most powerful deterrent to war.

NEGOTIATORS SEE LITTLE CHANCE OF SETTLING STRIKE

GM Walkout Now In Its 126th Day

TORONTO (CP)—An empty conference table in a 10th-floor suite of Toronto's Royal York Hotel gave mute testimony during the weekend to a heightening stalemate in the 126-day-old General Motors of Canada strike.

The history-making walkout now is three days longer than the 1946 strike in Windsor of the Chrysler Motor Company, it had stood as the longest deadlock in Canadian automotive history.

With the basic issues in the GM dispute largely unchanged from what they were when the strike began Sept. 19, negotiators Friday called a weekend breather in their discussions.

The main issue—inequities and contract terminology were to resume today and discussions on the main issue, the blueprint for a master agreement, Tuesday.

WALK PICKET LINES

The deadlock affects 17,000 employees, members of the United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL), confined to walk picket lines in Oshawa, Toronto, Windsor, London and St. Catharines.

The weekend adjournment was believed to indicate little chance of a settlement before Monday. No negotiators would have been expected to leave their homes during the weekend if one were imminent.

A company spokesman said Saturday that "the principal sticking core of the dispute, GM has offered a package of wage, pension and fringe benefits but the union still does not have hold out for a straight hourly increase or 15 cents.

The union also has asked for a company-paid medical plan, eight statutory holidays and revisions in the plant seniority system. The company has agreed to seven statutory holidays.

Also sought by the union are: overtime work on a voluntary basis; payment of wages weekly instead of twice-monthly: 25 per cent dismissal pay; exemption of GM products; a limitation on the use of outside contractors in GM plants.

Top company and union bargainers met in Toronto during the scene of negotiations since the strike started, Sept. 19, the last week and discussed both the master agreement and side issues.

SEE TALKS BROKEN OFF

But talks on the wage issue were shelved Thursday after the company rejected the latest offer by the union before the strike began.

Previously the union announced it had reviewed its position but company spokesman said they saw no change in its viewpoint.

The strike, now the longest in Canadian automotive history, is likely to prove the most expensive.

Body Recovered

KINGSTON (CP)—The body of Clarence Hall, 50, was found on an island hardware merchant who disappeared last Wednesday on a trip from the island to a mainland, has been recovered from a hole in the ice of Lake Ontario.

A diver, Valentin Pavuls, from Toronto, descended to the bottom of the water and reported by telephone communication that Ogle's body was there. Relatives had reported him missing.

Beaverbrook's Express Is Worried About Bride for Prince Charles, 7

LONDON (AP)—Prince Charles is only seven but some people already are worrying about a bride for the heir to the throne.

Lord Beaverbrook's empire-minded Sunday Express, in all seriousness, says the time has come to give the matter thought, with the idea of possibly relaxing Britain's traditional frowning on royal marriages "to avoid another tragic royal crisis" such as that which parted the Duke of Windsor.

"At first there seems a fanciful note about this," the paper's press. "Yet if we don't discuss and settle the matter when he a child, we may find that we have left medieval limitations upon his choice of consort when he becomes a man."

Charles would normally be expected to select his bride from royalty. But changing times have made the group of eligible princesses skimpy.

The Express comes to this conclusion:

"Only two are close to Prince Charles in age. One is Princess Maria Christine of The Netherlands. The other is Denmark's Princess Anne Marie."

Maria Christine, 8, called Marie, is the members of her family, is the fourth daughter of Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard of Holland.

Marie, 9, is the third daughter of King Frederik X and Queen Ingrid.

Harking back to the Duke of Windsor's abdication, the paper calls for action now to make things easier for Charles.

"There have been all kinds of proposals "that there should be no restrictions of any kind; that the Dominions should take the place of the countries which once supplied our royal brides.

"Some of these proposals go too far. But underlying them all is the same desire. They want to make sure that no member of the Royal Family is again left in an agony of indecision between love and duty.

W. T. Hawkins Co. Has Established Plant In City

Food Specialty Firm Plans To Employ 150 at Capacity

W. T. Hawkins Ltd., producers of food specialties, have established their Canadian manufacturing operations in Belleville.

Production of one of the company's largest items is expected to get underway by the end of this week in the new plant in the Graham building at 105 South Pinnacle Street. Eventually the company expects to employ 150 people.

A lease for 20,000 square feet of floor space in the Graham building was signed at noon on Saturday, 15 days after the company's plant and machinery was destroyed in a $250,000 fire in Tweed. By 8.00 p.m. Saturday seven carloads of machinery had been moved into the new quarters. Canadian sales of the company's six products is between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 annually.

The new Belleville plant gives W. T. Hawkins 6,000 additional square feet of floor space and will allow expansion and experimentation with new products.

WORKERS TO COMMUTE

James Markner, production superintendent, said today that initially the staff will be small with most workers commuting to Belleville from Tweed. All key personnel and workers accustomed to the company's products will be brought from Tweed each day.

As the company acquires the necessary specialized machinery to expand production it is expected that the staff will grow until a maximum working force of 150 is employed with a weekly payroll of $3,000.

Special equipment required by the company has been transferred to Tweed from designs and patterns made by Mr. Markner.

Negotiations to establish the Hawkins plant here were initiated by Mayor Alex Forrester on Friday, January 6th, the same day the plant burned in Tweed.

Mayor Forrester, and industrial commission chairman, William Argue met with W. T. Hawkins, vice president of the company, the next day.

Company officials were shown several sites in the city before they decided on the Graham building on the S. Pinnacle St. location. A second meeting with Mayor Forrester, Mr. Argue and Mr. Hawkins, was held in the city hall a week later. The lease for the Graham property was signed Saturday, January 21st, at noon.

Rape-Slaying Victim Buried

TORONTO (CP)—Linda Lamp, kin, 13-year-old rape-slaying victim, will be buried today.

Her body was found sprawled in a deserted waterfront street near Midnight last Wednesday. Police said she was strangled and raped.

Eighteen hours later Robert Flinton, 25-year-old truck driver, husband and father of two small boys, was charged with murder.

Linda was to be buried today from St. Paul's Anglican church. Hundreds of friends were named as pallbearers.

Meanwhile police continued their search for the eastside downtown area for evidence. Sunday they found a blood-stained knife wedged in a street sewer about a block from the garage where Flinton's truck was parked. A shoe and compact belonging to the pretty, brunette victim were found earlier -in the same district.

Clerical Error Says Official Of Cheque Sent

DAVENTRY, England (AP) — Farmer David Lloyd reported today that he has received nothing from the government, and has to pay his bills.

The cheque from the food ministry is for 7 pounds, 6 shillings and 9 pence. Printed across it is the statement that "if presented through a bank within three months the postmaster-general will pay the amount stated."

Lloyd recently sold six heifers, and the food ministry guarantees farmers a minimum price on such livestock sales. Lloyd's heifers brought more than the minimum.

"So I was entitled to nothing," he reportedly told reporters. "And it seems that the ministry decided they should send me a cheque for it.

"A clerical error," said a bluship official.

$30,000 Worth Of Radium Found Safe in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — A Canadian Vickers official said today about $30,000 worth of radium, earlier believed to have been destroyed in a boiler shop fire Sunday, has been found safe in the company's fire department.

Safety Engineer J. E. MacNamara said the radio-active element, about the "size of a button," was recovered from the fire shop last Friday and had not been removed.

At first company officials feared the radium, held in a lead container, had been destroyed in the boiler shop, had been destroyed in the Tuesday blaze.

USED AS CHECK

Mr. MacNamara said the radium is used in testing welds in boilers for possible defects. It is also used by the company's fire department to check welding on ships.

Fire Chief Joseph Lachapelle said the fire apparently was started in a pneumatic tool shop and spread to the boiler shop. No estimated damage at about $30,000.

Wilbert R. Dove Killed in Crash Near Colborne

Wilbert R. Dove, 35, of 103 Chatham street, was fatally injured Saturday night when his late model car went out of control on a curve west of Colborne, ripped through guide rail posts and wrapped itself around a tree. Wreckage of the car was found 200 feet from where it left the highway.

The injured man was taken to Colborne General Hospital—where he dir about three o'clock Sunday morn...; two hours after the accident.

Dove was westbound at the time of the accident and was driving alone. His 1953 model car missed the curve and went off the highway on the north side of the road. There were no witnesses to the accident. Provincial police at Colborne said there would likely be an inquest although no date had been decided.

Born in Schomberg in the Township of King, son of the late Nancy Dove, and the late George Dove, Mr. Dove had lived in Belleville since for the past 11 years. He was a butcher at the Dominion Store here. He was a member of Bridge Street United Church and was also a member of Eureka Lodge, A. F. and A. M. No. 283.

A veteran of World War II he enlisted in the Royal Canadian in 1939 and served in Canada until 1945 when he received discharge with the rank of Corporal.

He is survived by his wife, the former Jean Lavery, his mother, and one brother Russell Dove of Schomberg.

Colorful Guards' Band Will Parade in City

Part of Canada's most colorful regiments will parade in the city on Wednesday in all its scarlet and gold glory, military music and precision marching.

The unit of the Second Battalion of the Regiment of Guards will arrive here from Kingston where it performed on Tuesday. Accompanying the band will be sixty members of the regiment. All will be in the colorful full dress of the unit complete with busbies, scarlet coats, blue and gold trousers, etc.

The Guards' fifty-piece military band is under the regimental director Captain G. E. Fyfe. It with the regiment is stationed in Petawawa.

It should be one of the most spectacular military parades seen here in years. The band is rated one of the top organizations in Canada while the "troops" bow to none as a well-trained infantry unit.

The parade will get under way at sharp noon on Wednesday. It will leave the Bridge Street armouries at that time and swing along Bridge Street to Front St., and up Front Street to the upper city bridge. It will return to the armouries via the same route.

The unit carries with it a pipe band while members of the military band can "double" in orchestra instruments. Plans were discussed to hold a band concert in the city but these had to be dropped. The twenty-piece pipe band is under the direction of Pipe Major Archie Cox.

A mobile recruiting unit of the regiment will be at the armouries on January 23, 26 and 27, to sign any city or district young men willing to join the ranks of Canada's outstanding infantry units.

Driver Claims Car Was Forced Into Hydro Pole

A broken hydro pole with total damages amounting to $600 resulted over the weekend when a car was forced over the curb at the intersection of Dundas and Bridge streets.

Driver of the car, Clarence Johnston, 28, of 84 Foster Ave., suffered lacerations to his mouth.

Johnston told police that he had been driving on Dundas street when near the intersection another car forced him over the curb where his car slammed into the hydro pole. Damage to the car was about $300 while police reported it would cost about $33 to replace the pole.

Milk bottles rattled, the milk wagon shafts were broken early this morning when a Reid's Dairy milk wagon was struck by an auto at the corner of Catherine and Everett St.

Helge Vemb, 83 West Bridge Street, was eastbound on Catherine when a horse-drawn milk wagon, proceeded out into the intersection from Everett St. The driver of the car applied his brakes but due to the icy condition of the street the vehicle skidded into the side of the wagon.

The delivery horse was "on his own" at the time of the accident, having continued on up the street while the driver was making house deliveries. The horse became nervously failed to observe the "stop" sign.

Speaker Outlines Growth of Clock Industry to Club

On Thursday evening the Y's Men's Club heard W. J. Hardill, vice-president and general sales manager of Western Clock Co., Peterborough. Mr. Hardill who has been 22 years in the clock business outlined the growth of the industry and related some of the history of timekeeping.

From the first manmade used by the ancients the modern timepiece with electric motor, concealed wires, hour glasses, notched candles, and heavy weight-operated machines to compact but accurate devices anyone can afford to own.

"The electric clock," said the speaker, "is simply a motor driving the clock hands and speeds the accuracy upon the frequency of the power company's generators. Any time long as it is kept plugged in the electric clock keeps accurate time."

To illustrated his talk Mr. Hardill showed a film entitled "The Electric Clock." The film took the viewer on a tour through a modern clock factory and showed the fabrication of the many precision parts that go to make up today's clocks.

At the end of the film Mr. Hardill presented the club with one of his firm's newest models of electric alarms. A draw was held and the winner of the clock was Ralph Bailey.

The speaker was introduced by Mac Rankin and thanked by George Wonnacott.

LUCAS. — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, who passed away January 23rd, 1948.
Many lonely hearts are sad,

And in His own good time
We shall meet and know.

His memory we will always keep.
My life cannot be the same
Since you were called away,
All I can do is tell what to say.
God knows best, and you're at rest
In a home that is lonesome today.
—Sadly missed by wife, Rachael and family.

CRONKSHIT. — In loving memory of a dear mother and father, Lizzie and Joseph Cronkshit.

W. T. HAWKINS CO.

"Our establishment here is a matter of reconstruction," said Mr. Marker this morning. "We built this machinery originally. The fire in Tweed was bad; everything buckled. We lost a lot of tools. These have been replaced and we are now building new equipment."

Mr. Marker stated that the Tweed plant was terribly congested as the company's operations outgrew its facilities.

"We not only have more space here, but it is better laid out and will make for great efficiency," he said of the new quarters. "It will allow us to make new items we have never touched before."

START PRODUCTION THIS WEEK

He said the company would start producing Cheezies this week and would progress to Magic Pop, Gold Star potato chips as machinery became available.

He also stated that the company would continue its program of promoting potato growers in Canada to produce potatoes suitable for the company's uses.

W. T. Hawkins Ltd., established its Canadian plant in Tweed in 1949. Its maximum employment, in two shifts, was 125. When the plant, housed in a building owned by the Tweed Steel Works, was destroyed earlier this month the company was employing 75 workers mostly women. The company's head office is in Chicago.

Following the fire Reeve T. G. Graham held a special meeting of council attended by company officials with a view to keeping the plant in Tweed. Lack of sufficient space in Tweed was responsible for the company's move to Belleville.

Farmers' Union Women's Leader Addresses Meet

A meeting of Roslin Ontario Farmers' Union Local 183, was held in Plainfield hall on Saturday evening.

Musical selections were given by Mr. Arnold Barker and Mr. Walter Chumbley. Mr. Clarence Graham brought greetings from Tweed Local 167.

Mr. Harold Murphy of Marysville, who is the district county director, of the Ontario Farmers' Union, introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Evelyn Prosser, who is the Women's President of the Ontario Farmers' Union.

Mrs. Prosser spoke on some things the Farmers' Union had accomplished during the past year.

The Inter-Provincial Farm Union Council had continuously pressed for parity prices for farmers.

The Ontario Farmers' Union president had the first speaker at Labor's national conventions in Toronto and Windsor and alerted labor to the farmers' needs.

The Ontario Farmers' Union presented their brief to the agricultural committee of the Ontario government, asking for legislation for producer-controlled marketing boards. At present the marketing boards are government controlled.

Much has been accomplished and it is the duty of every woman to get out and do her part to organize and work for better living conditions and security, for themselves and their farm women, including our young people, said Mrs. Prosser. In these highly complex times, only organization can hope for success, unless careful consideration is given to the future, as well as to meeting the current problems of the day.

Mrs. Prosser stressed that, through locals, former union members have encouraged farmers to think and ask questions. "We have aroused their curiosity and given the marketing, in organization, in co-operation, and in carrying out the aims of the union members, but also many non-union members," she said. "Each individual member should contribute to the success of the organization. If we are to retain our standard of living, we must see to it that our income can support it.

"Wise foresight in financing is necessary to keep the farm picture before those who now control it. Each individual member should contribute to the success of the organization. One thing that appears necessary for good progress, is some method of keeping members informed of action and policy. The first publication of the monthly Ontario Farmers' Union paper should be in the mail soon, and from this you can see what your Ontario Farmers' Union is doing."

A question period followed. Mrs. Prosser for her splendid address. Refreshments were served. A vote of thanks was given

Recreation Director Provides Skating on 3 Open-Air Rinks

TRENTON (Special) — Recreation director William Workman deserves a lot of credit for providing open-air skating for hundreds of children and adults this year.

He supervised and did much of the manual work in creating three rinks, two on Bayshore Park under lights on its softball diamond and the other on the bay out from the headquarters for the Trenton Yacht Club. Now scores of people are taking advantage of these added recreation facilities.

Director Workman went a step further. He collected dozens of discarded Christmas trees and burns them at night to give the skaters atmosphere. For the first time in years skaters seem to be bubbling over with enthusiasm. "All they needed was the ice and somebody to maintain it," one happy skater remarked.

Trenton firemen pitched in to help by flooding the rinks on the park. Director Workman has no trouble finding cleaners since everybody is willing to give him a hand.

Already one organization has planned to hold an ice skating carnival in the open-air this week. Director Workman claims that rinks down by the bay shore have not affected business at the Quinte Street. arena.

Motorist Saves Lives of Three

OTTAWA (CP)—A passing motorist was credited with saving the lives of three persons early Sunday when he pounded on the door of a blazing home for more than five minutes before he awoke the occupants.

George Monuk, 68, his wife, Berl, 56, and brother-in-law Alex Bodnar, 68, were awakened by Arne Larsen, 36, who saw flames shooting from the summer kitchen as he drove by.

"We were all sleeping like logs" Mr. Monuk said. "If we hadn't heard that fellow knocking we would all have burned to death."

The fire, of unknown origin, gutted the two-storey frame home, tenant.

Mr. Bailey Senior, in turn rammed the rear of a car operated by Gerald Finkle, 34, of 46 Queen Street, Trenton, recently released from hospital here following treatment for a head injury.

Clairmon't car received $500 damage to the front. His passenger Bernard Parisien of Picton, was not hurt.

One Man Killed, Second Wounded In Shanty Battle

MONTREAL (CP)—One man is dead and one severely wounded following a shanty shotgun shooting, when investigation by police, said. In a Verdun hospital, his body riddled and pierced with shotgun pellets, is Leo Robert, 33, of Hemmingford, Que.

Neighbors of the pair, who were cronies, came running after at least two shots, they told police, and discovered Bourgeoise staggering round his decrepit shanty making his will and shouting "I'm dying," while blood flowed from his wounds.

Robert was lying nearby. Bourgeoise, a handyman with a reputation for eccentricities, died of a head wound.

16 Deputy Reeves In Grey County Council Eligible

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Reeve Ingard McCauley said Saturday the credentials of 16 deputy reeves on the Grey county council have been checked with the county clerk and found in order.

A qualifications committee was appointed by the finance committee of county council last week to investigate a charge by the weekly Durham Chronicle that 10 deputy reeves were sitting on council illegally.

The newspaper earlier had said that "10 men are occupying county council seats on the basis of false statements in the voters' lists."

The Chronicle asked that the 10 deputy reeves either refute the charge or resign.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Yugoslav National Ballet, a troupe of 40 persons, arrived Friday on the liner Israel for a 15-week tour of American and Canadian cities. Two Jail Inmates Strapped For Unruly Conduct, 2 Others Charged With Wilful Damage

Two inmates of the Hastings county jail will be charged with wilful damage and two others were ordered strapped following a fire in the solitary confinement section of the jail Sunday night.

To be charged with wilful damage are George McFarland, 22, of Rossmore, and Russell Hambrook, 17, of Toronto. Ordered strapped this morning were Rodney Sharpe, 17, of Belleville, and James Reid, of Trenton.

The four prisoners were placed in solitary confinement Saturday evening after they had acted unruly during the evening supper hour. The disturbance was started by one of the prisoners who threw his evening meal on the floor.

The four were put in solitary confinement for infractions of regulations.

Sunday night one of the four men in solitary confinement is said to have used a cigaret lighter to set fire to toilet paper which was shoved through a ceiling ventilator from where it dropped into a room used to store prison clothing.

Jail officials and guards spotted the fire in time and put the blaze out with extinguishers and fire fighting equipment.

Sharpe is serving a four month jail sentence on a charge of common assault, James Reid is serving time on a theft charge; Russell Hambrook was convicted last week on a charge of auto theft and is awaiting sentence; McFarland is awaiting trial on a charge of disorderly conduct.

A MAN OF RARE TALENTS

The death Thursday of Howard Fleming, publisher of the Owen Sound Sun-Times, deprives Canadian journalism of a man of rare, if not unique, talents.

Mr. Fleming was far removed from the colorful printer-publishers of an earlier era; neither did he belong to that latter-day group which, one suspects, regards publishing as just another business. To him publishing a newspaper was a public trust. To his tasks he brought a professional exactitude and an unshakable integrity. His talents as a businessman, which were considerable, he dedicated to providing the money without which service to the community would have been impossible. His aim was to profit in order to serve, rather than to serve in order to profit. As a result, the Sun-Times was a thoroughly newspaperman for its exceptionally thorough news and picture coverage of an unusually large area, comprising almost the whole of the two counties of Grey and Bruce.

A man of strong convictions, amongst his strongest was that it was primarily the duty of a newspaper to inform, rather than attempt to influence, the public. Never did he unhesitatingly refused to wield the influence of his newspaper in most controversies in which there was room for an honest difference of opinion. Yet he could, on occasion, take a firm and unequivocal stand. The fact that Owen Sound is the only "dry" city in Ontario is largely due to him.

Mr. Fleming's only self indulgence was work. For this he paid a heavy price. During the trying depression years there was rarely a day when he did not re-appear at the office in the evening, after a ten-hour working day. Sightless years ago a heart attack slowed him from his desk to his home. From there he continued to direct the paper.

His enforced absence from the immediate scene of the daily battle to meet deadlines gave him "leisure" to read widely. His catholic taste and his nimble scissors further enhanced the reputation of the paper's editorial page for the presentation of a sparkling selection of the best editorial comment of other papers.

When he wrote, which was comparatively seldom, it was with a polished pen that produced some of the economy of words which were the envy of his reporters. When he edited, the blue pencil magically deleted words or whole phrases without changing the sense one iota or diminishing the information by a single fact.

The years of illness would have soured life for most men. But not so with Howard Fleming. As his period of ill health lengthened, his sense of humor grew sharper, his sympathies wider, his judgments more mellow. Not even the death of his younger son, George, one of the first Canadian bomber pilots to die in the Second Great War, embittered him.

His family and his friends have one consolation in their bereavement. Much of him lives on—in his newspaper.

INQUESTS

A couple of decades ago inquests were common.

Their popularity waned. At first law enforcement officials dispensed with them when a man was going to be charged with an offence. Eventually inquests became almost a rarity.

Now Attorney General Kelso Roberts has announced a policy of a return to the inquest method of investigation.

At Windsor, according to The Canadian Press, "a father who admitted at an inquest three months ago that he hit his 11-month-old baby girl with his fist" was acquitted Wednesday night of murder or manslaughter in the child's death.

"The father's testimony at the inquest October 20, 1955, was not admitted at the trial," we are told.

The despatch did not say why the father's evidence at the inquest was not admitted at the trial, but reason because he invoked the provisions of the Canada Evidence Act. As we understand it, this Act protects a man from incriminating himself. No accused person can be forced to take the witness box. But anybody can be required to testify at an inquest. Under pain of indictment for perjury, he must tell the inquest the truth. If the truth is one that has been guilty of a crime, an inquest would force him to incriminate himself were it not for the provisions of the Canada Evidence Act.

There is much wisdom in the law's effort to protect people from being forced to testify against themselves. Although we know little of the legal history behind this principle, we presume that it originated as a revulsion against the use of torture by the police to extract a confession, once a practically universal procedure. Nobody who has any knowledge of the third degree methods will suggest that the abolition of the compulsory oath applied to accused persons when being questioned outside of a court. Possibly, however, some consideration might be given to a revision of existing rules once an accused person is brought before a court. The spectacle of a man telling a coroner's jury that he beat his son "all over with my fist" and then being acquitted by another jury because this admission could not be used at his trial is not one which fits well with our sense of justice.

Be this as it may, this incident strikingly depicts the limited usefulness of inquests.

SONG OF REJOICING

Out of the dressing robe, into the shorts,
Out of the bedroom and down to the sports;
Leaving the women to lunch with the sports;
Glad to sit down at the table with men.
Done with the watch, lest a pill time be missed.
Done with the pulse-taking clutch of the wrist.
Can't race the room with the children as yet,
But can wear a shirt and a necktie again.
Mustn't do much until stronger I get.

Every one tells me I shouldn't complain.
Needing a haircut; that's plain as can be.
The barber will soon get a visit from me.
Off with the slippers and on with the shoes.
Back to the overcoat; back to the hats.
Never mind asking how much did I lose;
I'm too excited to talk about that.
Out of the bedroom and onto the street,
Glad to be able to stand on my feet.

The financial statement was presented by D. J. D. Jones, the people's warden, and was considered quite satisfactory considering the adverse conditions which prevail generally at the present. The retiring wardens, Geo. N. Gorman and D. J. D. Jones were re-elected, and Harry Chapman whom the Vicar appointed as his warden, and the lay vestry elected L. C. Patrick as people's warden. The following were elected to compose the executive council: Mrs. Frank Poirier, Miss Bessie Wills, F. W. Geen, Hubert M. Jones, H. O. Thompson, F. W. Anderson, P. J. Carre, Clair Patterson, D. J. D. Bobbie's Way With Gunman

(Vancouver Province)

There is a story about a London police officer who was asked what he would do if approached by a gun on him.

"I would go up to him", he said, "and I would say: 'I'm sorry, sir, but you'll have to hand that over to somebody else'."

The story is apocryphal, of course. And with everyone acquainted with the imperturbable dignity of the London policeman, and with the respect which the U.S. commands, will detect an underlying grain of truth.

That sort of dignity is not automatic. It is the product of tradition, training and discipline (and, you might say if you were a cynic, of a measure of stage-management.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ADVENTURE INTO THE UNKNOWN

Adventurers are among greatest benefactors. They have, delved into the earth for the metals. They have crossed great areas in search for homesteads and challenged the air, the sea and the untried. You will find these brave and courageous men among our inventors, pioneers and scientists. It's the unknown that men strive to discover. The entire world is interested in the adventure of Admiral Byrd and his men, and who is to appraise the benefits that may follow? It wasn't so very long ago that the covered wagons threaded across raw lands to open up the great West here in America. They faced terrific experiences—but they initiated enterprises that have made America the world the wonder of the earth.

The great adventures that befell the discoverers of both the poles of this earth are now history. Now the problem is to make this knowledge, and that yet to be learned benefit mankind. The entire world cheered the adventure of Col. Lindbergh. That one thing advanced aviation as no other attempt had. When one man completes a task, others know there are plenty then to follow up!

We are now learning unknown things about the sea and its strange inhabitants by the knowledge gained through submarines and divers with cameras to reveal these secrets. Rich as we are in knowledge gained from the scientists, miners, and engineers, there is an abundance of things to be revealed about the unknown. Our great telescopes have discovered data about the heavens that we knew nothing of a few years ago. Much, however, still remains a secret as to "What hath God wrought!"

What a debt we owe to our scientists, our surgeons, and researchers. Most of them work long and silently in laboratories, wishing only to benefit all mankind, caring little or nothing for material gain. Benefactors all!

Letter To The Editor

Warns Future Years May Bring Poor Crops

"Editor, Ontario Intelligencer":

I was interested with a reference to the U.S. population the other day, credited to the Edmonton Journal: but particularly to the following sentence: "The latest official estimate for 1955 places it at round 165,000,000 — a rise of nearly 15,000,000 in five years".

It seems to this writer that, over the long term, the upcurving number of mouths around the American dinner-table must have increasing significance for us. 165,000,000 Americans. We, to the north and south of the line — are preoccupied these days with problems stemming from what one of the political columnists terms "the burden of abundance", but it deserves to be remembered that more grain has already harvested in these North American fields in the past 12 years than in the previous quarter-century. It is unnerving that the unpredictable weatherman has plans for a special dirt "success story" in the dozen years immediately ahead! Who can tell? Meanwhile I recall the dismal warning of a wheat expert back in 1950: "In the U.S. — in those fields, thin crops are overdue!"

I heartily agree with your own editorial conclusion, recently, in "One Man's Meat . . . ", in dealing with the wheat surplus problem in Argentina: "If the crop is good it will increase Canada's problem; if it is poor it will reduce the export demand for Canadian grown wheat somewhat." Somehow, though, it seems difficult to hope for a crop failure in Argentina, as much better solution, but a much more difficult one would be to find someone who would be wise some method whereby so-called "surplus" supplies of food could reach the hungry in many lands."

Those views suit this reader; yet the weather hazards stay in those distant fields of Argentina, in the United States, the Soviet Union, Canada's prairies, alike. Far stranger things have happened to the grain crop than harvests in the American South West gluts, as when, in 1937, with today's "Soil Bank" plans at Washington — with the nation's wheat-acres acres at its low point. Even at the present hour, men in Kansas are reported to have their faith assure pre that 40 out of every 100 bushels of U.S. binned breadstuffs are "locked-up" against hard times.

"A GROWER".

Dinosaurs' Fate Lesson

(Christian Science Monitor)

In New York City the superstite passengers behind the driver's seat, will no longer have a monopoly on the safer seats. They have a trial period for both, has certified that standard-size automobiles used as cabs have proved safer than the large type and at least equally acceptable to the public.

This comes when the trend in American car manufacturing continues to be toward bigger and bigger and bigger "packages" despite in many cases the congestion. There is no longer much distinction between the various makes, as they appear in the salesrooms—only by differences in weight and size. A "low-priced" automobile is now one asks if there is such a thing as a medium-priced or high-priced car in the twenties.

Maybe there is some reason a taxicab "fare" finds all the room he needs in a stock model with a moderate wheel base. Certainly, but considering the limousine - type vehicles many of the fancy automobile had reached a size beyond which there is no advantage for either, there is the mystery of the dinosaurs—with the available extra room for a relatively small body is more of a survival factor than mere bulk.

However, the automobile designer has at least a theoretical solution toward which he apparently is striving. This is to build a car that will be larger inside than it is outside.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

CREEDS ON LEGS

Some once asked Leonardo da Vinci why he had not profited from certain artistic productions which were manifestly inferior to his. His reply was: "I am not profited by reading."

In other words, this great genius kept right on working.

"What do you do, Babe" someone asked Slugger Ruth once, "when they begin to throw pop bottles at you?" And his wise reply was, "I just keep my mind on that ball."

Keep on creating—if you do well, that will be a criticism of those who do not do well. If you do not well, it will be a criticism of you; and perhaps you'll be glad you need.

When they begin to throw pop bottles, just keep thinking about the ball. Nobody remembers seven out of the people who threw pop bottles at Babe Ruth, but baseball enthusiasts will never forget Slugger himself.

The best witness to goodness is the well lived. The greatest men in the world is one that walks about his task. He has no time to classify or have their place, but so do the perambulating creeds. When God wanted to give his message in all its fullness, He arranged that the Word should become flesh and dwell among men.

Criticism or praise—both come to the creative achievement, and by creative achievement we mean by human men. God has an overwhelming interest in humble men.

Unmarked Cars Used by Police

(Montreal Gazette)

The traffic courts of New York were crowded last week, perhaps as never before. All records were smashed by the number of men and women who had received tickets, returnable in person.

What explained this record-smashing turnout? It was caused by a sudden outbreak of checking up on traffic violations.

Police Commissioner Stephen Kennedy put 50 unmarked police cars on the streets of New York over the New Year's weekend. He wanted to cut down on the slaughter. He found it so effective that he has ordered the program continued, though on a smaller scale. An undisclosed number of unmarked police cars are still moving about the city.

According to say, some people don't like the idea. Councilman Lazarus Rosenthal wants the Bronx has file a resolution in protest. This resolution would make it obligatory that all cars assigned to traffic duty be distinctively painted so that they can be seen. The resolution says that the police commissioner's "purpose and intent may be considerably defeated" by the unmarked vehicles, but "a large difference of opinion exists as to the use of these unmarked cars."

Councilman Cunningham had received complaints from persons who had been arrested in Brooklyn if they were stopped, while driving a car, by policemen not in uniform. He says that the department points out that only the cars are unmarked, but the drivers of police cars are in the regular full uniform. Moreover, these cars are the latest models with all the standard lights. And these are used because, as one police officer explained, "pull over."

It is perfectly true that the fully marked police car does have a deterring influence on all motorists and pedestrians to keep alive to their personal whims or even their ignorance to influence their driving habits. Another reason is similar incompetency on the part of many drivers themselves. Another is the defect is laziness. There is also a fourth reason which explains the departures from what most people consider justice. That is that, except for a limited number of professes, murder, for example, and there was effective sale of narcotics and the liquor laws there is no statutory minimum sentence. It is well that the courts should have discretionary power but when the lawyers become incompetent this becomes an abuse which ought to be remedied. There is another point which is not always understood with regard to sexual perverts. Many of them follow adult patterns, a fact unknown to the general public. When we read of sex perverts being permitted to roam at large parents immediately think of the terrible danger to substitute to their children. They ask what is really—a nationwide problem.

"I am a teacher and my little ones are constantly bringing their colds to school with them. It seems that my biggest job is trying to keep them getting them.

Would you please send me your booklet on this — I believe it's called C R I."

Now please don't tell me you don't know what C R I means. It means whatever the little tots bring to school and spread to teacher or their schoolmates via open-face cough or sneeze or polite conversational spray.

There's only one way to keep from getting C R I if teacher or pupil is allowed to come to school with what purports to be a "slight" cold, sniffle, knuckle-rub.

That way is simple. Wear a mask, an efficient mask, such as the masks described in Call it C. R. I. Wear the mask, not out of fashion and not when you are alone, but while you are within conversational spray range of anybody who possibly has the C R I. Conversational spray range is from handshaking distance up to 5 feet.

Why Courts Are Lenient

(By J. V. McAree in the Toronto Globe and Mail)

Recently there has been understandable public clamor against the leniency with which certain against children have been treated by the courts; and we have read some inquiries about the cause or causes. The chief reason for such findings and inadequate sentences is that we have too many incompetent magistrates, many alive to their personal whims or even their ignorance to influence their driving habits. Another reason is similar incompetency on the part of many drivers themselves. Another is the defect is laziness. Teachers are Not Teachable

Twelve or fifteen years ago, in the general memory of a number of the finest teacher, Miss Lotie Berner, who served at Chapel Street school in Canandaigua for fifty years. I announced that I would send every home school teacher who asked for it a complimentary set of Little Lessons — a 25-volumette pocket cyclopedia of health.

My motive? Well, I had a naive notion that school teachers might glean some practical health information which they could impart to their pupils.

The experiment was disappointing. I was constrained to think that (1) I'm a poor teacher or (2) teachers ensconced in a regular job are unteachable.

Now comes an Indiana lady with

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The wife of a broker I know met, a woman friend downtown, and in the course of their brief conversation, the friend mentioned that she was very happy over an investment the broker had made for her a few months ago in one of the uranium stocks that have since so sensationally well over the year.

"Have you told him so?" asked the broker's wife proudly.

"No, I haven't had a chance, lately . . ."

"Oh, do phone him!" sprouted the broker's wife. "You have no idea how pleased he would be! For, regardless anybody ever thanks a broker, he knows that over and over the average person likes to say: 'I told my broker to buy me So-and-So.' If a stock turns out badly, the average person says: 'The darn fool broker has got me in the red!' I have no idea what percentage of deals are on the advice of brokers, and what percentage are on the opinion or selection of the investor. But I am fairly sure even the most experienced investors like to have a broker's opinion, if not his advice. But between you and me and the gatepost, how happy a broker is to get a word of thanks form anybody whose investment has turned out well."

Investment is a curiously personal thing. Even a child, I think, even well-heeled people hate to lose money. There is a special pride in getting $1 or $2 little man feels big on making some money by investment. Never in the big or the vestor must feel. And to feel big is one of the most cherished things in the whole world. It is natural, therefore, that men both small and big should treasure the notion that their success is their own, by virtue of a superior intelligence than most men possess.

Many brokers I know are sad men. Whatever their feelings about the goods they deal in, they have less faith in human nature, and not one of them would dare to say to a client: "I put you onto a good thing, didn't I?"

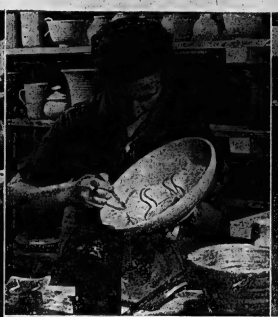
In Piccadilly, perhaps the best-known street in London, is a very fashionable tailor-mist's and the window in which a large lion's head snarls in the background is a familiar sight to many tourists. Wilfred Thomas, a commentator who is often heard in BBC programs, paid a visit to the shop a few weeks ago and mentioned it in a subsequent broadcast. He was told of the day when they had received a mysterious box which apparently contained something alive. Prolonged search amongst the paper and shavings inside at least produced a rather disappointing result but a clue to its sender.



Further excavation at last revealed a small piece of paper and on it, in a large, scrawled hand, the words, "Will you please make this into a rug for my dolls' house?"

Why servants should be permitted to be at all is a thing we have not personally considered? The truth is that little children are no more a danger than grown-ups and then they are from the reader or the writer, unless adhere to set patterns. They associate with their own kind who are already corrupted. This should not be considered is so with some, but not with all.

Maritime Couple Make World Famous Pottery

A bisque bowl (once-fired in kiln) is decorated with one of Erica's original and fantastic animals in various underglazes. A variety of Deichmann shapes is shown on the table and shelves. Years of research and over 3,500 experiments by Erica have resulted in distinctive glazes which characterize the Deichmanns' work.

At the kickwheel in his Kingston Peninsula home, Kjeld shapes a piece. Musquodoboit Valley stoneware clay is used, to which has been added a proportion of finely ground rock. Deichmanns do all their own work, deliberately limiting production to what they can handle between them.

The perfection of form and purity of line which distinguish the work of Kjeld and Erica Deichmann are as familiar to lay lovers of pottery as they are to the seasoned critic. From the Deichmanns' kiln come pieces which rival the best in fine bone chinas. Today, eager buyers flock to their farm-studio near Saint John, N.B., to choose new pieces almost before they're cool. Many years of patient experimentation with a variety of glazes and designs have brought the Deichmanns to the front ranks of pottery makers as, under their sensitive fingers, each piece becomes, in its own way, a collector's item.

Erica dips biscuited pieces in glaze as Kjeld scrapes bottoms before sponging. Unglazed base will show the stony clay and Deichmann signature. Pieces are twice-fired in kiln; rare colors of the brilliant, hard glaze on Deichmann-ware are derived from metallic oxides in glaze formulae. Kjeld breaks the weathering clay, assisting it to dry before submersion in water bath prior to mixing. All wheel-thrown work is done by Kjeld who also prepares clay bodies, looks after firing. No molds or forms are used, and because all pieces are hand-thrown or modelled, each piece is a collector's item.

Canadian Sealer Seeks New Route In Antarctic Ice

WEDDELL SEA, Antarctica (Reuters)—The British Commonwealth Antarctic expedition ship Theron headed north today away from crushing icepacks in an effort to find another route to reach its base at Vahsel bay.

The Theron, a Canadian sealing vessel on its way to Antarctica to set up an advance base for the main British expedition taking part in next year's International Geophysical Year, was firmly stuck in the Weddell sea for four three weeks.

The ship now will try to sail around the icepack, approaching Vahsel bay along the Antarctic coast. The expedition has only six weeks to reach its base, land supplies and return to its New Zealand home base before the winter freeze sets in.

The Theron is being aided by reconnaissance helicopters from the Royal Navy netlayer Protector, now picking its way through an iceberg-filled sea 55 miles away from the battling little sealer.

Vancouver Probe May Soon Close

VANCOUVER (CP)—The royal commission inquiry into Vancouver's police force may end this week, commissioner R. H. Tupper said Sunday.

"This is merely a guess, however," he said. "I don't want it to appear that I feel the probe should end, thereby discouraging counsel from bringing forth evidence from further witnesses."

The 37th session of the inquiry is scheduled for today. Judge F. A. Sargent, a member of the police commission, was expected to be the first witness.

Saturday, John G. Gould, lawyer for former chief Walter Mulligan, said his client had moved to Los Angeles.

"He's not coming back voluntarily so he won't be giving evidence," Mr. Gould said.

Mr. Mulligan was accused when the inquiry began last July, of sharing in gambling and bootlegging payoffs.

Krupker was picked up by police Saturday night when found wandering without apparent means of support. He gave his address as the White Star Hotel at First and Michigan streets, Detroit. He was arraigned today and remanded to Jan. 25 on the vagrancy charge.

Police chief James Torrance said Krupker fits the description of the wanted man to some extent.

Murdered Girl's Wallet Is Found Wedged in Sewer

TORONTO (CP)—Police said today the finding Sunday night of Linda Lampkin's empty wallet in a sewer inlet indicates she was not bed the evening she was slain.

The homicide squad said it believes the 13-year-old girl had $3.75 in her wallet when she started homeward after a dancing lesson last Wednesday night. Later that night she was found slain on a downtown street.

Robert Fitton, 21, driver of a mail truck, is charged with murder in connection with the girl's rape and death. He denied knowledge of the wallet.

Police said it was found by detective inspector Adolphus J. Payne, wedged in the sewer in the eastside waterfront area not far from where the girl's body was found. It contained snapshots and $ house key.

Mrs. Fitton visited her husband today but spent only 1½ minutes of a 30-minute visiting period with him. He started to cry shortly after she arrived.

LETTER TO PARENTS

As Mrs. Fitton started to tell him of their family he burst into tears and left the visiting booth. His mother, Mrs. Pearl Fitton, meanwhile, was writing a letter to the girl's parents.

"I am a mother and she is a mother. We know how we suffer over this thing. I hope that my letter will let her know that I feel very deeply for her, for the anguish she must have in her heart."

Six schoolmates of the attractive brunette girl were to act as pallbearers today at her funeral.

Will Investigate Firemen's Work

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Winnipeg alderman said Sunday night he would investigate what he called allegations of fire department incompetence in the $600,000 Minto armories blaze.

Ald. Peter Taraska, chairman of the city council's safety committee, said he had heard complaints from "a number of people, some of them firemen" of improperly organized fire fighting operations in the day-long fire which swept through the interior of the 43-year-old army building Sunday.

Fireman Walter Karn, 33, who also is a company sergeant major at Minto, alleged the fire could have been confined to a small section of the building if operations had been properly handled.

Acting fire department Lieut. R. V. Allsopp blamed low morale among firefighters, springing from a controversial promotion system, for lack of determined action. He called for a provincial inquiry into the department's set-up.

Local Artists Display Work At Theatre

Some one has rightly said: "Beauty is God's autograph." This is well portrayed in the various scenes by local artists which have been on view for some weeks in the lounge of the McCarthy Theatre.

These include landscapes, seascapes and still life, the still life by students of Mary Moull, as well as other interesting subjects.

Among the landscapes shown is a charming trio by C. R. Bone, depicting nature in her three transient moods of "Spring"; an inland scene with delicately drooping willows bordering a placid pond through whose branches may be caught a view of distant white cottages; of "Autumn" with its radiantly colored maples highlighted by silver birches and blue water; of "Winter" with all her stately loveliness with rich evergreens, snow-capped undulating hills, distant, blue-haired mountains, forming a delightful foil to the cold blue of the tarn below.

This artist shows his versatility in his group of seascapes: the "Ballet Dancers"; a colorful and lively market scene in sunny climes; "Reflections," two little children gazing at themselves as reflected in still waters, and a distant view of swimmers at the dam.

Mary Moull has a fine seascape, "Breakers" on a rock-bound coast showing realism and strength, and "Beached," by John Bennett has a story in its own right in the long stretch of sandy beach, the darkening clouds, and the lonely skiff upon the shore.

Albirt Franck's winter scene in monochrome with stark trees bordering a stream is nicely done, holding the attention. "The Queensboro Mill," by Freda Vaughan is most realistic with its rustic red mill on its brink of blue water, and the soft green of the trees behind it.

"Zinnias," by Beatrice Robinson, a charming bit of color, depicts infinite care in detail, and most natural in their easy and graceful arrangement in the bowl container.

A most restful picture, rich in colors, was a scene of evergreen trees backed by blue hills, and in the foreground trees reaching down to stretches of water, lavish in its sapphire blue, touched with lighter blue.

The "Store at Redneerville," the "Harbor Scene," reminiscitive of Philippe Faulkner's glowing style, and others are interesting because of their local situations.

The still life shows careful coloring, composition and delicate drawing. These include various arrangements of a green jug, and hamper of rosy apples with an additional rosy apple by itself on the table; a blue pitcher; orange vase and orange fruit, and another of a yellow bowl containing red apples in pleasing juxtaposition with green and grey vases, and a red apple.

An interesting display meriting appraisal by those who are lovers of the beautiful.

COAT LOOK FOR A SUIT

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Imported tweed makes a suit that, at back, looks for all the world like a coat because of its semi-fitted jacket detail.

Double-breasted at front, the jacket has set seams at each side of the neck, which are joined at the hem by a curved martingale belt. One wide back panel with pleat released, marks a slim skirt that swings gracefully when in motion.

PANEL DISCUSSION

Program convener, Mrs. W. T. Langlois, introduced barrister Mr. Kenneth Ross as chairman of the panel discussion on different phases of law particularly as they affect women. Assisting Mr. Ross were barristers Mr. Donald Templeman and Mr. Rod Cameron.

An informative, and at times humorous, discussion took place. The members participated by submitting questions to the panel. The main topics chiefly concerned domestic law — wills, succession duties, dower rights, separation, divorce, and alimony. The panel capably answered such questions as "What is the position of married women at law?" "What are the property rights of women?" and "What is the position of children at law?"

Mrs. Gillis warmly expressed the appreciation of the Club to the three lawyers for their excellent handling of the subject material.

Mrs. McQueen of Queen's University will be the guest speaker at the February meeting.

The devotional "Call to the Mission of the Church Through God's Vocation", was well presented by Phyllis Rowley with Scripture reading by Ethel Horton, Edith Stanton, Leona Bailey and Ruth Pettifor.

A temperance item was given by Edith Stanton.

GUEST SPEAKER

Phyllis Rowley introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Ruth Howard, who spoke on "Immigration and Port Missions". She told of the wonderful work being done by the United church mission workers, particularly at Halifax; of the welcoming hand extended to the many thousands of immigrants; who have come to Canada since the war; of how many lonely, and carrying all their worldly possessions, unable to speak English had found a comfort and guidance from the mission workers.

Lou Dougherty tendered a vote of thanks to Mrs. Howard for her most interesting address.

Following the benediction, the social committee served refreshments.

Will Hemlines Soar or Sag This Season?

PARIS (AP)—Will hemlines soar or sag this season?

Your guess is as good as that of the best-informed Paris fashion editor.

For the first time, French designers have imposed a real curtain of secrecy around the forthcoming 1956 fashion openings at the end of this month.

"To reserve a bigger surprise for the public," the dressmakers have unanimously decided to reveal not a single hint of the styles they are preparing, according to their syndicate president. And, for once, they seem really determined to put the fashion forecasters out of business. Nobody has broken the secrecy pact yet.

Usually French newspapers are full of highly detailed previews of what each of the famous houses will show at least two weeks before the openings.

But if the big-name designers' lips are sealed this season, the International Society of Modelists, which claims to sell sketches and patterns to all the houses, has already come out with liberal predictions. They include:

A new longer length: A "gladiola" silhouette, longer and slinky, enclosed in hermetic but supple lines, rigorous but comfortable; "day and cocktail dresses that will look like suits; bloused-back effects; more Asiatic influence; a long line free at the waist but nipped at the hem.

A number of readings on Canadian Industries were read by Mrs. R. Reid, Mrs. Carson and Mrs. Dan Smith.

They brought out the idea that industries could not be run without basic industry agriculture.

Mrs. Bleecker closed the meeting and Mrs. Gardner served refreshments.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

CERTAINLY THE WIFE SHOULD WRITE A THANK-YOU NOTE TO HUSBAND'S FRIENDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Bill and I were married last June and at that time couldn't take a wedding trip, but recently were able to take a trip to the other coast, combining business a nd pleasure. On our way a long time friend of my husband, and his wife (I had never met this couple), invited us to spend Saturday night and Sunday with them. Must I write the bread and butter letter or would it be proper for my husband to write this, as they are his friends, and also be (I certainly must confess) a much better letter than I do? — Rita M.

Certainly you must write a letter to this kind hostess, and in your note thank her and her husband for their hospitality. It would be extremely discourteous of you not to write this thank-you note and you would show these friends of your husband (1) that you are a person of appreciation, and (2) that your husband married a girl who has a sure sense of social know-how. Don't you think your husband would be embarrassed if you didn't write this so important letter? And I am sure that he, too, will write a thank you note in appreciation for the special courtesy given.

GIRLS . . . DON'T HOLD BACK ON EXPRESSION OF THANKS TO YOUR HOST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a girl has spent an enjoyable evening with a man who has taken her to a dance or the movies or some other entertainment should she thank him for the enjoyable time she has had, or is it his place to thank her? And if is the girl's place to thank him , as I think it is, although my girl friend thinks it isn't . . . what is the proper thing for her to say?

— Daily Reader

Since the boy has been the host, the girl should say what's what (and you do) naturally says something appropriate when she is leaving. Something simple and enthusiastic like "I had such a good time at the dance, Bob . . . thanks a million for asking me." Or "That was a grand movie . . . it was fun to see it with you and I enjoyed every minute of it." Then thank you for such a happy evening, Bob. What a perfect host you are . . . finding such an attractive little restaurant, ordering such a delicious dinner. It was all wonderful!"

BRIDE'S QUESTION OF STEP-FATHER OR FATHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and father were divorced ten years ago when I was only 13. My father had left us three years before that, and before then and since I have seen very little of him, and he has done nothing to show any concern about me or my life. My mother, bless her heart, was married to a very fine man three years ago, and we three have lived together most happily, and he has really been a "good father" to me. I'm going to be married soon, and Mother and I are wondering if it would be proper to have my stepfather (rather than my own father) escort me up the aisle and give me in marriage. What do you think about this? — Claire

That depends. If your father is to be present at the wedding and you are not asking him to give you in marriage, then it would too pointedly and unattractively reflect your attitude to him if you ask your stepfather to escort you up the aisle and have your mother give you in marriage, I do think that this honor of giving you in marriage should go to your mother, who has, in these years, surrounded you with care and safety and devotion.

THAT lightweight folding stroller should go along when you travel, especially if you have more than one moppet to manage. In it, your baby or toddler can be whisked through those big, busy terminals without breaking your arms or wandering into trouble. On the train, it can be used as a seat.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

BEAUTY ORGANIZATION FOR THE WORKING BRIDE

Before applying fresh make-up be sure to wash off all traces of the previous "face".

The working bride's schedule may be your key to a successful marriage. But achieve it with care. Glide in and out of your beautifying routine without fuss and bother. Your husband need never know your secrets. Keep soap and water and the beauty aids you prefer to yourself.

Beauty is not a whipped cream existence. Dreams of pink negligees and breakfasts in bed are lots of fun, but unless most of your early-to-rise schedule must be made, and placating, burnt toast and "just something to throw on" are not going to be romantic.

How long does it take to be glamorous."

Allow ten minutes in the morning for good grooming. If you have to be out of the house early in the morning to go to work, divide your beauty treatments between evening and morning, and start out with a good brisk shower, remembering to dash cold water on your face to erase traces of sleep, and shape yourself thoroughly. Use a shower cap to protect those pincurls.

A bath brush will take care of those hard-to-get-at places as well as the chapping areas — elbows, knees, heels, feet. Rub down with a plushy turkish towel and let it serve a double purpose as a "tuck around" robe until you finish your gentle soap and water face din and your tooth-brushing at the basin. Take out the hairpins and brush your hair vigorously until it shines.

Even if you've time to spare, you'll still have enough left over for a quick makeup job. Avoid lavish, heavy make-up hours. It may give your husband a start to see you at the breakfast table in evening glamour. He'll appreciate the "fresh look" at breakfast.

Rotating your grooming routines between morning and evening will assure they're getting done. Nail care, shampoos, eyebrow-plucking and razoring can be taken care of quickly and easily in this fashion. Bathroom clutter if possible. Perhaps a small cabinet or special shelf devoted to your grooming aids will eliminate clutter back and forth to the bedroom. A kitchen or hall closet mirror will aid in quick primping before you scoot off to work.

A night out is always a special event. Wives who stay at home can really pretty up without a time limit. However, you working brides can be just as lovely if you carry a few beauty "extras" to work. Tote your own face cloth as well as a fresh bar of soap. Before you apply a "new face", remember to wash off the previous make-up with soap and water. Then apply your fresh make-up, giving added attention to the lips and eyes.

With beauty organization, you can keep that handbox look all around the clock. Your husband will appreciate a calm, well-groomed wife —still as beautiful as his bride. And you will know that the first anniversary is not a paper one— but a soap and water one.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU CANNOT CHANGE YOUR DAUGHTER'S WAYS — DON'T TRY

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My married daughter refuses to do any housecleaning. She says her husband isn't dating her to do it, so she just doesn't care. There are children, too, who could get sick living in a home in such condition.

That is a mother to do? I can't tell my daughter what she should or should not do, now that she has made a life of her own. That would be called interfering, wouldn't it? But I don't know what I'll do if the house isn't cleaned up soon. I can't talk to anyone about it, that is why I am writing you. — L.M.P.

Dear L.M.P.:

There's no more heartbreaking situation in the world than when a parent must face the realization that she can do nothing but stand helplessly by while a son or daughter messes up his or her life.

This daughter of yours is not only a source of deep worry to you from the practical standpoint of jeopardizing her family's health by her slovenly ways, but she is surely hurting your pride as well. You feel humiliated before your friends because a daughter of yours could prove herself so slack a housekeeper and so indifferent a mother, isn't that so?

While you say that you can't tell your daughter what she should or should not do, you still must have remonstrated with her plenty, since you tell me that she has said she "doesn't care" about keeping her house properly because her husband "isn't doing his part." So what I assume is that you have protested as strenuously and frequently as you could, with no results, and now feel you have come to the end of your rope and can do no more.

I wish I had some effective solution to offer you on this most disconcerting problem. But the hard truth is that there is honestly no thing you can possibly do. Your daughter knows exactly how you feel, and if she hasn't found herself willing to mend her ways for you, nothing you are saying or do in her husband, then I think you will have to make up your mind to accept her as she is, alone in her pr.rsue her own way.

Indeed, I think you should do this even to the extent of staying away from her entirely for awhile, not to see if she doesn't rush to your feet on her, but more for your own peace of mind. It's obviously up to you so much to see the conditions in her home. So without saying anything, just stop visiting her and let her be the one to look up. If she never says anything about you at all, she will wonder why you've stopped coming to see her and want to find out. If things come to this point, tell her quietly and briefly that her home life disturbs you so much that you feel it would be better for you not to see her. Tell her that it wouldn't affect you that way if you didn't love her and her children so much, but since you do love them devotedly, you can't bear to see such a state of affairs as exists in her house.

Of course, what you say about the housework she gives for not keeping her home properly suggests that she is unhappy in her marriage. But there, also, you are helpless to do anything unless she comes directly to you for advice.

I'm not suggesting that you put all this out of your mind, for that, of course, would be impossible to do. But you would just try to accept the fact that what she is doing is no real concern of yours, however much that may be for you. I truly believe it will be far better for yourself, perhaps, even for her too. The situation is not your responsibility, and you must not let yourself insist on making it so.

Age has nothing to do with glamor, says TV star Spring Byington. "You grow older," she admits, "but you needn't get

She's No Longer Young But Still Beautiful!

By JEANNE D'ARCY

She's not young, but she's beautiful.

We're referring to the vivacious star, Spring Byington, who keeps TV audiences charmed with her flutfery, feminine ways on her weekly program, "December Bride."

Miss Byington has reached the career stage where people are continually saying: "It's a mystery how you've managed to stay so glamorous all these years." Such comments don't bother her.

DON'T "GET" OLDER

"You grow older," says the star, "but that doesn't meant you have to get older or act older.

She frowns on women who feel it's not wise to be glamorous after they've reached the middle-age years, who worry that friends, or relatives will think them giddy and frivolous if they don't look like Whistler's mother.

This is just nonsense, according to Miss Byington, who believes glamor is only natural charm intensified.

Her advice to the older woman is this:

First live in the present. nothing can make you feel or seem older than continually referring to the days that happened in the past.

LIVE YOUR OWN LIFE

Have your own interests. Don't go through life vicariously living the lives of your children or grandchildren.

Use make-up. Don't stop with lipstick. If foundation and mascara, subtly applied, will plup up your prettiest features, they should be used. Keep your hair styled and, if it's gray, don't feel you must dye it. An iron gray or silver gray rinse can bring out the true beauty of the natural color.

Keep busy. Get interested in music, art, the theatre, social groups. Make friends with younger people and with those your own age who are taking a vital interest in life.

A woman who keeps her vitality, who makes the most of her looks, who keeps interested, never gets old, says Miss Byington, who practices what she preaches and has been glamorous for years.

Crumpets for Barbara

By Mary Moore

Some of you girls are giving me credit for being intuitive than I do not deserve.

When a recipe turns up in this column the day after you have wished you had it, it is pure luck —unless you have written for it. Now, Mrs. Ross of Barbara's mother, I have heard that she is watching for a recipe for crumpets here.

Barbara, crumpets are not simple to make. You need two kinds of equipment most kitchens don't have: a heavy griddle—aluminum or soapstone pans best—and muffin rings to stand on the griddle to shape the crumpets when they are baking. However, just as hundreds of New England cooks make perfect baked beans in a covered lard pail (failing an earthen pot), so can you make crumpets if you have a heavy aluminum skillet and some greased jar rings.

You can buy the heavy aluminum griddles, with metal handle that can stand the oven heat, for $2.75. The crumpet rings would cost you 10 cents each in a large hardware store or department.

ENGLISH CRUMPETS

No. 1—One-quarter cup cooked potato mashed to a smooth puree, 2 cups boiling water, 1-2 tsp. dry yeast cakes, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 cups unsifted bread or all-purpose flour. Let the water cool to just above lukewarm, add potatoes and yeast. Add flour—the amount of yeast required depends on how fast and bake-y you want your crumpets. Stir in enough flour to make a batter that will pour (much like pancakes). Grease shallow muffin rings and place them on soapstone or heavy aluminum griddle, preheated. Pour the batter into the rings to depth of 1-4 or 1-3 inch. Bake at 300 deg. F. not turning until brown on under side then turn for just a few minutes. (I have not tried this second recipe.)

To serve, toast and serve hot with butter.

No. 2 (yeast but quick). Mix 1 1-3 cups lukewarm water with 1-3 teaspoon each of salt and sugar and 1 teaspoon melted butter. Dissolve 1-4 yeast cake in this mixture. Into this stir enough flour to make a very stiff batter. Beat for ten minutes, adding enough lukewarm milk to make batter that will pour (much like pancakes). Grease shallow muffin rings and place them on soapstone or heavy aluminum griddle, preheated. Pour the batter into the rings to depth of 1-4 or 1-3 inch. Bake at 300 deg. F. not turning until brown on under side then turn for just a few minutes. (I have not tried this second recipe.)

IS TELEVISION STRAINING YOUR EYES?

by PEGGY LIDSTONE
Home Lighting Specialist

If a set fails to think that you use TV best in a darkened room. A well balanced amount of light throughout the room provides good viewing conditions for television. Long viewing in too great a contrast of light can cause headaches and eyestrain.

You'll get the best effect from indirect or shaded lighting—or from floor or table lamps placed so that no direct rays of light fall on the television screen and reflect back into the eyes. A quick check with a small mirror placed against the screen and moved from left to right and up and down will reveal any such reflections. These can be quickly corrected by shading or adjusting the lamps or changing your viewing position.

If you want further information on modern lighting I like write to me, Peggy Lidstone c/o Lighting Institute, Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., 165 Dufferin Street, Toronto, and I will send you FREE a 16 page illustrated booklet "How to Light Condition Your New Home."

This wonderful household help lasts 6000 hours—yet costs only $3.75. See what luck!—a G-E Red Bowl Heat Lamp brings to your home! If fits any standard light socket.

Veteran Shot In Hip by Masked Bandits

MONTREAL (CP)—A 21-year-old twice-wounded war veteran who doesn't "like getting pushed around" was shot in the hip Saturday when he tangled with a couple of bandits.

Lucien Labrossiere, wounded twice in the Second World War and now a grocery store clerk was resting comfortably in hospital today after the shooting incident which occurred in the butcher grocery on Notre Dame street west.

Labrossiere told police he was chatting with Adrien Brunet, another clerk, when two men entered the store.

Brunet said one man suddenly produced a gun and ordered him "give me the money and make it fast."

Brunet tossed his wallet, containing $60, and the second bandit meanwhile pointed a gun at Labrosiere. Brunet said the bandit "fired a shot over Labrossiere's shoulder, near his head, apparently to show he wasn't fooling."

Labrossiere then lunged at the bandit, who backed away and fired a shot which caught the veteran in the hip. The bandits fled.

County Council Requests Better Service by Judge

WALKERTON (CP) — Bruce county Warden Donald E. Lamont said Sunday county council will ask the federal justice department to investigate the service of County Judge J. F. P. Birnie.

He said a resolution asking investigation of Judge Birnie's "poor and irregular service" was passed unanimously by county council Friday and will be presented to the justice department early this week. The move, he said, was prompted by general dissatisfaction among county municipalities.

Chief causes of concern were delays in the delivery of judgments and the judge's irregular attendance in the county court chambers.

FOR TWO YEARS

Warden Lamont said one judgment has been outstanding for two years.

Judge Birnie commented Sunday:

"I have been granted a month's save of absence. After that I'll e back on the job."

Bruce county council passed a esolution in 1953 urging Judge Birnie to move his home from Owen Sound, 30 miles north of here, to Walkerton. A committee was appointed to interview the judge but no action followed the talk.

Judge Birnie still lives in Owen Sound.

Eastern Canada was free of fatal fires this weekend for the first time in many years. At least 16 persons were killed, however, in other accidents.

Four Ontario residents were drowned in separate accidents when three vehicles plunged into water and three persons were killed in a two-car collision in Quebec.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Sunday showed Ontario had eight deaths, Quebec five and New Brunswick one. Nine persons were killed in traffic accidents.

Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia reported no deaths.

Orvald McIlquham, 43, and his son Scott, 4, were drowned Saturday when the car in which they were riding plunged through the ice on Lake Mississippi, 30 miles southwest of Ottawa.

Edwin Ballantyne, 22, of Welland was drowned in his car Sunday when it swerved off the road and into the Welland river near Niagara Falls, Ont.

In Ottawa, Thomas Leslie Hunter Jr., was killed Friday night when his auto crashed through Chaudiere bridge into the Ottawa river.

Gerald Adler, 35, his wife, Esther, 31, and Roger Labarre, 36, were killed Sunday when their cars crashed together near St. Johns, Que. The three men, residents from nine to five years old, were severely injured.

At Sheffield near Galt, Robin Weir, 18, of Waterloo died Sunday of injuries received Friday when his car swerved off the road and crashed into a culvert and a tree. A Kitchener truck driver saw the accident and found Weir unconscious in the ditch.

Jean Jobin, 20-year-old student pilot, was killed Sunday when his plane crashed near the College Lavis in Montreal.

John Brewer, 17, in a car crash in Toronto Sunday.

Boards Will Be Asked to Raise Salary Schedule

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario School Trustees Council will soon ask all provincial school boards to raise the minimum or maximum in their salary schedules to meet an anticipated teachers' demand for larger annual increments.

The council decided at its annual meeting Saturday to mail each school board a copy of a study made by Dr. John Long, education research official with the Ontario College of Education.

The council said his report is based on expectations that Ontario teachers will soon ask for a $500 increment. Most boards now pay between $150 and $200, although some pay $300. Increments are the annual pay boosts designed to raise teaching salaries from entrance to maximum in wage schedules.

Dr. Long's report says any increment should be delayed so that a teacher reaches his maximum salary after proving his worth as a board employee.

Donald F. Hassard of Fort William was elected council president.

Toronto Expects Population To Double in Next 25 Years

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Fact-growing metropolitan Toronto estimated to day it will require huge outlays of some $1,700,000,000 a new capital over the next 25 years to house and serve a population doubling its size to 3,000,000 in the sprawling fringe areas.

Council chairman Fred Gardiner warned that unless the federal and provincial governments co-operate through with financial aid, a special municipal tax of $10 a year on gasoline sales and a graded tax on trucks will have to be considered to present the 13-municipality corporation from going deep into the red.

Both he and Toronto Mayor Nathan Phillips appeared before the Gordon economic commission as the five-man body opened two weeks of intensive hearings in the legislature, to gather information from some 70 business, social and governmental organizations on prospects for Canada's economic future.

To ease the municipality's burden, federal and provincial governments, should assume the city's social welfare costs or pay a "realistic" share of the costs of new subways, expressways and arterial highways, he said.

Revenues also could be raised if the federal government paid full taxes or made payments equal to those taxes on all its crown property in the municipal area.

But if these sources fail, then the tax collector would have to turn to the motorist, Mr. Gardiner suggested.

Sunday night, commission chairman Walter L. Gordon told a press conference federal taxes would have to be increased if Ottawa was to meet all the demands heard by the commission.

He warned that there is a limit to the federal government's financial resources, "unless Canadians are prepared to be taxed more, and nobody has suggested that taxes be raised."

Mr. Gordon, Toronto accountant, estimated that the briefs received by the commission so far total about 2,000,000 words. He expects to receive another 6,000,000 before public hearings end. He said various Canadian regions have not too much economic awareness of each other. The Prairies were preoccupied with farm problems; British Columbia was concerned chiefly with forestry industries; prosperity of eastern Canada was dependent mainly on secondary industries.

Nehru Seeking Means to Stop Language Riots

By EUGENE LEVIN

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru's government is searching for ways of meeting the violent protests ignited by the plans for redrawing the boundaries of India's states along language lines.

The protests erupted in savage rioting last Monday in Bombay and spread in the form of demonstrations, strikes and street clashes to other parts of the country. Bombay police put the death toll there at 35 in the week-long outbreaks, but reliable sources said the count there totalled 300 to 400 dead and thousands wounded.

Nehru met for four hours Sunday with the high command of his ruling Congress party and made what a party member described as "one of the most moving speeches ever heard, bringing tears to many eyes."

The prime minister appealed to opponents of the government plan to use constitutional methods and not take the law into their own hands, the informant said.

PREPARE FOR TROUBLE

While the violence generally simmered down during the weekend, authorities moved to take precautionary measures against possible outbreaks Thursday, sixth anniversary of the founding of the Indian republic.

Police in the west coast port were kept under a state of alert and men on leave were recalled. A volunteer armed peace brigade reached its 10,000-man goal and began training.

The Bombay rioting was led by Maratli-speaking Indians opposed to the plan to split Bombay state into three parts — a southern state for the Marathas, a northern state for Gujarati-speaking peoples and a separate city of Bombay under federal administration. Both Gujaratis and Marathas want Bombay for the capital of their state. India's people speak 10 or more major languages and scores of dialects. The state reorganization plan has brought many demands for separate states.

Reporter Acquitted

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A Supreme Court jury Saturday acquitted Michael O'Neil, an Evening Telegram reporter, of helping in an extortion attempt.

Gerard Plante, 25 - year - old Montreal woman whom O'Neil, 27, was accused of helping, caused an uproar in the courtroom Saturday when she walked to the prisoner's box and struck O'Neil a blow across the face, after hissing "Liar." While guards and spectators gasped, Miss Plante fled from the courtroom and collapsed in a faint in the corridor.

Chief Justice Sir Albert Walsh fined her $25 for contempt of court.

O'Neil had been accused of helping Miss Plante attempt to extort $200 from the manager of a St. John's night club where the woman had worked as a waitress.

Turn Heat Off To Protect Trumpeter Swan

VANCOUVER (CP)—Passengers on a Pacific Western Airlines plane endured a "cool" 45-minute flight from Comox, B.C., to Vancouver, all because of an ailing trumpeter swan.

The trumpeter, one of a vanishing species, was found sick and emaciated at Loughborough Inlet near Powell River, B.C., by game warden Bert Wilson.

He crated it and expressed it to Vancouver's Stanley Park zoo for treatment but when fog prevented the plane from landing, several passengers chartered a seaplane and flew to Comox, taking the bird with them.

At Comox, on the coast of Vancouver island, the Powell River passengers and the swan were taken aboard the regular Vancouver flight. Crew members were told, however, that swans cannot endure temperatures over 60 degrees so the passengers were asked to give up their heat.

"They shivered willingly," said chief stewardess Tiny Bacon when the plane landed here.

Schoolboy Fails To Win $100,000

NEW YORK (AP)—A 14-year-old schoolboy failed to win $100,000 Saturday night on NBC's "The Big Surprise" television quiz show because he didn't know the golden age of baseball.

But New Yorker George Wright III gets to keep $25,000 of his $50,000 winnings so far, and may get another chance at the big prize.

An unidentified "rescuer" will appear on the program next Saturday. If the "rescuer" can answer a current events question, the boy can try again for the $100,000.

One answer George couldn't supply Saturday night was the names of two out of four pitchers who have pitched perfect games. Nor could he name six concerts written by the elder Bach in 1721, each using a different combination of instruments.

It's a better life for Norman Tyndall

To learn how farming has been revolutionized in modern times, listen to Norman Tyndall, of Richmond Hill, Ontario.

"Nowadays, one man can produce as much food as eight men could — less than a generation ago," says Mr. Tyndall. "Machines like the newest tractors, balers and combines have lightened our job tremendously. And of course, agricultural science is adding to our know-how with results that can be seen in fields all over the country."

As Mr. Tyndall knows, there have also been important developments in life insurance — which help him as a family man.

Today, for instance, there is a wider choice of life insurance plans than ever before. So men like Mr. Tyndall have a more flexible way of meeting their own families' special needs — needs that keep changing over the years.

The life underwriter who serves people today is a key man in this planning. And he, too, has changed. Modern training methods have made him a more efficient counsellor on the many different uses of life insurance.

Moreover, many people with histories of certain diseases are thankful that they can now get life insurance that would not have been available to them some years ago.

In these and other ways, the life insurance companies in Canada have progressed to meet the changing needs of people in all walks of life!

Parliamentary Press Gallery Clerk Has Happy Memories

OTTAWA (CP) — Alex Carisse, who brushed elbows with politicians and parliamentary reporters for 44 years, remembers most lucidly his associations with a bootlegging horse named Pete.

Alex retired Dec. 1 as a clerk of the Parliamentary Press Gallery. He left Parliament Hill at the age of 67 with vivid memories of experiences that began under the government of Sir Robert Borden in 1911.

He started as a messenger, but his duties quickly multiplied. He ran errands for cabinet ministers and acted as Sir Robert's private messenger.

He became the first clerk for journalists on the capital's political beat during the First World War and during the prohibition era the 1930s he once served as unofficial bootlegger for politicians and reporters.

RETIRED CLERK . Alex Carisse, 67, has retired as clerk of the parliamentary press gallery at Ottawa after rubbing elbows with politicians and parliamentary reporters for 44 years. He started as a messenger and ran errands for cabinet ministers and was private messenger for the late Prime Minister Sir Robert Borden. (CP Photo).

LIQUOR FROM HULL

Alex recalled that sometime after 1922, when Quebec repealed prohibition while Ontario remained dry, several members of Parliament commissioned him to bring a cargo of liquor over from Hull in neighboring Quebec.

Parliament Hill, of course, was not subject to provincial laws since it is federal property, but between Hull and the Hill stood Ontario's liquor police.

"We sent over a driver and a horse with a little wood in a wagon," Alex said, grinning ruefully. "There was supposed to be $700 worth of liquor and it was for the members of Parliament—and maybe some newspaper men."

"Well, the police in the Parliament Buildings of course had no interest in the enforcement of the (Ontario) Temperance Act."

They told Alex they could see the horse and wagon coming across the Ottawa river bridge, but they could see no driver.

EQUINE BRAINS BETTER

"That doesn't matter,' I told them, 'the horse knows more than the driver anyway.'"

"The liquor police were watching for a different horse. You know, we often used to change horses in Hull. Well, I tell you old Pete was smart.

"He came off the bridge, went up St. Patrick street, turned right onto Mackenzie avenue, swung over the Plaza and turned off Wellington into the grounds at the East Block. He came up past (Sir John A.)-Macdonald's statue and then backed into the doorway where we were going to unload the booze.

"I got in under the tarpaulin and there was the driver—drunk. I left him there and unloaded the liquor; I tell you Pete was the smartest bootlegger I ever saw."

"MISSING" BRIEF CASE

Of his messenger days, Alex remembers most distinctly the time he lost Sir Robert's confidential brief case.

"Did I sweat! But of course it turned out the boys had stolen it on me for a joke. That didn't happen again."

Then there was Hon. W. G. Pugsley who had been a minister in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government. He was the most generous, Alex said.

"Every day he would send me to the parliamentary bar with $5 for five Rosalind cigars. They cost 50 cents and so I would spend $2.50 and he would tell me to keep the change. . . I was making as much on tips from Mr. Pugsley as I was in salary."

Alex proved himself the possessor of many capabilities during his years on Parliament Hill, but to some of the veteran reporters there he will be best remembered as a "fixer." He could always manage to carry out the most difficult duties, they said. How he did it sometimes nobody knew—and indeed it was nobody's business, they feel. But for Alex Carisse "there was no such thing as "it can't be done."

Foote Replies To Charges by Leader of CCF

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Reforms Minister Foote has released to the press the text of a detailed reply to criticism by provincial CCF leader Donald MacDonald of department policy and action. The statement will be broadcast Monday.

Mr. MacDonald has levelled a series of attacks on various department institutions and staff members in the last few weeks.

In answer to an allegation that an institution superintendent was shifted to another post because of differences with the department, Mr. Foote's statement says:

"Our staff members are transferred from job to job, from institution to institution, on occasion, from one department to another, in the interests of efficiency and in observance of the principle of promotion."

On allegations that an official was "dismissed" for strapping prisoners and then rehired because of political intervention:

"What is our second deadly sin? It is, in a few words, that a man, a good and kindly man—who came to the end of his patience and strapped some children—was after six months taken back in one of our institutions as a night watchman . . .

"His only mistake was that the punishment was unauthorized and that cannot be permitted without some disciplinary action."

On criticism that a girl was kept in solitary confinement for long periods:

"At times it was necessary to keep her under restraint for her own protection. She was under the care and observation of a psychiatrist and a qualified social worker. Whenever her behavior was normal she shared fully in the life of the school, in recreation, in entertainment, visits to town and all normal activities."

WILL EXHIBIT MODEL

LONDON (Reuters)—Russia will exhibit a model of her atomic power station at a proposed exhibition in the United Nations building, New York, Tass news agency reported today. The permanent Soviet UN delegate, A. A. Sobolev, says Russia has agreed to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's proposal to organize an exhibition of the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Segregation of Pupils in NWT Assailed by Council Members

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's practice of segregating Roman Catholic and Protestant children in schools in the Northwest Territories has been condemned by two members of the N.W.T. Council.

The practice was described as improper Friday by John Parker, Yellowknife lawyer, and commissioner L. H. Nicholson of the RCMP during a two-hour debate of federal policy announced last year for operation of schools and hostels in the Territories.

They said they were opposed to Roman Catholic and Protestant children being taught in separate rooms in some schools by teachers of their own faith.

Mr. Parker, a Protestant and an elected member of the nine-man council, said "it is not right to divide children on religious grounds. Nobody can defend this practice as making any sense from an educational point of view."

Commissioner Nicholson, an appointed council member, said he shares Mr. Parker's misgivings. Segregation was not good for education.

R. G. Robertson, commissioner of the N.W.T., said there will be segregation of children only at Fort Simpson and Aklavik under the new federal school - hostel system.

Roman Catholic and Protestant children at Fort Simpson and Aklavik would be taught in separate rooms. However, there would be no segregation at other points where schools were planned and one beyond grade eight or in vocational training classes.

Mr. Robertson said the government's decision to segregate children at Fort Simpson and Aklavik represented a compromise. The majority of school children at the two points were Catholic and their religion provided for religious instruction in grade school.

Tupper to Make Interim Report On Police Probe

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first report from the R. H. Tupper royal commission, which began its inquiry into Vancouver police affairs last July and held its 36th sitting Friday, will be made public this week.

Despite some startling testimony during the sittings, both Mr. Tupper and Attorney-General Robert Bonner indicated the interim report will provide no sensational disclosures.

However, it will be the first summing up of Mr. Tupper's findings on the efficiency and administration of Vancouver's strife-ridden 750-man force.

The report is expected to be tabled in the legislature Wednesday. Another report which will be made public this week is the testimony given Friday behind locked doors by a man with a severe heart condition.

"COULD TELL ALL"

A transcript of the evidence of Parnell Johnson, 43-year-old real estate salesman, "will be handed to the press Monday or Tuesday," Mr. Tupper said.

Tabloid editor Ray Munro earlier identified Mr. Johnson as the man "who could tell all" about the lottery racket if you talked him out of the fear that he would get killed if he did."

Friday's evidence was highlighted by lottery testimony.

Air Vice-Marshal F. V. Heaker, now civil defence co-ordinator for the greater Vancouver target area, said former chief constable Walter Mulligan told him one of his top assistants was being investigated as a lottery racketeer.

The retired air force officer named the man as assistant fire chief Elmer Sly, since returned to fire duties from his civil defence post.

CAMPBELLFORD — The Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Leno have left on a motor trip to Tampa, Florida. Their pulpit will be supplied by the Rev. Bob Jones on January 22 and the Rev. and Mrs. A. Wilkes on January 29th.

Mr. and Mrs. George Deline and Wendy, of Kingston, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Spencer.

Mr. C. L. Kellogg, of town, is enjoying a motor trip to the sunny south-bis destination, Florida.

Mrs. William Hutcheon, Mrs. K. Eagleson, Mrs. E. C. Pollock and Mrs. George Craighead, from Burnbrae W. M. S. Presbyterian Church, attended the Kingston Presbyterial W. M. S. meeting at Trenton, on Monday.

Canadiens Extend Lead; Red Wings In Second-Place Tie With Rangers

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

WOTTA GUY!

The loquacious Wren Blair, scrivener-manager of the Whitby Dunlops, who has admitted his threat to disband the Dunlops if they could not attain senior "A" status, was nothing more than a bluff to "pep up the group," is an ambitious cuss to say the least.

Partially cooled off by OHA president Frank Buckland, who politely but firmly informed all and sundry at a recent senior "B" group meeting that senior "A" expenses would be rather high for teams of "B" calibre, Blair refused to say "uncle" and fined his sights on another target.

Now he wants the senior "B" champions to be allowed to participate in the Allan Cup playdowns. Blair has already identified himself as a first class tub-thumper for his Dunnies, and his public relations efforts have echoed all over the province.

Encouraged by the writings of Len (Kitchener Record) Taylor, who goes along with the idea that the senior "B" champs should have a gauntlet into the Allan Cup arena, Blair has taken on new life in his new quest.

Blair quotes someone as saying that his Dunlops are as good if not better than the Fort William team which played in the Allan Cup series last winter. That is a strong possibility. So what?

After admitting via a recent television appearance that his threat to disband was something to jack up the group, who knows if he is merely "crying wolf" in his verbal efforts to have senior "B" titlists rated eligible to enter the Allan Cup frolics?

Years ago it was fashionable in topflight amateur circles to have senior "B" or intermediate "A", as it was rated then, join battle with playdown senior clubs. It amounted to something similar to the ORFU football champions crossing playoff rapiers with the Big Four titlists in Grey Cup play.

We had the experience here in Belleville nearly twenty years ago. The Trenton RCAF Flyers, just about as nifty a hockey club as ever came out of this part of Ontario, swept every thing that came in their drive for the Ontario intermediate "A" championship.

The McNeely twins, Louis LeCompte, Dan Cowley, Legree, Hoot Gibson, Johnny Lalonde, Partridge and those grand guys in blue under Squadron Leader Vair, Wing Commander and secretary Ambrose Cunningham and Group Captain Tommy Lawrence, sounded out as neat a club as one would wish to see.

They were tops in their class—and proved it. But it ended there. They went into the Ontario Allan Cup playoffs with the provincial senior champions, the Fort Calhorne Sailors in a best-of-three series. That was it. That ended the hockey career of one of the best groups of pucksters ever to play in a Belleville arena. They were beaten decisively in two straight games.

However, as Blair will likely say in rebuttal, "That was years ago. This is different." And in danger of being accused of bringing up a Dempsey-Louis mythical battle, and having seen both the Flyers of the thirties and the Dunlops of the fifties in action, any little piece of coin of the realm we might have for wagering purposes would go on the Flyers, if the twain could meet.

We are not trying to throw cold water on the Whitby manager's latest ambition. We believe the Dunlops are one of the top-bracket hockey clubs to come out of this part of Ontario since those "Thirty Flyers." But Blair has already stated that he will not apply for senior "A" rating next year if there is an interlocking schedule with northern Ontario clubs, because of the monetary expense involved.

How then, unless he has a generous sugar daddy in the offing, would he finance the Dunnies if and when they were pronounced eligible for Allan Cup playdowns?

Moreover the Dunlops have not won the Ontario title yet—or for that matter the group title. They took a trouncing the other night in Kingston at the hands of the Goodies, and while there is little doubt the Dunnies will come through with flying colors in defence of the Ontario possibility . . . . stranger things have happened, McGee.

It is not too long ago that a Belleville senior club went through the schedule undefeated—and what happened? They got knocked off in the semi-finals. Believe it or not. .

O. H. A. president Frank Buckland, at that senior "B" confab, dropped a word of warning to the effect that "don't sell those western Ontario senior "B" clubs short. They have a couple of clubs up there that are far stronger than the 1950 Sailors, which won the western title."

What's that about a bird in the hand . . . . .

• • • •

Whipped by the Kingston Goodyears 7-4 Friday night the Whitby Dunlops eased the smart of defeat by handing the Brockville Maroboms one of the worst lambings of the season. The score was 14-5 and the Dunnies, besides gaining revenge for the Friday setback, fattened their scoring averages no end. And Cornwall took a two-point jump on our side by edging the Kingston Goodyears 4-3 in overtime in Cornwall on Sunday.

Tag Blues for Weekend Pair As Leafs Split Doubleheader; Detroit Trainer Subs Lumley

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lefty Wilson had to step into three-way limit his Detroit Red Wings in a National Hockey League game Sunday night he was great for Toronto Maple Leafs.

Wilson, 35 - year - old assistant trainer with Detroit, took over the Toronto goaltending chores when Harry Lumley pulled a thigh muscle in the third period.

There was still 13 minutes to go. Wilson, Detroit's practice goalie, didn't allow Wings a goal and made some nice saves. Wings were leading 4-1 when he donned the pads. That was the final score. The win gave Red Wings a split in their doubleheader against Toronto. The Leafs beat them 4-2 in Toronto Saturday.

New York Rangers suffered two defeats during the weekend. They lost 3-1 to the league-leading Canadiens in Montreal Saturday and 5-1 to the last-spot Bruins in Boston Sunday night. Canadiens pounded Chicago Black Hawks 7-2 Sunday night before 11,383 fans, the largest crowd this season at Chicago Stadium.

FULLED INTO THE

At Detroit, the 13,861 customers saw the Wings pull into a second place tie with Rangers. They were led by the two-goal scoring streak of Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay.

The only Leaf goal was scored by Ted Kennedy in the third of the season. Sloan and Howe are tied in the scoring race but Gordie leads the NHL scoring parade with 53 points.

It was a different story at Toronto Saturday. Big George Armstrong scored two goals and an assist in pacing Leafs to victory, their 19th in 45 starts. The loss broke Detroit's winning streak at six games.

Rookie Bob Wiagers Earl Balfour and Dick Duff scored the other goals for the fourth-place Leafs. Centre Glenn Hall made 30 saves to beat both Detroit goals before the crowd of 13,261.

A couple of Bruin repatriates, Jerry Toppazzini and Norm Cherrville, scored the Boston goals Sunday night.

JERRY REMEMBERED

Toppazzini, who had fallied only once for Detroit when he was traded to Boston, also collected two goals. He got the tie-breaker at 4:09 of the second period and the clincher three seconds after Rangers' Andy Bathgate drew a minor penalty at 2:32 of the third. Cherrville sniped the other one.

Cherrville and Toppazzini were making their first appearance in Boston since the Bruins got them back from Wings in a swap for Lorne Ferguson and Murray Costello. Neither Ferguson nor Costello scored during the game.

Bathgate scored for New York, tying the game at 1-1 at the end of the opening period.

At Montreal, third-period goals by Bernie Geoffrion and Tom Johnson carried Canadiens to victory over Rangers. Their 3rd tally was Geoffrion score the decisive goal at 10:30 of the last period a minute after referee Jerry Olinski had disallowed a goal by Maurice Richard.

COUNTED FIRST ONE

Claude Provost scored Montreal's first goal, at 5:45 of the first period. Wally Hergesheimer tallied for New York. He made it 1-1 at 14:30 of the second.

The Habs picked up their 29th win in 45 starts as they overpowered Hawks.

Chicago took the lead midway in the first period when Henri Richard tallied on passes from his brother, Maurice, and Dickie Moore. It was a Montreal show after that. Moore, Jean Beliveau, Maurice Richard, Jean Talbot and Provost rattled pucks past Chicago goalie Glenn Hall.

Johnny Wilson and Ed Litzenberger scored for Hawks. Wilson's was his 20th of the season.

Goyer Gets Two In Bilts' Win; Teeps Triumph

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's not much doubt about it, St. Catharines Teepees like home ice.

The league - leading Teepees picked up their 20th straight home victory in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League Saturday night with a 5-3 win over Toronto Marlboros. It was also their fifth triumph in six starts. Although Teepees picked up a good share of victories on the road they seem to save their outstanding performances for hometown fans.

In the only other Saturday engagement, Kitchener - Waterloo Canucks bolstered their grip on second place as they knocked off the lowly Hamilton Cubs 4-0 before 1,278 fans at Kitchener.

FLYERS WIN

Marlboros lost another decision in Toronto Sunday. They were beaten 3-1 by Barrie Flyers in the second game of a doubleheader.

In the first contest, Guelph Billmores walloped Toronto St. Michael's Majors 7-1 before 6,265 fans.

At St., Catharines, Art Stratton and Terry Gray each got two goals. Elmer Vasko, Ab McDonald and Bob Carter got the others. Bob Pulford, Ron Ingrefield and Ken Girard tallied for Marlboros.

Gil Laporte of Marlboros and Matt Ravlich of Teepees were given match misconducts after a second-period fracas. They were sent off with minors at 14:35 and Referee Bill Diverski broke up the scrap and gave the two players 10 - minute misconducts. Marlboros' Ingrefield was also given the gate. That's when they were tagged with the game misconducts.

Roger Bordeleau, Kent Douglas, Stan Baluik and Willie O'Ree scored for Kitchener - Waterloo. The game was featured by brilliant goaltending by the goaltenders. Dennis Riggio stopped 34 shots in the Hamilton cage. Dufour handled 19 Kitchener drives.

At Toronto, Billmores spotted Majors a 1-0 goal after only three minutes of play but then shut out the collegians. Jerry Goyer scored twice for the Winners. Ron Graham, Ed Shack, Brian Webber, Ron Stewart and Ted Makl fired singles. Defenceman Bob Watt scored for Majors.

The same game followed the same pattern, with Marlboros taking a 1-0 first-period lead before Flyers drove back with three in the second.

Geoge Ranieri, Dan Patrick and Billy Forhan were the Barrie marksmen, the latter cashing in his 12th goal in 19 games. Bob Pulford got the Toronto goal.

Dutchies, Russ Practise Side by Side Take Sidelong Peeks, Learn Little

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (CP)—Canada and Russia practised side by side at the Big Olympic hockey stadium here Saturday but neither team learned much.

The husky, fast-skating Russians had been practising 20 minutes each on the main rink when Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen stepped onto the adjoining sheet at 10:30 a.m.

The red - and - white uniformed Russian, whose passing plays have been clicking smoothly, found them suddenly falling apart as the players stole long sidelong glances at the Canadians. Finally coach Arkady Chernyshev put a shrug of disgust and gave his men a 10-minute break to watch the Dutchmen.

STOPPED TO STARE

Coach Bobby Bauer of the Canadians had little better success. The Dutchmen repeatedly stopped in middle of play to stare openly at activity on the other rink.

"They looked every bit as fast as we've heard they were," said team captain Jack McKenzie.

The great defensive unit of Canadian sportswriters at rinkside was that the Russians are shooting harder and more accurately than they did when they were here last for the world title to Penticton Vs.

The Russians appeared to be conscientiously working on a set of three- and four-man passing plays employed by Czechoslovakia's B team in Prague earlier this week when the Canadians won 9-1 and 10-1. Although the Russians skated as fast as the Kitchener-Waterloo club, they seemed to be developing attacks and rarely used long forward passes to get their forward lines breaking before the opposing defence could reform.

Bauer limited his club to a light workout Saturday but said he will start "turning on work" with emphasis on defensive play.

TOO EARLY TO COMMENT

Uri Parnjanov, Russian team manager and top official of the U.S.S.R.'s physical culture and sports committee, said it was too early to make any comment on the Canadians' play and adroitly sidestepped comparing his present club with the Russian squad that lost out in the world championships in Germany last year.

"We are anxious to see the preliminary rounds completed so we can know the composition of final hockey pool," said Barnjanov. "As for the Canadians, we know they have a fine record and are looking forward to seeing them in action against Germany next Thursday."

Barjanov, who spoke through an interpreter, said he is "delighted" with work of three new members of his squad—Victor Nikiforov, Uri Panfilov and Genrih Sidorenkov, hopes of attack.

"We naturally hope they will make our club stronger than we were a year ago," he said.

In a brief conversation with James Ahearne, Canadian Hockey Association representative at the Olympics, Barjanov said he was disappointed that Canada had been unable to send a team to Moscow last year and again this year.

"We certainly hope you will see your way clear to sending a team to Moscow next year. We are counting on it and will be very disappointed if you can't."

Barjanov questioned Dunn closely about the hockey situation in Canada, especially on the methods of running the Allan Cup and Memorial Cup playdowns.

Name Grid Board of Control Each Loop Has Commissioner

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — A 10-man board, set up to control the workings of the Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union, will wind up the four-day sessions of the two leagues here today.

The board, made up of five delegates from each league, will clean up the many recommendations made at weekend annual meetings.

A major problem is dealing with strained relations with the National Football League. Both the Big Four and WIFU recommended that an effort be made to come to some agreement and the WIFU said it would like to see all contracts and options honored.

The board, which will elect its own chairman, also will consider such matters as player limits and method of operation within the Canadian Rugby Union.

SCHEDULE DEFERRED

The question of a partial or full interlocking schedule taking in the two big Canadian leagues was favored in principle by both loops, but the West could not see its way clear to institute such a move in 1956 and deferred the matter for one year.

Much progress was made by the pro leagues as they approved a common draft of Canadian college players and a standard negotiation list of American college players involved each year in the Canadian clubs.

The WIFU retained its original American list of eight names, but the Big Four, starting from scratch named eight each also. Then all nine clubs added four more names apiece, giving each 12 in all. Duplications on the first eight-man lists would be up to the clubs to outdraft each year, but there would be no duplications on the extra four as there are now on any names in ensuing years.

NAME COMMISSIONERS

Both leagues named commissioners for 1956, with the WIFU reappointing Fred Hather of Winnipeg and the Big Four making Judge Alfred Taylor of Ottawa its first head man.

The leagues agreed that teams should be allowed to dress 38 men a game; that the starting time for practices should be up to individual leagues; that no move be made to control salaries of players; and that the draft system be retained for two playoff dates.

A major rule change recommended by the two leagues to the CRU's rules committee meeting in Toronto next month is to make a touchdown be worth six points instead of the present five. The Big Four also approved of five other of the WIFU 19 recommendations but turned thumbs down on two decreased blocking rules—on pass interceptions, and all members of the attacking team for 10 yards.

Equalization gate provisions was approved by the WIFU whereby 25 cents will be assessed from each ticket of $1 or more in total attendance. Under the scheme, the rich will feed the poor clubs showing an attendance figure above the average league attendance with pay while those under will receive.

INCREASE PERCENTAGE

The Big Four increased the percentage on split gates to 20 per cent from 15.

The Big Four for the first time used its new "distress fund" made up from its 15-per-cent cut of the 1955 Grey Cup receipts—by loaning, interest-free and with unlimited time to pay back, $10,000 to the Alberta Big Four Football Riders and $5,000 to Toronto Argonauts.

It also increased its waiver price on imports to $750 from $500, but left the Canadian waiver figure at $300. It made compulsory the release after 24 hours of any player not picked up after the 72-hour waiver period.

Both leagues elected new presidents, with Karl Slocomb of Winnipeg heading the Westerners and James McAfrey of Ottawa directing the Big Four.

The Big Four named its five representatives to the 18-man boards, one from each club and its immediate past president. They are: William Ross of Toronto, Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton, Sam Berger of Ottawa, Leo Dandurand of Montreal and Ralph W. Cooper of Hamilton.

OTHER OFFICERS

Other Big Four officers for 1956 are: first vice-president, Robert B. Moran of Toronto; second vice-president, Leo Dandurand; third vice-president, John Ahearn; secretary-treasurer, D. Wes Brown of Ottawa.

A report that umpire Sam Hichardson of Hamilton, injured in a collision last year with a player, still was in hospital and may require a back operation, prompted the Big Four to pass a motion that insurance be provided for its officials.

Western delegates approved a 46-game schedule, which sees each team play eight home games, a two-game, total-point semi - final and a best-of-three final. The 1956

Says Grey Cup Must Be Played 'Down East'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sun sports editor Erwin Swangard said in his column Saturday the 1956 Grey Cup game must be played in the East.

"Disturbing rumors from Winnipeg . . . suggest a majority of the clubs favor staging the 1956 Grey Cup classic in Vancouver.

". . . What is important," he said, "is that the football fans of eastern Canada are entitled to expect the Grey Cup game to be held in their territory this year.

"Anything else would be folly and impermissable."

He suggested the site by Toronto.

Swangard, a member of the Grey Cup committee that worked to get the game to Vancouver last year, said it was obvious the money was behind proposals to hold the game here again in 1956

Dafoe, Norris Will Retire End of Season

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (CP)—Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden, world figure skating pairs champions from Canada, Sunday announced they will retire from sport at the end of the present winter season.

"This is definitely our last season," the two Toronto-born skaters said. "We are calling it quits immediately after the Olympic competition here and the world championships at Garmisch, Germany, next month."

For 26-year-old Miss Dafoe and her 28-year-old partner it will mean the end of a meteoric career that began at a Toronto skating club in the mid-1940s and carried them to four Canadian and North American titles and to two successive world crowns.

Northern Electric Hockey League

The Flyers earned the right to meet the Barons for the league championship over the weekend by downing the Indians 4-1 in the third and final game of their two-out-of-three semi-finals. The finals begin next weekend.

Bob Hatfield sparked the Flyers to victory with a goal and an assist, the goal coming on a penalty shot. Gregory, Patrick and Phillips also scored with Longhurst, Hutchinson, Smith and Barrett helping.

Tytten scored for the Indian goal with J. Semark drawing the assist.

Industrial Hockey

An upset 4-1 victory for Caribou over the Odds, their initial win in two years, featured industrial action over the weekend while Bakelite and Point Anne also racked up victories to share first place Pond Anne downed Avon 6-4 while Bakelite shaded Meads 3-2.

Corbins outplayed Odds all the way to earn full credit for their win which lifted them into a tie with Meads, each with two points. Meads have completed their schedule while Corbins clash with Onfario Intelligencer in their final game next weekend.

O'Neil, Patrick Rowbotham, Jack Elliott and Cary Rowbotham each fired a goal for the winners while Lindsay Day tallied the Odd's marker.

Bob Cummings had a brace of goals in Point Anne's win with one each going to Bill Goyer, Mort Bradshaw, Bruce Guay and Ray Brannigan. Mike O'Brien potted two for Avon while Rob Parry and George Calbury scored.

In Bakelite's narrow win, John Casey, Hall and Hughes each fired a goal with B. Cannon and Cam Blanchard getting the assist markers. Bakelite and Point Anne clash next week, a replay of a protested game, with the winners taking first place.

National Draft Set up by Grid Leagues

WINNIPEG (CP) — A national draft of Canadian college football players and a common negotiation list of American college players were set up today for the Western Interprovincial Football Union and the eastern Big Four.

With the WIFU already having a negotiation system on American college players, the Big Four clubs submitted lists of eight players apiece to western commissioner G. Hather of Winnipeg. Then each of the nine clubs in the two leagues added four more names apiece, bringing each club's list to 12.

If the Big Four teams on their first eight choices duplicated names already on the WIFU lists, then the clubs involved would be free to draft each other for the player. There would be no duplications on the last four choices nor would there be any duplications in ensuing years. No names were exempt.

The Canadian college draft involved graduates from five eastern universities—Toronto, Western, Queen's, McGill and McMaster—and one western—British Columbia.

Ottawa Rough Riders, a. last place team in the Big Four—losers in the Grey Cup game to Edmonton and Calgary Stampeders, last-place finishers in the WIFU, second, followed by Hamilton, British Columbia, Toronto, Saskatchewan, Montreal, Winnipeg and Edmonton.

Bulldogs Inter Mercurys 12-3; Maroons Lose

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltender Gord Henry had a bad time against Windsor Bulldogs Saturday, Bobby Gillson had it worse.

Both were used in the nets by Windsor Mercurys in an effort to tempt to stop the onrushing Bulldogs in their Ontario senior hockey clash senior A game. It didn't work. Bulldogs unloaded their big offensive splurge of the season, defeating Mercs 12-3.

Henry was relieved from his cage at the end of the first period when the third-place Bulldogs were leading 6-1 before 2,400 customers at Windsor. Gillson held Bulldogs to a 7-1 count in the second and then was deluged with shots.

Mercurys fared better Saturday night, when they defeated the cellar-dwelling Chatham Maroons 4-2 at Chatham.

At Windsor, Henry stopped 31 shots but couldn't stem the tide as was to Gillson. Bobby then handled 30 shots but Bulldogs were not to be denied.

Right winger Bobby Brown led the Windsor attack with four goals and an assist. Defenceman Ralph Willis scored twice. Singles went to Jim Peters, Jack Reid, Pat Jack Armstrong, Red Abbott, Andy Washburn and John Shaver.

John Lumley, Frank Bergeron and Jack Taylor accounted for the town Sound goals.

A crowd of 2,200 fans was on hand Saturday to see Mercurys take their 16th victory in 38 starts. Tommy Burlington led Owen Sound shot. Gregory, Patrick and Phillips also scored with Longhurst, Hutchinson, Smith and Barrett helping.

Tytten scored for the Indian goal with J. Semark drawing the assist.

Injuries Plague Canuck Team Eight Said Out of Contention

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (CP)—Canada's team has had its share of the injuries plaguing contestants in the final days of training for the winter Olympics. With three days of practice to go before Thursday's official opening, one Canadian is definitely out of the competition and six others are hobbling about with assorted aches and pains.

The eighth member of the Canadian contingent, coach Franz Gabl of the men's ski team, also is lost to the squad and has been replaced.

The bad luck is by no means confined to Canadians. Almost every competing country is included in the casualty list that already surpasses that of the entire 1952 Olympics at Oslo.

Besides Andy Tommy of Ottawa, sidelined with a broken leg, five top skiers will definitely miss the competition. Katy Rodolph, a favored member of the United States women's squad, has joined the hospital contingent with a fractured vertebra.

The others are Austria's downhill star, John Sexauli; Five Lassi; German downhill and slalom champion; Valentina Nahatsko of Russia; Steinthor Jacobsson, Iceland's downhill champion, and Monsour Geagea, captain of Lebanon's team.

Mervyn Bower, Australia's best figure-skater, also joined the list Sunday, suffering a fractured leg in one of the first practices following his arrival.

Gabl, the men's ski coach from Banff, Alta., suffered a twisted knee and concussion more than a week ago at his birthplace of St. Anton, Austria. Olympic officials replaced him with Hannes Schneider to engage a top European coach, Walter Clausing, in his place.

Russians Crack World Record In Speed-Skating Competition

MISURINA, Italy (CP) — The Russians entered only one of three events in the speed-skating competition here Saturday but that was enough to indicate they are a serious threat for the Olympics opening Thursday.

Eugeniy Grishin, Moscow engraver, broke the 500-metre world record, covering the sprint distance in 40.2 seconds—two tenths of a second better than the mark set by Olympic teammate Yuri Sergeyev.

Other skaters charged afterward that Grishin and other Russians jumped the starter's gun and a race official conceded the start was "bad". But there was general agreement that the Russian would have set a record even if he had started with the gun.

The Russians took four of the five top places in the 500, with Sergeyev also breaking his own mark in an 11-man field outside of Russia tying the record in 40.5.

CANUCK EIGHTH

Johnny Sands, 22-year-old Canadian champion from Saskatoon, was the three-time Olympian's closest tangent in the meet. Sands was tied for eighth in the 500 with Ken Henry of Chicago. His time of 42.7 accorded was the fastest ever skated by a Canadian, 1.3 seconds better than the mark set by Gordon Audley of Montreal.

In addition, Sands tied for third in the 1,000 metres with Italy's Guido Cittero. Their time was 1:30.4 in the race won by Chang Yung, 22-year-old Chinese army lieutenant, in 1:29.5.

Audley, 29-year-old veteran who has been skating for 17 years, was 15th in the 500 while Ralph Olin, 30-year-old Calgary policeman, finished 13th.

WAS 16TH

Audley was 16th in the 1,000. In the 3,000-metre race won by Kees Over of The Netherlands in 4:58.6, Olin finished ninth.

There was some question whether the Russian record in the 500 metres would be recognized. However, Russian skating form impressed the group of 40 international skating stars at the Misurina 7½ miles from Cortina d'Ampezzo where other Olympic events will be held.

"The Russians are really good," said Johnny Werkert of Minneapolis. "We simply cannot compete with them. They will be here two months out of every year and they have the use of physical training camps and can do mountain climbing the rest of the year to stay in shape."

Rome's Mayor Salvatore Rebecchini lit the torch in the Campidoglio, Rome's city hall in which the ancient Temple of Jupiter is located, and gave it to Adolfo Consolini, former Olympic and world discus champion.

Consolini sped down the broad flight of stairs designed by Michelangelo to the waiting plane that carrying the torch high over his head.

Escorted by more than 100 blue-clad motorcyclists wearing white crash helmets, the automobile drove to Ciampino airport. The flame burned in front of the motorcycles.

At the moment Rebecchini lit the torch, 400 pigeons were released over the heads of nearly 500 school children singing the Olympic anthem near a bank of flags from every Olympic nation.

Russ Strong Winter Favorites Are Conceded 6 Gold Medals

By STERLING SLAPPEY

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—The Russians have a reputation for not entering international sports unless they think they can win. And this week's winter Olympics, Russia's first, apparently are no exception.

With three days remaining before the 1956 Games get under way in this Alpine village, even conservative appraisal of Russian strength concede the Soviets six gold medals.

That's more than some nations have been able to collect since the winter Games were inaugurated in 1924.

From what they've seen of the Russians in lightweight competition particularly speed skating and ski jumping, experienced observers figure the Big Four, among the Olympic nations — Norway, the United States, Sweden and Finland will have to make room for one more.

NORWAY TOPS

Since 1924, Norway has dominated the winter Games, winning 30% gold medals. The United States follows with 17. Then come Sweden, with 13, and Finland with 12%.

Skating and skiing are the toughest of the Olympic events to predict. And picking winners from among Russia's team members is just as tricky, since the Soviets seem capable of producing champions out of nowhere. Many Russian champions barely become familiar to western officials and athletes before they are pushed out of sight by newcomers.

Still, Russia probably can expect two gold medals—team and individual—in the men's cross country and two more in the women's cross country.

Little Vladimir Kuzin leads Russia's men in the cross country. His toughest competition should come from Finland's Veikko Hakulinen and Arto Tiainen, and Sweden's Sixten Jernberg, the only man to beat Kuzin in more than a year.

IN SPEED SKATING

Another one or two—probably two—gold medals seem headed for Russia in the speed skating.

In graceful jumps on Italia, the graceful hill which will be the site of the Olympic event, Russia's Kobe Hirvonen has been surprisingly good. Norway has claimed every jumping gold medal since the event was opened and is led by the 1952 champion, Asbjoern Oenes.

Roman Kiselev, Russian sports official, said today "We have no interest in the bobsled. We know nothing about it and so have not entered. We also are not entered in the figure skating events (Two gold medals the United States should pick up with Allen Hayes Jenkins and Tenley Albright).

"But in ice hockey there is interest. We are hoping for the best and feel Canada, Switzerland, the United States and Sweden are very strong."

SOUCHAK WINS

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP)—Powerhitting Mike Souchak, with a gallant come - from - behind performance, captured the $12,500 California open golf tournament Sunday with a final round 71 and a 72-hole score of 283.

The 28-year-old Souchak clipped one stroke off par 72 and was seven under regulation figures for the distance in a rousing duel with Tommy Bolt, the leader by two strokes going into the final round.

Bolt finished two strokes behind Souchak, registering a disappointing 75 for 283.

Souchak collected $2,200 top money.

Argonauts Sign UCLA Guard

WINNIPEG (CP) — Harry Sonshine, team manager of Toronto Argonauts, said Saturday UCLA guard Hardiman Cureton signed an Argo contract Friday in Los Angeles.

Sonshine, in Winnipeg at a football meeting, said assistant coach Bill Earley phoned him here to say he had signed Cureton.

Sonshine also said Earley was continuing contract talks in Los Angeles with UCLA halfback Sam Brown, drafted by Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

At Los Angeles, Cureton confirmed the report of a one-year pact for $10,000, plus a $1,000 bonus.

The UCLA co - captain was drafted by Los Angeles in the 20th round of the NFL draft here this week.

"I was not contacted by the Rams before the draft to see if I was interested, and they never even called me after they drafted me Wednesday," Cureton told a reporter. "The fact that I was taken on the 20th round is a pretty good indication of how I stood with them."

Russ, Canucks Swap Ski Pins

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—Canadian and Russian skiers, practising for the winter Olympic Games beginning next week, traded Olympic pins Saturday.

Mrs. Pat Ramage of Brantford, Ont., team manager, and her squad were given a lift from the ski jump site to the Canadian hotel in the Russian team bus.

"They were very friendly and traded Olympic pins with us," said Art Tommy of Ottawa who is nursing a twisted ankle.

"But we had to converse in sign language."

Bulletins from Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

WINTER INSECTS

We think of all insectivorous birds as living beyond our southern boundary during our cold season. But certain ones are able to remain here insects of the type needed are available even in winter, they have proper tools for getting at those that have temporarily retreated under wood, or they can subsist on a vegetable diet.

The Hairy Woodpecker is a good example of a bird with all three reasons for staying north. Its tongue, made expressly for picking up insects through deep, narrow openings, is long and slim (not cylindrical, and barb-tipped. With this implement the hidden grubs and beetles are pulled out from the bottom of tunnels in bore trunks. In days of want, this bird eats some vegetable food.

A very similar Woodpecker is the little Downy. Though not so long, its tongue is made like the Hairy's, and is able to extract grubs buried in bark. Very often in winter the Downy explores dead canes of some woody plants, finding borers and gall insects. Occasionally it can be induced to remain near habitation if a box is arranged with sawdust in the bottom. Then, if suet is added, these Woodpeckers come to feeding shelves for suet.

The tiny Creeper has a very long, finely pointed, down curved bill, with which it extracts spiders, insect eggs, larvae, and insect eggs hidden in bark crevices. Its bright eyes peer into all cracks as it spirals up a perpendicular tree, stiff tail feathers stuck into the bark to help balance. No insect is too diminutive for attention. Whether it lives or not, this Creeper, though otherwise entirely insectivorous, likes suet.

Except when nesting, Chickadees invariably roam around in mixed bands. An imitation of their call by the winter woods often brings several, and one may actually eat from your hand. Sunflower seeds, peanut butter, and, of course, suet put on a window shelf is sure to attract Chickadees if they are in the neighbourhood. But their natural winter food is insect eggs and pupae, with a few wild berries and seeds.

The long, slender bill of a White-breasted Nuthatch is built on purpose for poking under loose bark for insect eggs, pupae, and adult insects that are hibernating there. And this is a very clever species not averse to visiting a feeding station when suet can be had. There is not any danger of a Nuthatch starving, because, if necessary, it will eat acorns, fall over fruit, and seeds.

AT THE McCARTHY — The most famous ride in history is re-enacted by Maureen O'Hara in Universal-International's Technicolor "Lady Godiva". George Nader, Victor McLaglen and Rex Reason are also starred. The feature opens Monday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. 2nd feature also in color is the comedy hit "Aa Long As They're Happy" featuring Jack Buchanan and Janette Scott.

AT THE CAPITOL — Tempted, Italy's fabulous feminine fireball Gina Lollobrigida, whose startling charms have conquered the world, now runs away from honors as a top-notch dramatic actress in her first starring picture, "The Wayward Wife", which is now showing at the Capitol Theatre. Gorgeous Lollo is shown here with Renato Baldini in a scene from the American language film. On the same program Silvana Mangano the fabulous "Anna" girl as a gun toter in "Outlaw Girl". Both hits are first showings and restricted to persons 18 years and over.

Preston Foster Has Traded Tugboat for Supersonic Jet

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Preston Foster has turned in his tugboat for a supersonic jet.

For two years he has starred as Captain John on "Waterfront," one of the most successful of the non-network filmed TV shows. Recently he filmed the first of a proposed series called "Jet Pilot." Made with the co-operation and facilities of Douglas Aircraft, it has attracted much interest from potential sponsors.

Why would Foster abandon such a thriving series as "Waterfront"? He explained it as a matter of economics.

"We've made 78 of them. That's enough for two years, including 26 weeks of re-runs. The show is still riding high, and we could probably make more.

SECOND RUN PROFIT

"But the profit is in the second run. It's important to sell them in the second-run market while the show's popularity is high; you get a better price for them.

"Now is when the producers cash in on the investment. So far they haven't made a profit. I'm the only one who has—because I was under salary."

The actor is hopped up about the "Test Pilot" idea. "The story of a pilot is a sample film made to sell a series to sponsors."

"I think it has the same elements that made my first series a success," he commented. "On 'Waterfront' I insisted that we use the real locale. We went down to Los Angeles harbor and got a lot of good background shots. The coast guard supplied the equipment we needed, and I even learned how to handle the tugboat myself.

GO ALL OUT

"Douglas is going all-out for us on Test Pilot.' We can shoot at their plant, use their equipment and stock footage of tests. And we'll have more material for scripts as more secret stuff is declassified."

"Waterfront" is an example of how TV makes stars. Foster had long been a movie name, having appeared in more than 100 movies.

"But you get more recognition in six months on TV than you do in 16 years in movies," he remarked.

AT THE ELLE — A tragic moment is caught when the teen-age Rafael Campos, playing a boy accused of murder, breaks down and weeps in the arms of his mother, portrayed by the noted Mexican actress Katy Jurado. The scene is from "Trial" now playing at the Belle Theatre. The distinguished cast is headed by Glenn Ford, Dorothy McGuire, Arthur Kennedy and John Hodiak. New Trend Friday in the Palm Springs Handicap.

Injured Star Returns to Ice

CORTINA D'AMPZZO, Italy (AP)—World figure skating champion Tenley Albright returned to the ice Sunday despite her gashed right leg.

Smiling and apparently happy, the pretty Newton Center, Mass., champion said: "The leg hasn't given way or shown any lack of control like it did for the first 48 hours." She cut her leg in practice three days ago.

Saturday, her doctor further said Miss Albright will be fit to skate in the forthcoming winter Olympics.

Dr. Hollis Albright made the statement shortly after reaching his daughter's side. He flew from Boston.

SHOEMAKER SUSPENDED

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Willie Shoemaker was suspended Saturday for five days for careless riding while aboard New Trend Friday in the Palm Springs Handicap.

Gasoline-Fed Fire Destroys 22 Trucks, Tires

TORONTO (CP)—A gasoline-fed fire in a transport warehouse Sunday night damaged at least 22 trucks loaded with furniture and car tires.

No one was injured in the blaze, fought by 13 fire rigs. For a time the fire threatened neighboring warehouses.

Firemen and investigators checked invoices and equipment to determine the loss. Maurice Yacob, owner of the trucks, said he expects damage will total nearly $250,000.

Police said Karl Winkler, a mechanic, told them he was filling a transport tractor with gasoline in the one-storey Thverton Transport Company, on Lisgar street in west central Toronto, when there was an explosion and the building burst into flames. He escaped unharmed.

Hundreds of spectators gathered at the scene as flames shot 100 feet in the air.

100-Mile-an-Hour Flight in Car Ends Abruptly

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A 100-mile-an-hour flight in a car reported stolen from Hamilton ended abruptly Sunday when the auto ran up the side of the steep embankment on the Queen Elizabeth way.

The car flipped over and crashed upside down on the highway, pinning three occupants inside. They were removed from the wreckage by corporal James Erskine of the Ontario Provincial Police who said he trailed the car from St. Catharines at speeds ranging from 90 to 100 miles an hour.

Charged with car theft are three Hamilton men, Wesley Smith, 25, Allan Alkerton, 22, and Stephen Stefanik, 32. Smith was also charged with criminal negligence.

Police said the car sideswiped two cruisers in the wild pursuit.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop was smoking the last half of his first cigar, and ma said, You probably dont realize it, William, but you have a berthday looming in the near future.

That's redticulise, I just had one, pop said, and ma said, Yes, just a year ago. You cant stop time, she said.

You can stop thinking about it, pop said. I haven't changed an 8th of an inch since last year. I dont believe in going around prying into mirrors, but I accidently caught a glimpse of my reflecion the other day, and I look younger than ever, and that's enough for me, he said. I'm glad you think so, ma said, course I do too, in a wey, but the question remains, what do you want for your berthday? ma said, and pop said, A bunch of forget me's. They're bewitful flowers in the shape of inverted forgot me nots, he said.

Now really, William, I mean really, I wish you'd give me one serious practical suggestion, ma said, and pop said, All right, get me a 1935 callender with the dates modernized.

Now you're being perfectly unheard of, ma said. But just the same, that gives me an idea for a present that will be really appropriate to your eternal youth, she said, and pop said, By golies you're going to buy me a pipe with my graduation year in silver letters on the bowl.

I'm going to get you something you really need, a nice pair of new rubbers as a simbol that you're still so young you dont know enough to stay out of the rain with your good shoes unprotected, ma said, and pop said, It's a woman's werld, let it rain.

Being the end of the subject.

U.N. GEOLOGIST PROSPECTS HIMALAYAS

This lonely figure, a pygmy in the setting of Nepal's mountainous grandeur, is the advance guard of a U.N. attack to extract the riches of the rocks for the benefit of Asia's peoples. The figure is Toni Hagen, a U.N. geologist from Switzerland, who is surveying Nepal's Himalayas in a manner recalling the early prospecting and exploration of Canada. He travels on foot, relying on friendly natives for food, collecting samples of ore and making geological maps for the geologists and metallurgists who will come after him. (Central Press Canadian).

For centuries, natives of Nepal have extracted iron and other metals from their mountains, smelting and shaping the metals laboriously by hand. In his survey of the mountains, Hagen found many old mine shafts and primitive smelters as well as indications of new deposits of metals. This group of Nepalese workmen are on the side of an old mine which, years ago, turned out iron that was fashioned into tools and even guns. (Central Press Canadian).

Mr. Justice Estey Dies in Ottawa, Ill Long Time

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice James Wilfred Estey, the Supreme Court justice who wrote his legal opinions in plain language and discussed sports scores with messengers and elevator operators, died Sunday, He was 68.

The former Saskatchewan attorney-general and education minister came to his Supreme Court post in 1944, the year the CCF took power in his province. He entered hospital with a fatal malignancy last Nov. 29.

In his 11 years on the bench he became known as "a kind man." He was a great follower of sport, especially baseball and his favorite team—the Boston Red Sox —could do no wrong. He played golf and curled.

Colleagues said that in his more than 25 years as a member of the Saskatchewan bar Mr. Justice Estey never let "fancy legal phraseology" lead him away from a common-sense interpretation of the law.

FIRM AND DIRECT

The white - haired, soft - spoken judge was a firm and direct questioner in court but always mindful of the feelings of others.

Death of the Keewatin Bridge, Mr. Justice leaves the only vacancy in the nine-judge court.

Many changes were made during his years with the court. It became the final appellate court for Canada in December, 1949, when appeals to the judicial committee of the Privy Council were abolished. Its membership increased to nine from seven judges and its jurisdiction widened.

He participated in almost every case involving a constitutional issue but is perhaps best known for his judgments on the Torrens land title system used in western Canada which provides that a certificate is a good title over land. Elsewhere land titles must be established by deed.

Educated at the University of New Brunswick, he did post-graduate work at McGill University and the Harvard University Law School. He moved to Saskatchewan in 1915 to become a lecturer at the University of Saskatchewan college of law.

He was admitted to the Saskatchewan bar in 1917. From 1921 to 1929 he was crown prosecutor for the judicial district of Saskatoon.

He was governor of the University of Saskatchewan from 1926 to 1934, the year he was elected to the legislature. He became provincial education minister soon afterward and was named attorney-general in June, 1939.

Funeral service will be held in Ottawa Tuesday and interment will be in Saskatoon.

His survivors include his widow, the former Muriel Alice Irving Baldwin of Douglasfield, N.B., and three sons: Clarence L.B., member of his father's old law firm in Saskatoon; Willard Z., Toronto lawyer, and Dr. Harold Wilfred, now taking post-graduate work in surgery in London.

Unconscious Clenching, Grinding Of Teeth Causes Loose Molars

By WATSON SIMS

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you go around worrying about the hydrogen bomb, the boss' disposition or keeping up with the Joneses?

Then you're probably a bruxite; and you may wind up with loose molars and infected gums.

Bruxism—the practice in which bruxites indulge—is the unconscious clenching and grinding of the teeth. And, in this atomic age, people are gnashing their teeth more than ever.

This circumstance was brought to the attention of the Dental Societies of Greater New York the other day by Dr. Thomas E. J. Shanahan, a Brooklyn dentist. Dr. Shanahan said nervous tension is causing people to gnash their teeth without realizing they are doing so.

It isn't just the grown-up who suffers. No members of modern society are found to be free of damage.

Children worry about school grades; the aged worry about the size of their pension cheques. The overnight worry about their diet —and sometimes further damage their teeth through malnutritional and vitamin deficiencies.

One remedy, of course, would be to remove the causes of worry. But since that doesn't seem to be practical, Dr. Shanahan has a word of advice for the potential bruxite in facing the months ahead:

"Letting the lower jaw hang slack in repose, with lips closed, between meals, often helps the patient to overcome the habit."

Life's Editor Apologizes for Headlines Used

WASHINGTON (AP) — Editor-in-chief Henry R. Luce Saturday apologized for "unfortunate" brisk of-war headlines in a Life magazine article which brought a storm of world controversy awaiting around State Secretary John Foster Dulles.

"If anything in our account of the secretary's position caused any misunderstanding among our readers or the public, we heartily regret it," Luce said in a statement.

At the same time Luce struck out at critics of Dulles and the magazine article. He declared that any fault on the part of Life "was furiously compounded by those who, for the moment, put prejudice or personal advantage above the best interests of the United States."

Luce is a supporter of President Eisenhower and the husband of the U. S. ambassador to Italy, Clare Boothe Luce. The editor said Life alone was responsible for the article, both as to "substance and phraseology."

He did not say that Dulles was incorrectly quoted, but declared that the article as originally written by Life's Washington bureau chief, James R. Shepley, had been shortened and edited by Life and that the headlines did not fully reflect the main emphasis of Dulles' remarks. This emphasis, Luce said, was on the administration's "vigorous pursuit of peace."

ALLIES CRITICAL

On the cover of the Life edition containing the article was the caption: "Three times at brink of war; how Dulles gambled and won." The headline on the article itself read "How Dulles averted war. Three times, new disclosures show he brought us back from the brink."

The body of the article quoted Dulles as saying that the administration walked three times to the verge of war—over Korea, Indo-China and Formosa—and averted it by "strong action." Dulles was represented as saying that the ability to get to the verge of war and yet avoid it is a "necessary art" of diplomacy.

Democrats have hotly criticized Dulles on the ground he distorted history and showed a lack of responsible leadership. In some allied countries Dulles has been denounced in such terms as "edgy gambler."

Dulles, in reply, has declared his policy is to follow "every honorable course to avoid war," but to be prepared to take a "calculated risk for peace" where moral principles are involved.

50-50 Federal Split In Health Scheme Costs In Prospect

Payments Could Result In Smaller Tax Cuts

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A 50-50 federal share in health insurance costs with the provinces was in prospect today.

It could result in smaller tax cuts than otherwise might come out of this year's $356-57 federal budget.

"We don't have much leeway," a finance department official said after it became known the federal government is ready to contribute up to $175,000,000 a year as its share of a national health insurance plan in the initial stages.

This official said any contribution by the federal government to health insurance could have an effect on tax cuts. Liberals in the Senate and in the Conservative House have recently urged that the government put health insurance ahead of tax reductions.

FIRST MEETING MONDAY

Officials of the government's willingness to contribute to federal-provincial health insurance plans first disclosed unofficially Monday after opening of a conference of federal and provincial ministers on the question.

The government here, informants said, is willing to underwrite half the national cost of an insurance plan to help finance hospital and medical care. The conference was to hear the federal proposals in the next day or two.

The overall cost of such a plan in all provinces is not understood. It is estimated at $300,000,000 for hospital care and $50,000,000 for diagnosis.

Half of this, with all provinces in, would cost the federal treasury $175,000,000 a year. However, there are no immediate expectations that all provinces will be included at the start.

HOW SEE PROVINCES

Health Minister Martin told reporters Monday that the federal government indicated to conference at the closed meeting that it will participate if the provinces representing a majority of the population enter a program along lines laid down by the federal administration.

Four provinces most anxious to enter are Ontario, British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan. Newfoundland and Quebec appeared were unable to reach Ottawa for the opening meeting because cabinet connections—was regarded as a certainty to sign up.

Ontario Treasurer Leslie M. Frost-ner Porter advanced a proposal that the provinces should bear only 60 per cent of the burden of a comprehensive hospital insurance plan including diagnosis on a 50-50 basis.

It became known later that the federal government will not go for the proposal.

The federal proposals, it was learned, call for a series of alternatives to meet provincial objections based on the principle of Parliament's responsibility for taking care of half of the national bill.

The option favored by Ottawa is that the federal government pay to a province would be based on a uniform per capita cost for the services envisaged. The 50-50 payments from the federal treasury to a province would be based on that general average, thus provinces with a lower per capita cost could get more than half the provincial expenses. The reverse would be true for provinces above the national cost average.

On this basis, Ontario and Quebec might get around half their costs in a 50-50 federal-provincial plan. Low-cost provinces such as the four Atlantic ones would get a larger percentage. A high-cost province such as British Columbia would not get the full 50 per cent.

Atomic Powers Will Resume Talks on Arms

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) The big atomic powers, including Canada, are committed to resume their private disarmament discussions and make a progress report about six weeks afterward.

The 12-member United Nations disarmament commission agreed late Monday to that schedule, proposed by Britain, for its five-member sub-committee. This consists of Britain, Canada, France, the Soviet Union and the United States. They are expected to reassemble in London early in March.

The six-week interim report will enable the other seven members of the commission to keep a closer watch on the closed-door talks than last year. Then, the sub-committee held all meetings from February into October before reporting.

The Soviet Union and the U. S. Monday were still far apart on the Eisenhower plan for mutual aerial inspection of military areas, designed to prevent surprise attack. The UN General Assembly had asked the sub-committee to give priority to "such confidence-building measures" in efforts to arrive eventually at a comprehensive disarmament agreement.

Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev told the commission that the U. S. was seeking to supplant the cession of such an agreement with discussion of a purely technical scheme. That scheme "would actually be tantamount to a military intelligence plan," would instantly mutual distrust and would stimulate the arms race.

Henry Cabot Lodge, chief U. S. delegate, replied that his government favors a comprehensive agreement and that Eisenhower's "open sky" plan would promote the international confidence indispensable to broader plans. He said that any government which turned the Eisenhower plan down would merit "suspicion of contemplating an aggression."

Defence Budget Is Expected To Be Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP) — All indications point to a defence budget this year in the neighborhood of $1,750,000,000, government official said today.

Authorities said Monday they don't expect many major changes from the $1,755,000,000 cash total which defence spending is estimated at $1,775,000,000.

One said that, if there is any change at all, it will likely be upward. For 1956-57, however, the official is looking for a standstill defence budget.

Two clues in this regard have been given by the government.

The first was that the total the government remains convinced of the need to maintain the defences of the free nations as a deterrent to war.

Three days later, Defence Minister Campney said the Communist threat to the free world is "serious, persistent and growing" and added: "There is, I fear, little hope of any letup in the cold war in the foreseeable future."

Bride-for-Sale Offer Is Withdrawn After Yankee Minister Protest

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Pretty Betty Taylor, the 20-year-old Scots girl who advertised that she would marry anyone who would put up £100 to settle her father's debts, received a cable today from an Illinois man offering her the money if she would scrap the idea.

The cable was from Morris Bond of Champaign, Ill.

It said: "You can't marry anyone except for love. There is a Providence pounds to back this up."

Whether it was Brown's offer—there has been no mention of Betty accepting it—or the interview with a minister called at the Taylor home, or her father's pleading, Betty has been persuaded to withdraw her "bride-for-sale" offer.

Prime minister, Rev. Francis Rae of Cardonald parish church, spent more than two hours talking to Betty and asking her to reconsider her plan. When he left, the girl

Throne Speech Debate Nears Finish Line

Conservatives Propose Amendment

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons throne speech debate, which sails flattering occasionally as the winds of controversy rise and fall, moved within sight of the finish line today.

Running under new rules drafted last session which limit the debate to 10 sitting days, its speakers Monday touched on a variety of subjects including a Progressive Conservative recommendation that wheat acreage be systematically reduced to ease the surplus problem.

Attendance in the 265-member Commons dwindled a reply as 38 at one stage during the eighth day of the debate, due to windup Wednesday.

The proposal for a limit on wheat acreage came from Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary North). He said such a reduction could be carried out through the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act. The 20,000,000 acres planted to wheat last year should not be used as an arbitrary level.

Wheat acreage should be set according to the chances of disposing of the crop. It was "foolish and stupid" to produce more wheat than Canada can use itself or sell abroad.

TO CONVERT GRAIN

Mr. Gray that the government's plan to share wheat storage facilities on farms with a capacity of 178,000,000 bushels is estimated to cost $20,000,000 this crop year, he said. The money could be used to convert some wheat land to grass, especially in large sections of southern Saskatchewan and south east Alberta.

T. E. Johnston (SC—Bow River) praised the proposed storage assistance plan, but said it is an admission by the government that farmers were unjustly penalized in the past by having to pay storage charges on abnormal carryovers. It was only right, therefore, to make the assistance retroactive to the last year.

Turning from agriculture to social security, Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) demanded that old age pensions be increased from $55 a month from the present $40 to match the increase in the gross national product—which has risen nearly 40 per cent since the pensions were introduced—since the pensions were introduced.

PROBATION MATTER

J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Rosedale) said the present "intolerable unconscionable delay" by the justice department in improving the probation system has caused parents to lose confidence in the system. Probation—was regarded as a certainty to sign up.

Ontario Liberal Leader and Treasurer Porter advanced a proposal that the provinces should bear only 60 per cent of the burden of a comprehensive hospital insurance plan including diagnosis on a 50-50 basis.

It became known later that the federal government will not go for the proposal.

The federal proposals, it was learned, call for a series of alternatives to meet provincial objections based on the principle of Parliament's responsibility for taking care of half of the national bill.

The option favored by Ottawa is that the federal government pay to a province would be based on a uniform per capita cost for the services envisaged. The 50-50 payments from the federal treasury to a province would be based on that general average, thus provinces with a lower per capita cost could get more than half the provincial expenses. The reverse would be true for provinces above the national cost average.

On this basis, Ontario and Quebec might get around half their costs in a 50-50 federal-provincial plan. Low-cost provinces such as the four Atlantic ones would get a larger percentage. A high-cost province such as British Columbia would not get the full 50 per cent.

Eisenhower Asks Congress To Support Trade Policies

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—President Eisenhower today asked Congress for intensified support of his international trade policies to maintain the booming United States economy, which he said is running at the record rate of nearly $400,000,000,000 a year.

In his annual economic message to Congress Eisenhower recommended:

1. Simplification of United States tariff rates and customs procedures.

2. Congressional authorization of United States membership in the Organization for Trade Co-Operation, a proposed new international group to replace the provisional General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

3. A new drive to increase the flow of American capital to develop the resources of friendly countries.

4. Continuation of strengthened foreign military and economic aid programs.

The president said: "A program for maximum growth in the future requires . . . intensified efforts to reduce barriers to free international flow of goods, capital and business enterprise, as well as the maximum use of active co-operation with other nations in dealing with problems which hamper their progress."

Eisenhower predicted a balanced budget next year. He said he expects to expect a surplus of $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30.

But he ruled out a tax cut this year, saying that the country's huge national debt should first be reduced once a budgetary surplus came into sight and as long as economic conditions continued favorable.

Eisenhower restated his view that United States prosperity is linked with economic health abroad. He said important progress has been made in liberalizing international trade but the United States had not done enough and further action by Congress was urgently needed.

He asked Congress to consider if it would be advisable to restore government restrictions on consumer credit.

In a letter accompanying the economic report, the president said:

"Full employment, rising incomes, and a stable dollar have been characteristic of our modern society. The practical attainment of these ideals during 1955 was the year's great economic achievement.

"The past year has brought fresh witness to the basic strength and resilience of our economy. We have broken through to new and higher ground, and have reached the threshold of a $400,000,000,000 economy.

"Striking recent developments all together, it is reasonable to expect that high levels of production, employment and income will be broadly sustained during the coming year, and that underlying conditions will remain favorable to further economic growth."

Think Fortune Is in Shack Where Frozen Woman Found

SHERRINGTON, Que. (CP) — Police today stood guard in a run-down shack in this Quebec village where the frozen body of a 76-year-old woman was found Monday.

Police said the woman, identified as Mrs. David Vachereau, is believed to have had between $60,000 and $70,000 in the two-room shack.

They said her body, clad in jute bags, was found on a cot in one of the rooms of the neglected, unheated shack after seeing an smoke rise from the low, grey house. Several dogs were found beside the body.

Police said the woman apparently died of natural causes about a day before being found.

Neighbors told police the woman had shut herself from the outside world since the death of her husband last July.

Police said the couple had been prosperous farmers in the Hemmingford, Que., district for many years. They sold their property eight years ago before moving to the shack. Money received by the couple from the transaction is believed to have been hidden in the shack, police said.

Sherrington is about 25 miles south of Montreal.

Too Much Panic About Surpluses Say Farm Experts

HAMILTON (CP)—The question of farm surpluses and how to dispose of them topped the agenda today as representatives of 650,000 Canadian farmers gathered here to solve the problem.

But some farm experts here for the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture said Monday night there was no real panic over the surplus situation.

The basic problem which has benefitted through more than 100 research stations from farm groups to eliminate duplication.

President H. H. Hannam said in a presidential address that the problem that surplus disposal is the most important problem facing Canadian farmers. One proposed solution, he said, might be adjustment of the prices at which farmers are paid while there should be more heavy stocks to products for which there is no market.

NO REASON FOR PANIC

In a panel discussion Monday night W. H. Wright, vice-president of Manitoba Pool Elevators Ltd., said there was no reason for panic over present wheat surpluses.

He said he refused to take the position there should be a reduction in production or acreage.

Lawrence Kerr, a Chatham, Ont., farmer said there was room increase in hog production to use up more wheat. He said many farmers would dite the price of hogs and bring on a cut on the U.S. market of up to $4 to $5 per hundred.

Dr. E. C. Hope, CFA economist, said the panic was not warranted and people but among urban residents. He did not favor a whole adjustment in marketing.

FOR CONVENIENCE

NEW YORK (CP)—For the convenience—he said—of motorists receiving traffic summonses, chief magistrate John M. Murtagh Monday authorized establishment of night courts to collect fines from those who wish to plead guilty. Night Court was announced after a jammed with victims of a recent police crackdown on traffic violations. Mr. Murtagh announced that the night courts will operate from 5 to 8 p. m. on designated nights.

Four Are Killed In 2-Car Crash Near Chicoutimi

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — A coroner's court inquiry was to be opened today into the death of four persons in a two-car collision near this northeastern Quebec centre late Monday. Three persons are in hospital in this city.

A car driven by a travelling salesman met in a head-on collision with another car bearing six people—a mother and two children from Hamilton, their grand-parents and a Chicoutimi couple.

The salesman, Marcel Tremblay, 32, of Chicoutimi, and Jean Dore of the others were killed. Two of the injured were in critical condition.

TO PICK UP THREE

Police said Joseph Gagnon, of his 62-year-old wife and her brother-Albert Fortin, 54, all of nearby Lac-Saint-Jean, had been on their up the Gagnons' daughter, Mrs. Solange Van Nostrand, 28, of Hamilton and her children, Leonard, 5, and nine-month-old Sandra.

The Van Nostrands were going to Alma for a holiday with the Gagnons.

By the time help reached the scene, Tremblay, Fortin and little Jean Dore were dead. Gagnon died later in hospital. Her husband and daughter were in hospital here as in critical condition while Mrs. Van Nordron was under-treatment for shock and injuries.

The accident occurred some six miles south of here on the Quebec-Chicoutimi highway.

The cars were buried in opposite sides of the highway and almost completely wrecked. A storm had been raging for hours and ice was on the area and the road was described as dangerously slippery.

VACCINE DANGEROUS

EASTON, Pa. (AP)—More than 60 bottles of a poisonous vaccine capable of killing a human being were shipped to a veterinarian's car here Monday. Authorities issued a warning that the vaccine, if used improperly on a sick disease, can kill a person if it enters the bloodstream—even via a cut on the hand.

Two CNR Trains Meet Head-On; Eleven Injured

Should Have Made 'Pass' Near London

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Eleven persons were injured, none believed seriously, Monday night in a head-on smash between two Canadian National Railways passenger trains on the London - Stratford - Toronto mainline 30 miles northeast of London.

Westbound train No. 11 struck the standing eastbound train, No. 40 at Kelly Station, a passing point about 8:15 p.m.

Railway sources said that ordinarily one of the trains would have been on a siding for the scheduled "meet" at Kelly Station. However, officials would not comment on a possible reason for the crash.

The westbound train was travelling only about 15 miles an hour at the time.

WORST INJURY

Most painfully injured was George P. Gonder of London, engineer of the standing eastbound train. He is in hospital at St. Marys with head lacerations and a gashed thigh. He also is suffering from shock and a back injury as said "fairly good."

The engineer of the westbound train, Hadley Baker of London, escaped with a shaking up.

Also injured, so far learned, Gonder was the only person admitted to hospital.

Names of all the injured were not learned for some hours as several were taken home or to nearby centres by taxis, after receiving first aid from doctors on the scene.

The impact drove the eastbound train back 50 feet but the eastbound engine was the only unit derailed. It remained upright. Both engines were damaged considerably.

SUFFERED HEAD CUTS

The only other railway employee injured, besides Gonder, was Conductor R. W. Lawrence of Windsor, Ont., who suffered head cuts when thrown along on his side.

Injured passengers included:

Alex D. Mcrae of 132 Norman St., Sarnia. Cuts and bruises.

Mrs. S. Goodwin of 179 Dunn St., Stratford. Bruises and shock.

Samuel Noll of 55 Trinity St., Stratford; chest injury.

Mrs. J. A. Carlton of 1075 Cardinal St., Guelph, fractured nose.

30 Are Hurt in Train Crash

BRUSSELS (CP) — More than 30 passengers suffered cuts and shock when a local train rammed into the Osten-to-Cologne express at Herent, near Louvain, today. The injured included a number of Canadian servicemen and British tourists.

The collision occurred at Herent station, about five miles from Brussels, when a local train plowed into the rear of the express as it pressed train full of Americans returning to Germany after leave in England. The Ostend-Cologne express had stopped due to engine trouble.

Indians Frustrating Attempts To Save Depleting Caribou Herds

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—A small band of Chipewyan Indians in the Canadian eastern Manitoba are frustrating attempts to save the depleting herds of migrating caribou.

Reports from Duck Lake, an Indian settlement just south of the Saskatchewan-Manitoba border, 200 miles north of Winnipeg and 140 Northwest Territories, indicate an alarming amount of waste following the annual fall hunt.

Ralph Parker, conservation officer with the Manitoba game department, has been conducting a recent predator patrol in the area that at one point he saw 450 caribou carcasses lying on the lake ice. The carcasses were being attacked by wolves and ravens.

G. W. Malaher, director of the provincial game and fisheries branch, said he could sympathize with the Indians, totally dependent on caribou for food and clothing.

"They kill so many because they are afraid they might miss the next migration and starve," he said.

Mr. Malaher said it is difficult to reach an agreement in such a remote area. Indians and Eskimos who are dependent on the animal are allowed to kill as many caribou as they need. Game authorities are limited to one a year.

An aerial census is now taking place along the route running from northern Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and the Northwest Territories, where the caribou spend the winter months.

Mr. Malaher said the caribou situation will probably be discussed by a technical committee now meeting in Toronto. The committee is composed of representatives of the Canadian wildlife service, and conservation officials.

Decline in the caribou population was a major topic at the 10th session of the Northwest Territories Council which ended Monday in Ottawa. The territories caribou population has dwindled to an estimated 200,000 from 2,000,000 in 1949 and a federal-provincial committee is seeking ways to stem the decline.

Supreme Court Would Dismiss Appeal By Coffin

Decides 5-2 Gaspe Killer Not Entitled to New Trial

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada said today a majority opinion it would uphold the conviction of Wilbert Coffin, Gaspe, Que., prospector convicted of murdering Richard Lindsey, 17, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., hunter, in June, 1953.

The five-to-two opinion was given at the request of the federal cabinet which asked the court what decision it would have rendered had it granted Coffin leave to appeal.

The court's opinion is not binding but presumably will be used by the cabinet in deciding whether to allow the death sentence to stand, commute it to life imprisonment or order a new trial.

Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin and Mr. Justice Robert Taschereau, L. C. Rand, R. L. Kellock and Gerald Fauteux would have dismissed the appeal. Mr. Justice C. H. Locke and J. R. Cartwright would have allowed the appeal and ordered a new trial.

Coffin, whose wife and two children have been postponed seven times since it was originally set following his arrest in July, 1953, in New Carlisle, Que., now is scheduled to be hanged at Montreal's Bordeaux Jail, Feb. 10.

Mr. Justice Taschereau said in his opinion that the circumstantial evidence in the case gave the jury no other alternative than to find Coffin guilty.

His reasons for his opinion were concurred in by Chief Justice Kerwin.

The crown claimed Coffin, 44, ambushed three American hunters, killed Lindsey, his father and companion, shot them and stole more than $600 and other articles from them.

Mr. Justice Taschereau replied that by points to all 10 points of law raised by Coffin in his request for a new trial, and rejected every one.

He said trial Judge Gerard Lacroix did not err in his charge to the jury. He wrote that the jury could conclude that Coffin's possession of articles belonging to the hunters "was a link in the chain of circumstantial evidence that he had committed the murder."

He rejected also the argument that evidence was admitted at the trial when police testified they acted "on positive information" in searching Coffin's Gaspe cabin for a rifle.

Mr. Justice Cartwright, giving reasons for his opinion that the conviction should be quashed, said the trial judge erred in admitting evidence police had found a rifle and bullets hidden at Coffin's camp.

The evidence was that after Coffin's arrest police searched and that he spoke with his brother Donald, to the police officers and that he was heard going to Coffin's camp, and that the next morning two provincial police officers arrived at the camp but found no rifle.

Mr. Justice Cartwright said evidence showing police had information that the rifle was hidden in a specific place was inadmissible as hearsay evidence. Yet on that illegal information was built a theory that Coffin had told his brother where the rifle was and had persuaded him to take it away.

Rival Moroccan Nationalists Stage Battle

RABAT, Morocco (AP)—Moroccan nationalists of rival political parties fell to fighting with daggers and stones in the little town of Souk el Arba Monday, leaving four dead and 30 wounded, French officials said.

The town of about 5,000 is in northwestern Morocco near the Spanish zone border.

French officials said the fight broke out while arrangements were being made for a visit of the newly-named governor of Rabat province. Members of the Istiqlal (Independence) party and the Democratic Independence party wielded daggers and buried stones during a clash. Nerve ambulances of delegations to the area where the welcoming ceremony was held. A squad of French mobile guards was hurried in to re-establish order.

Blow Hoar Frost Off Phone Line With Helicopter

EDMONTON (CP)—A helicopter blew hoar frost from 60 miles of telephone line Monday but an official of Alberta government telephones said results of the experiment left much to be desired.

The machine took about four hours to fly from Edmonton to Ponoka, the downdraft from its rotor blades blowing frost off lines and poles, the reaches the helicopter flew about 20 feet above the wires.

The operation was tried in an effort to restore normal phone service between Edmonton, Calgary and other points in southern Alberta. Hoar frost piled up almost an inch thick during the last few days, causing short circuits and breakage.

Only five circuits, about 10 per cent of normal, were in operation early Monday. About 15 were working after the experiment. However it was also melting some of the frost.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Westinghouse strike entered its 100th day as one of the most costly labor disputes in American history—expected its 101st day with no indications when a settlement might be reached in the contract dispute.

Federal mediator John R. Murray has conferred daily with negotiators for Westinghouse and the AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers, but they have withheld comment on their progress.

Insurance Men Hear Address

The January meeting of the Quinte Life Underwriters was held in the Shrine Club with many local insurance men present. Mr. Bob Pogue introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Phil Lawrence of the Prudential Insurance Co. of America, head office Toronto. Mr. Lawrence's topic was "Specialized Knowledge." He stated that general knowledge is of little use by anyone but specialized knowledge is necessary to attract success. He said knowledge must be organized and applied, otherwise it is only potential power.

The speaker said that definite, practical knowledge is a must in the life insurance business and described several cases where it was applied in a practical manner and resulted in certain success. The speaker stated that specialized knowledge must be made available to anyone with a desire for it.

In conclusion Mr. Lawrence said that the order of the day is specialization.

The speaker was thanked by Mr. Harry Brant of Trenton, who presented Mr. Lawrence with a gift of appreciation.

Dr. McVicker Indicates Hospital Refutes Charges Satisfactorily at Committee Meeting

A committee of county council and members of the Belleville General Hospital Board and Governors met Monday afternoon to discuss certain statements made by Dr. D. C. McVicker, Reeve of Deseronto, at the county council meeting last December.

At the conclusion of the 1 3-4 hour meeting Dr. McVicker said he was satisfied that the hospital's rebuttal of his charges was complete.

Eight points concerning the hospital's administration, school of nursing, business office, maintenance, rates, accreditation, special services, indigent treatment and medical staff were discussed.

Dr. McVicker repeated his charges at the opening of yesterday's meeting and the hospital answered them one at a time.

Dr. McVicker's charges of overlapping on the part of the administrative and maintenance departments included the head office, emergency department, X-ray and medical records. He admitted he did not know how many were on the maintenance staff but said he thought too many were cleaning women and that there were women taking telephone orders on four shifts who could be dismissed.

It was pointed out that in the admitting office there were three persons, an admitting officer and two clerks.

"The clerks do not work only on documentation," said hospital administrator Kenneth Box "they do other work such as mailing out bills, checking Blue Cross etc. One officer books patients and is a full time job in itself at this hospital."

It was stated that in 1945 there were three persons on the maintenance staff and now there are five—one electrician, one engineer, two carpenters, one groundskeeper and one pipefitter.

"Parts of this building were put up in 1898," said Mr. Box.

NEED CONTINUOUS MAINTENANCE

"They require continued maintenance. We could dismiss the entire maintenance staff and do the work by tender but it would cost the hospital about five times as much per year as it does now in salaries. By having a full time staff we have maintenance work on a full time basis."

It was pointed out that increased staff in the emergency department is necessary because a nurse is on duty there seven days a day.

Dr. McVicker also charged that the School of Nursing had instructors who lecture for two or three hours a day and did nothing for the balance of the day.

It was pointed out to him that the instructors lectured in classrooms three hours a day and during the rest of the day supervised student nurses on the wards.

"Our training school is now recognized as one of the foremost in the province," said Mr. Box. "Our students rate as nurses while training but a high standard of training is required that they care for the sick under supervision."

A. M. Haig stated that the standard of instruction affects nurses recruitment and that better instruction makes it easier to get students. He pointed out that the Belleville General Hospital's School of Nursing is one of the few in the province that in the past few years has had no trouble meeting its quota.

Dr. McVicker said that he had no wish whatever to cast aspersions on those in the hospital service of nursing, or on the work she was doing.

"I have been in a lot of hospitals," said Dr. McVicker, "and Miss Pearl's work was superior to all."

MAINLY FROM COUNTY

Reeve T. C. Graham of Tweed said that he had heard complaints that some of the girls coming to Belleville were getting 10 years age gain admission to the School of Nursing.

"Miss Pearl has been all over Hastings County recruiting nurses," said Mr. Box.

Board member J. E. Buchan said that in recent graduating classes 90 to 95 per cent of the girls were from Belleville district and Hastings County.

Dr. McVicker stated that in 1945 there were two persons in the business office and despite the fact the staff had been increased many times, offices were not kept up to and often a patient would leave hospital only to receive another bill later for charges entered after his original bill. He also said that rates in the hospital were cheaper than in Belleville.

J. N. Yanover, chairman Board of Governors, pointed out that there were three people in the business office in 1945 and that expenditures were $532,072 and revenues were $563,000. Now there are eight persons in the business office. In 1955 expenditures were nearly a million dollars and revenues $963,251. The number of patients the hospital had increased and the number of patient days of care had increased by nearly 4,000 per year to 93,776 in 1955.

"We must comply with the eight hour day and the 44 hour week. He also stated that a new system of hospital accounting had been instituted by the provincial government in 1951 and unless the system was followed the hospital could not receive provincial grants.

Board member H. P. M. Cane said that mailing out of a subsequent bill, while not before, was perfectly understandable. The patient would have had his account and charges for tests might not be sent from the laboratory to the business office until afternoon.

BILLS SOMETIMES DELAYED

"Bills are sometimes delayed because of Blue Cross claims," he said.

A table of rates for hospital room accommodation in Belleville, Kingston and Peterborough was presented. The chart showed: Private rooms—Belleville $10-$15; Kingston $11-$13.75; Peterborough $13 plus a 10% surcharge for medical and surgical cases. Four-bed rooms: Belleville $8.50-$9.50; Kingston $9.50-$10.75; Peterborough $10 plus 10% surcharge. Four-bed rooms: Belleville $8.00-$8.50; Kingston $8.75; Public ward: Belleville $7.00; Kingston $7.50; Peterborough $7.00 plus $3 surcharge.

The per diem cost of care in the three cities in 1954 was: Belleville $12.58; Kingston $13.74, and Peterborough $16.57.

Mr. Box pointed out that the Kingston hospitals were teaching hospitals in affiliation with Queen's and received much larger government grants for that reason. Mr. Box also said that in 1954 the Peterborough Civic Hospital had a deficit of $100,000 which was paid by the city.

"No hospital in Ontario that I know of has a mortgage debt which it pays out of operating revenue," said Mr. Yanover. He explained that the hospital pays approximately $31,000 a year on mortgage debt.

"Without paying this we could possibly have had new or improved services," he said.

Mr. Haig explained that an agreement had been made with the city in 1949 over payment of the $31,000 mortgage debt and by the hospital if the city could not pay the hospital could use the indigent payments amount to about $100,000 a year. Otherwise about $100 would otherwise so that the hospital is out $18,000 a year on the deal.

INDIGENT RATE DISCUSSED

Rates of payment for indigent patients by municipalities and municipalities were quoted showing payments in the city of Belleville as $8.00 per day per patient in excess of the then statutory rate of $5.00.

"On what did you base your statement that the rates in Belleville were higher than those in Kingston?" Mr. Box asked Dr. McVicker.

"Some of my patients told me rates in Kingston were lower," Dr. McVicker answered.

Reeve Graham suggested that possibly special service costs in Belleville were higher than in Kingston.

Mr. Box stated that X-ray charges in Belleville are on the Ontario Medical Association schedule, the same as in Belleville. The rate in Kingston is list price as is the case in Belleville. Mr. Box said laboratory charges in Belleville were as much as 50 per cent below the Ontario Medical Association schedule.

Mr. Buchan said that the hospital was run on a budget which was reviewed monthly and that costs were carefully checked and comparative prices sought.

Dr. McVicker charged that the accreditation received recently by the hospital had nothing to do with the administration or operation of the hospital. "Rather for has ordered it!" asked Mr. Yanover.

"The Board of Governors requests that remark very strongly," said Mr. Box.

"In 1949 the accreditation committee refused to consider us because of unsatisfactory staff. They made suggestions which the hospital staff followed and in 1953 the improvement was so noticeable that we received provisional accreditation. This year we received full accreditation."

Dr. McVicker said that patients now are receiving more nursing care than ever before. The Department of Health recommends an average of 3.8 hours of nursing care per patient every 24 hours.

DOUBLE CARE IN 10 YEARS

In 1945 patients were receiving approximately two hours of nursing care every 24 hours. In 1955 patients were receiving four hours of nursing care every 24 hours or twice as much care as they were getting 10 years ago and more than is recommended as good practice by the Department of Health.

"We used to have two nurses working a 24-hour period," said Dr. McVicker, "now we have three. We have to comply with the eight-hour day. Labor costs have gone up. We have no control over these things."

Dr. W. B. Beattie, chairman of the medical staff, in speaking as a member of the Board of Governors, answered Dr. McVicker's charge that "until four or five years ago there was no provision for special services. Then new doctors came to the city and a closed society had been formed and with hospital consent rural practitioners were shut out."

Dr. Beattie pointed out that in 1951 the Ontario Department of Health sent a schedule of re-organization of the medical staff to the Belleville General Hospital.

"Departments were set up. The by-laws were put into effect with a tremendous amount of work," said Dr. Beattie.

He stated that under this re-organization doctors using the hospital were classified as members of the active, courtesy and associate staffs. Active members were designated by the department as doctors resident in Belleville, under 65, who would agree to rest indigent free of charge under departmental organization, who would attend ward rounds and patient consultations. All indigents were to be admitted by members of the active staff.

All rural doctors were members of the courtesy staff and were asked to attend and participate in all staff meetings. In 1953 the Board decided to grant active membership to rural doctors if they would attend.

FAILED TO COMPLY

Dr. Beattie said Dr. McVicker applied for active membership and failed to comply.

"He was subsequently demoted to the courtesy staff because he failed to comply with regulations by not attending staff meetings," said Dr. Beattie.

He stated that the following year Dr. McVicker applied for associate membership, but it was refused because he did not come under the category of associate membership. He said Dr. McVicker applied for active membership on the general practice staff in 1955 but that application had not yet been considered.

This classification carries no responsibility to indigents," said Dr. Beattie.

Dr. Beattie also stated that "five years ago, in the 'good old days' before the Blue Cross, this hospital was not even considered for accreditation. Today the hospital is fully accredited, which in itself means it is approved for interm training."

Dr. Beattie also took exception to the charge of "inferior medical services."

"Indigents in this hospital are treated like private patients," he said. "The only difference in the treatment is in the type of the room they occupy."

"In what way do special services differ from routine services?" he asked. "Regardless of cost whatever needs doing is done for indigents."

He stated that Dr. McVicker never attended staff meetings, never served on staff committees, never done "our particle of work for the improvement of this hospital."

Dr. McVicker answered that two years ago he was requested to the nurses in public health.

"I feel Dr. McVicker's remarks are a reflection on myself as an insult to the integrity of all doctors on the staff," said Dr. Beattie.

ALL CAN APPLY

"I only have to be asked and I am available," said Dr. McVicker.

"All doctors can apply for the medical department and will get to do indigent care on a rotation basis," said Dr. Beattie.

Mr. Yanover pointed out that the hospital has no control over services ordered for patients by doctors except at the time of service.

"Does the hospital board or the administration have the power to withhold treatment once the doctor has ordered it?" asked Mr. Yanover.

"I think it the duty of the hospital board to ask doctors to cut down services to the minimum," said Dr. Beattie.

"When a drug is ordered we as a board have no choice but to provide it," replied Mr. Yanover. "We have no authority to tell any doctor what to prescribe."

Reeve Graham said that his municipality had an agreement with local doctors whereby indigents were kept in hospital as much as possible to reduce hospitalization costs.

"We have the feeling some doctors rush indigents to hospital to get rid of them," he said. "Local doctors might work with the municipalities to reduce the number of indigents."

Mr. Yanover said that when doctors were send patients to the hospital had no control over the admittance, or what is prescribed or when the patient is discharged. He stated that there were only thirteen beds in hospital at the moment who have been there for years of the 300 beds.

"The hospital is losing $5 per day on each of those patients," said Mr. Yanover. "It seems to never ask treatment to be curtailed because a patient is an indigent," he said.

COSTS OUTLINED

Mr. Buchan said that the outpatient department, which has been greatly expanded in the past few years, has helped to reduce hospitalization and had helped to reduce costs by being one of the few outside sources of revenue available to the hospital.

Before laboratories were expanded tests had to be sent out of town, said Mr. Buchan. "This is certainly not a cheap way to do it and is not satisfactory for rapid diagnosis," he added.

In speaking about operating costs it was pointed out that in 1951 food, medical and other supplies had cost $379,475; payroll was $382,000 and revenue $563,000. In 1955 supplies cost $332,953; payroll was $581,000 and revenue $963,251.

The hospital has cut costs with the exception of the payroll," said Mr. Yanover. "We feel the administration has done a good job."

Reeve Cecil Ketcheson of Thurlow township said that possible lower food prices were responsible to some extent for lower costs in 1955.

It was pointed out that while this might be the case to some degree it was true that more patients were being cared for and more meals being done in 1955 than in 1951.

DID LOT OF HARM CLAIM

"I feel that much of the good work which has benefited this community by the hospital board, the administration and the medical staff feel your remarks have done a lot of harm. You, as a doctor saying these things, give them added authority, but there is nothing we can do about that."

Mr. Cane asked Dr. McVicker at the conclusion of the meeting if he was satisfied that the hospital had satisfactorily answered his remarks and Dr. McVicker replied that he was satisfied.

The committee of County Council attending the meeting included Warden-elect Elmer Wood, Leslie McLaren, Reeve of Sidney township, Reeve J. C. Graham, Reeve of Tweed; Cecil Ketcheson, Reeve of Thurlow township, and Dr. D. C. McVicker, Reeve of Deseronto.

Board members in attendance were: J. N. Yanover, chairman; Bruce Latimer, Frank Donnelly, A. McLean Haig, Dr. W. B. Beattie, Arthur Whitehead, J. E. Buchan and Administrator Kenneth Box.

Expensive Ride For Two Who Took Bicycle

"It's going to be a pretty expensive ride," commented Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning as he gave a year's suspended sentence to two local young men following their pleas of guilty in a charge of stealing a bicycle. The men were each assessed $21 fine and costs.

Police Inspector J. C. Hayes told the court that Provincial Constable Seminara had spotted the two men early Sunday morning as they rode a bicycle into the city from Prince Edward. The officer held them for city officers.

The bicycle had been taken from outside a local restaurant Thursday evening and apparently had been abandoned on a vacant lot off Church street where it was taken by Chas. Keegan and Gordon Murray.

The men had then hired a taxi to take them to a party across the bay and were on their way back to the city when stopped by the provincial officer.

Basil Godin, 35, Belleville, was also given suspended sentence on a charge of pointing a gun. The incident took place a week ago at a Bettes street address.

Constables of the Hastings county jail charged with wilful damage following a disturbance in the file in the solitary confinement section of the jail were remanded until Jan. 31 when McFarlane, 22, and Russell Hambrook, 17, were charged yesterday after a bed clothes storage room had been set ablaze by forcing ignited tissue paper through a ventilator hole.

Smoke and Water Damage Heavy In House Fire

Considerable smoke and water damage to the upstairs rooms as well as fire damage to clothing was caused yesterday noon at the home of Clifford Belch, Cannifton Road, when fire broke out in an upstairs clothes closet.

Mr. Belch fought the blaze with water from a pressure system until the arrival of the city fire department. Smoke and water damage to the upstairs rooms was extensive although the fire in the closet were a complete loss from the fire.

Chief of the fire partially under control when firemen arrived, but through a good fire department," Mr. Belch said.

panded tests had to be sent out of town, said Mr. Buchan. "This is certainly not a cheap way to do it and is not satisfactory for rapid diagnosis," he added.

In speaking about operating costs it was pointed out that in 1951 food, medical and other supplies had cost $379,475; payroll was $382,000 and revenue $563,000. In 1955 supplies cost $332,953; payroll was $581,000 and revenue $963,251.

Mr. Box pointed out that the Kingston hospitals were teaching hospitals in affiliation with Queen's and received much larger government grants for that reason. Mr. Box also said that in 1954 the Peterborough Civic Hospital had a deficit of $100,000 which was paid by the city.

"No hospital in Ontario that I know of has a mortgage debt which it pays out of operating revenue," said Mr. Yanover. He explained that the hospital pays approximately $31,000 a year on mortgage debt.

"Without paying this we could possibly have had new or improved services," he said.

Mr. Haig explained that an agreement had been made with the city in 1949 over payment of the $31,000 mortgage debt and by the hospital if the city could not pay the hospital could use the indigent payments amount to about $100,000 a year. Otherwise about $100 would otherwise so that the hospital is out $18,000 a year on the deal.

INDIGENT RATE DISCUSSED

Rates of payment for indigent patients by municipalities and municipalities were quoted showing payments in the city of Belleville as $8.00 per day per patient in excess of the then statutory rate of $5.00.

"On what did you base your statement that the rates in Belleville were higher than those in Kingston?" Mr. Box asked Dr. McVicker.

"Some of my patients told me rates in Kingston were lower," Dr. McVicker answered.

Reeve Graham suggested that possibly special service costs in Belleville were higher than in Kingston.

Mr. Box stated that X-ray charges in Belleville are on the Ontario Medical Association schedule, the same as in Belleville. The rate in Kingston is list price as is the case in Belleville. Mr. Box said laboratory charges in Belleville were as much as 50 per cent below the Ontario Medical Association schedule.

Mr. Buchan said that the hospital was run on a budget which was reviewed monthly and that costs were carefully checked and comparative prices sought.

Dr. McVicker charged that the accreditation received recently by the hospital had nothing to do with the administration or operation of the hospital. "Rather for has ordered it!" asked Mr. Yanover.

"The Board of Governors requests that remark very strongly," said Mr. Box.

"In 1949 the accreditation committee refused to consider us because of unsatisfactory staff. They made suggestions which the hospital staff followed and in 1953 the improvement was so noticeable that we received provisional accreditation. This year we received full accreditation."

Dr. McVicker said that patients now are receiving more nursing care than ever before. The Department of Health recommends an average of 3.8 hours of nursing care per patient every 24 hours.

DOUBLE CARE IN 10 YEARS

In 1945 patients were receiving approximately two hours of nursing care every 24 hours. In 1955 patients were receiving four hours of nursing care every 24 hours or twice as much care as they were getting 10 years ago and more than is recommended as good practice by the Department of Health.

"We used to have two nurses working a 24-hour period," said Dr. McVicker, "now we have three. We have to comply with the eight-hour day. Labor costs have gone up. We have no control over these things."

Dr. W. B. Beattie, chairman of the medical staff, in speaking as a member of the Board of Governors, answered Dr. McVicker's charge that "until four or five years ago there was no provision for special services. Then new doctors came to the city and a closed society had been formed and with hospital consent rural practitioners were shut out."

Dr. Beattie pointed out that in 1951 the Ontario Department of Health sent a schedule of re-organization of the medical staff to the Belleville General Hospital.

"Departments were set up. The by-laws were put into effect with a tremendous amount of work," said Dr. Beattie.

He stated that under this re-organization doctors using the hospital were classified as members of the active, courtesy and associate staffs. Active members were designated by the department as doctors resident in Belleville, under 65, who would agree to rest indigent free of charge under departmental organization, who would attend ward rounds and patient consultations. All indigents were to be admitted by members of the active staff.

All rural doctors were members of the courtesy staff and were asked to attend and participate in all staff meetings. In 1953 the Board decided to grant active membership to rural doctors if they would attend.

FAILED TO COMPLY

Dr. Beattie said Dr. McVicker applied for active membership and failed to comply.

"He was subsequently demoted to the courtesy staff because he failed to comply with regulations by not attending staff meetings," said Dr. Beattie.

He stated that the following year Dr. McVicker applied for associate membership, but it was refused because he did not come under the category of associate membership. He said Dr. McVicker applied for active membership on the general practice staff in 1955 but that application had not yet been considered.

This classification carries no responsibility to indigents," said Dr. Beattie.

Dr. Beattie also stated that "five years ago, in the 'good old days' before the Blue Cross, this hospital was not even considered for accreditation. Today the hospital is fully accredited, which in itself means it is approved for interm training."

Dr. Beattie also took exception to the charge of "inferior medical services."

"Indigents in this hospital are treated like private patients," he said. "The only difference in the treatment is in the type of the room they occupy."

"In what way do special services differ from routine services?" he asked. "Regardless of cost whatever needs doing is done for indigents."

He stated that Dr. McVicker never attended staff meetings, never served on staff committees, never done "our particle of work for the improvement of this hospital."

Dr. McVicker answered that two years ago he was requested to the nurses in public health.

"I feel Dr. McVicker's remarks are a reflection on myself as an insult to the integrity of all doctors on the staff," said Dr. Beattie.

ALL CAN APPLY

"I only have to be asked and I am available," said Dr. McVicker.

"All doctors can apply for the medical department and will get to do indigent care on a rotation basis," said Dr. Beattie.

Mr. Yanover pointed out that the hospital has no control over services ordered for patients by doctors except at the time of service.

"Does the hospital board or the administration have the power to withhold treatment once the doctor has ordered it?" asked Mr. Yanover.

"I think it the duty of the hospital board to ask doctors to cut down services to the minimum," said Dr. Beattie.

"When a drug is ordered we as a board have no choice but to provide it," replied Mr. Yanover. "We have no authority to tell any doctor what to prescribe."

Reeve Graham said that his municipality had an agreement with local doctors whereby indigents were kept in hospital as much as possible to reduce hospitalization costs.

"We have the feeling some doctors rush indigents to hospital to get rid of them," he said. "Local doctors might work with the municipalities to reduce the number of indigents."

Mr. Yanover said that when doctors were send patients to the hospital had no control over the admittance, or what is prescribed or when the patient is discharged. He stated that there were only thirteen beds in hospital at the moment who have been there for years of the 300 beds.

"The hospital is losing $5 per day on each of those patients," said Mr. Yanover. "It seems to never ask treatment to be curtailed because a patient is an indigent," he said.

COSTS OUTLINED

Mr. Buchan said that the outpatient department, which has been greatly expanded in the past few years, has helped to reduce hospitalization and had helped to reduce costs by being one of the few outside sources of revenue available to the hospital.

Two Surprised Inside Building, One Captured

TRENTON (Special) — Capture of a well-known young thief, Francesco of Halloran's garage Sunday night may clear a break-in that occurred a week ago.

Constable Stanley Smith, Provincial Police officer, was on duty in Port Hope, the beginning of April, and from that point it will travel to all areas requesting it between Oshawa and Kingston and north to Bancroft and Haliburton.

It is intended to have a speaker at the opening ceremonies who is an authority on painting and art, and who will view the exhibit and comment on the artistic work.

This plan of procedure will call for local shows to be held in January, or early February, at which all amateur painters are invited to exhibit their work. From these local shows a quota of pictures will be selected to go on the travelling display. The same conditions and regulations as of last year will apply. All entries must be the work of the exhibitor, who is not engaged in painting as full-time gainful occupation; it must be original in character, and can be in oil, tempera, India ink, water color, and pastel. All entries must be suitably framed, signed and, if for sale, priced. An entry fee of $2.00 a picture will be charged. This will cover costs of insurance, office work and mimeographing.

The project is closely allied to the aims and objectives of the community arts project launched by the Department of Education, and ties in with fostering the advancement and developing the cultural life of the community.

The committee responsible for 1956 is—D. C. Stuart, Canton, chairman; Mrs. R. J. Richardson, Port Hope, deputy chairman; Miss Joan Lambert, Oshawa, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. W. C. Life of Mozart Subject of Talk At Rotary Club

Mozart, the musical genius whose bi-centennial anniversary is being celebrated across the world this year, yesterday was the subject of the after-lunch speech to the Belleville Rotary Club at the Hotel Quinte.

Speaking on the great composer was Eugene Lang, music critic of the Ontario Intelligencer.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, born of lower middle class parents in Salzburg, Austria, in 1756, was composing symphonies at an age when most children are laboriously picking their way through the Alphabet. Between 1762, when he had his first work published at the age of six, and 1791, when he died at 35, he composed some 626 known works.

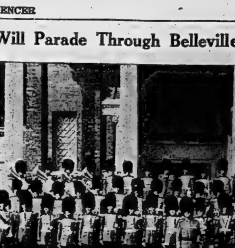
He is and always has been recognized as possessing one of the greatest minds ever bequeathed to humanity, Mr. Lang said.

Marking Mozart, the anniversary of his birth, the entire world will pay tribute with special performances and festivals.

Art Exhibit To Be Assembled At Port Hope

The 1955 first showing of pictures from sixty-five painters, representing seventeen communities in this area, was assembled at Bellleville. The show visited sixteen different centres and was viewed by more than five thousand people from April 15 to September 2. Since the pictures shown were entered by local exhibitions in the various areas, more than five hundred painters were given the opportunity to exhibit.

The new management committee has the organization completed for the second show that will be assembled and opened at Bellleville, Campbellford in Port Hope, the beginning of April, and from that point it will travel to all areas requesting it between Oshawa and Kingston and north to Bancroft and Haliburton.



It is intended to have a speaker at the opening ceremonies who is an authority on painting and art, and who will view the exhibit and comment on the artistic work.

Ducks Travel in Ancestral Pattern from North to South

By DION HENDERSON

MILWAUKEE (AP)—How does a wild duck steer his way from a marsh on the Mackenzie river to a slough in Louisiana, or from the Aleutians to Hawaii—and back again to the same spot?

Since Aristotle observed — erroneously, though it took 2,000 years to find him out—that a chosen leader heads the migrant flocks, wise men and ordinary birds alike have speculated on what guides the world's millions of migratory birds.

Guesses, educated and otherwise, on the answer have ranged from Olympic guidance through plain magic to present-day theories of elaborate built-in biological radar. Or the whole mysterious business is dismissed in a word as instinct.

NO ONE KNOWS

In other words, no one really knows.

But now a distinguished waterfowl authority, summing up 15 years of observation by himself and other game management scientists, has come up with what may be an historical report.

The migratory process seems so uncanny, says H. Albert Hochbaum, that most of the theories to explain it may have been overcomplicated. The birds, he suggests, know their home the same way you know yours, and they travel in ancestral patterns using the same sort of system you would. This is the way that Hochbaum, director of research at the Delta waterfowl research station in Manitoba, phrases it:

The beginning and ending of the annual migration is a learned place."

A MILESTONE

And the statement may become a milestone in wildlife management.

Hochbaum's report is contained in a book, "Travels and Traditions of Waterfowl," published by the University of Minnesota Press. It reviews the history of research on the subject, adds to it the findings of American and Canadian biologists cooperating in the Delta program.

In the title of the book, Hochbaum adds a word to the ornithologman's vocabulary—traditions. It covers and explains much of the behavior previously obscured by the "instinct" label.

Birds, of course, have a sense of direction but it's now sixth sense, to some insects, like ants and bees, and most animals as witness the cat that came back, saying nothing of the hunter. Modern man is no Polynesian navigator, by and large, but he can observe enough to tell east from west on a sunny day.

A duckling, Hochbaum says, learns its marsh, explores surrounding areas when it can fly, finally joins a mass migration to wintering grounds. Scattered landmarks can guide a flight for hundreds of miles, and from those lands of feel in the air such land marks are visible day or night.

BARREN AREAS

One immediate use of the Hochbaum theory is an explanation why regions that once bred multitudes of ducks now are barren even though the habitat still may be favorable. If a population were wiped out by disaster or otherwise kept from breeding, traditional patterns might not be re-established for years, he says.

The monumental work is not exactly the "last" reading to while away 15 minutes between trains, but the sportsman and ornithologist may gain much from it.

On travel itself, Hochbaum observes that the distance of travel is relative to the traveller, and postulates, for fellow technicians, four coordinates to the dimension of travel.

What this amounts to, in understandable language, is a time-to-space yardsticks for comparing duck travel with human travel. Given the advances of his flying height, his lateral range of vision his speed of flight ahead and his speed, a canvasback has an overwhelming advantage. Three hundred miles to a duck is like 20 miles to a man.

For instance, to formulate the 3,000-mile flight from the Mackenzie delta to the gulf is to a duck as a 200-mile walk to a man. And that's possible to conceive, even today.

World Food Board Seen Best Hope To End Surpluses

HAMILTON (CP)—President H. H. Hannam of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture suggested today that creation of a world food board or clearing house may offer the best hope for an answer to the problem of growing agricultural surpluses in many countries.

"More than ever before the ability of agriculture producers to produce has far outstripped the ability of world consumers to buy," said Mr. Hannam, addressing the CFA annual meeting here.

Western nations were changing the emphasis from expanding agricultural production to seeking means of expanding consumption, raising purchasing power, promoting policies designed to increase effective demand "for the abundance already produced by world farmers, and the still further abundance they have the capacity to produce."

But, he added: "The nationalism of the old days seems still largely to dominate the approach of major governments toward international commodity programs."

OTHERS PROSPERING

Turning to the Canadian scene, Mr. Hannam said he doubts farmers have ever experienced so great a drop in farm prices as in the last four years without a corresponding decrease in farm costs.

"The percentage of the consumer's dollar received by the producer is gradually declining. As services in distribution and merchandising increase, because of competition and consumers' preferences, it is also possible that the margin between what the consumer pays and the price the producer receives will continue to widen."

The statements were included in the text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

Mr. Hannam said most Canadians are enjoying boom times and that the outlook for this year is as good and possibly better in some ways than 1955.

"Apparently the only notable exception in this picture of record prosperity is that of the farmer and his family."

Obituary

Mr. Leo Riggs, well known Belleville resident and a former businessman here, died suddenly this morning at St. Petersburg, Fla., where he was spending the winter.

The body will arrive in the city on Thursday.

A complete obituary and particulars concerning the funeral arrangements will appear in Wednesday's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer.

Public School Education Costs Up 2½ Mills

Cost of public school education in the city of Belleville will be put up an estimated 2 1/2 mills as compared to that of 1955, according to members of the city public school board who struck estimates at a budget meeting last night.

After finalizing their budget for the year it was estimated it would take 24 1/2 mills for public school education as against the 22 mills levied last year.

Cost of public school education for all purposes, including debenture requirements, will this year be $566,491.35 with government grants expected to return $106,106.69 to the city.

Current operation of schools will cost $345,384 as compared with $327,000 last year, while debenture costs will be $27,301.35 as compared with $61,753 last year.

However, a balance of $25,777.49 is being carried over from last year's operations to help reduce this year's levy for school purposes. This balance from last year was made up of $10,000 from the 1955 supplementary assessment roll; $10,000 from the special $4 per pupil grant received by the province and $5,000 balance from last year's cash account.

TWO VIEWS OF THE FUTURE

The question before the nation is whether Canadians want to be hewers of wood and drawers of water or whether they prefer to take in each other's washing.

These cliches climaxed the London Economic Commission at Montreal, when R. M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, presented a 50,000-word brief.

The crux of Mr. Fowler's argument is that any attempt to build up so-called "secondary industries" by restricting primary producers in Canada would lead the nation to disaster.

It is probable that Mr. Fowler's contention was the result of legislation proposed by Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec, who has announced plans to ban exports to Ontario and New Brunswick of raw or partially-processed wood pulp from Crown lands, amounting to some 800,000 cords annually. Perhaps he fears that this legislation may be copied in other fields, by other provinces.

Curtailment of the interchange of raw materials amongst the different provinces of Canada is certainly undesirable from the standpoint of the nation as a whole, however attractive it might be from the viewpoint of provincial authorities eager to see processing plants established within the boundaries of the province producing the raw material.

Fortunately there are limits to the control which provincial authorities can establish over the movement of these raw materials.

There is, however, nothing to prevent the Federal Government, if it so desired, from blocking the export of raw materials to foreign countries. The United States, Fowler is apparently afraid that controls of this nature may become commonplace.

The objective of foreign controls is obvious. They would be designed to encourage the establishment in Canada of manufacturing plants to convert these raw materials into the finished products. These finished products, in turn, would provide Canadians with many more dollars than would the raw materials from which they were manufactured. It is almost invariably true that a much higher rate of employment is obtained by the conversion of raw materials into the finished goods than from the sale of the raw materials themselves.

In some instances raw materials are produced in Canada and consumed chiefly in the United States, and Canada then buys back a large portion of the finished goods manufactured from Canadian-produced raw materials. The cost of these finished goods is increased by much higher than the amount received from the sale of the raw materials. It is therefore argued by Mr. Fowler's opponents that Canada would be well advised to manufacture them itself.

This contention draws from Mr. Fowler the retort that it would be preferable for Canada in 1980 to have 26,000,000 people with jobs and a high standard of living than 30,000,000 people "busily engaged in taking in each other's washing," in other words engaged in supplying their own needs and exchanging their own dollars, instead of exchanging them for the money of other countries.

Those who consider this an impressive argument forget that trade is, essentially, "taking in each other's washing." We do that when we trade with the sun, obtaining and by possession of materials and tools, best equipped, and we then exchange the product of our labors for other goods, produced by people trained and equipped to turn them out with skill. It is, in a general sense, whether we exchange these goods with our neighbors or with people at the other side of the earth, providing we receive the goods we require.

Canada, however, cannot herself produce some of the goods she needs. Because of her climate and other factors, she will always have to import them from countries which pay her with certain goods. To obtain them she must sell some of her products outside her borders. For that reason we cannot confine our economic activities to trading in each other's washing alone. We must take in some washing from outside our borders; that is we must export some of the goods we produce. Mr. Fowler is apparently convinced that, for a variety of reasons, we will find it easier and more profitable to export raw materials than finished goods.

The trouble with this contention is that it is extremely improbable that Canada can maintain indefinitely at having 25 million people enjoying a high standard of living or 30 million people with a low standard. Past experience is that in sparsely settled countries, especially sparsely settled countries which depend on primary production to bring them their trade dollars, which have low living standards; and that the countries where work is plentiful and living standards high are those where raw materials are processed and the home market is large enough to maintain industries capable of mass production.

At the same time, we ought not to lose sight of the fact that the period of changing over from hewing wood and drawing water for other nations to taking in our own washing is going to confront us with many difficult problems. We cannot cease hewing wood or drawing water before we have an ample supply of washing to take in. In this sense Mr. Fowler's warning was a timely one. In the long run, though, the views of F. G. Ferrabee, president of the Canada's Machinery and Equipment Manufacturers' Association, and Maj.-Gen. G. B. Howard, executive vice-president of the—Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association, both of whom opposed Mr. Fowler's argument, are more likely to prove reliable guides to a prosperous future.

THINGS

This strange how talkative are things,
Though silent they appear to be,
No one who knows some memory clings
That others neither hear nor see.

"Remember," says a certain book,
A friend of yours gave me to you.
Turns the volume that he took
To read aloud a page or two."

"I," says a picture on the wall,
"An artist friend was glad to do.
I wonder if you still recall
The day he brought me in to you?"

A form of speech belongs to things,
As all eventually must learn,
For in their tender whisperings
The joys of long-past years return.

Successful Belleville boy. Major Fraser Lyon, an old Belleville boy, was the builder of the great Mahwar dam on the Nile River in the Soudan which was opened on January 22nd by Lord Lloyd, the British High Commissioner. The dam will bring water irrigation 300,000 acres of land for cotton cultivation. The dam is two miles long and cost £13,-000,000 Sterling.

Local letter carriers appeared today resplendent in all the glossy glory of their new caps.

The January session of the Hastings County Council will open at Shire Hall tomorrow and the first order of business will be the election of a warden: E. A. Ashley of Madoc, and C. B. McGuire of Stirling, are aspirants for the office.

Old Rooms Transported

(By Meyer Berger in the New York Times)

Probably one of the last places you'd expect to find a 345-year-old Jacobean room would be high in the Empire State Building. It's less than thirty years ago. Yet that's where one is, linked by ancient doors with a Gascon chateau originally put together in a chateau near Dax in southwest France and a Georgian room made for the Guildhall in London in 1730.

The rooms were shipped across the sea about ten years ago to be used as thirty-second floor offices for space of Schenley Distillers Company executives and their guests. In the mahogany-panelled chairs, tables and sideboards that stood in the chateau long ago are used every day at company luncheons.

The Jacobean room came from Rugeley Manor in central Stafford in Britain. It has gray-mullioned windows threaded with lead and stained glass images of poor Louis II of Hungary and Queen Maria of Austria. The legend stood in the chateau long ago at Ludovico. It is dated 1522.

There are learned fellows in Schenley Distillers who have heard that Ludovico was an extraordinary person. A bald-headed, mustached when he was only 13, white-haired five years later, afterward, or loaned by Henry VIII to waders at the Battle of Mohacs in 1526. Ludovico died in 1527.

George Witten, the 73-year-old mailtrade who gets up the executives' luncheons for the Schenley people paid handsomely for the installation and reinstalation of the original red-tiled floor of the Gascon chamber — even $2nd. It's now in place and blackened for realistic effect. One day, though, a workman found a small piece had chipped off.

Each of the three transplanted rooms came with its original fireplace. The one in the Georgian chamber — that room is the long-est — is hand-carved, as is all the panelling in the whole suite. The five-places don't work, except with electric trickery. They won't burn real wood without smoking up the place.

George, the mailtrade-de, is no ordinary pilgrim, and it is rather curious that his job in the ancient dining suites is only thirty-seven years up from the job he held fifty-two years ago. He was a bus boy up there — later a waiter in the Waldorf - Astoria Hotel, when it stood on the site from which the Empire State arose.

George served the late Diamond Jim Brady, among others. He snorts at legends of Diamond Jim's generosity; says he was a niggard by tipper and a rather surly type especially to waiters. George worked at Luchow's, too and, gets misty-eyed about the place, its former owners, and the wild game his used to carry in for distinguished gentlemen in times now long gone by.

Still later, he opened his own place in Thirty-first Street, which he calls the Waldorf alle. It was still going when the Empire State was built and he moved up and up and up and finally takes the Gov. Al Smith, John Raskob crowd with him. "Then I got a baby," George says, among others. He sold out in 1945, hearbroken over loss of a woman, to the Schenley people called him out of retirement and that's all she wrote.

There are still down a $125 customwade evening suit bought for him by Schenley people and worn by him when he waited one night in 1915 in the old Waldorf-Astoria for Jess Willard, Spitty Shea and some of the other card-and-dice boys who "lived" at the hotel. He's got the waverin spree, chipped in and ordered the suit.

When George tells about this, he's apt to stare, dreamy-eyed, around the walls of the Jacobean room windows at the hazy New York skyline, and tell you, "I can't wear the suit now, not for many, many years but Mamma don't want to cut it up or throw it out. She cannot forget that when I got that wore it, and danced with her."

Moving Coal By Pipe Line

(Chicago Tribune)

Coal, ground up and suspended in water, will be moved 1,000 miles or more in a pipe from Ohio mines to the generating plant of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company, under a plan announced by that company and Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company, the nation's largest coal producer.

The pipe line, an experimental venture, will transmit a little more than a million tons of coal a year. It is the second project proposed to ease the railroad car or transportation for coal. The legislature refused to give permission for construction of a belt transmission system across the state a few years ago, largely because of opposition by coal hauling railroads.

The pipe line will cost only $ to 10 million dollars, less than a tenth of the estimated cost of the belt scheme. This time some of the coal roads are joining in the financing. It is not so that this might also provide an investment opportunity for the miners of the United Mines Workers.

Although President Lewis has sometimes been called the best oil salesman in the country, he has been in many ways a most enlightened union boss. It is greatly to his credit that he has never placed any barriers in the way of mechanization of mines, with the result that the United Mines Workers miner produces more than seven times as much coal per day as the British miner.

Their productivity does a good deal to offset the high hourly wage rates. The union's method is worth only about the half as much as coal in the storage pile of the consumer together to create a "fuel" difference in price represents the cost of getting it to him.

Industries which use large quantities of fuel have to stay reasonably close to coal areas. The beautiful view of Lake Michigan from the lake shore drive is an industrial centre. It is the coal mines of Illinois, Indiana, and Kentucky which have determined the efficiency of carrying coal is going to be cheaper than carrying water and permit expansion of industry farther from the mines. The effect of the change should they lose substantial part of the rich coal traffic would be another and quite vexing problem.

Marriage Movies

(Pueblo, Madrid, Spain)

A German marriage bureau has taken a bold step. It projects on a screen shorts about the life of selected bachelors to make their selections on the basis of the film.

The feminine lonely hearts are shown in moments of cooking, sewing or carrying out other domestic chores. The film then shows them in their gardens or taking their pet animals.

It appears that this technique avoids many disenchantments at the first meeting, and this matrimonial agency's business has remained in the last three months.

Doctor Must Communicate

(Ottawa Citizen)

"The most valuable part of my medical training," said the young doctor, "was the course in dry cleaners in the summer between terms."

It nodded approvingly. It seemed sensible enough although I hadn't the vaguest idea of what he meant.

"Not the most valuable." he amended, "but the most surprising. I couldn't have got in medical school — and that is an understanding of how people feel about doctors.

"I had some problem: communication. They felt that their doctor didn't know how to talk to them, or wasn't willing to explain enough, or didn't try to allay their anxieties or to reassure them in simple terms.

"Sometimes they added the opposite problem — the doctor didn't really listen to them, didn't give the impression of being fully, and had made them feel foolish and ignorant for asking questions at all. All these people respected what doctors did — but they didn't like the way they did it.

The principal reason for this attitude, that is so widely held, is the specialization in the field of medicine; a trend which is sometimes carried to excess nowadays.

In the past 30 years we have seen the tremendous growth in size of the human body that the parts came to observe and treat the individual's mental ailments, or organs, rather than individuals, ignoring the fundamental fact that the patient is a whole person, and not merely a collection of parts.

The growth of modern psychiatric knowledge has begun to check this unfortunate tendency in medicine. We now recognize that the patient's attitude is an essential part of his ailment (sometimes indeed, the predisposing part), and that doctors must be well-skilled in the art of communicating with a patient, for communication is as powerful as it can be helpful.

It shouldn't be necessary for a vacuum cleaner in the summer in order to learn the public's reaction to medical attitudes. But medical schools themselves should devote a portion of the curriculum to a study of "doctor-patient communication." It is fine for a doctor to know his job thoroughly. But it is even finer if his desk-side manner can prevent many patients from taking to their beds.

So You Like to Be Pushed Around?

What happens to the poor little tyke when he's born in a hospital? Bright lights, either smells, masks, instruments, bustling doctors and nurses — plus the fact that he is immediately separated from his mother and carried away to a nursery full of howling, lonely infants — a hectic atmosphere indeed for a new life . . . home is the place to have a baby. It is better for the mother, too. She doesn't have to go through that hospital routine of strange people and strange surroundings at a time when she needs serenity and confidence. . . . You aren't rudely awakened at 6 a.m. to eat whatever they bring you . . . sleep until nine if you wish and eat what you darn please.

There is my sentimental but not my words. They are the words of Colleen Gray (Mrs. Bill Bidgen jack). The movie star had her first baby in the hospital, so she knows what she's talking about. "Toward the end of the first stage," she says, "I was a bundle shot of something," she said, "and the next thing I knew I had a baby."

Well, my goodness, too many women nowadays argue, can't take the boon modern obstetrics has brought to women! Why should a woman choose to undergo the throes of childbirth without benefit of anesthetics and sedatives when the use of these wonderful discoveries "could" enable her to dose or sleep" until it's all over?

Too many young women who echo that argument just show their ignorance.

Maybe their "specialists" do not tell them is that the anesthetics and sedatives so freely used to dull or slightener blank out consciousness of what is going on is responsible for asphyxia at birth and for a serious injury to or arrest of development of brain cells in some instances — the babies, if they live, are more or less feeble-minded.

Colleen Gray explained: "They told me I should have been grateful. I wasn't. They had put me out against my wishes. I had wanted to know what having a baby was like. So when Bruce was going to be born I decided the shot business wouldn't happen again. I would have natural childbirth."

And she had natural childbirth at home. She says "We are planning to have more children. They'll arrive by natural childbirth, too, God willing."

I wish I could afford the time and money it takes to compile and maintain a directory of United States and Canada doctors who attend childbirth at home, but I can't.

Only if challenged by a physician of standing will I even give the names of the doctors mentioned by people whose views of natural childbirth in the home I agree with, or have put in this column.

A VARIETY OF IMMORTALITY

There are bosses in the town in which I live whose names are referred to by the name of a builder dead now for seventy-five years. His houses stand out above all others for the beauty and simplicity of their design, and the sturdiness of workmanship.

What a grand reputation to have behind! Seventy-five years after this contractor has passed away, people still talk about his work. Nobody built as he could build. Many feel that nobody who has ever built in this community has his exquisite sense of proportion and design.

The immortality of the soul is a religious doctrine. It is also a secular doctrine. There is a kind of immortality—such as this builder has—which arises from love and is long remembered. People point to houses and say, "That man built them." Think of the people who are remembered because of a book they have written, a picture they painted, or a movement they started.

But greatest of all—and of course the most common immortality—are those are gratefully remembered not for distinguished achievement, but for long lives of loving service. Children remember parents and speak of them long after. Then grandchildren. Surviving spouses carry people still with them. Long-married lives constituted a long service of love.

The immortality of influence and service. It is real.

LOCKED DIVIDENDS

Dividends are something earned, before ability, no matter how great it is of no value to anyone it is used, and when it is used dividends are certainly earned. Such is the law of God-given ability. No one can tell its worth until it has been used.

Too many people just let this hidden, inherited ability rest without doing anything about it. Even those who do, paying attention to it, do not always do what they should to realize those coveted dividends! The "sox bank" is a precarious place.

None of us have but a faint idea as to our possibilities in all walks. Therefore we should start to develop what we have, and glory in its growth, for from that alone is earned those dividends or spiritual growth that are to be found not only to the thrifty and the ambitious. It's like taking a step and then another until the ladder of success is climbed.

Don't envy the other fellow. Admire him. Use him as an example if he is notably successful. We are all examples to a greater or less extent. Hero worshipers are usually those who have the desire to get what Keyo in real life is hidden ability and strive to make it develop itself!

Just imagine the dreams of Edison as he worked at he telegraph instrument, thinking and planning on the things he felt he could do with what ability he then possessed and what he'd get later in life, no sooner did he discover-or develop another than he quickly turned to something else, so that he might discover more useful and add to his discoveries and inventions. He found it such a fascinating game that he often forgot either to eat or sleep!

We can all do our best what we do, and when we do that something better, we find that we are on the first ladder of a genuine success. We find ourselves in an inspiring new world!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Here is a tip for advertising men. For a small sum, I will serve on a committee of three or four good-looking average citizens who will sit in on previews of both TV and radio programs.

Our duty will be to watch and listen. And when, in the commercials, we the committee suddenly out "Awful" or "Pzaall!" or "Assagain!" the advertising agency will know exactly where to cut the commercial.

It must be quite a problem to know how long to run the commercial. The law allows them three minutes of commercial in a half-hour program. And most of them use them. They employ the full three minutes, to the split second, even though they so succeed only in irritating, enraging or exhausting the viewer and listener, thus destroying the very function of the commercial. Now and again, a program deliberately passes up its time-limit on commercials, which is delights the audience that they very deliberately remember the sponsor. Others devote so much intelligence to the commercial, whether in wit or humor or suspense, that it blends in with, or becomes part of, the entertainment. Old Saozzle Dunraby is especially good at that. So is that sinister little man, Alfred Hitchcock.

But over the broad general field of TV and Radio. it seems to me the man least suited to his job is the writer of commercials. I imagine him sitting in a private office, the door shut and never opened except when, like is the little room provided in jails for the executioner, he is summoned forth to exercise his grim task. I visualize an advertising agency fairly jumping with creative talent, but the writers, producers, directors and all the gay company of specialists who conspire together to create a TV or radio show work themselves up in an ecstasy. The script is finished. Everybody is rapturously slapping everybody else on the back. Then the big agency man at the far side of the large desk taps his gavel for quiet. Everybody stops talking and sinks down on chairs, filing cabinets, waste baskets. The youngest and least important member of the galaxy is given a signal. He vanishes out of the big room, walks down the corridor and taps on that narrow door which never is opened except at such moments as this.

Out steps a lean, cadaverous figure. His is immaculate, maybe a little flamboyant, as I am told executives are. On one hand, he carries Roget's Thesaurus, in the other, a copy of Mother Goose nursery rhymes. Gravely he walks down the hall and enters the big office, where all festivity has fro-en . . .

Looking neither to right or left, he accepts the script from the big advertising man and turns and gravely back into that dread little room.

He writes in the commercials.

TRENTON AIR RANGERS IN RCAF EXPEDITOR

Rangers Peggy Crawford (left), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, 16 Princess Street, and Sandra Bowerman, daughter of Mrs. Clifford A. Baker, 189 Victoria Street, Trenton, examine the safety belts in the pilot's cockpit of an RCAF aircraft.

The first pioneer Company Air Rangers of Canada, gathered in the Station theatre RCAF Station last Friday to hear Miss Helen Sylvas, provincial ranger adviser of Toronto, address a group of close to 100 Girl Guides on rangering and to enroll four local girls into the 1st Ranger Company of Trenton.

Those enrolled were Teresa Hennessey, Cecilia Larson, Donna Murphy and Ina Ray Johnson, all of Trenton. Ranger Peggy Walker was presented with the Ranger Star, a badge equivalent to the 1st Class badge in the Girl Guides.

"Rangering" is the senior activity of the Girl Guide movement, embracing girls of from 15 to 21 years of age who may or may not have been guides.

Previous to Sept. 1951, the rangers were composed of two branches, land and sea. Then in the fall of 1951 the pioneer air flight, the 1st Air Rangers were formed at Trenton under the guidance and leadership of Flying Officer Harvey, wife of Air Commodore J. B. Harvey, RCAF.

The Air Rangers are a non-military organization and although some interests are in flying all subjects associated with the science of aviation, they have no official connection with the RCAF or any other organized flying group or club.

Basically Air Ranger activities follow closely the Guide Program which is based on the ideals expressed in the Guide Law and Promise.

The Trenton group are now under the leadership of Captain Jean Wiggins of Trenton who has been associated with the group since their inception. Mrs. Harvey, the founder still serves with original group as a lieutenant.

Quinte Field Naturalists Charmed by Slides, Address

Last evening, in the conference room of the new Entomological Building, Dundas Street, the members and friends of the Quinte Field Naturalists enjoyed a rare treat when they were addressed by Mr. J. E. H. Martin, director of the Entomological Institute of Ottawa.

Mr. Martin, who was introduced to the club by the new president, Miss F. Young, spoke on the flora, fauna and insect life of British Columbia's desert region, Bonaventure Island, and the Gatineau Park of Ottawa and Hull, accompanying his most interesting descriptions of the localities with beautifully colored slides and moving pictures.

B.C. INTERESTING TO NATURALISTS

British Columbia is most interesting to naturalists and botanists because of its many forest regions, especially in the Okanagan Valley with its sage bush; grease bush and cacti which are similar to that of the deserts of Arizona. Its bitter root; its wealth of lovely flowers which included purple and white lupines; pink rock roses; daisies; the yellow flowered rabbit bush with bluish-grey leaves; the tall bluish-purple louse wort; the lovely rain orchid; ground phlox; flowering sage; the scarlet Indian paint brush, and the blue clematis, to mention but a few of those shown.

In the Okanagan Valley, with its numerous scattered lakes, there are pear, peach and apricot orchards; bub higher up the sloping hills, there are pines, and lower down the dry, barren areas with insect life and the rocky places, where the rattle snakes live, coiling themselves at the base of shrubs, and the grease bush.

CASCADE MOUNTAINS

Among the delightful pictures shown were views of the Cascades with their evergreen trees; evening sunsets; and floating mists, snow-capped mountain peaks, and waterfalls, as well as close-ups of the spade-footed toad with its extra toe for digging; the bull snake which bites but is nonpoisonous, and is about six feet in length; the rock rabbit with his queer round ears; the wood chuck or ground hog, which he can, and whose ears are also of huge size; and the garter snake.

In the Gatineau District lovely pink orchids hid among the moss; the beaver was busy with his dam; the leopard frog croaked at his evening song, and the muskrat slid gracefully across the waters; nasty looking, mud-colored water snakes writhed and slithered along a log over the water; and a pair of painted turtles staged a wrestling match, disputing over some delicacy beneath the murky water dense with the churning sand.

CAS Closes Year With Credit Balance for First Time in Years

The January meeting of the board of directors of the Children's Aid Society was held in the Bridge Street United church parlors on Thursday last. Mr. C. B. Morgan, the president, presided and in his opening remarks welcomed Mrs. A. S. McConnell to the board. Mrs. McConnell replaces Mr. R. H. Macklem who resigned in September, 1955.

Mr. Morgan advised the board that the local director, Mr. Kerry, and he had met with the city of Belleville Welfare committee and later in the week with the Hastings County Council relative to grants to the society for services performed in their respective communities. "We were cordially received and there is every indication that service of the present kind will be continued in 1956," said Mr. Morgan, "it was a most gratifying experience."

Mr. Charles H. Hyde, the treasurer, reported the receipts for the year 1955 had amounted to $122,813.05 and disbursements to $120,845.25 leaving the society with an excess of revenue over disbursements amounting to $247-83. "We received more money from the municipalities than was required to maintain the children in ward care," Mr. Hyde stated, "so we will therefore return to the municipalities approximately $3,000 in 1956 by way of a reduced per diem rate." This is the first time for a number of years we have not closed the year with a deficit.

CHEST REVENUE DOWN

The president, the Society's representative to the Belleville Community Chest, referred to the Chest activity for 1956 and said that the society had received $3,-600, a decrease of $1,400 from the previous year. "This is a serious loss to us," he said, "when we consider that we will receive a grant in the amount of 25 per cent of all funds received from the chest from the province of Ontario, we are short this year by almost $1,000."

The reports of three committees set up by the society at last year's study protection and prevention services, services to unmarried parents and other services performed by the society were distributed, and accepted. It was suggested that they be brought before the board at the next meeting for study and such recommendations as to the best manner in which the necessary changes be made can be implemented.

TELLS OF ACCOMPLISHMENT

Mr. Bruce Kerr, the local director prefaced his remarks by saying that this had been a very successful year for the society. "There are the same number of children in care at the present time as in 1948, although during this period, 1948-1955, the population of the county of Hastings has increased by almost 15,000." He continued, that we had 273 children in ward care at the end of the year, a reduction of 44 from the 31st of December 1954. The number of days paid care dropped from 7,796 in January to 6,940 in December, a saving of $1,052.64 in one month alone. During the year 65 children were admitted to care and 111 discharged. Thirty-five were returned to their natural parents. Forty children were successfully placed in adoption. I think we should be very proud of what we have accomplished.

Considerable time was given to the discussion of qualification of personnel. The Association of Children's Aid Societies of Ontario proposes to set standards of minimum competence for field work personnel. This would enable a society to say, on a basis of common standard, what level of competence its workers had achieved and, on the other hand, would give the worker something to show for the education he has undertaken and the experience in the Children's Aid field he has gained. Those present unanimously expressed favor of the proposal and it was referred to the February meeting with the suggestion that copies of the proposed association by-laws be distributed to all members of the board.

PLAN ANNUAL MEETING

Mrs. Orval Hyde was appointed to convene the arrangements for the annual general meeting which will be held at the Bridge Street United church, in February. Mr. A. V. Pigott, vice-president of Pigott Motors of Toronto, will be the guest speaker. Mr. Pigott is a past president of the Winnipeg Children's Aid Society and in the Toronto Community Welfare Council. He is one of the best sought after after-dinner speakers in Toronto.

At the close of the meeting Mr. Kerry, the local director, expressed his appreciation of the co-operation and assistance of the board of directors and said that "he sincerely hoped that Mr. Morgan, the president, would continue in that office for another year."

Sons of Scotland Celebrate 'Burns Night'

The Sons of Scotland celebrated "Burns Night" on January 21, with a supper and dance at the I.O.O.F. hall, with the traditional haggis being piped in by Mr. J. Haggerty and Mr. A. Mitchell.

The Reverend W. R. T. Middleton, guest speaker, gave a delightful speech on Scotland's famous poet, Robert Burns, which was warmly appreciated by all his listeners.

Mr. John Kerr gave a few renditions of Scottish songs.

After the supper the dance was held.

"The Eightsome Reel," "The Dashing White Sergeant" and "Strip the Willow" were a few of the many Scottish dances enjoyed.

To be thanked for the very enjoyable supper are the following members: Mrs. Peter Thomson, Mrs. H. Thomson, Mrs. Andrew Carr and Mrs. A. Alexander.

On the entertainment committee were: Alec Gemmell, T. Barclay, Miss Fay Hamilton, Robert Mitchell and T. Cathcart.

Perce Rock the graceful gannets in hundreds sailed and circled about their nesting places with their black-tipped wings, held aigrettes and make love.

Other pictures that come to mind were those of a cluster of butterflies in lovely blues and white feeding on some succulent sweetness upon the hillsides; of the soft treading black bears; the little chickadees babies on the limb being fed by mother chickadee, each in his turn, regardless of the open beaks near by; the British Columbia ground squirrel which stands erect; the antelopes in Montana; the flock of Canada geese with their goslings; the little chipmunk which is smaller than the Ontario variety, the rainbow circling the lofty hills; the white heather on the hills; the flaming sage bush, and the donkey-eared deer.

A most delightful hour with appreciative thanks going to Mr. Martin for his fine pictures, and his interesting and educative narrative which accompanied them.

Previous to the showing of the pictures, a brief business session was held in which reports were read, officers for the year named, and introduced to the assembly.

At the close of the meeting, tea and refreshments were served.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

NEW STOCKINGS CONCEAL VARICOSE VEINS

Varicose veins are completely invisible, thanks to the latest in scientific nylons.

For years, women who suffered with varicose veins have been completely unhappy—not only over the affliction but because the stockings they have been compelled to wear have been anything but beautiful. If they wore the medically prescribed elastic stockings, they detracted from the beauty of the legs and, if they disobeyed doctor and wore silk or nylon, the veins showed through—not a beauty aspect either. But now, for the first time in fashion and medical history women who must wear elastic stockings, can buy a completely sheer and therapeutically correct stocking. Never before believed possible, the new stockings are of 51-gauge ultrasheer nylon elastic and are as lovely as the hose worn by their more fortunate sisters.

The new elastic stocking is made with nylon thread twice as thin and twice as light as the old-fashioned elastic stockings. As a result, it is so sheer, so fashionable in appearance, that a woman with varicose veins need never again feel "different." She can "go places and do things" without the slightest embarrassment. If she needs but one elastic stocking she may easily match it with a 51-gauge nylon. Yet sheer as they are, these 51-gauge elastic stockings completely hide varicose veins. They are full footed, too. This, combined with their sheerness and attractive high fashion colors, means they never require over-hose and can be worn with any type of shoe, for any occasion.

Equally important, the new stocking is full-fashioned for proper fit and to provide the correct graduated support from ankle to thigh as recommended by doctors. The heel and toe are made with the new Helenca stretch yard for extra comfort. The Helenca yarn heel anchors the stocking at that point so that when it is pulled upward for added support, the pull does not exert itself on the foot section. The cramping and binding of foot and toes frequently found in old-time stockings are completely eliminated.

Another comfort feature is the seam. In many elastic stockings made with regular elastic threads, the seam is thick and bulky—irritates the back of the leg and the sole of the foot. This is especially true if the weave stands on the seam for any length of time. Because of the new light, thin thread used in the new 51-gauge stocking, the seam is peerless thin and virtually unnoticeable to the wearer.

If you would like further information on the aforementioned product, please send your request, together with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mme. Qui. They are easy on the budget, too.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU SHOULD LIVE BY YOURSELF

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My problem is my daughter-in-law and my son, who live with me.

As I am all alone, I take a lot of abuse from them, and never get a kind word. My daughter-in-law will hurt me every time she gets. They take everything they can get out of me, with nothing in return. I guess I have been too nice to them.

When my daughter-in-law had her first child, I did everything possible for her, and it made no difference in the way she treated me. Now she is having another child, and they have asked me to come and live with them, but I feel it is only because they need me.

Sometimes I think I would be better off living alone, even if it would be lonesome.

When I read about mothers-in-law and how bad they're supposed to be, I sure burn up. — Mrs. N.

Dear Mrs. N.:

Your letter is rather confusing as the subject of who is living with whom, in the beginning, you say your son and his wife live with you, and a little further on you speak of their wanting you to come and live with them.

Do you mean that when this second child comes they intend to move away from your house and set up a place of their own, and they want you to give up your home and come and live with them? Since that is all I can make out of what you say, I shall answer this is the case.

What I would say to you is that you should neither have these young people in your home nor should you go to theirs. Unless there are very unusual circumstances, when there seems to be no other possible arrangement, it is not only very foolish, but very hazardous for a married son or daughter to live in the parents' home. More relationships between older and younger generations have been wrecked by just such a situation than any one can count. Even where friendliness, even affection may have existed between the generations at the beginning, the too close association, and the almost inevitable conflict of ideas on what should or should not be done, usually, in time, breeds hatred, bitterness and strain, even if no outright feud develops.

Whether you and your daughter-in-law have been antagonistic right from the start of her marriage to your son, or whether the antagonism is something that has developed as a result of your living together, I cannot of course, venture even a guess. But it is not necessary for me to know about this in order to be quite certain that you will now be far better off apart, than continuing to live under the same roof.

So I cannot urge you too strongly to choose living alone rather than living with this young couple. There is no reason in the world why you need be lonely if you will make up your mind to create a new and better life for yourself. Indeed, with the new freedom and time you will have at your disposal, you will find that all sorts of opportunities await you which can help to fill your days with enjoyable activities if you wish to have it so.

There is no point in my making suggestions at this moment on how you might set about doing this. But if you do make the decision to strike out for yourself, let me hear from you again and I will be glad to give you some specific ideas.

DINNER SUIT

Smooth black woollen in a heavy weave is used for a pleasing suit right for all but the very cold weather. The collar is of black dyed fox, which is effective on the box jacket which has a softly curved front with slit pockets. The lining is of white satin as is the blouse, which makes it perfect for informal dinner and theatre wear. Looks good in the daytime, too, with tailored accessories.

Eat Liver and Enjoy It

By Mary Moore

At the risk of belaboring the subject of liver I am devoting today's column to it alone.

My friend Marion has been ordered to eat one pound of liver per day by her doctor, and the prospect of it nearly paralyzed her.

Doctors have a lofty way of tossing off just such improbable directions, but from there on you are on your own.

So for Marion's sake and for the sake of those others who are anemic and under doctors' orders to eat liver regularly here we go —with an effort to make it not only palatable but attractive.

LIVER SPREAD

(Mock Pate de Fois Gras)

No. 1—2 lbs. baby beef or calves' liver, 1 medium onion minced, 1-3 teaspoon pepper, 2-3 teaspoon salt, 3 cloves, 3-4 cup meat stock or water, 1-2 cup melted butter or sauteed chopped bacon and its fat. Keep liver in one piece. Wash and cook slowly in tightly covered saucepan with the onion, pepper, salt, cloves and stock or water until tender—about 2 hours. Remove liver and cut into thin slices and put in bowl and pour the liquid over. Cover and chill overnight. Put through finest knife of food chopper twice, add melted butter and rub through sieve. Push in clean jar, pour 2 tablespoons melted butter over. Spoon out or slice for canapes or sandwiches or salads.

No. 2— 2-3 lb pork liver, 2 hard-cooked eggs, 1 small onion chopped, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-3 cup cream or top milk, salt pepper, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce or few drops Tabasco. Steam liver 25 minutes or cook in top of double boiler without water, but over boiling water, for 25 minutes. Cool. Put through fine knife of food grinder and add chopped eggs. Gently brown onions in butter until limp and add with remaining ingredients. Pack in small jars and store in refrigerator. Either of the above will keep in refrigerator for 4 or 5 days.

FRENCH FRIED LIVER

Baby beef, calves, pork, lamb or chicken liver may be used—1 lb. Scald by pouring boiling water over, cover and let stand 3 minutes. Drain, remove outside skin and veins (if any). Slice 1-2 inch thick and cut into 3-inch strips. (Chicken livers are left whole.) Sprinkle with 3 tablespoons French dressing and let marinate 1 hour, turning twice. Drain. Dip in Plain Fritter Batter (this is 1-2 the rule): 1-2 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 2 beaten eggs, 1 1-2 teaspoon melted shortening, 1-4 cup milk. Stir moist ingredients into sifted dry ingredients until smooth. Fry batter-coated liver strips in deep fat at 380 deg. Fahr. for three to five minutes. Garnish with crisp fried bacon strips.

I have a recipe for Liver Baked in Sour Cream. If you liver lovers would like that too, write to me, sending stamped self-addressed envelope.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECEMAN

FRIENDLY RESPONSE TO FRIENDLY FAMILY-GESTURE

Dear Mrs. Beecman:

My husband, our 20-year-old daughter, and I have just received a formal invitation to the wedding of the sister of our son's fiancee. We haven't met this sister, because she has been living out of town, but she is to be married in her home town, quite near here. We are wondering if this invitation was sent in a casual gesture of courtesy, or if it would be all right for us to accept it. What do you think? And if we accept, do you think we should send a wedding gift to the bride-to-be, even though we haven't met her? If you advise we send a gift, may it include our daughter's name, or must she send a separate gift? — M.R.

If I were you, I would regard this invitation as a very important one, not at all a "casual gesture of courtesy." I'm quite sure they considered this a significant evidence of a future bond between the families of your family and a member of the family of your son's fiancee. I urge you to accept it. And I suggest you send a gift to the bride-to-be, even though you don't know her — not necessarily an expensive gift, but one carefully chosen. And include your daughter's name on the enclosed card; she need not send a separate gift.

BABY NAMED FOR 14-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Dear Mrs. Beecman:

We have a daughter 14 years old. One of her school teachers named his little baby daughter after our daughter. What could we all do to show our appreciation, and what is expected of our daughter? — L.

Nothing would be expected of your 14-year-old daughter and your family except deep appreciation of this delightful name-honor. But you might plan, if you wish, to have your daughter give to the new baby a present that is something lasting and something that can be marked. For example, a small silver plate, which will always be useful, and which might be engraved:

From Grace Hill to Grace Leighton

(The date might be the date of the baby's birth or of the christening, if the Christening is to be soon.) I suggest a silver plate instead of the usual gifts of silver which are generally considered christening presents; also, it can be engraved with both names. But of course another gift may be given if you prefer.

Mother's Helper

WHEN your child has a party. It sometimes happens that one of the small guests is sick and can't come. Before or after the party, let your child deliver to his door a party hat, favor, piece of cake, or other "drink's," so he won't feel left out.

Congregational Meetings

BRIDGE ST. UNITED CHURCH

Bridge Street United Church held its congregational meeting in the church school auditorium on January 10th. The names of 27 church members who had passed away during 1955 were read, the congregation stood for a moment of silence in tribute to their memory and the pastor offered prayer.

By motion Rev. H. M. Davis was elected chairman, and C. W. Burr secretary and press reporter for the meeting.

Rev. H. M. Davis read a condensed report of the work of the past year. He expressed to Mrs. William M. Leslie and her family gratitude and appreciation for the gift of a public address system which will be installed soon and acknowledged with sincere thanks the gift of six beautiful communion wine trays by Miss Ivy L. Dickens.

He spoke of the helpful services of Rev. H. H. Hillis, assisting in the visitation of the ill and shut-ins at home and at times those ill in the hospital. He paid tribute to the three choirs: junior, intermediate and senior, and the skilled and consecrated work of the organist and choir leader, Mr. Alec Gordon. He especially mentioned the ushers, who under the direction of Mr. J. W. Hodgson, have rendered a great service to the church during the year.

Mr. Davis praised the excellent work of the Sunday school and spoke of the removal of its superintendent, Linton D. Read, and the secretary, Ross Booth, to Eastminster church. However, these respective offices have been filled by Mr. Allan D. Banting and Mr. Allan D. Revill, both of whom were introduced to the congregation, and Mrs. Banting spoke briefly. There have been 44 baptisms, 24 marriages, 29 burials, 43 members received by profession of faith and 70 members received by certificate. There were 125 members removed: (a) by death 18; (b) by transfer 50; (c) to Eastminster 57.

A mimeographed report of all departments was distributed and these reports were dealt with in order.

On behalf of the Committee of Stewards, chairman Harold A. Parker expressed their thanks and appreciation to the congregation for the willing response given by members and adherents of the church to appeals for financial aid, for their increased regular giving and special contributions to the Organ Fund and for other purposes.

The fine report of the treasurer, Mr. H. W. Ackerman, showed gross receipts for the year of $44,758.06, which, with a balance from 1954 of $1808.91, made a grand total of $46,565.87. It was encouraging to note an increase in collections of $2350.03 over the preceding year.

The Missionary effort of the church during the past year, with Mr. W. H. Fluke as chairman, was also highly gratifying. The Missionary and Maintenance Fund totalled a freewill offering of $11,500, of which $3,687 was contributed by the Sunday school. Added to this, the missionary effort of the church was supplemented by the following contributions: W.M.S. $1,355.25; Jubilee $1,-200; Mission Band $34.50; Explorer Group $10; Senior Y.P.U. $35; C.G.I.T. $20. This makes a grand total of $13,735 for the year 1955.

Mr. J. G. Demeza, chairman of the organ committee gave an encouraging report on the progress of the new Casavant Organ Fund. He outlined the work of the committee since its formation in January, 1955, to date, and described the progress, step by step, during the year. His report showed that he and his committee had given diligent and untiring thought to all details of the project. They hope that the organ will be ready by Easter.

The Woman's Association with a membership of 166, under the leadership of Mrs. E. S. Fairman, reported as usual a very busy and highly successful year, showing receipts of $2250.12.

463 ENROLLED IN S.S.

The church school with its able superintendent, Mr. Linton D. Read, showed a total enrolment of 463, including 159 on the nursery roll. 26 pupils were received into church membership. Total receipts for the year were $2306.12. Last September the church school lost a good number of students from the beginner, primary and junior departments to the new Eastminster church school.

The church membership as of December, 1955, was 1315.

Reports were submitted by each of the following groups: Coronation Club (Mrs. Rex M. Chaplin, president); Mission Band (Mrs. R. M. Patterson, leader); Baby Band (Mrs. Wilma Houston, superintendent and Mrs. Marjorie Fothergill, asst. supt.); Explorer Group (Mrs. Marguerite Marshall, chief counsellor); Library (Miss Pearle Campbell, librarian); Senior Y.P.U. (Miss Mona Pierson, president); Junior Y.P.U. (Miss Barbara Fairman, president); C.G.I.T. (Mrs. Preston Burrows, leader); 11th Belleville Cub Pack (Mrs. Kellet, leader); Red Cross (Mrs. J. E. Marsh, president). All these departments reported active programs throughout the year.

The treasurer of the benevolent fund, Mr. Carman Massey, reported receipts for the year amounting to $406.05.

Reporting for the choir, Mr. Alec Gordon, organist and choir director listed 130 meetings during 1955 for the senior choir. The intermediate choir provided music once a month, approximately. The junior choir made their annual appearance at the Christmas Candlelight service. "A faithful and loyal group of people."—with which all agree.

Upon motion the above reports were adopted.

AN AMERICAN VIEWPOINT

Toe Blake, of the Montreal Canadiens, "stands today in what certainly must be one of the most enviable positions ever held by a professional coach in any sport." So writes an American writer in the current issue of Sports Illustrated.

Terry Rice goes on to say that the top standing and rosy future of Blake's team stems from the fact that they have, in addition to the two best scorers in history, the best farm system for attracting and developing Canada's most promising young hockey players.

The article analyzes the operation of the organization and "two stars Maurice Richard and Jean Beliveau. It is quite possible that no hockey team in history has ever been led by two such brilliant craftsmen."

That roaring noise you hear is the Penobscot Building in Detroit reeling and crashing from the impact of the Detroit Red Wings chuilleut manager, Jolly Jawn Adams' reaction to the story.

And Frank Selke, the Habs general manager, nothing loath to spread the praises of his beloved Canadiens before the eyes of a few million Americans get in his little piece. Says Frank: "Maurice can't learn from lectures or listen to theories (Clarence Campbell knows that.) He does everything by instinct—and with sheer power. Beliveau, on the other hand, is probably the classiest hockey player I've ever seen. He has a flair for giving you his hockey as a master showman. He's a perfect coach's hockey player because of his studies and learns. He's moving and planning all the time, thinking out plays required for each situation."

"And get a load of this. Selke says: "the difference between the two best hockey players in the game today is simply this: Beliveau is perfectionist, Richard is an opportunist. Beliveau is a picture player. Richard may not score in every game, but he never fails to lift you out of your seat at least once or twice a game."

The American sports public south of the playing area of the United States, will gobble that in chunks. So will Canadien fans in Canada. But there's a lot more who will disagree.

Across the Detroit River from Windsor there will be howls of protest. The loyal Detroiters and a lot of Canadian fans, too, will thumb a figurative nose at the selection of Richard and Beliveau as "the two best hockey players in the game today."

"What about Gordie Howe?" will chorus from the bistros of Woodward Avenue all the way to the vicinity of Olympia.

And it likely will draw storms of protest from those who lived in the not too distant past and saw hockeydom's great parade past in all its colorful display and ability.

Rice apparently credits Richard and Beliveau with the "title" of the "best" because of scoring records. True the Rocket holds an all-time scoring record that will likely stand forever. Beliveau has compiled an imposing seasonal record but Gordie Howe has passed him in the point-getting race.

As Michael J. Rodden points out: "It is most unfair and misleading to offer scoring records as a basis for comparison between the old and the new. Conditions alter cases as witness the fact that modern stars participate in five or six times as many games as did the prolific goalgetters of the faded past."

Michael asserted in disgust in his sports line out 'o here. That phrase "no hockey team in history has ever been led by two such brilliant craftsmen," curdled the Roddenian blood. And the erudite M.J.R. should know. Like the circus horses, he's been around quite a bit.

Swallowing his ire Michael recalled some starry combinations that led their clubs to victory and to more than one Stanley Cup.

"What about the Cook brothers and Frank Boucher?" he sifted through bristling chin whiskers. "Aurel Joliat and the immortal Howie Morenz. Frank Nighbor, Cyril Denneny and good Jack Darragh. The Kid line of the Maple Leafs. Nels Stewart, Hooley Smith and the late Babe Siebert. Howe, Lindsay and Abel. Jack Walker, Nighbor and Scotty Davidson. Weiland, Clancy and Galbor. Bauer, Schmidt and Dumart and many others.

For this department's money we'll take the combination of the Cook brothers, Bun and Bill and Frank Boucher, who wrote a blazing page in National Hockey League history and put the Broadway Blues on the map.

Sportswriters and National Hockey League officials around the circuit have often rhubarbed about the "best player or players of all time, and we gathered that the consensus was Howie Morenz. However, nothing was stated in a definite manner.

So it remained for an American sportswriter, who probably never saw a good old-fashioned Canadian backwoods game of shinny in his life, to pick out the best players of all time. And it just so happened he picked the Canadiens as the theme of his story.

M'sieu Selke will come in for some good old ribbing from the rest of the group after his statement that Richard and Beliveau are the two best hockey players in the game today. Even in Montreal Redvers McKenzie, well known hockey coach and writer, says Doug Harvey is the greatest player he has seen in years. In Detroit they will point out Howe and Red Kelly, (now there's a guy.)

The American writer may have started something.

Stand-Ins Work Brilliantly When Big Boys Sick, Injured; Mystery of the Tied Games

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—This could be the year of the substitute goalkeeper in the National Hockey League. The four stand-ins who have been action so far this season are stopping them as effectively as anyone in the business.

The generally unsung fraternity of understudies have been in the headlines twice this season as a couple of them scored shutouts in their NHL debuts.

And further analysis of the performance of the four subs — Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh will make it five Wednesday when he takes over for Toronto Maple Leaf net duties the injured Harry Lumley—bears out the impression that there's plenty of reliable material available to guard the NHL nets anytime the regulars falter.

Lumley entered hospital Monday for treatment to torn muscles in his right thigh, received during the third period of Sunday night's game at Detroit. Doctors said he will be inactive "for a minimum of two weeks." Gerry McNamara, Leafs' goaltending idols, has been ordered to Pittsburgh until Lumley recovers.

CANADIEN DEBUTS

The two shutout debuts were both the work of Montreal Canadien reserves, though one of them bit the hand that fed him by doing the job at the Canadiens' expense when he played for Bruins.

On Jan. 14, young Claude Provost, second-string goalie for Montreal Royals of the Quebec League was asked to replace Gerry McNeil of the Canadiens, filled in handsomely when Bruin goalie Jack Gelineau was out with a sashed thumb and his replacement, Johnny Henderson, couldn't get his equipment to fit him. The Bruins won 2-0 with Provost making 27 saves.

Four weeks earlier, the Canadiens had to call in Bob Perreault from Shawinigan Falls of the QSHL when Jacques Plante was hurt and Gerry McNeil was ill. He completed the Royals also was ailing. Perreault had it a bit easier, stopping only 18 drives as the Canadiens blanked Chicago Black Hawks 5-0.

Perreault got in three more games in the Montreal net, posting a respectable 2.00 average as goals against him in the all-game span.

OTHER ACTION

Two other subs have been action this season, exclusive of Chicago's Hank Bassen, who completed Al Rollins as the Hawks' regular netminder. Ross (Lefty) Wilson, the Detroit stand-by, blanked the Red Wings through most of the third period last December when Toronto's Lumley had to retire with torn thigh muscles. He stopped nine shots but Detroit had the game sewn up 4-1 before he took over.

Headquarters Army goalie during Sawchuk's absence and was beaten 4-3 by the Leafs. Durgan Wilson's brief spell of duty, that gives the irregulars a total of 13 goals scored against them in six complete games for a 2.00 average, second only to Plante's 1.76 among the regulars.

PLACED AT TOP

MONTREAL (CP)—Smith Chapman and Eleanor Dodge, both of Montreal, were placed at the top of Canada's national junior tennis rankings for 1955, announced Monday.

Nickie Weatherston of Halifax and Ann Barclay of Vancouver were ranked No. 2, respectively, in the junior men's and women's lists.

The announcement was made by Dr. Georges Lecleve, chairman of the National Cup selection and national ranking committee of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

G. Delacretaz of Cornwall was placed fifth in the women's rankings. Third was Pat Watt of Toronto and fourth, Susan Peel, Victoria.

RELEASE PLAYER

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League have released defenceman Gord Thompson, the club announced Monday.

There were reports that Thompson, loaned to Hamilton by Toronto Marlboros at the start of the season, may be replaced by Bronc Schall. Another player now travelling out with a Cubs' farm club is Dick Wojcik of Guelph, who earlier decided to quit the game after being purchased by Hamilton.

MONTREAL (CP) — The great upsurge in scoring by Detroit's Gordie Howe and the slam-bang return to winning ways by Montreal Canadiens can be accepted without undue excitement but there is an unexplained mystery in the current National Hockey League goings-on.

The games have virtually ceased. It's whole hog or nothing. Since the new year came in there has been only one tie in 28 games. Before 1955 faded out there were 22 ties in 109 games—one in about every four.

The only tie this year was a 2-2 sawoff Jan. 17 between New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks. In the nine games since then the clubs have belted each other about so unmercifully that only one game in the nine was decided by a single goal.

In just last week's battling the players gathered in points by gobs. Howe banged his way past and collected two assists for seven points. Earl (Dutch) Reibel, Howe's teammate on the Red Wings, made it two and five for seven.

BELIVEAU MADE THREE

Jean Beliveau of Montreal, surrendering the scoring limelight to Howe, counted three goals and three assists. So did Ted Kennedy of Toronto Maple Leafs, and Bert Olmstead of Montreal put together two goals and seven points over the other six-point count.

The official NHL statistics today show Howe with 53 points and Beliveau with 52, followed by Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal and Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers with 46 each.

With two goals and one assist for the week, Richard took over third place from Bathgate to become of a greater number of goals—24 to Bathgate's 23—but Bathgate retied on points at 46. Bathgate scored two goals and had no assists. Olmstead had four assists for points and Sloan sixth with 70.

Reibel's seven points moved him from a ninth-place tie to seventh place with 41 points. Dave Creighton of New York Rangers had one assist and slipped a notch to eighth place. At 38 points, he's tied with Red Kelly of Detroit, who had three assists last week.

Jacques Plante of Montreal continues to lead the goalies with a goals-against average of 1.79 to Glenn Hall of Detroit has 2.04.

Nothing to Golf It Is Simple Says Hogan

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Ben Hogan, the mighty little Texan who four times won the U.S. 'open golf championship, answered the tough British Open on his first attempt, says "golf is a simple game."

Hogan, addressing the annual sports jamboree here, told 700 sportsmen that only the application spent on the game makes it difficult.

"Preparation means everything. You have to force yourself to play the game, understand what the fundamental principles are. After you have mastered those, you can play pretty good golf—if you stick with it.

Advising golfers, looking for a way to lower their scores on local links, Hogan said:

"After you gain the mechanics of the game, there should be no reason why anyone shouldn't shoot in the same game of golf. All of a golf game is in your fingers. You've got to have that feel in your fingers or you can't play the game. Your fingers telegraph the feel of a golf club."

Emphasizing that he uses the standard overlapping grip, he said he wouldn't advise that method for everyone. He said that although "it's the best he has met, "if you don't like it, throw it away."

"I throw away a lot of things every day."

Six Italian Hockey Players Predict 'Canada in a Walk'

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (CP) — Six hockey-wise Italians took a long look at Olympic puck chasers today and unanimously predicted, "Canada in a walk."

All six are members of Italy's Canada-spiced team that has been drawn in the same bracket as Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the preliminary round leading to the world's hockey crown.

Italian players who learned their hockey on rinks in Ontario and Quebec had a first-hand look at the Russian entry last week when it defeated their team 6-2 in a pre-Olympic game.

"Canada will murder the Russians," said Rino Aberton, 19, who returned to Italy last year after living in Niagara Falls, Ont., for 13 years. "They are not in the same league with the Kitchener club."

PLAYED WITH GALT

Aberton, a former apprentice, played with Galt Black Hawks in the Ontario junior B circuit before returning to his native land. His father Angelo, who moved to Canada when he was 5, still lives in Niagara Falls.

"The Russians are improving all the time, but they still have a long way to go," said Carl Montemurro, 22, who played in Montreal City ago after playing high school and intermediate hockey at Rouyn, Que.

"That's right," chimed in Ron Furlani, 21, another former Montreal puckchaser, who joined Italy's national team three months ago.

Expressing similar opinions were three Italo-Canadians who learned hockey in Canada. Mario Ortel, Ugo Manico, 21, Carmen Tucci, 21, and Bernard Tomle, 20.

FAST SKATERS

All said that the Russians are fast skaters and good stickhandlers. "But they pass too much and are slow getting their shots away," said Furlani.

Presence of Canadian players on the Italian squad will not bring a repetition of the protest lodged by Canada in 1936 when British won the Olympic hockey championship with two Canadian-trained players in its lineup.

"We certainly do not plan any protest," said James Dunn, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. "These boys were all born in Italy and received transfers from Canadian clubs before coming back."

The 1936 Canadian protest was based on the fact that goalkeeper Jimmy Foster and winger Alex Archer jumped a Winnipeg club and went to England without CAHA approval. Britain defeated Canada 2-1 largely on the sensational play of Foster.

There were rumors today that the Russians planned to protest against the Kitchener squad because it had a "professional" in the lineup. Russian officials said the rumors were groundless. A spokesman for the Canadian club said any talk of professionals in the Kitchener lineup was "ridiculous."

Italy's Sledders Break Record In Track Trials

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP) — Italy's daring Eugenio Monti, breaking his second track record in as many days, beat out bobsledders from 14 nations today of qualifying trials for the Olympic Games two-man bobsled competition.

Monti piloted his sled down Cortina's twisting, treacherous run in a record 1:21.98 in the second day of the two-day elimination. His total time for two spins down the 1,700-metre course (about 100 yards more than a mile) was 2:44.54.

Right behind him was America's dark horse entry, Washington (Bud) Washbond of East Hartford, Conn. Despite a broken sled, Washbond roared down the hill in 1:13.62 for a total time of 2:46.53.

WEIGHT QUESTION

The weight question, a touchy one in bobsledding, bobbed up again today.

Swiss and German bobsledders said Italy's sledders are doing so well in practice runs because of added weight in the right places. This, they say, gives the Italians a better centre of gravity.

The International Bobsled Federation has limited bodyweight of two-man bob crews to 210 kilograms (462 pounds) and four-man crews to 400 kilograms (880 pounds). The same regulation permitted lightweight teams to get up to the specified limit with artificial weights such as bars of lead or iron.

The Swiss and Germans now maintain that the Italians deliberately put light men on their sleds to make use of the "additional weight clause," which does not stipulate where the added weight is to be fixed.

CAHA Unable To Send Team To Moscow

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO (CP)—Canada will send a team to world hockey championships in Moscow next year providing it doesn't cost the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association any money.

Dunn said cost to the CAHA of sending Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen to the Olympic Games opening here Thursday would total about $30,000.

NOT THAT KIND

"We just haven't that kind of money to throw around every year."

From other sources it was learned that the Canadian government probably would look favorably on sending a team to represent Canada at Moscow next year. Russian hockey officials have repeatedly questioned the Canadians about failure of the team to visit Russia last year, and again this year.

Also the Russians have made no secret of the fact they would be interested in playing host. Canada were not represented at next year's world championship. Work now is under way in Moscow on a covered hockey arena seating about 12,000 here. The arena is scheduled for completion early in 1957.

In Ottawa, a government official said sending a Canadian hockey team to Russia would not normally be a matter for government consideration. He wouldn't commit himself on the likely attitude of the government if it were approached for financial aid to ensure Canadian participation in the world championships at Moscow.

'Buster' Whitton Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

One of this district's great hockey players, "Buster" Whitton died suddenly from a heart seizure in Peterborough last night. He was 41 years of age.

"Buster" was well known in Belleville and district sports circles. He was one of the best forwards ever developed here and played on Trent Valley League and city hockey clubs during his earlier days.

He was a member of Eddie Thomas' Belleville Reldmen who won the OHA Intermediate 'B' hockey championship in 1936-37. "Speedy" St. Louis, Cy Barriage, "Hot-Dog" McCreary and other well known city players were team-mates of "Buster" on that squad.

He played for the Stirling team in the Trent Valley Hockey League for a number of years, and was ranked among the top players of the district.

Mrs. Clarke Potter, 193 Humewood Drive, a sister of Buster received the sad news last night. He had been associated with the hydro for some time and had been hospitalized periodically with a heart condition. The end came suddenly last night.

Wolfe Wins Over Les Blais

TORONTO (CP)—Charlie Wolfe of Sudbury scored a five-round decision over Toronto's Les Blais Monday night in the 105-pound main bout of the weekly amateur boxing card.

The 29-year-old Wolfe, who moved to Sudbury from Austria six months ago, kept Blais off balance throughout most of the fight with overhand rights. It was Wolfe's second win over Blais, the first a few weeks ago at Sudbury.

Other results:

128 pounds: Omer Gagnon, Sudbury, scored a TKO over Gerd Kruger, Toronto—at 1:35 of first round of a scheduled three-rounder.

145 pounds: Cliff Chapman, Timmins, awarded five-round decision over Johnny Decala, Sudbury.

Canada at Olympics

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO (CP)—Johnny Sands is holding his breath. And the longer he holds it, says the sandy-haired youngster from Saskatoon, the better are his chances of winning points for Canada in the speed-skating events at the winter Olympics opening here Thursday.

The 22-year-old sprinter, who models his conditioning program on that used by England's Roger Banister to crack the four-minute mile, is convinced that breathing is strictly a liability for speed skaters.

"You've got to relax in order to breathe," Sands explained as he took a rest between practice sprints around the plush Lake Misurina rink. "When you relax your driving power diminishes. In a sprint, any loss in driving power is likely to cost you the race."

CANADA'S PARTNER

Sands is the only member of Canada's three-man speed-skating team to use the breathing technique. And, perhaps significantly, he is the fastest sprinter ever produced by Canada.

Last Sunday he covered the 500-metre course in 42.7 seconds, more than a second faster than any other Canadian has ever skated the distance. Sands, who is the purchasing agent for a flour mill in Saskatoon when he's not skating, takes just four breaths while hurtling over the 500-metre distance.

"Now if I could manage to go the whole distance on one breath maybe I'd be able to stay within shouting distance of those Russians."

Ralph Olin, a Calgary policeman who specializes in distance racing, said he doesn't use Sands' breathing technique because it doesn't apply to longer distances to the same extent as it does to sprints. "I've never paid much attention to the number of times I take a breath," said Gordon Audley of Winnipeg, at 27 a veteran of 17 years in competitive speed skating. "Maybe I should, it certainly seems to help Johnny."

The three Canadians, in their bright red uniforms, spent more than four hours circling the 400-metre Misurina rink Monday. They said they would put in the same heavy training grind today and Wednesday.

Other members of Canada's Olympic squad also were in action Monday with the hockey team, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, reporting the day's only casualty.

Right winger George Scholes suffered a deep gash above his right eye when he hit a post supporting the netting behind the goal. Three stitches were required to close the cut but team manager Ernie Gorman said the 27-year-old winger will be turning out to practice again today.

Left winger Charlie Brooker returned to the lineup today and reported his injured knee was well again.

Canada's blue-uniformed skiers set a dazzling pace on the steep and icy downhill and slalom slopes Monday and left team manager Pat Ramage of Brantford, Ont., shrugging.

"The kids were great today and given any sort of a break from here on in, we should cause a few upsets during the Games," Mrs. Ramage said.

SCORES 82 POINTS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Eighteen-year-old Alec Keenan scored 82 points in a basketball game Monday to set what is believed to be a Canadian high school record.

The six-foot five-inch Keenan scored 36 field goals out of 49 throws and sank six of 17 foul shots. His performance gave Isaac Newton high school a 97-50 victory over Lord Selkirk high school in a regular league game.

Keenan scored 67 points last year to establish a record but three days later it was beaten by three points in a Toronto school.

Russ Would Play Soccer Here If Invited

TORONTO (CP) — Moscow Dynamos soccer team would agree to a three-game series in Canada in August if an official invitation were extended by the Football Association of Canada, it was learned Monday night.

A letter from the Soviet embassy in Ottawa said that in return a Canadian team would be invited to tour Russia in 1957.

George Anderson, secretary of the FAC, has circulated the letter among members asking for their opinion on the idea.

A. Tovstogan, second secretary at the Soviet embassy, said in his letter the team would come here for the first 10 days of August and would require no financial assistance. The Canadian association would pay all expenses for the 10 days but no other expenses. If Canada accepted the Russian invitation the team would be the same.

The Dynamos, who have been some of England's top teams, play Prague Slavia in July. One suggestion if the Dynamos come to Canada, is to have them play an eastern Canada team in the Montreal Aug. 4, a western Canada all-star team in Vancouver Aug. 7 and an all-Canada team here Aug. 11.

REDUCES RENT

CHATHAM (CP) — With Chatham's OHA senior A Maroons several thousand dollars in the red, city council Monday reduced the rent of the Community Memorial Arena from $600 to $300 per game. The request came from the team's sponsors, the Chatham Hockey Association Ltd. Maroons are in the cellar in the five-team loop.

Ask Brundage To Free Olympics For Television

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO (AP)—The Columbia Broadcasting System Monday formally asked Avery Brundage, International Olympic Committee president to free future Olympics for unrestricted television coverage.

The National Broadcasting Company made a similar request Saturday. CBS and the Canadian Broadcasting Company associated themselves with NBC but CBS followed up with a separate written plea.

At present, the country staging the games has the right to sell TV rights. Major American networks boycotted the 1948 London Olympics because of the price set by the British. Australia reportedly wants half a million dollars for North American TV rights of the Melbourne Games. The networks have hinted broadly that they will refuse to cover the Games unless the price is dropped.

North Bay Plans Dinner

NORTH BAY (CP) — A sport celebrities dinner, patterned after an annual affair held in Toronto by the Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association, is being planned here, it was announced Monday.

Sponsored by the North Bay Rotary Club, the first dinner is to be held Feb. 20. The service club said food will be provided free by the Nipissing-Parry Sound Hotel Association and price for the 500 tickets will be $25 a plate.

Committee chairman Bruce Arthur said he hopes to have Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, former pitching star with New York Yankees, as a guest.

Others who may attend include swimmers Marilyn Bell and Cliff Lumsdon, Toronto coach Hugh Clancy of Toronto Maple Leafs or the National Hockey League, and former Leaf stars Syl Apps and Ted Kennedy.

Big Four Gets Three Offers for Television

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Big Four has received three offers for the right to televise all league and playoff games in the eastern professional football loop, with the top bid $1,000,000 for a three-year contract. No decision has been made.

The bidders were not identified but officials said one already has dropped out. Leo Landreville, Montreal, president of the Alouettes, was said to have represented the Royal Trust of Montreal, but he would not confirm the report.

An official said of the interlocking schedule with the Western Interprovincial Football Union last June through a better deal would have been offered, and the western clubs each would have received $10,000.

Last year, TV rights netted the Big Four $225,000 or about $5,000 less than the top bid this year on a three-year basis.

The eventual successful bidder will make his official announcement, the league has decided.

SCHEDULE EAST GAMES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers announced Monday they have scheduled two pre-season football games with clubs in the East. Bombers will play night games at Hamilton Aug. 14 and at Montreal Aug. 16.

Billy Evans Famous Umpire Dies at 71

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — William George (Billy) Evans, 71, widely known baseball executive and formerly an American League umpire died Monday night.

Evans, who made his home in Miami, suffered a stroke last Saturday and was taken to the hospital.

Funeral services and burial will be in Detroit.

Evans, a native of Chicago, was an American League umpire for 22 years. He quit this job in 1927 to become general manager of Cleveland Indians, a position he held for eight years. After that he directed the Boston Red Sox farm system for six years.

He also held an executive position with Detroit Tigers. In 1941 became general manager of Cleveland Rams of the National Football League. From 1942 through 1946 he was president of the Southern Association Baseball League.

'Gump, Jean' Rated Evenly For Hart Trophy

MONTREAL (CP) — Pint-sized Lorne (Gump) Worsley of New York Rangers and six-foot-three Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens were rated almost evenly in voting for the Hart Trophy at the halfway mark of the National Hockey League season.

The five-foot-seven Ranger goalie got the nod by two points over the big Montreal centre as the most valuable player to his team.

In the voting for the four individual awards, announced by the league Monday night, only Doug Harvey of Montreal had a commanding lead. He was far in front in balloting for the James Norris Memorial Trophy as awarded the regular defence player showing the greatest, all-round ability.

HALL LEADS GOALIES

Goalie Glenn Hall of Detroit Red Wings had a four-point lead over Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard of Canadiens for the Vezina Memorial Trophy—the rookie award.

Earl (Dutch) Reibel of the Red Wings had a fair lead over Johnny Wilson of Canadiens for Dick Hawks and Floyd Curry of Montreal for the sixth goalie berth.

AT THE BELLE — Glenn Ford plays the role of defence lawyer who defends an innocent boy accused of murder in "Trial", This new role follows his highly applauded portrayals in "Interrupted Melody", and "Blackboard Jungle". Dorothy McGuire is the girl who helps Glenn Ford in his fight and becomes his romantic interest. Other stars include Arthur Kennedy, Katy Jurado and John Hodiak. "Trial" plays for the last times today at the Belle Theatre.

Jack Paar's Candor Is Joy To Behold Says TV Writer

By CHARLES MERCER

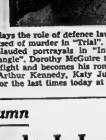
NEW YORK (AP) — Some time ago when an intense and restless young man named Jack Paar appeared on the television quiz program "What's My Line?" the mysterious guest turned out to be Willie Mays of the New York Giants.

Paar, removing his blindfold, blinked at Mays and blurted: "Willie Mays? Who's he?"

In a world where nearly everybody claims to have the answers to nearly everything, such candor is a joy to behold. He displays it for half an hour each weekday over CBS-TV. While it's impossible for everyone to agree on humor, Paar draws consistent smiles from at least one viewer when he has a chance to watch his program.

Paar, unlike many so-called comedians, does not always insist on having the last word. Sometimes a last gesture will do—as when Jack Leonard got the greatest "last word" men in the business, appeared on Paar's program and had cut Paar's laughs for eight minutes, Paar picked up a pair of garden shears he'd brought along for that exact purpose, and cut the wire to Leonard's microphone. It's the only time Leonard has been known to be speechless.

Paar professes to being shy, frightened of crowds, easily depressed, uncertain of what he's going to do next and other such human frailties.



NO CONDESCENSION

"I like daytime television," he says. "I wouldn't want to have a big night-time show. Then I'd have to be sure-fire, and every time I try to do something sure-fire it lays an egg.

"I never set out to 'tell a joke to the people.' The people are my 12 years old and they know when somebody is condescending to them. I just do what seems natural to me to the best of my ability."

AT THE McCARTHY — Maureen O'Hara and Cesar Romero defy King and court for their love in Universal-International's Technicolor "Lady Godiva", the love-story behind history's most scandalous ride. Starting today at the Tivoli Theatre, it is starred "As Long As They're Happy", a comedy in color featuring Jack Buchanan and Janette Scott in the 2nd. feature.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When bridge players know their stuff they can really go to town. To be truly sophisticated, you must have some idea of lead-directing plays. Such as the lead directing partner.

South was playing it at four hearts in this deal:

NORTH
♠ Q 9 3
♥ J 9 7 5
♦ A K
♣ 9 6 3

WEST
♥ 8 4 2
♦ 8 7 6 4 3 2
♣ 10 8 2

EAST
♠ A J 8 4 3 2
♥ 10 6
♦ Q J 10
♣ A 7 5

SOUTH
♠ K 10 7
♥ A K Q 8 3
♦ 9 5
♣ K 4

Opening lead from west was the six of spades. By applying the rule of 11, east discovered the west lead to be fourth best. How much east knew the moment south played to the ace which east took.

Knowing so fast that west would ruff a return spade, east was not careless about it. He knew that he could cash a club so that east could win and send back another spade for west to ruff.

He must tell west to be sure to come back with a club. How will east know this? Not by anything west holds, but by the kind of card in spades that east will select for his first return.

If east returns a high spade for west to ruff it would say:- lead back the highest ranking non-trump suit. If east returns a low in spades it would ask for return of the lowest rank non-trump suit.

So, east carefully selected his spade deuce for his first return. West ruffed this, of course. But he noted the size of the return card and acted accordingly by coming back with a club.

Of course you can say that such a signal was not necessary in this case. One look at dummy should tell west that a comeback in the heart suit would be futile. And I would agree with you.

But that is not the point. It's beneath such quibbling to give you a rule for one particular hand or even for a few hands. If it does not apply to all hands we are back where we came in.

This lead-directing discard is as dangerous as it is important. The only time it should be interpreted as such is when it is obvious. Don't take a double-edged sword by the blade.

'The Groaner' and 'The Voice' Having Good Time Doing Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Groaner and The Voice are singing as a sixsome.

The two most famous singers of the generation, Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra, are engaged in a film called "High Society." I ventured out to MGM to witness this historic meeting of talents.

The scene was a rehearsal hall bare except for a few pieces of furniture representing a drawing-room set. Also a piano, beside which sat Bing, dressed conservatively in dark trousers and a plaid blue sport shirt. He wore a hat and was singing to the piano accompaniment.

Seated nearby was Sinatra, natty in grey flannel trousers, black coat and matching accessories. He also wore a hat. Like Bing, he is getting bald.

FIRST MOVIE TOGETHER

"This is a real thrill for me," said Frank. "Bing was a real idol when I was a kid. I had his records and pictures — all the movie works.

"We've made about 40 or 50 appearances together, mostly during the war on radio programs and camp shows. We always wanted to do a picture together but never had the story property until now."

Director Chuck Walters signalled for a rehearsal. Bing and Frank took their places in the simulated set and ran through a new Cole Porter number, "Well, Did You Evah?" It is their only number together in the film, and they are supposed to be singing it at a party.

They sang the number and followed a dance routine outlined by Walters, clicking champagne glasses and walking out of the scene arm-in-arm.

LOADED WITH TALENT

Later on the recording stage, Bing sitting down and hatless; Frank kept his hat on and stood. They seemed to enjoy the session, especially a sequence in which Bing tosses off a few lines. Here are their lines:

Sinatra: I don't dig that kind of music.

Crosby: Oh, you must be one of the younger singers.

Sinatra: I am.

When the final version was achieved, impatient Frank took off and Bing sat down to chat a bit. He agreed that the project was a happy union of talents and added: "And we're lucky to have Louis Armstrong in the cast. He has a lot to do, and he ought to help the picture's appeal next year."

Help the picture! With Crosby, Grace Kelly, Sinatra, Cole Porter, etc! I'd like to have the Monaco rights alone.

Meeting of 2 Different Worlds Will Result in Union of Prince Rainier and Actress Grace Kelly

Editor's Note: The engagement of Grace Kelly, actress daughter of a bricklayer who became a millionaire, to Rainier, prince of Monaco, has been termed a wedding of two different worlds. Is this true? Not if you take a closer look at the temperament and backround of the principals involved.

By KELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP)—"We have so much in common.

Grace Kelly is supremely American, an actress, the daughter of a bricklayer. Her fiance, Prince Rainier Louis Maxence Bertrand Grimaldi, is a Latin, the absolute monarch of Monaco, the descendant of princes.

He was reared in a, 120-room palace overlooking the Mediterranean, she in a 15-room house in a row in Philadelphia. She came from a closely-knit family. He had little or no family life.

At first sight, no two backgrounds could seem less alike.

But Miss Kelly has been quoted as saying she fell in love with Rainier like anyone "who has much in common. . . . We like the same things." And if you take a closer look at their lives, you begin to find more similarities than contrasts between the blonde film beauty and her dark-haired prince.

BOTH ARE SHY

The prince is pictured by his intimates as having been a shy, sober little boy. He has been quoted as saying—obviously before he met Miss Kelly—"Actresses scare me."

So is Miss Kelly, according to her father and friends. "She is easily frightened," he said. "As a child, she always held her mother's hand. I believe she's scared of newspaper men and others who look for her private life."

Shy or not, both the prince and actress have demonstrated single-mindedness, devotion to their respective careers.

The prince applied himself to the job of administering his pint-size principality. He has been credited with expanding its schools, encouraging low-cost housing and taking considerable interest in its financial affairs.

Miss Kelly mastered her profession—Grace Kelly had to struggle for hers.

SHARED HARD

Very early, she showed an interest in the theatre and was appearing in school theatricals when she was 11.

She got no encouragement for her ambition. Nevertheless, she persisted. She enrolled in the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York, worked as a model, and did radio and television commercials. Today, she is at the pinnacle of acting success.

Her father, Jack Kelly, was an example-setter for daughter. Her mother had been an instructor in physical education at the University of Pennsylvania. They brought up their children as swimmers and tennis players. Mrs. Kelly regularly took the whole brood to the Pennsylvania Athletic Club for a routine of gymnastics, squash and swimming.

BOTH WEALTHY

The prince also makes a regular routine of his sports. Each morning, he rises at 7:30 in his gorgeous bread palace on the rock. He takes setting-up exercises and a lightning dip. Then he may ride, play tennis or golf, or do some boating. Best of all, he likes deep-sea fishing and swimming. He's a skin diver and a good swimmer.

The 120-room palace represents wealth, of course. The Grimaldi personal fortune is believed to be considerable. In addition, the prince has an annual income of about $550,000.

Although the term "Cinderella" has been applied to Miss Kelly when the engagement was announced, she comes from a wealthy family. It is a typical American story.

Her father, John B. Kelly, was a farm boy in County Mayo, Ireland. He came to the United States, worked as a bricklayer, borrowed $7,000 to go into business for himself. By the time Grace was born, he was more than "well-to-do." Today is considered a millionaire several times over.

When Miss Kelly made the remark, "We have so much in common," she added, "like religion." They are both Roman Catholics. She said he wants a formal church wedding.

CROWD JOINED IN

NOTTINGHAM, Eng. (Reuters)—Two ice hockey teams started a fist fight and spectators joined in, after a stormy match at the Ice Stadium here Monday night. The trouble began after the final whistle in a game between Nottingham Panthers and Paisley Pirates in which 15 penalties had been awarded, Panthers won 5-3.

The incident will be reported to the British Ice Hockey association.

British Movie Magnate Dies

LONDON (AP) — Sir Alexander Korda, leading British film producer, died Monday. He was 62.

The Hungarian-born movie magnate was noted for his lavish film productions with which he made and sometimes lost fortunes.

He made pictures for 40 years and since the early '30s had been a leader in the British film industry.

"The Private Life of Henry VIII" was his first smash hit. It catapulted him to film success and a career which included such successes as "Catherine The Great," "The Third Man," and "Tales of Hoffman." King George VI knighted the producer in 1942.

"Henry VIII" also gave him his second wife, Merle Oberon, who played the unlucky Anne Boleyn. They were married in 1939 and divorced in 1945. He and his first wife, a Hungarian, had been divorced in 1930 while he was working briefly in Hollywood.

In 1953 he married a Canadian, Alexandra Irene Boycun, of Fort William. His only son, Peter is the son of his first wife.

FIRE DESTROYS RINK

HAWKESBURY, Ont. (CP)—Fire early Monday destroyed virtually destroyed the two-year-old Hawkesbury Arena, home ice of Hawkesbury Richorts of the Quebec-Ontario Intermediate League. No one was injured. Hawkesbury is about 50 miles east of Ottawa.

AT THE CAPITOL — Hunted Fugitives! Silvana Mangano, famed "Bitter Rice" and "Anna" girl, wins new laurels in her American language hit "Outlaw Girl", action packed thriller of murder and revenge which is now showing at the Capitol Theatre as an I.F.E. release. In her latest starring vehicle, the seductive Silvana is the girl friend of a legendary bandit played by Amedeo Nazzari. On the same program is gorgeous Gina Lollobrigida in the wayward wife. Both features are first Belleville showings.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, January 25, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — If you permit others to run your affairs then don't blame anyone but yourself. However, there is always a happy medium for all, and you can cooperate with excellent results now.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Music can work wonders for the mind, heart, general well being. It can uplift spirits, fill gaps many places. Let it assist you to a better understanding of many things. Eat sensibly.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A better day than may appear on surface, and much that you do well now will have lasting and strong effects. Know who are the best companions character-wise. No straining.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — While you have fun with your family, do not neglect the outside activities that we should all indulge occasionally to be good citizens and broader-minded people.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Some people's work is lonesome. Then diversion, relaxation, and travel are excellent counterparts, but if you need quiet, take it.

August 23 to September 22 — (Virgo) — Looking backward for regrets is unhealthy, but if checking where mistakes can be avoided in future, then you are being progressive in mind and spirit.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Pressed for time? Eliminate items that can be put off without them suffering. But don't rush schedule needlessly, as is the temptation. Guard against undesirable interference.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Slow down every so often to catch your breath. It takes more time for coordinated thought and better action as results. But don't dally. Seek old hap-

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Here is where some extra fine research and regenerated vigor can be applied with unusually good returns. But all within reason. Where there's a sane will there's a sure way.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — You can do much to assist others and also benefit your own standing, your utility and all-round know-how. Certain socials are helpful to mind and spirit; enjoy them.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Don't answer before you are sure of exactly what the other person means, and we'sh well all propositions before taking them on: do some with added responsibilities. Missed aspects.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Please note Aquarius, your day has likely temptations and advantages. Mostly it is up to you as to the attitude you take, the way you look at things within your heart. Courage!

You born today: Are under the planet Uranus, have unusual intuitive powers, can gauge human nature and needs of peoples and animals; are understanding, helpful. You are constructive, can cut red tape and get at crux of matters ably, quickly. You can, however, be influenced against your good judgment, if not on guard against those who coax and appeal to your sympathies. Too often you remain in obscurity. Promote your interests, ideas. While not of the nature to be melancholy, you can be hurt. Do some of your best thinking alone, then, mix socially for the fun you can supply. Birthdaie: Robt. Burns, Scotch poet; Wm. Bullitt, Amer. Ambassador.

Reforms Dept. At War With Self Says MacDonald

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said today the department of reforms institutions is "at war with itself" and cannot do good work because two different policies are being set down.

Billy Graham Speaks at Madras

"ADRAS, India (AP)—American evangelist Billy Graham, conducting his first night service of a series here, addressed a throng estimated at more than 30,000 Monday night.

Graham, who is making a Far Eastern tour, said his listeners in was the first time he had used two interpreters simultaneously — one for the Tamil language and the other for Telugu. They are the main languages in the part of southeast India.

Trapper Gives Haggis Recipe For Burns Day

TORONTO (CP) — If you're a "red-blooded person" Ontario, who relishes his meat cut with an axe and liberally sprinkled with loose hair and sawdust, then this one is for you.

If you like your cannibalism blood, so much the better. It's a haggis recipe published by the Ontario Lands and Forests department in honor of the Jan. 25 celebration of the birth in 1759 of poet Robert Burns.

F. L. Hall, district forester for the Cochrane region, says the recipe came from the lips of a veteran trapper. He was forced to give up wearing his kilt only by the combined effects of the northern winter and the summer's rich variety of insects. It runs like this:

"Gralloch a glackit wee beestie wi' a smickin o tamarack. Skelpit and slap wi' hooky. Add a tarpie and braw cleiling o' tatties. Simmer until stirry weel. Syne was forced to and bonnie dish an' ye dinna like it ye're a bluvless haverin' gowk."

Court Is Told Accused Burned, Kicked Infant

MONTREAL (CP) — A 25-year-old mother of two children testified Monday that Vladimir Bakraza soft 24-year-old self-styled doctor, burned and kicked a 10-month-old baby girl shortly before the infant's death.

Mrs. Honora Rogers gave her testimony at the Court of Queen's Bench trial of Bakraszoff, charged with the murder of Joy Stacey Timm in a Park avenue apartment May 25.

She told the court she had lived with the accused and had watched him abuse and maltreat the infant, but could not tell police because he had threatened to kill her. She said the baby had been left with her and Bakraszoff by its 26-year-old unwed mother, Eva Timm, who told them she could not support the child.

When the prosecution asked Mrs. Rogers if the accused had ever complained his violent actions to her, she replied: "Yes, he hated her because he was a German."

Earlier, Miss Timm told the court she had no money and was refusal to allow her baby to be adopted until both farmers could be sure she needed her job and took out insurance on the baby. Both offers took after her daughter.

The trial is continuing.

Brief Presented Charges Farmers Being Exploited

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Farmers' Union has asked the Ontario government to appoint immediately a royal commission to investigate the price spread in the farm goods between farmer and consumer.

In a brief to Premier Frost, the union said it believes the farmer is being exploited. It cites cases of livestock bought from farmers at less than production costs and sold to the public as first-quality meat.

"The expansion of the meat packing industry and the building of extravagant and elaborate new retail food stores by packers might be abuses in the present system," it said.

INCOME DOWN

Since 1952 farmers' net income had declined steadily.

The brief also demands should be exempt from assessment for agricultural uses.

The union said it views with alarm a statement by Dr. D. R. Michener, president of Agricultural College that low-income farmers should seek employment in cities.

"We feel that the family farm can be preserved only through agriculture with a more adequate share of the gross national income."

It demands should re-establish a 21 subsidy on Grade A cheese, encourage higher-quality production for fluid milk.

The brief also asked:

That the province ask the federal government to replace the present guaranteed butter price with a guaranteed butterfat price payable to the farmer.

Establishment of full-parity prices for farm products used on the home market to protect the farmer against imported products.

Immediate passage of a comprehensive health insurance plan.

4. Establishment of a board to arbitrate Sudbury-district farmers' claims of damage to crops caused by fumes from mines in the area.

Engineer Says Responsibility For Wreck His

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The anguished engineer at the throttle of which plunged off a slow-order curve at about 70 miles an hour, killing 29 passengers and injuring about 130 others, has told the district attorney:

"The responsibility is solely mine. . . . I blacked out. . . . I didn't know we were going that fast."

The Santa Fe's two-car diesel, the San Diegan, tipped off the rails at 7:33 a.m. (10:33 a.m. EST) and spilled some victims through windows. Others pitched them as it slid, roaring and screeching, more than 200 feet.

"I vaguely recall seeing an orange grove," district attorney S. Ernest Roll said he was told Monday by the injured engineer, Frank B. Hayes, 55.

INQUEST DATE SET

There are no orange groves in the area, although Hayes' home in Parrish's home in nearby San Bernardino.

"The last thing I saw before the crash," said Parrish, "was the Pomona-Pasadena street lights" — more than a mile from the crash scene.

An inquest, with more than 100 witnesses expected to testify, has been set for Feb. 24.

Relatives by this morning had been identified all but one of the dead, some of them decapitated or badly dismembered.

Still unidentified was a woman with grey-blonde hair and blue eyes, estimated age nine. $100 bills pinned to her black slip.

Britain Moves RAF Troops Into Jordan

LONDON (AP)—The air ministry Monday night disclosed the movement of British troops into the Arab state of Jordan where Britain's hold has been threatened by anti-Western rioting.

A spokesman said crack squadrons of a Royal Air Force regiment are airlifted to Amman from Iraq last week as part of the "normal reinforcement process." He told a reporter there also will include training of Jordan Army troops and the manning of RAF installations in the country. The spokesman refused to say how many men have moved in. RAF regiments can number up to 1,000 men.

The word came out as the government continued to pour other crack troops into Britain's lastering territory in the Middle East—the island colony of Cyprus in the eastern Mediterranean where police-with-Germans parties are seeking with bombs and guns to oust British rule.

Livestock Worth $25,000,000 Sold at Auction

PRESTON (CP)—Ontario community auction sales which will dispose of $25,000,000 worth of livestock a year, are a threat to rural social institution, the Ontario Federation of Agriculture was told Monday.

R. A. Forsyth, Waterloo agricultural representative, said auctions provide farmers with an audience of hundreds of prospective buyers, a chance to get rid of the problem of haggling with one buyer in the barn.

There are 38 auctioneers licensed to conduct sales in Ontario at a commission of three per cent. Most livestock is consigned by farmers operating on dealers and drovers. Most purchases at eastern Ontario sales are by dealers or packers, while other farmers buy the larger amount of animals sold in western Ontario sales.

Man Described As Bootlegger To Be Witness

VANCOUVER (CP)—Joe Celona, and the woman who called him a bootlegger with a pipeline into police headquarters, are scheduled to testify today before the R. H. Tupper royal commission.

Norma Moore, about 40, former of Oakalla prison farm. Will be cross-examined on her testimony last week. At that time, she told the commission Celona's phone tipoffs to police affairs that she had lived with Mr. Celona and "at that time he was a bootlegger."

Miss Moore said Mr. Celona "was told" in advance of raids.

Monday, Mr. Tupper heard sharp criticism of authorities for allowing former chief Walter Mulligan to leave Canada without testifying before the inquiry.

H. A. D. Oliver, counsel for defence witness Mrs. C. Schubert, referred to published reports that Mr. Mulligan had taken up residence in Los Angeles and said "it is highly regrettable that such timely steps were not taken to subpoena him."

Sgt. Gladstone Hutchinson, whose suicide helped touch off the inquiry has testified he split graft with the former police chief.

Three newspaper men, all city editors in April, 1954, testified they knew nothing of a conspiracy which Mr. Mulligan charged in a letter sent to the then attorney-general that year. The letter said a conspiracy existed against him and "my suicide" in particular, on the part of three newspaper men, two police officers and a member of the legislative assembly. They were not identified publicly.

Lyall Dagg, formerly of the Province Herald, and Sandy Smith of The Sun and Merv Moore of the Province all said they knew of no such conspiracy and would have known had it existed.

Doctor Donates $50 to Help Pay for Funeral

TORONTO (CP) — The doctor who brought Linda Lampkin into the world 18 years ago took the lead Monday in helping her family to pay for her funeral.

"The Lampkins haven't got much money," said Dr. Harold Baker.

He contributed $50 to what he said he hoped would be a funeral fund for the young brunette, found last Wednesday night raped and strangled on a downtown Toronto street.

Later in the day Linda's family schoolmates and young friends attending Bloor Collegiate and St. Paul's Runnymede Anglican church.

Rev. George A. W. Lark, church rector and friend of the Lampkin family, described the fatal slaying, will be examined next week by Dr. Ewen Cameron, a University of Toronto psychiatrist.

"I am sick and tired of all this talk about the rights of the accused both in the press and among the people at large," Mr. Humphrey said.

Meanwhile, deputy reeve Fred Howard of Scarborough Twp. township said he will seek a curfew to keep teen-age girls off the streets at night in metropolitan Toronto. Township council unanimously approved the curfew proposal but to limit it to metropolitan council.

Army Will Take Over Strikebound Docks

CANBERRA (Reuters) — The Australian government today called out the country's armed forces to be ready to take over the strikebound docks where some 24,000 dock workers walked off their jobs in 53 ports, stranding over 130 ships.

The alert order to shift essential cargoes went out as tugs patrolled the silent wharves, and cargoes, including the bales of wool in the port of Adelaide, began to pile up.

REJECT MOTION

BRISTOL, England (Reuters)—Bristol University debating Union Monday night rejected a motion which gained world-wide prominence when passed by an earlier generation of Oxford undergraduates in the 1930s. The Bristol students rejected by a vote of 50 to 13, with nine abstentions a motion that "This House will not fight for Queen and country."

Fear U.S. May Raise Tariffs On Lead and Zinc

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's mining industry expressed fears today that the United States may yet act to restrict imports of Canadian lead and zinc.

The Canadian Metal Mining Association recalled that the U. S. tariff commission recommended the tariff boosts two years ago. President Eisenhower rejected the proposal, aiding U. S. lead and zinc producers through a stockpiling program.

"Such solutions, however, are temporary," the association said in a brief to the Gordon economic commission. "Sentiment among U. S. domestic producers is still strong and further pressure to raise duties against the imposition of these products is to be expected."

"Any such damage in tariffs would be a serious set-back for Canadian producers and highly disturbing to Canadian-American trade relations."

POLICY A PARADOX

The association described U. S. mineral policy as a paradox. On the one hand, it needed imports to supplement domestic supplies, it said. On the other it was attempting to protect domestic producers against such imports.

"Concern over the impact of American policies on Canadian economy was also expressed by Canada's oil industry.

M. S. Beringer, president of the British American Oil Co. Ltd., predicted that the demand for supplies will increase over the next quarter-century but the rate of increase will depend to some extent on capturing export markets.

Canada alone can crude oil to be imported duty-free, but the U. S. tariff on all duty of $10.50 a barrel on imports of light crudes and 13½ cents a barrel on heavier crudes.

AT A DISADVANTAGE

"This import tax places the Canadian exporter at a disadvantage with competitors for U. S. markets," he said.

The association afforded to the American producer very seriously reduces the expansion of Canadian export markets and thus constitutes a disadvantage to the producer in the form of reduced withdrawal prices Viewed in the light of North American as an entity for defence purposes, this is anomalous."

Touching on other aspects of economic development, Mr. Beringer supported the brief of Imperial Oil Ltd., presented Monday, asking for more favorable federal depletion allowances for tax purposes.

But BA's general forecast of the future was more from that of Imperial. Imperial had estimated the gross national product—value of all goods and services produced—would rise to $60,500,000,000 by 1980, compared with $26,300,000,000 in 1955. BA said it would go to $70,000,000,000.

Imperial estimated population would rise to 24,500,000 from 15,- 500,000 last year. BA suggested it would go to 28,000,000. Imperial estimated the number of motor vehicles would rise to 7,100,000 from 2,460,000; BA suggested 12,000,000.

Says Farmers Too Dependent On Subsidies

TORONTO (CP)—The director of marketing in the federal agriculture department said Monday some farmers have a tendency to be entirely too dependent on government subsidies instead of improving their lot by the free competitive market.

W. E. Pearsall, addressing the central Ontario branch of the Agricultural Institute of Canada, said government assistance should not be pended upon to remedy all the problems facing agriculture.

He said the production of potatoes, hogs and turkeys were fields in which farmers could improve the product.

24 Private Bills

TORONTO (CP) — Rod Lewis, clerk of the Ontario legislature, said 24 private bill petitions were received for consideration by the legislature before the deadline for such bills passed Monday.

He said he expects there will be six or so latecomers, bringing the total to about 30, before the end of the year. Those presenting bills after the deadline must pay a fine of $10 a day for each day they are late.

Bickell Estate Gives Theatre Fund $100,000

TORONTO (CP)—A campaign to provide the Shakespearean Festival Company of Stratford with a permanent theatre got a big lift Monday as the J. E. Bickell Foundation handed over a $100,000 cheque.

The money is to be spent exclusively on a gallery—overlooking the stage—which is to be named the "Bickell Gallery." It will contain 684 seats.

J. M. Armstrong, chairman of the foundation, presented the cheque to Mr. C. Maclagan, financial chairman of the Stratford Festival Foundation.

"We feel that it is typical of the way of thing Mr. Bickell himself would have done if he were still alive," said Mr. Armstrong.

J. P. Bickell, the Canadian mining magnate who died in 1951, provided $2,000,000 in his will. Its capital fund is estimated to provide a market value of nearly $15,000,- 000. One-half the fund's income is allocated to Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

Accepting the gift, Mr. Meighen said that "the balcony in Stratford's Shakespearean theatre will link the name of Bickell with the Stratford Festival for all time."

The most-recent previous large donation to the fund was given by Mrs. Dora Patrick of Stratford city council from the Paris estate of $30,000 Jan. 10.

The theatre is expected to cost $984,000.

Campaign organizers said a Canada-wide drive is to be instituted later this year, although pre-campaign donations are to be solicited.

The new theatre, to be built on the site of the tent that has served for three seasons and more than 600 performances, will be a steel-frame, fire-proof and sound-proof construction. The stage will project into the auditorium as in the open, surrounded arena-style by tiered seats.

The seating has been rearranged to allow for the Bickell Gallery.

The Bickell Gallery, the only added feature, will make up for widened aisles in the new plan.

The Stratford players are playing Christopher Marlowe's "Tamburlaine the Great" at New York's Winter Garden theatre.

ROB SAFE

PARIS (Reuters) — Safe-cracksers stole 17,500,000 francs (about $43,000) from the Paris office of Aristotle Socrates Onassis, the Greek-born millionaire ship owner, during the weekend, police said.

MARRIAGE SNAG

Robert Carphin, 54, a social worker for the city of Winnipeg, has found his plans to marry Amy, Cawley, 37, a fellow social worker caused a storm in city council. Members of the personnel and legislation committee of the council were stalemated. Three were in favor and three against the couple's desire to get married and continue to work for the city. The committee awaits a recommendation from the city's personnel manager. Under present policy only one member of a family can work in a single city department. (CP Photo).

AWAITS DECISION

Amy Cawley, 37, a social worker for the city of Winnipeg, is awaiting a decision from the city's personnel manager whether she can marry fellow-worker Robert Carphin, 54, and continue to work for the city. The council's personnel and legislation committee is deadlocked on the question. (CP Photo).

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's army chief said Monday that civil defence training will be emphasized more and more in both regular and militia forces, but without detriment to normal military training. In an interview LL-Gen. Howard Graham said that while soldiers are trained in atomic, bacteriological and chemical defence, more specific training dealing with direct aid to civil defence authorities will be emphasized.

Hungarian Jet Riddled With Bullets, Rammed

VIENNA (Reuters) — Aviation experts said today one of two Hungarian jet fighters which crashed in mid-air over Austria Saturday was riddled with bullets and finally rammed in a vain attempt by the other to prevent it reaching Austrian territory.

These experts said an examination of the wreck of both MIG-15 fighters left little doubt that one of the planes was attacked by the other.

The pilot of the plane under fire was killed in a collision between the planes while flying near Pamhagen, on the American side of the Austro-Hungarian border.

Flight Captain Nikolai Konokkov, Russian pilot of the second plane, parachuted to safety. He was handed over to the Soviet embassy in Vienna Sunday night.

Konokkov's version of the crash is that he and his comrade were chasing two planes of "unknown nationality" which appeared over Hungarian territory. While trying to head off the intruders, he collided with the other MIG-15, he told officials.

FIRING HEARD

Eyewitnesses in the Pamhagen area agree there were four jets overhead at the time and that some firing was going on.

These eyewitnesses say two of the planes collided and crashed, another returned to Hungary and the fourth flew westward.

The most popular theory is that two jets piloted by Russians took off in an attempt to prevent two other Hungarian or possibly Russian pilots from escaping to the West.

Two pilots crashed—one pursuer and one pursued. The third plane gave up the chase as he was over Austria. Mystery surrounds the fate of the fourth plane seen to have continued its flight westward.

BALLOON REACHES U.S.

30 DIED WHEN CALIFORNIA TRAIN TOOK CURVE TOO FAST

Undue speed on a curve is blamed for this train wreck near Los Angeles, Calif., in which 30 persons were killed and 90 injured. The train, a two-car diesel, was travelling 50 mph when it toppled over, crushing passengers and strewing their bodies along the road bed. Police and firemen had to wait for floodlights and metal-cutting equipment to free those trapped in the overturned cars. (Central Press Canadian).

Council Wants Federal Aid For Planning

TORONTO (CP)—The Conservation Council of Ontario says the federal government should establish a policy of financial assistance to regional planning projects to aid in the country's development.

The recommendation is included in a brief to be presented to the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects at a hearing in Toronto. Text of the brief was released to the press in advance.

Each project would require approval of a board of review and the province, the brief suggests. The board of review would be convened by the province and consist basically of elected representatives of the regions county wardens city mayors and provincial and federal government members.

The 20-page brief recommends that the federal government, through its various departments and agencies, co-operate with the provincially-sponsored survey groups in compiling important regional information.

A letter introducing the brief says effective regional planning should be helpful to industrial development, national defence and general prosperity of Canada.

"We believe, too, that it has particular application to the conservation of natural resources."

Bulgarin Sends Mystery Message To Eisenhower

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—A mystery message from Premier Bulganin to President Eisenhower and Washington speculating today that the Russians plan to spring some new diplomatic manoeuvre.

Soviet Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin arranged to deliver the message personally to Eisenhower.

The most commonly held theory before the delivery was that Bulganin was making a new approach on disarmament, a subject on which he and Eisenhower exchanged notes last year following the Geneva "summit" conference.

The exchange followed Eisenhower's proposal for mutual aerial inspection of American and Russian military establishments. The Russians termed his plan unacceptable unless fitted into a broad disarmament program of the kind which they advocate and, the United States has rejected.

Quiet Weekend

Diplomats, however, did not rule out the possibility of some Soviet bid for fresh talks with the West East or a proposal for high level talks on Far Eastern problems with Red China sitting in.

Zarubin's appointment with Eisenhower was announced late Tuesday by James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, who said the record showed no comparable request for an appointment by the Soviet ambassador during this or the Truman administrations.

The timing suggested that, whatever the precise subject, Bulganin wanted to make a propaganda play on the eve of high level U.S.-British talks.

Ottawa Youth Guilty of Third Sex Offence

OTTAWA (CP) —An Ottawa magistrate Tuesday ordered a 20-year-old youth charged with his third sex offence to be sent to jail for an intensive medical and psychiatric examination.

Magistrate Maurice Sauve ordered the detention after stating that recent sex crimes in other cities compelled him to protect the public.

The youth, John Plumb of Ottawa, pleaded guilty to assaulting a 13-year-old girl Jan. 15 in an Ottawa building. Plumb told the court he had "no idea" why he committed the offence.

In ordering a two-week remand to permit the case to continue, Plumb, magistrate Sauve said "certain questions" must be taken in sex offence cases.

"It seems you (Plumb) are tempted beyond your strength," magistrate Sauve said, "I am going to see you're not released before you are positively cured. You appear to be normal but there may be something in your mind not functioning."

The magistrate said "this present charge is not a serious one but when men appear before the court—and it's a still a charge of assault—with a previous disposition to bother young girls, something has to be done to see that in the future such offences are not committed."

He said that a preliminary psychiatric report showed Plumb's intelligence to be "normal."

GOVT. WEATHERS TWO MOTIONS OF NON-CONFIDENCE

Ross Thatcher Gives Support to Liberals

OTTAWA (CP— — Parliament's most unpredictable Independent, Tom Thatcher, threw his vote in with the Liberal Commons majority. But he said it doesn't mean anything significant.

The government Tuesday night weathered with ease a pair of non-confidence motions moved by the Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties. Both votes were taken by the Liberals with identical 153-to-82 counts as the 10-day throne speech debate concluded its second week.

And twice Mr. Thatcher, who bolted the CCF party last spring after representing Moose Jaw-Lake Centre riding in their ranks since 1945, provided the 153rd government-favoring vote.

Lined up against the Liberal majority were Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit members and two other Independents, Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi, and Raoul Poulin, Beauce.

FARM CRITICISM

First to fall was a Social Credit motion criticizing the government's "failure" by its agricultural policies that would keep farm cash income at a fair level. It also charged "failure" by the government to accept of responsibility to help provinces overcome financial crises on a basis through development of natural resources.

Next was a generally - worded Conservative motion charging the government with "indifference, inertia and lack of leadership in the face of serious national problems."

Commons members used the waning hours of the throne speech debate Tuesday to cover a variety of topics.

Mr. Thatcher, who last week voted with the opposition on a CCF motion of want-of-confidence in the government, described 130 N.W. said in an interview last night that he may not vote with the Liberals again for a long time.

NOT EASY

He said it wasn't easy to decide to support the government after years in opposition, but both the Conservative and Social Credit motions blamed the government generally for the prairie wheat surplus problems.

It was hard to see what the government could do to correct it, he had done. World conditions were to blame for the surplus.

That regime was the one to cast his vote with the Liberals there were reports from government aides of "lots of room over here"—a suggestion that he cross the floor and join Liberal ranks. But in the interview he said "there's no particular significance to my vote."

The 38-year-old Saskatchewan hardware merchant said he voted for the CCF motion last week because it advanced a specific proposal—cash advances to farmer-stored grain—which he favors.

Driver Is Acquitted On Negligence Charge

TORONTO (CP) — Raymond Hamilton, 23, of Toronto was acquitted Monday on a charge of criminal negligence arising from an accident Aug. 20 in which Alexander Greene of suburban Swansea was killed and six people were injured.

Hamilton, a transport driver, had been charged after Oct. 8, when he gave himself up to police.

Hamilton, whose license was under suspension, admitted travelling up to 65 miles an hour and having one bottle of beer in Toronto.

Bermuda Blueblood Is Ostracized For His Marriage to Negro Singer

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — Alexander Stuart Outerbridge, 34, whose marriage to Royce Wallace, 32, Negro night club singer, has created a sensation in Bermuda society, says he will not leave the island as long as he can make a living here.

Outerbridge and Miss Wallace, who has appeared in 13 Broadway musicals, were married Christmas Eve. She has been—and still is—appearing in the floor show of his night club, the Angels' Grotto. Outerbridge and his bride were married immediate payment of his debts and he has been urged to leave Bermuda.

Eden Said Seeking Pledge Of Joint British-American Air Action in Middle East

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (AP)— Prime Minister Eden sailed today for the United States, and was reported to be seeking a pledge of joint British-American air action against any major aggression by Israelis or Arabs in the troubled Middle East.

In a statement before leaving aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth, the prime minister said he hopes his trip, during which he will also visit Ottawa, will contribute "not only to the happiness and welfare of both our countries, but also to the peace of the world."

London informants said Eden will ask that the U. S. join Britain in a warning that air arms of the two big powers would move against any aggressor in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

These sources said Eden is ready to designate some RAF units based on Cyprus for such action in the event of large-scale violation of the Palestine armistice agreements or frontier lines. They said he may suggest that similar stand-by instructions be given U. S. planes on two aircraft carriers of the U. S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

According to the informants, Britain feels that the 1950 U. S.-British-French declaration that they would prevent any forcible Eden.

change of existing frontiers in the Holy Land already forms a commitment for the Western Big Three. But a pledge of air action would strengthen the existing guarantee.

Under the 1950 declaration, the three powers promised action individually outside the United Nations in the event of aggression.

The Western powers and the UN have been pressing for a peace settlement in the troubled Middle East. They say President Eisenhower have agreed that the next few months may prove crucial in that area.

The British plan to threaten air intervention in the event of aggression may be complicated by Labor Secretary Dulles' efforts in the U. S. to keep some foreign matters out of political debate in the coming presidential election campaign. It is understood that one of these "hot potatoes" Dulles has said he discussed with Democratic congressional leaders is U. S. policy toward Israel and the Arab states.

Eden also said the U. S. and British governments have been talking out a possible formula for limiting atomic and hydrogen bomb tests, and that that subject will come up in the talks with

Canada's Defence Budget Will Not Be Cut

OTTAWA (CP)—Solicitor-General Macdonald said Tuesday night that Canada's budget for military purposes cannot be cut this year.

It was the first time a cabinet minister said definitely that there will be no cut in Canada's defence budget this year, indicating Canadians can expect no tax reductions through cuts in defence spending.

Senator Macdonald, government leader in the senate, said this year by world powers on armament reductions are a move in the direction of peace.

"That is a hopeful sign that an era of true peace is in store for us," he said. "In the meantime our budget for military purposes cannot be cut. We must be prepared to pay its heavy taxation."

HUGE BUDGET

(Government officials said in an interview Monday that the 1956-57 defence budget will be in the neighborhood of $1,750,000,000, or the current fiscal year defence spending is estimated at $1,775,000,000).

Senator Macdonald said all Canadians agree with the government's policy that we should be ready to meet any possible attack.

Referring to Canada's wheat surplus, Senator Macdonald said "some people are endeavoring to gain some political advantage from this situation." Wheat marketings were not as bright as they might be but the picture was not as black as it had been painted.

FIVE KILLED BY GRENADE

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chinese newspaper reports said five persons were killed Tuesday when one picked up an old hand grenade and it exploded.

Newsprint Bill Said No Threat To Free Press

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis said Tuesday there is no threat to freedom of the press in his proposed newsprint control legislation.

Mr. Duplessis announced corrections to the draft of an original newsprint bill he introduced, stating there is no attempt to limit freedom of Quebec's newspapers. He said the new measure would be inherent in the proposed legislation.

The controversial bill may be debated in the legislative assembly today.

Mr. Duplessis said that acceptance of the terms of the legislation would be left optional to newspapers, although definitely binding on those accepting. Refusal by a newspaper availing itself of the legislation would mean that newsprint supplies could not be cut unless circulation or size of the publication diminished. Then the newspaper could hold itself aloof from the legislation if it wished.

And should newspapers decide to disregard the legislation they would be free to continue their own arrangements with the newsprint manufacturers regarding supplies and prices.

Mr. Duplessis said earlier there is no question of the measure hampering effect outside Quebec.

The question of freedom of the press had been raised after the original draft of the proposed legislation was made public earlier. That draft stated that a control board could declare newsprint supplies to a newspaper not only on the basis of diminished circulation or size but under "any other circumstances." This last stipulation was dropped in the revision.

WATER BURSTS INTO TUNNEL BENEATH HUDSON

New Lincoln Tube Is Partially Flooded

NEW YORK (AP)—Water early today burst into a third tube being dug for the Lincoln automobile tunnel under the Hudson river. No one was injured but workmen struggled feverishly to prevent water from flowing into the two tubes now in use.

Three sandhogs were forced to swim for safety when the break, described by one of them as being "like a dam breaking," was discovered about 4:15 a. m.

Because a bulkhead safety door could not be closed immediately, it was feared water might back up into the new tunnels to point where it could flow into the Manhattan end of the two-tube Holland tunnel shaft which now joins New York and New Jersey.

The breakthrough occurred in the new shaft at 'a point approximately beneath 38th street and 12th avenue in Manhattan. This is near the Hudson river's edge but to the landward side.

BUILD EARTH DAM

Water was still pouring in at 10 a.m., and at that time had flooded about 200 feet of the facility which, scheduled for completion next year, was begun in the Jersey terminus of the Lincoln facility in Weehawken, N. J. This here has already reached nearly to Manhattan.

Meanwhile on the Manhattan side, another bore was started in both tubes, 70 feet. It was in this shaft which sprang the leak.

Behind the tunnel, when completed, will be 8,000 feet long. It was made necessary by increased traffic between New York and New Jersey.

Police Hold 2 Men For Attacks On Hamilton Women

Picked up in Saint John; Sketches Led to Arrests

HAMILTON (CP) — Two men, both married and fathers, were charged today with rape in connection with recent attacks on four women.

Police said the men, Andrew Andrews, 33, of Halifax, and James J. Mathers, 19, formerly of Buffalo, now living in Hamilton, were charged after being lodged in a lineup viewed by four victims.

They were picked up in Saint John, N. B., and escorted to Hamilton Tuesday night.

Police accused the two of being the men who dragged four women into cars, drove them to lonely spots on the outskirts of the city, raped them and then dumped them out back in the city. All of the attacks were committed in December and January.

In each case the victim was dragged into a car as she walked along a street. In one the victim's husband was knocked unconscious when he tried to protect his wife.

Rewards totalling $3,000 were offered for the arrest of the attackers by the city police and by the police commission and $500 by The Spectator, a Hamilton newspaper.

Artists' sketches of the attackers led to two arrests, police said. The sketches were based on information supplied by the victims and other persons throughout the city and published in newspapers.

Pearson Rapped For Article in U.S. Weekly

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson Tuesday night was criticized in the Commons for writing an article on foreign affairs in the weekly edition of American magazine Look.

Dr. Owen C. Trainor (PC—Winnipeg South) said the article is a departure from diplomatic practice and has not received approval by the cabinet.

He said the article presumed to lecture the United States government on deficiencies in its foreign policy.

(Mr. Pearson said in the article, which appeared earlier this week, that the West should recognize the fact that the Communists and not Chiang Kai-shek are in control of the Chinese mainland. The U.S. has been vehemently opposed to diplomatic recognition of Red China).

Engineer Held Responsible for Train Wreck

STRATFORD (CP)—A Canadian National Railways official said Tuesday an engineer did not have his train under control Monday night when it smashed into another near London and 11 persons were injured.

Eugene Carlin, CNR Stratford division superintendent, said westbound train No. 11 with engineer Hadley Baker of London at the controls should have entered a siding.

It passed over the switch before the brakeman could change it and rammed into train No. 40, waiting on the main line.

"An error in judgment" on the part of the engineer was responsible for the wreck, officials said.

Airborne Mice And 'Clergymen's' Peas Rout Nude

PORTSMOUTH, England (Reuters)—Mice struck again Tuesday night at shapely stage stripper Peaches Page—this time from the air.

Last week 19-year-old Peaches fled screaming from a London stage after a mouse scurried over her foot. She lost her job, because in England nudes on the stage just don't move. It's a law.

Tuesday night she was standing on the stage at a theatre here—again clad only in a bra—when two white mice attached to handkerchief "parachutes" floated down from one of the boxes.

In the box were several young men dressed as clergymen and armed with pea - shooters. They kept up a persistent bombardment as the curtain was hurriedly lowered.

BY ERIC GOTTGETREU

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel and Egypt have accepted a three-point United Nations peace plan for the disputed El Auja demilitarized zone.

The UN Palestine truce supervision organization announced the agreement Tuesday after Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold conferred here and in Cairo with leaders of both sides.

Hammarskjold proposed the plan originally last Nov. 3 after Israeli and Egyptian troops had clashed in the Negev desert area along the Israeli-Egyptian border. The fighting then described as the most serious since the 1948 Palestine war.

Under the plan (1) Egypt will let the truce group put demarcation lines wherever the UN may think necessary; (2) Egypt will withdraw its police reconnaissments which might still remain in the zone; (3) Israel will remove all her troops, fortifications and mines from the zone.

AFTER TALKS

Hammarskjold's proposals were worked out after talks with the Western Big Three and Mati-Gen. E.L.M. Burns, Canada, chief truce supervisor.

Hammarskjold, who is making a world tour, told a press conference here Tuesday that he still believes a general Palestine settlement can be reached.

The Negev zone has about 95 square miles, and stretches for a length of about 20 miles. Both sides have made strong territorial claims within the area. The Israelis claimed they pulled their forces out in response to UN appeals, but charged that Egypt retained certain strongpoints. Egypt said Israeli "border police" within the zone actually were army units.

The zone was demilitarized because it contains strategic road crossings.

The battle late last October for possession of a frontier post brought widely conflicting claims. Israel said her forces took the post and killed 50 Egyptian soldiers. Egypt later said her troops had recaptured the post and killed 200 Israelis. Each side disputed the other's claims.

CEASE-FIRE REQUEST

In Damascus Tuesday, a high Syrian source said Burns has asked Syria and Israel to accept a cease-fire agreement in the Sea of Galilee area, scene of the most recent major Israeli-Arab clash.

That region was the scene of an attack by Israeli forces on Syrian outposts Dec. 11 in which 56 Syrians and six Israelis were killed. The UN Security Council unanimously condemned Israel for the attack, and warned that it might use its powers of punishment if such attacks continued.

The Syrian source said the cease-fire agreement was one of four measures suggested by Burns for relaxing tension. The others: 1. A "gentleman's agreement" to limit Syrian and Israeli forces to common border; 2. An Israeli agreement not to divert Jordan waters closer to home so as not to provoke fire from the Syrian posts on the northeast shore of the lake; 3. Discussions between Syrian officers and Israeli officers on ways to implement and protect Syria's right to water from Galilee for irrigation; 4. Exchang of all military prisoners.

Govt. Weathers Two Motions of Non-Confidence

Ross Thatcher Gives Support to Liberals

OTTAWA (CP— — Parliament's most unpredictable Independent, Ross Thatcher, has thrown his vote in with the Liberal Commons majority. But he said it doesn't mean anything significant.

The government Tuesday night weathered with ease a pair of non-confidence motions moved by the Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties. Both votes were taken by the Liberals with identical 153-to-88 counts as the 10-day Throne Speech debate concluded its second-last day.

And twice Mr. Thatcher, who bolted the CCF party last spring after representing Moose Jaw-Lake Centre riding in their ranks since 1945, provided the 153rd government-favoring vote.

Lined up against the Liberal majority were Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit members and two odd Independents, Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi, and Thatcher, Mossbank.

FARM CRITICISM

First to fall was a Social Credit motion criticizing the government's farm policy as "unsatisfactory, inertia and lack of leadership in the face of serious national problems."

Commons members used the waning hours of the throne speech debate Tuesday to cover a variety of topics.

Mr. Thatcher, who last week voted with the opposition on a CCF motion of wantlessidence in the government—defeated 150 to 88—said in an interview last night that he may not vote with the Liberals again for a long time.

NOT EASY

He said it wasn't easy to decide how he would represent after years in opposition, but both the Conservative and Social Credit motions blamed the government generally for the prairie wheat surplus problem.

It was hard to see what the government could do except what it had done. World conditions were to blame for the surplus.

When Mr. Thatcher rose to cast his vote with the Liberals there were cries from the government side of "lots of room over here"—a suggestion that he cross the floor and join Liberal ranks. But in the interview he said "there's no particular reason to do that."

The 38-year-old Saskatchewan hardware merchant said he voted for the CCF motion last week because it advanced a specific proposal—guaranteed prices for stored grain—which he favors.

Driver Is Aquitted On Negligence Charge

TORONTO (CP) — Raymond Hamilton, 23, of Toronto was acquitted Tuesday on a charge of criminal negligence arising from an accident Aug. 30 in which Alexander Greene of suburban Swansea was killed and six people were injured.

Hamilton, a transport driver, had been in custody since Oct. 5 when he gave himself up to police.

Hamilton, whose license was under suspension, admitted travelling up to 50 miles an hour and having one bottle of beer in Toronto.

Eden Said Seeking Pledge Of Joint British-American Air Action in Middle East

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (AP)—Prime Minister Eden sailed today for the United States, and was reported to be seeking a pledge of joint British-American air action against any major aggression by Israelis or Arabs in the troubled Middle East.

In a statement before leaving aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth, the prime minister said he hopes his trip, during which he will also visit Ottawa, will contribute "not only to the happiness and welfare of both our countries, but also to the peace of the world."

London informants said Eden will ask that the U. S. join Britain in a warning that air arms of the two big powers would move against any aggressor in the Israeli dispute.

These sources said Eden is ready to designate some RAF units based on Cyprus for such action in the event of large-scale violation of the Palestine armistice agreements or frontier lines. They said he may suggest that similar steps be taken against Israel if she violates the Sinai armistice terms.

Dulles also said the U. S. and British governments have been talking out a possible formula for limiting atomic and hydrogen bomb tests, and that that subject may come up in the talks with Eden.

Canada's Defence Budget Will Not Be Cut

OTTAWA (CP)—Solicitor-General Macdonald said Tuesday night that Canada's budget for military purposes cannot be cut this year.

It was the first time a cabinet minister said definitely that there will be no cut in Canada's defence budget this year, indicating Canadians can expect no tax reductions through cuts in defence spending.

Senator Macdonald, government leader in the Senate, said talks by world powers on armament reductions are a move in the direction of peace.

"That is a hopeful sign that an era of true peace is in store for us," he said. "In the meantime our budget for military purposes cannot be cut. We must be prepared to pay in heavy taxation."

HUGE BUDGET

(Government officials said in an interview Monday that the $2,407,000,000 defence budget will be in the neighborhood of $1,750,000,000. For the current fiscal year defence spending is estimated at $1,775,000,000).

Senator Macdonald said all Canadians must do their "no matter how high the cost it will not be too great a price to pay for what we all desire—real world peace."

Referring to Canada's wheat surplus, Senator Macdonald said "some people are endeavoring to gain some political advantage from this situation." Wheat marketings were not as bright as they might be but the picture was not as black as it had been painted.

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chinese newspaper reports said five persons were killed Tuesday when one picked up an old hand grenade and it exploded.

Newsprint Bill Said No Threat To Free Press

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis said Tuesday there is no threat to freedom of the press in his proposed newsprint control legislation.

Mr. Duplessis said earlier there was no question of the new legislation would be left optional to newspapers, although definitely binding on the industry. Otherwise, the newspaper awaiting itself of the legislation would find its newsprint supplies could not be cut off because there is no such thing as newspaper diminished. But any newspaper could hold itself aloof from the legislation if it wished.

And should newspapers decide to accept the legislation voluntarily would be free to continue their own arrangements with the newsprint manufacturers regarding supplies and prices.

Mr. Duplessis said earlier there is no question of the measure being in effect outside Quebec.

The question of freedom of the press had been raised after the original draft of the proposed legislation was made public earlier. That draft stated that a control board could reduce newsprint supplies to a newspaper not only on the basis of diminished circulation or size but under "any other circumstances." That clause stipulation was dropped in the revision.

Water Bursts Into Tunnel Beneath Hudson

New Lincoln Tube Is Partially Flooded

NEW YORK (AP)—Water early today burst into a third tube being dug for the Lincoln automobile tunnel under the Hudson river. No one was injured but workmen struggled feverishly to prevent water from flowing into the two tubes now in use.

Three sandhogs were forced to swim for their lives when the break, described by one of them as being "like a dam breaking," was discovered about 4:15 a. m.

They made a breathead safety door could not be closed immediately, but the rush of water might back up in the new tunnel to a point where it could flow into the Manhattan end of the two-tube Holland tunnel shaft which now joins New York and New Jersey.

The breakthrough occurred in the new shaft at a point approximately beneath 38th street and 12th avenue in Manhattan. This is near the Hudson river's edge but to the landward side.

BUILD EARTH DAM

Water was still pouring in at 10 a.m., and at that time had flooded about 200 feet of the facility toward the river. The fire was summoned to try to close off a steel door.

Other workers hastily began throwing up sandbags and piles of earth to build a dam to stem the flow.

The main tunnel of the $100,000,000 tube, scheduled for completion next year, was begun at the Jersey terminus of the Lincoln facility in Weehawken, N. J. This new line already reached nearly to Manhattan.

Meanwhile on the Manhattan side, another bore was started to link up with the Port. It was in this which sprang the leak.

The tube, when completed, will be 8,000 feet long. It was meant to relieve the heavy traffic between New York and New Jersey.

Police Hold 2 Men For Attacks On Hamilton Women

Picked up in Saint John; Sketches Led to Arrests

HAMILTON (CP) — Two men, both married and fathers, were charged today with rape in connection with recent attacks on four women.

Police said the men, Andrew Andrews, 32, of Halifax, and James J. Mathers, 19, formerly of Buffalo, now living in Hamilton, were charged after being traced in a lineup viewed by four victims.

They were picked up in Saint John, N.B., and escorted to Hamilton Tuesday night.

Police accused the two of being the men who dragged four women into cars, drove them to dark spots on the outskirts of the city, raped them and then dumped them out back in the city. All of the attacks were committed in December and January.

In each case the victim was dragged into a car as she walked along a street. In one the victim's husband was knocked unconscious as he tried to protect his wife.

Rewards totalling $3,000 were offered for the arrests by the Police Artists' sketches of the attackers led to the two arrests, police said. The sketches were based on information supplied by the victims and published throughout the city and published in newspapers.

Pearson Rapped For Article in U.S. Weekly

(OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson Tuesday night was criticized in the Commons for writing an article on foreign affairs in the weekly American magazine Look.

Dr. Owen C. Trainor (PC—Winnipeg South) said the article is a departure from diplomatic practice and an "offence against proprietety."

He said the article presumed to lecture the United States government on deficiencies in its foreign policy.

Mr. Pearson said in the article, which appeared earlier this week, that the West should recognize the fact that the Communists and not Chiang Kai-shek are in control of the Chinese mainland. The U.S. has been vehemently opposed to diplomatic recognition of Red China).

Changes Inside Russia Last Year Will Determine Events for 1956

"A significant change in Russian policy was the determining factor in all that happened in the international sphere in 1955 and will be the determining factor in what happens in 1956. The main explanation of the change in international affairs is a change inside the Soviet Union."

Wing Commander John Gellner, R.C.A.F. Czech lawyer born in Trieste, fled his country when it was overrun by the Nazis in 1939. Today he is an instructor at the R.C.A.F. Staff College, Armour Heights, Toronto. He made the above statements in an address to members of the Quinte District Foremen's Club at the YMCA Tuesday evening.

W/C Gellner was the principal speaker on the club's "Civic Night" program which included a tour of the Corby Distillery in the afternoon, a dinner for members of city council and a talk about, and demonstration of, high fidelity sound systems.

W/C Gellner, taking as his topic "Looking Ahead in 1956," briefly reviewed changes in international affairs in the Far East, the Middle East, Africa, Europe and the cold war between East and West.

He said NATO was weakened in 1955 because of developments involving Russia. The changes inscribed by him were: (1) French pro-occupation with North Africa and bungling of the political situation there; (2) a deterioration, but not much change in France-German relations even though, on the official level, both governments are trying to bury their differences, and (3) the latest political crisis in Britain where is growing popular support of non-democratic parties such as the Communists and Poujadists.

Other signs of western stalemate in Europe are the failure to rearm Germany and the Cyprus crisis, which is splitting apart Britain, Greece and Turkey.

RECOVERY SPECTACULAR

Good signs in Europe included the "spectacular economic recovery." W/C Gellner said that Western Europe has never been as good as they are now.

W/C Gellner explained its sovereignty pushing the Iron Curtain back 1,000 miles. Poland has regained their sovereignty, Tito made peace with the Kremlin and Russia is considering co-existence and agreed to the admission of 16 new members to the United Nations, 12 of them non-Communist. These are encouraging things,' Gellner said.

The speaker quoted Bishop Fulton J. Sheen on communism on a changed attitude within Russia.

"The Russian leaders are changing because of a desire for self-preservation," he said. He pointed out that of the original 17 Communist Party members, the highest Russian executive group, only one is known to have died a natural death in the five leaders of the secret police since 1917, four have been eliminated.

"The chances of survival at the highest level of Russian politics is 16-1 and at the highest political level of police activity, 4-1 against."

W/C Gellner said that the regime of absolute terror under Stalin was diminished after his death.

"Stalin was an Oriental dictator, a sort of modern Ghengis Khan. He believed it was better for people to fear him than to win their support by consent. I think the new leaders have decided to dismantle this regime of terror and try to get the support of the people."

"The leaders have to give the nation something to get the consent of the people," he said. "Two things they must do are to better the lot of the Russian peasant and to better living standards of their people with more consumer goods."

PEASANTS VICTIMIZED

He described the conversion of Russia from an agricultural country to "the second greatest industrial nation in the world today" as the "most tremendous change" and the complete victimization of the peasants.

"The government got the capital for industrialization by robbing the peasants blind," he said. "The condition of the peasant is still dismal. Returning prisoners say that the peasants even today envy the diet of prisoners."

"The demand for more consumer goods comes at a time when Russia must enlarge heavy industry for military purposes and at a time when Red China is making greater demands for help."

He said that Red China must industrialize and that the process of industrialization in China now is the same "victimization of the peasant" that Russia undertook in 1928 with collectivisation of farms.

"If anything, the lot of China is worse," said W/C Gellner, "because the Chinese have so many more people to feed and the land is improved and because they have less technology than Russia knew when the Russians had nearly 30 years ago."

Low productivity of the Russian worker was cited as one of the great problems facing Russia.

"The Russian worker works harder for less than the American worker but he produces 1/3 to 1/4 as much because he lacks the tools."

"One of the most perturbing aspects of Russia's industrial policy is the return to all-out Marxian Communism," said W/C Gellner. "Molotov was recently criticized in the controlled press for saying Russia is making progress in Asia towards socialism. The official position was that socialism has been achieved and the next step is the establishment of Communism."

"Russia's industrial plan based on one century," said W/C Gellner, "is a 'spectacular economic recovery.' W/C Gellner said that Western Europe has never been as good as they are now.

W/C Gellner explained its sovereignty pushing the Iron Curtain back 1,000 miles. Poland has regained their sovereignty, Tito made peace with the Kremlin and Russia is considering co-existence and agreed to the admission of 16 new members to the United Nations, 12 of them non-Communist. Contrast in Road Surfaces Cause of Many Accidents

In contrast to bare chemically treated provincial highways, slippery snow-covered rural roads are proving hazardous to unthinking motorists who suddenly find themselves in difficulty after leaving bare pavement to drive on snow-covered roads.

District provincial police during December found that this condition had been indirectly responsible for a number of accidents in the Belleville area. Cars were found finding themselves in the ditch or up against telephone poles when they applied brakes on slippery side-roads.

"It's the contrast between driving on bare highway and then proceeding onto snow covered rural roads," stated Sgt R. H. Devereux at the local police headquarters. "Motorists just don't seem to realize that they must drive with extra care on icy roads."

176 ACCIDENTS IN DEC.

In the Belleville provincial police district which takes in the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac, there was a total of 176 accidents during the month of December. Four of these were fatal accidents with five persons being killed. There were 59 persons injured.

The Belleville police district was tied for fifth place among the provincial police districts of the province in the number of fatalities.

But traffic officers continued their crackdown ordered earlier in the fall by Attorney General Kelso Roberts.

During December in the Belleville headquarters district there were 1468 vehicles checked made with 993 warnings given and 137 charges made.

284 SPEEDING CHARGES

A breakdown of the charges made shows that 284 motorists were charged with speeding and 141 were found to be operating their vehicles with defective equipment and were accordingly charged.

Twenty five truckers were charged for failing to have weight slips as required by their particular vehicles; ten drivers were found operating vehicles operating permits; two without chauffeurs' permits and five were found to be driving with their licences were under suspension.

One hundred and thirty motorists were charged with infractions of driving rules; 34 were charged with careless driving; three with drunk driving and six for driving while impaired. Another four were charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Eight four-truckers were charged with over-loading.

Some people's hobbies have an unexpected way of laying eggs and George K. Graham's hobby proved out on them.

George K. Graham's hobby lays no eggs as a matter of course — he breeds fantail pigeons. And the hobby laid very handsomely at one of the biggest bird shows in North America by its fans.

Last week Mr. Graham's Road home from the Boston Poultry Show last week are 35 fantail pigeons of Mr. Graham's which swept the board from nearly 200 entries in their own particular class.

Not only did they take the championship prize — plus all the specials — but also occupied every first place in the entries.

Following is a list of the wins: 1st single cock and hen; 1st yearling cock and hen; 1st and 2nd young cock and hen; 1st and 2nd black cock and hen; 1st young black cock; 1st and 2nd young black hen; 1st, 2nd and 3rd blue cock; 1st and 2nd blue hen; 1st silver cock; 1st, 2nd and 3rd silver hen; 1st young silver cock and hen; 1st and 2nd powdered cock; 1st, 2nd and 3rd young powdered-silver hen.

Also taking specials were: the best fantail in the show and the best young fantail in the show.

And out of an entry of about 2,000 pigeons, one of Mr. Graham's came through to win the grand prize as best pigeon of any variety.

The Boston Poultry Show is the largest of its kind in North America and is also a rendezvous for the American Fantail Club of which Mr. Graham also is president.

Leo Riggs, Prominent in Business And Musical Circles, Dies in Florida

Leo B. Riggs, well-known Belleville business man, died suddenly at his St. Petersburg, Florida, residence on Tuesday, January 24th. He was in his 71st year.

Ill a sling health for some time, Mr. Riggs suffered a heart seizure late Tuesday night, from which he failed to rally. With him were Mrs. Riggs and his daughter, Miss Anne Riggs.

The body will arrive in the city Thursday afternoon at the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home, Victoria Avenue and Church Street. Arrangements for the funeral, which will take place on Saturday afternoon, will be announced later.

The late Leo Riggs was a man of many qualities. Modest, unassuming, yet possessed of a personality that endeared him to all, he covered many brilliant characteristics beneath a cloak of reserve never before penetrated or approached.

He was a brilliant musician, the scion of a noted musical family. At one time during his early life in Belleville, William Bates Riggs and Mrs. Riggs, Mr. Riggs came to Canada as a young man when his father was called here to re-organize and build a new organization which was to be the Odd Fellows' Band, which, under the magic of Mr. Riggs' baton and organizing ability gained for itself the name of one of the finest in Eastern Canada. Leo Riggs and his brother, Lester, were members of the band.

From early boyhood, Mr. Riggs exhibited talent in becoming an outstanding pianist and musician. His remarkable artistry at the keyboard later took him to New York for study and further experience. His musical ability forged him to the front.

His genius for organization took him to the position of chief organist and director of music of the famed Astor Hotel, a position he held until his return to Belleville in 1924. Mr. Riggs presided at the console of the biggest pipe organ in the world. Many outstanding organists of the continent came to hear him play. He was a accompanist for Caruso, Melba and other Metropolitan opera stars.

Because to say, the mighty organ of the Astor Hotel was equipped with a Chimes of Normandy attachment. It has never been opened and played since.

GENERAL SUPERVISOR

While in New York, Mr. Riggs supervised the entire music program of the hotel. Organ recitals, orchestras and other features were under his management and supervision.

He played many recitals in other parts of the city. He was a favorite artist at one of New York's leading department stores. He was the first organist to give recitals at radio station WEAF, New York. Million Cross, famous radio and television announcer, worked with him. He made many phonograph recordings. His collection of musical scores, orchestrations is said to be a very valuable one.

Prior to going to New York Mr. Riggs went to Indianapolis to organize and direct the choir of the First Baptist church of that city. This choir is formed of professional vocal quartet of which Mrs. Riggs, the former Mabel DeGeer, was a member.

Then New York called and he left for greater triumphs. He remained there for 18 years before returning to Belleville.

Mr. Riggs gave up his lucrative position to return here because of the ill health of his father. He became associated with the Riggs Garage as it was known then, which was organized by his father in 1914, and from which he retired two years ago.

Mr. Riggs' musical genius was in great demand in Belleville. He was the organist at John Street Presbyterian Church until it burned in 1936. He was a member of the Rotary Club for many years, and was elected president. He was honored with the presidency of the Chamber of Commerce after organizing a three day celebration of the city's 100th birthday.

He was affiliated with Ameliasburg No. 283 A. F. & A. M. He maintained his membership in the American Musicians Union and was a member of the Belleville Twenty Second Club.

Many city organizations and clubs benefited by Mr. Riggs' brilliant piano ability. It was always a generous gesture. The Rotary and Kiwanis will never forget his ability.

Surviving are Mrs. Riggs, the former Mabel DeGeer of Uxbridge, daughter Miss Leona Riggs, at home, one sister Wanda Riggs, Belleville and a brother Dr. Lester Riggs, of the western states.

Mr. Riggs will be missed in many circles. He was one of the city's most esteemed citizens and his passing will be mourned by many not only of the city but the county.

Perhaps one of the finest tributes paid him was that of Mr. Harry Mosman, who was vice-president and general manager of the Riggs Garage for 30 years. "He was a fine man, a fine person I ever knew," was the simple statement.

Princess Sets New Style In Footwear

LONDON (AP)—A gasp went up from onlookers when Princess Margaret stepped from her car at a downtown theatre Tuesday night.

It looked very much as though the Queen's pretty young sister had come out in her stocking feet. But a second look disclosed she hadn't, quite. Her footwear consisted of a sandal sole, held on by a string of pearls.

Margaret also wore a royal blue velvet dress with ermine cape.

Guards' Band Attracts Hundreds Of Spectators

Today the city experienced what probably was the most colorful mid-week lunch break in a long time.

Cause of the occasion was the visit of a section of the 2nd Battalion of the Canadian Guards' Regiment, which paraded through city streets to give residents a glimpse of the martial pride, pomp and circumstance of the nation's army.

Hundreds of city workers paused on their way home to lunch to line main thoroughfares as spectators of a minor pageant set in gold and scarlet. Many more filled office windows and shop doorways to watch the parade pass with dignified and ultra-disciplined tread.

Everyone of all eyes was the battalion's 50-piece band, resplendent in their scarlet and gold tunics topped with huge bearskins.

Backed by the regiment's pipes and drums, the band struck up and marched out of the Armouries here at 11.45 a.m. Some three platoons of tall, husky young Guardsmen, representing the youngest Canadian regiment, formed the body of the parade.

Hangs Himself After Car Crash On Q.E. Highway

BRONTE (CP)—A young mechanic hanged himself Tuesday night minutes after his car crashed into a ditch.

Police said Walter Rudy, 28, ran 250 yards from the crash scene to a barn, looped a piece of wire around a pipe jutting from the barn and hanged himself.

Rudy, of Toronto, was driving west on the Queen Elizabeth way toward Hamilton, 20 miles from here, when his car swerved on to the boulevard, bowled over a lamp post and some trees and hit the ditch.

Sergeant Allie Jackson of the Ontario Provincial Police said:

"It appears the man was trying to commit suicide on the highway."

Blasting Cap Mangles Fingers Of Trenton Youth

TRENTON (Special) — Surgeon Dr. W. A. L. McDonald, assisted by Dr. E. W. Dow was able to save Harvey Ellis' two badly damaged fingers in an emergency operation at Trenton Memorial Hospital last night after the youth had his right hand shattered by an exploding blasting cap used to detonate dynamite. Ellis, 18, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ellis, 30 Leopold St.

Eric Perry, 16, told police his friend found the cap attached to a 15-inch fuse near his home on Leopold St. He said Ellis touched a match to the fuse and threw it on the road.

Apparently young Ellis figured the cap was not going to explode and picked it up. He held it for a few seconds, Perry said, and then it exploded. The accident happened at 7.45 p.m.

The young man's father stopped at the local police station on his way to the hospital to report his son lost two or three fingers. Today Mrs. Ellis reported doctors at the hospital had saved the fingers.

Local police are checking various contractors and hardware stores in an effort to find out how the blasting cap happened to be present on Leopold St.

Highland Inn In Park Will Be Dismantled

TORONTO (CP) — Highland Inn is to be torn down as part of a provincial government plan to pass Rouge Park from "back to nature."

The inn, once a major tourist showplace, has been bought by the Ontario lands and forests department. Price was not announced when the plan was announced Tuesday.

Located on a hill overlooking Cache lake in the southwest corner of the 1,754,000-acre park, 140 miles north of Toronto and 105 miles west of Ottawa, it was built by the Grand Trunk Railway about 1900 and at one time enjoyed a reputation as one of Canada's finest resorts.

Its destruction follows a provincial announcement that the wilderness park, established in 1930, will gradually be turned back to its natural state. In recent years the government has taken up many crown land leases as they ran out and bought others. At least 50 such holdings have been taken over in the last year, it is reported.

Lumber from the big white resort will be shipped to lands and forest depots in northern Ontario.

WHAT MAKES ART VALUABLE?

Why are the works of some painters worth fortunes?

Surely the monetary value set on certain artists' works is determined by the expression of the artists' genius. Paintings by artists now dead have their value enhanced because the supply of pictures is limited and existing painting cannot be duplicated by them. The number of bidders seeking such works and the prices which they are prepared to pay also determines what the painting will bring on the market.

Since the painter's genius, and the way in which it is expressed, is the principal determining factor in the value of any picture, there is almost no limit to the value of his work because there is no fixed standard of evaluating genius.

There are, of course, certain objective considerations in the evaluation of art which make it possible for art critics to tell good painting from bad. Art "experts" armed with experience and a variety of modern detection devices such as X-ray, are able to determine the authenticity of paintings. Their assurance of a work's authenticity is almost always a condition of sale of an important painting.

The prices which certain artists' works command are so great that there has always been an irresistible temptation to lesser artists to copy, or "create," old masterpieces without bothering to claim the credit for them.

The fanaticism displayed by such art forgers, and the skill which they have displayed, is such that their stories are often far more interesting than those of the artist whose works they copied or imitated.

Immediately after World War II, an almost unknown Dutch painter was brought to trial for forging Ver Meer. His admission of guilt was accompanied by a denunciation of art "experts," many of whom had examined his forgeries and certified them genuine. In fact, so sure were the experts that the forgeries were genuine that they did not believe the forger could paint the pictures. They preferred to believe that he had uncovered some previously "undiscovered" Ver Meer masterpieces. It was only after the forger obliged by painting in his presence that he did so that the experts were convinced they had been mistaken. The culprit's sentence was reduced when he explained that his secondary purpose in forging Ver Meer was to swindle the occupying German army by selling the pictures to Goering at fantastic sums and using part of the money to finance the Dutch underground.

The world's most famous stamp forger recently retired on a pension provided by the British philatelist society. Members felt that this remarkable Frenchman threatened the entire economic structure of the world's stamp collecting hobby. His forgeries were so clever and so perfect that they defied every known method of detection. The forger, in fact, boasted that his forgeries were works of art in themselves. He sold them at prices wholesale at moderate prices to stamp collectors around the world and seemed to derive his chief source of pleasure by collecting affidavits of authenticity for his forgeries from stamp experts in all parts of the countries.

The British philatelist society, despairing of detecting his work, paid the forger to retire and bought his forgeries and his promise to stop forging.

The hack who could conceive and execute an "original" Ver Meer, and "age" them artificially so that they avoided detection by ultra violet light and X-ray and the French stamp forger exhibited more than rare ability to copy. They displayed a true, creative genius, although its basic ingredient was parasitic.

Who is to say that such work is not art? Why is their work inferior, and therefore less valuable than the work of other artists? Half of the world's great masterpieces are merely interpretations or clever variations of the other half.

The value of a work of art is determined by the genius of the artist, but its continuing monetary value is obviously maintained by exclusive possession and a disinclination to recognize the ability of later technicians who are denied recognition because they were born out of due time.

ENTOMOLOGISTS WILL MEET

In Montreal next August 1,500 able men and women from more than thirty nations will gather to wage a campaign against some of mankind's most unrelenting foes, insects.

Insects, it is estimated, destroy at least a tenth of the world's total supply of food and fiber. The Tenth International Congress of Entomology, in sessions at McGill University and the University of Montreal, will review progress in controlling destructive pests in agriculture, forestry, manufactured food products and other fields. Leading world scientists will have the opportunity of personally exchanging ideas on common problems. The influence of this conference is expected to be reflected in greatly improved service in pest control in Canada.

Here in the Quinte district, with the new Entomological Laboratory erected on Dundas Street East in Belleville and with an experimental field station at Picton, this conference ought to be of more than passing interest.

MEETING

Two strangers meet and two lives become one;
Each change.
No longer either one is strange.
Henceforth, unto the journey's end,
Each may call the other: friend.

Both joy and grief they'll go to share,
Each other's burdens help to bear.
Both hopes, which had been closed before,
Will have a welcome at the door.

Science can tell us what occurs
When various stuffs a pestle stirs,
But human can write on chart or sheet
What may occur when two men meet.

There is no formula to trace
What in two minds is taking place
Or what the future years may hold.
Two lives can never be foretold.

The same old trouble with snow. Even as early as the year of 1836 "The civic authorities should either repeal the snow by-law or enforce it. Some good citizens keep their walks clear, but there are many others who ignore the regulation. Let us have some action in this matter which will produce some action on the part of those who neglect to clear their walks.

The horse attached to the Walker-Sons hardware store delivery wagon ran away in West Belleville yesterday and was soon caught. The only damage was to the horse which received several slight injuries.

The curling matches scheduled for district rinks today for the possession of the district trophy had to be postponed due to the soft ice. It is hoped that the weather will turn colder and that the ice will be in good condition by Thursday. Curling is a very popular sport with both local players and spectators.

Fire chief Kennedy in his annual report to the city council states that 89 fires occurred in the city during the year. He succeeded the late fire chief Campbell on Feb. 1st, 1915, and at the end of the year. He referred to the lamentable death of Captain William Campbell which resulted from injuries which he received at the Palace Theatre fire; the property lost in this fire was stated to be $13,500.

Capt. D. D. Wilson has been transferred from the dental corps to the Third Pioneer Battalion.

Capt. Kidd Was Framed

(By Gerard Knee in the Milwaukee Journal)

A new biography bids us be charitable to that unfortunate man who has been dead more than 250 years. His name: Capt. William Kidd. His rôle: He was not a hero but a fat, cruel pirate.

The biography, "The Fateful Voyage of Captain Kidd," declares that the captain was the victim of power politics and rigged charges. He never forced a man to walk the plank or marooned a crew member on a desert isle, the author contends. He was, in fact, a new boldier in New York's Tribal Council before he left on his famous last cruise. Kidd's defence is well documented by the biographer, Dunbar Maury Hinrichs.

Not much is known about Kidd up to his last six years of life. He probably was born around 1645, went to sea as a boy, worked himself through the ranks, captained and was known as a "gentlemanly and clever man" by his friends and neighbors in New York City. He had been given a ship of his own, but it was the great turning point of his life; from that time on he was a doomed man.

For the record time the Antigua was crossing the Atlantic a group of New York merchants laid a scheme to make money. They proposed to hire Kidd to the Indian seas on a pirate hunting expedition. The pirates would be caught—and the booty would be split. The merchants would reap the profits.

Kidd fell in the middle of this scheme. His reputation as a worthy man and an excellent captain served his undoing, according to Hinrichs.

He was given a 30-gun ship, Adventure Galley, and ship's commission as a private to wage war. The ship with a picked crew of 70, set sail late in February, 1696. But the skylarking crew made insulting gestures to a king's yacht and the crew was taken off the Adventure Galley for duty on a navy ship. Kidd received in exchange a scurvy crew of malcontents.

To complete the ship's company, Kidd stopped at New York, but set out again across the Atlantic in September, 1696. The log of Kidd's flagship—the Cape of Good Hope into the Indian Ocean makes dull reading for those who expect to buy him as a bloodthirsty pirate.

Months later, he got into a row with Captain Mitchell, agent of the East India Company, which started reports of his becoming a pirate. Still, after a year at sea, his only loot was a bag of pepper taken from a Moorish ship.

His crew became more and more surly. Their feelings rose to the point of mutiny when Kidd let a Dutch ship continue after examining the passports. The crew had been in favor of plundering the ves-

With his crew diminished considerably before, Kidd continued his pirate hunting voyage. He captured one French ship, but the instance of his desperation was the seizure of the Quedagh Merchant, also sailing under the French flag, bound for Madagascar, where he finally found a real pirate, Robert Culliford.

Instead of apprehending the villain, Kidd actually declared a kind of truce with Culliford. All but 13 of Kidd's crew deserted to Culliford in June, 1698, taking many of the stores from the Quedagh Merchant with his ship. Here, Kidd reached the West Indies in the spring of the following year, heard tell of Culliford and proof that Kidd was loyal to his employers despite his bad luck. By this time, however, he had been selected as the scapegoat for the whole British fiasco. New England desperately needed a man to hang as a gesture of good faith to the grand mogul of India, who had threatened to suspend the British trade charter if pirates were not wiped out.

The end was inevitable. Kidd was hanged at execution dock in London May 23, 1701. His corpse was suspended in chains as a moral to all would-be pirates. The East India Company and the grand mogul were mollified.

Letter To The Editor

Post Office Official Thanks Canadians

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

The supreme test of the year for the Postal Service of Canada comes at Christmas time, when the millions of cards and gifts which Canadians mail to their friends, their friends and relatives both here and abroad must be handled in the few short weeks before Christmas Day.

In meeting this test, the Postal Service, of course, makes very extensive temporary operations to cope with the flood of mail, but much year end success depends upon the public in mailing early so that the emergency operations built up can be made as effective as possible.

The co-operation extended by the public in this respect has been increasing from year to year, as evidenced by the steadily earlier arrivals its importance to a satisfactory service to the public is fully realized. It is a pleasure for me to be able to state that in the period just completed the co-operation was in evidence to an extent never equalled before.

Postal workers have a special reason to be thankful for this year in this case, because as you are no doubt aware weather conditions were very difficult in many parts of Canada just before Christmas, but in spite of this it was possible to make most deliveries on time. The unprecedented volume of mail the co-operation received from the public, most post offices were back on everything but overtime work, and in many cases, two days before Christmas, which is very satisfactory result.

On behalf of the Postal Service of Canada, therefore, I wish to thank the public for the assistance so considerately given through a very difficult period, and also for the co-operation on their part they played in making their readers aware of the need for co-operation in mailing early.

Joyful on $900 a Year?

(London Free Press)

Dr. John McNab, editor of the Presbyterian Record, writing editorially under the heading "Sweatshops in the Sanctuary," says the typical salary for church workers in the United States and Canada is $900 a year. Some organists are choir directors as well. Many of them have additional salary increase.

Dr. McNab would noise unto God, all ye lands; sing forth the honor of His name; make His praise glorious. Also, the labourer must be hard for an organist with a salary of $900 a year. Which sort of joyful noise that David indicated as part of the service of God?

Brush, You Brush Like Mad

A slogan invented by a master huckster of the nineteenth century has probably sold more goods — trick bunnies and glorified soap — and persuaded more people they could get along without services of the services of dentists — than any other one factor. You know the slogan: "Ninety-nine dentists doesn't sing it any more, but its chances are he manages to imply that if you don't you're a dirty bird. I achieved this distinction among the cunning men of the profession many years ago when I announced that I intended to work no more time or money on brushes or dentifrices.

The slogan was so silly that intelligent dentists today would like to forget it. A clever idea never decays.

I'm afraid I haven't saved anything except my teeth by doing without these affectations. However, I am glad to say that my teeth were never in better condition. So my readers owe me thanks, of course, to the services of my dentist.

These services comprise four essentials which inspire my admiration (by the dentist):

(1) Rigid surgical cleanliness.
(2) Gentleness.
(3) Painlessness, through the use of local anesthetics.
(4) Skill in repairing and installing fillings, inlays or dentures.

One anticipates a visit to such a dentist without anxiety.

We Americans are probably the toothbrushingest people in the world. The people of Tristan da Cunha have, or had prior to eight years ago, as little use of toothbrushes and dentifrices as any other group of people in the world. We Americans have the poorest teeth in the civilized world, with the possible exception of the British people. The people of Tristan da Cunha have, or had prior to 1948 the finest teeth in the world. The finest from decay.

It was in 1948-49 that Cape-town-London company began to build a plant on Tristan for canning the choicest crayfish that abound in the waters of the area, and the project made a "move" necessary. I refer to visited the Lonely Isle in the winter of 1950. The natives proudly informed us they could buy white flour, white sugar, candy and other "refined" food at the company store, and we knew that meant the beginning of the end of the good nutrition and the good teeth of the people of the lonely island.

This is the inevitable consequence of bringing the blessings of civilization to peoples leading natural lives, as Price has demonstrated in his Nutrition and Physical Degeneration — a book hard to find, even so-called public libraries, for the cheat-food interests feel that what you don't know won't hurt their business.

Agrees With J. N. Yanover

(Brockville Recorder and Times.)

Fears were expressed on many sides that the television set was going to revolutionize our entertainment habits to an undesirable way. For some months in the Fifthestown area, we have expressed the view that such fears were groundless. Other opinions have been voiced.

One Mr. J. N. Yanover, secretary-manager of the Ontario Hotel Association, has expressed the view that television will be on its way out. Strike, beverage rooms and bars (bars are forbidden in Ontario hotels, but rooms are permitted to have). Mr. Yanover feels that when the novelty wears off and good programs people are losing interest in television watching set at the end in itself.

Mr. Yanover is right. Television, like novelty and novelties can be totally distracting—for a time. But there's another side to light and normal pattern in the scheme of things. People work at movies movies six nights a week are rare. Soon people who watch television steadily will be just fed.

Exercise Advocated

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Recent investigation into the incidence of heart diseases have demonstrated that a natural fatty deposition occurs in cholesterol forms around the heart, and that according to the amount of cholesterol, an individual is prone to develop heart trouble. Cholesterol is found in many foods, including the principal dairy products, and cholesterol laboratory tests indicate that one can damage the blood vessels, brain and heart.

Studies made at the University of Minnesota tend to show that cholesterol levels were lowest when exercise and fasting conditions at the time of waking than they were when measured in the afternoon, after a few hours after breakfast. But observed difference disappeared when the tests were made a few hours after breakfast in active persons. It appears that the early active person is less likely to suffer coronary trouble than an inactive person.

There are multitudes of people who have inactive jobs and if they have to sit at a desk or bench all day they can't. It appears to be wise to take some form of exercise after breakfast. Maybe they'll just do their daily dozen, or run or jog to the bus or train, or walk to their place of business.

LIVING FAITH

We have often remarked in this column that science is able to do everything but create, and life is created by God.

This illusive thing no one understands. No one can create it; science stands helpless when confronted by it.

And as there is a difference between a corpse and a live body, so there is a difference between a nominal church member and a living faith. Many people have faith which consists in assent to doctrines, regular attendance at church, and the keeping of most of the decencies and decorums of civilized conduct. All this is good, but it very decidedly does not make a Christian.

Living faith is as different from this as a healthy body is different from a corpse. Living faith means union with life in God, and life is something which only God can give. Living faith means coming to God, and follows most of the religious practices; but it does something more. Jesus described it by saying that it was in one's heart "a well of water springing up into eternal life." It is also a divine leaven which leavens the whole lump.

You can tell the people who have living faith from those who have nominal faith. Those who have living faith use their faith to live by. It is what pervades their lives—it is their lives. Living.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my friends never goes to the bathroom at home without first taking the telephone receiver off the hook.

"I have found," he says, "over a long lifetime, that I never get comfortably established in that department of my daily life without the telephone ringing. After all, if I am busy, why shouldn't my telephone indicate the fact?"

He also removes the receiver from the hook when he is shaving, or when he goes upstairs either to gloat over his collection of carpenter's tools, or up to his attic to fondle his fishing tackle and camping equipment.

"I realize," he says, "a little late in life, that I have been far too subservient to the telephone. Why should I jump like a hickey every time that thing rings? A great deal more than half the time, I couldn't have mattered less if I hadn't answered it at all. A fairly large percentage of the calls, over the calls, over the years, have been sheer impertinence: somebody using this highly personal approach to me to try to sell me something. Imagine that! Here is an instrument that allows anybody, everybody, to invade privacy. A bell rings. I jump to my feet, quitting whatever I am doing, however important. And what do I get for my obedience to that bell? Some woman wanting to know if I am satisfied with my present laundry?

"Do we realize the full impertinence of the telephone? I am told there are many businesses that employ whole battalions of girls or men at telephones who do nothing all day long but ring people up to try to sell them something. Merely ring a bell, and the prospective customer jumps like mad. My father used to keep a dog, a large Airedale, for the purpose of preventing vagrant salesmen from coming and ringing his doorbell. But what defence have I against it? Every Tom, Dick and Harry, not to mention every Lil, Liz and Harriet, who wants to peddle something not at my door, but on the other end of the telephone?

"You can see that my friend is a fine old fogy. I suggested that he might avoid some of the telephone company to have a private number.

"No," he said, uneasily. "One of my friends did that. And one day he got so fierce sic fire to his cellar. The neighbors tried to phone him when they saw the smoke. So the fire department arrived on him without warning. Now every time I leave the room for any length of time, I have to keep peeping anxiously out the window for signs of smoke or going to the head of the stairs to sniff."

Nothing is without its infelicity.

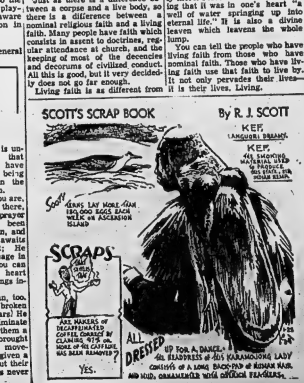
TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

USE GOD!

You may recall that inspiring little book written by Mary Pickford many years ago entitled "Why I Am a Christian." In it she who have ever tried God in their daily life, talked with Him and prayed to Him as a Friend and Supreme Consultant, have not only been helped in what they have done but they have earned genuine happiness as a high reward.

God is in all, and is all. It's His world, for it is filled and run by the creatures of His love and mercy. God is especially near, and ever ready to help those who in their disappointments come to us. Then the fragrance of His love comes to us, turn to Him—and He never fails to smooth things well for us. The greatest as well as the humblest of this earth turn to Him, and have learned to Him thoughout the ages.



Washington, Lincoln, Lee, Foch, Eisenhower, and all the great men of the world have turned to God in prayer that they might perform their daily tasks and the graver tasks of responsibilities. Blessed is that nation that looks to God. It is unconquerable! Those nations that have forgotten God, or have gone down to defeat, many being obliterated as contestants in the world arena of civilization.

Use God. No matter who you are, or where you may be, He is there, ready for your appeal in prayer and faith. God's power and love are unlimited, and again and again, and He is Father of us all: He awaits the appeal of the humblest. He listens to the simplest language in prayer; He reaches out His hand to turn the doors to your heart and He will bring His blessings into your life.

God is the Great Physician, too. He cures the minds and broken bodies. He wipes out scars! He uses people's prayers to eliminate their bodily ills and to give them a spiritual existence. He has brought to many through the Unseen Elements, like the A.A. He has given a new birth to millions who would have died. Use God. He's never too busy!

PICTON

Agriculture Minister Paints Rosy Picture for Years Ahead

PICTON.—Painting a rosy picture for Ontario in the years which he ahead, Hon. Finlay S. Thomas, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, challenged farmers not to look to governments for help but to run their own business which he said they can run better than any government.

The minister, speaking at Quinte Cheesemakers' banquet in the parish hall, Monday night, saw a population in Ontario of five or six millions in the next five or six years. "We are on the fringes of great things which lie ahead," he said, referring to the great progress made. Those who lived through the thirties must change their views in regards to a depression. They must display vision, courage and content, the thinking in terms of 1956 with a long viewpoint. All that has been achieved was not secured by governments but by rugged individuals with courage, ... thrift and foresight. These qualities are needed today.

In spite of boom times in most industries, agriculture is in the doldrums to some extent, the minister admitted. Agriculture wants legislation which will enable it to do for itself what other groups are doing for themselves

"When 40 per cent of the people are allied in some way to agriculture, the other 60 per cent cannot let the 40 per cent be at the bottom of the barrel.

"Rousing at provincial level is not sound. Bonuses are a federal responsibility with the provinces willing to co-operate. Any bonuses should be at a federal level.

REFERS TO HEARING

The minister referred to the impending hearing to test the validity of marketing legislation. "When this is known the legislative will call a special session and the province will appeal to the federal government to implement, along with the provinces, a bill of rights and suitable marketing programs," he said.

Thirteen years ago, the Ontario budget totalled 100 millions; today it is 600 millions. The largest item is education, costing 102 millions, and increasing by ten millions a year as the province grows. For the next ten years, the province will have to provide for seven to eight million new pupils.

"There is no local surplus except in wheat, and a temporary problem with potatoes. Other countries need our products and a marketing system must be found.

Mr. Thomas urged all dairy groups to co-ordinate their efforts and, fell sale of dairy products could be increased 25 percent. The necessity of a balanced economy was stressed by the speaker who pointed out that the finer things of life must not be forgotten in the race for the dollar.

SPEAKER INTRODUCED

Introduced by Norris Whitney, MPP, Mr. Thomas was thanked by C. E. Lackner, director of Dairying for Ontario. Chief dairy instructor J. M. Bain presided as chairman.

Other features of the program were a welcome to the town by Mayor H. J. McFarland who thought guaranteed prices would enable farmers to produce with confidence and profit; a county greeting by Warden Clifford Wilson who commended the Quinte Cheesemakers on their efforts; presentation of gifts from the makers to ju^ges C. E. Lackner and J. M. Bain, by Nelson Sarles; presentation of flowers for Mrs. McFarland and Mrs. Lackner by D. Harvey and T. Three Rescued After Spending Night in Plane

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Three men who spent a night in their damaged plane on lonely Michipicoten Island were rescued Tuesday by two commercial aircraft.

Planes owned by Airdale Flying Service picked up the men and flew them the 100 miles southeast to Sault Ste. Marie. They were in good shape.

Aboard the Northern Airways Cessna when it snar^ed its landing gear in landing on rough ice Monday were pilot Keith Mezenger of Sault Ste. Marie, John Pervovich, a Wawa hotel owner, and Joseph Lesser of Sudbury, a northern Ontario liquor salesman.

Messenger was flying supplies to trappers when the Cessna was crippled. The men found shelter and warmth in the bush despite the 15-below-zero weather.

Accused Objects To Testimony Of His Foreman

KENORA (CP) — A railway worker charged with resisting arrest by shooting at police fro mhis log cabin Jan. 6 ripped his shirt and had to be restrained in the prisoner's dock Tuesday when he objected to testimony at his preliminary hearing.

Mike Timocenko, 38, of Nidddrie, Ont., made the outburst while his foreman testified about events preceding his arrest.

Later Timocenko was committed for trial on resisting charge and another of shooting with intent to wound Anthony Sydor of Oakburn, Man., his brother-in-law.

He was remanded one week on charges of pointing a rifle at section foreman Joe Krevac and carrying a rifle dangerous to the public peace.

Timocenko elected trial by judge and jury.

Timocenko was arrested as he fled his cabin under cover of darkness after holding off police with threats and intermittent rifle fire for 30 hours. Police did not return the fire for fear of injuring Timocenko's pregnant wife.

Shooting of 15 Dogs on Street Is Protested

BLIND RIVER (CP)—Residents of this northern Ontario mining town have protested to police the shooting on the street of 15 or more dogs during the weekend.

Town council last week authorized police to enforce a by-law which prohibits dogs from running at large, because of a rabies outbreak.

Owners of the slain dogs said the animals were shot with .30-30 rifles and chief constable Leo Trudeau reported that he did not subscribe his two-man police force to shoot dogs in this manar.

Inspector C. P. Chabot of Sudbury division, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said the shootings violated a section of the Criminal Code which forbids causing unnecessary cruelty to animals.

Inspector Chabot said the dogs should not have been shot on the street but kept in a pound for 36 hours. It it was necessary to shoot them it should have been done with a pistol bullet through the head.

Residents said some of the bodies were left in ditches until Monday

Bringing Up Baby

MARY CHARLES OF "Mrs. Dionne Quintuplets" ON 5

With a brand-new baby in the house, mothers frequently tire themselves by trying to do more than their share of baby-care, housework and husband-care. If you're a mother who's trying to cram 48 hours into 24, you may find these hints helpful!

- Tend to baby's needs first. Add household chores slowly.
- Let things that can wait, wait!
- After you finish one chore, relax before you start another.

Barly addition to baby's bill of fares! Barley, to help your baby's gums and body tissues in good condition, Gerber Strained Orange Juice, specially processed for tiny ones, has a uniformly high Vitamin-C content the year around. Made from tree-ripened oranges, selected for mild, natural flavor and appealing color. Careful pasteurization insures purity. Careful straining makes it easy to feed from spoon, bottle or cup.

Nipple note! Nipples will last longer if you turn nipples inside out and nail-cleanse thoroughly. Butter fat deteriorates rubber.

Bottle bit. If nursing bottles get cloudy, a tablespoon of vinegar in the rinse water will re-sparkle 'em.

Spoon-fed foods in sight for baby? In all likelihood, cereal will be suggested first. Gerber's 5 Cereals should fill the bill beautifully...Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, Wheat and Mixed Cereal for easy introduction of variety. Flavors are distinctive but bland enough to suit baby's unsophisticated palate. Texture is creamy-smooth. All are enriched with iron, calcium and B vitamins. Weddings

BURRIS—STRICKLAND

MADOC JUNCTION — St. Monnica Anglican church, Belle- ville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, January 21, at 3:30 p.m. when Mrs. Alfred Strickland, of Peterborough, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Fitchett, of Stirling, was united in marriage to Ross Burris of Hillier, son of Mr. Harry Bur- ris and the late Mrs. Burris. The Rev. Canon A. E. Woodcock, rec- tor of the church, officiated.

Mr. R. H. Ball, Mus. Bac. (ACCO), organist of St. Mary's church, provided the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her elder son, Mr. Roy W. Strickland, the bride wore a gown of delphinium blue, silm draped, worstrella, with matching hat to match, and accessories, corsage of white gar- denias and carried a white prayer book.

She was attended by her niece, Mrs. Maurice Clifford Holloway, attired in a gown of blue, princess style, crystalette, red velvet hat, navy accessories and corsage of red carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by his elder son, Mr. Elwood Burris, and the ushers were, Mr. Donald Strickland and Mr. Graeme Burris, sons of the bride and bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a re- ception with the immediate famil- ies, was held at the residence of A. S. McConnell received wear- ing a rose wool dress to match and corsage of pink carnations.

Four nieces of the bride and bridegroom, Mrs. Gilbert Pinkle of Stirling; Mrs. B. Southorn of Trenton; Miss Marilyn Fitchett of West Huntingdon, and Mrs. Earl Goodmurphy of Carrying Place, served.

A toast to the bride was pro- posed by the Rev. Frank A. S. McConnell, with the bridegroom responding.

A toast to the bride's attendant was proposed by Mr. Roy W. Strickland with Mr. Elwood Bur- ris replying.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Burris left on a motor trip to the United States. On their return they will reside on the bridegroom's farm at Hillier.

Guests were present from To- ronto, Kingston, Hillier, Hamil- ton, Consecon, Trenton, Stirling, Holloway, Carrying Place, West Huntingdon, Belleville and South Dayton, N.Y.

C. P. Matthews Addresses St. Joseph's PTA

The January meeting of St. Joseph's Parent- ociation was held in the school auditorium with the president pre- sid Rev. J. J. Buckley op ning. Mr. Ford gave ficial standing.

Reta ey won the proud winner o silverware on which tickets had been sold during fall meetings. The Rev. Sister Mary Helen Rita's class won the at- tendance record.

Father Buckley introduced the guest speaker, Mr. C. P. Matthews, Separate School inspector, who with 25 years' experience gave a most interesting and beneficial explanation of school laws. Mr. Matthews emphasized the fact of the school being an extension of the home and the necessity of co- operation at all times. The exact program of studies is set by the Department of Education for all schools, both Separate and Pub- lic schools.

The distractions of the home during television viewing time was most interesting, being really per- sonal experiences in many cases from which all parents could pro- fit. Also emphasized was the fact that all parental decisions should be made in the interest of the child, not merely their own enjoyment, and children should ac- cept those judgments since they are the outcome of adult dis- crimination.

Mrs. Hanley voiced the appre- ciation of the members and pre- sented the speaker with a book as a token of appreciation from St. Joseph's P.T.A.

The mothers of Grades 5 and 6, under the direction of Mrs. Emer- son served refreshments.

DAUGHTER OF EARL ALEXANDRA WEDS

Major social event in London was the marriage of Lady Rose Alexander, daughter of the former governor-general of Canada, to Capt. Crossman, member of the Royal Artillery. Lady Rose also attended school in Ottawa and McGill University, Montreal. The marriage was performed in Windsor Castle by special permission of the Queen. (Central Press Canadian).

Liquor Factor in 40 Per Cent Of Traffic Accidents Says W.H.O.

The January meeting of the WCTU was held in the board room of the YMCA on Friday, with a fair attendance.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Farnsworth, who spoke briefly on "The Gift of a New Year," from whose threshold the past year's work can be view- ed with its failures and mistakes and also its successes.

Some years ago, Mrs. Yeomans born in Prince Edward County, on January 3rd, organized the first WCTU in Ontario, and 70 years ago, January 3rd was set aside as a day of prayer in On- tario.

Mrs. Grant Coulter took charge of the "Devotional" and emphasiz- ed the wonderful power of "Pray- er" and asked all to study John 15. She then dwelt on the differ- ent parts of the "devout prayer— adoration; thanksgiving; confes- sion; forgiveness; intercession and guidance to do God's will and further His kingdom on earth.

As this is National Health week the president spoke briefly on "The Health League of Can- ada", which was organized in 1919 for the prevention of disease and the promotion of good health by means of public enlightenment.

The World Health organization rates alcoholism as the fourth in seriousness in present day diseases.

In Canada, under a recent survey by Alcoholism Research Foundation, there are 350,000 al- coholics in Canada. The propor- tion of T.B. patients in Canada is one out of 250 citizens; the pro- portion of alcoholics is one out of 60. This is really a serious prob- lem. The alcoholic is a sick per- son and his illness belongs to the entire public at the expense of caring for the alcoholic presents a great national economic burden which is carried by increased taxation.

Dr. Nathan Adler, social work- er in San Quentin State Prison says, "alcoholism is the greatest single public health problem that is not receiving systematic con- sideration." Prevention and treatment are the edges of the same sword to cut down on the fight, for a happy healthy world."

"The World Health Organization made a study of highway deaths covering 15 countries and these records show Canada has the least enviable record in the world for traffic mishaps.

LIQUOR FACTOR IN ACCIDENT FACTOR

"In 1954 there were 2,588 persons killed by traffic accidents in Canada and 58,735 injured. Liquor is a factor in 40 per cent of all Canadian highway accidents. Investigators have found that as little alcohol as is found in pint of beer will slow down reac- tion time by six to ten per cent. So remember "if you drink, don't drive, or if you drive don't drink."

Business followed with the treasurer's report showing a bal- ance of $11.83 on hand.

Mrs. Kells presented "The Na- tional Temperance Course" avail- able to the children in the schools. The course as outlined was both interesting and instruc- tive, showing the need for re- quiring accuracy and skill the al- coholic is definitely barred.

Going shopping?

Everyone was expecting the price of imported fruits and vege- tables to go up after reading about the cold weather and frosts down south where those fruits and vege- tables are grown. However, if there has been any increase, it has not been enough to notice. The sup- plies of these commodities seem very plentiful and present an as- tounding array of color on the shelves.

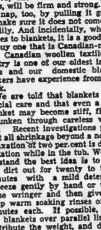
Beef and pork continue to be sold at very attractive prices, and the small chickens, either whole or cut up, are a good buy for either frying or roasting. Bacon, especial- ly the peameal type, also remains at a reasonable price. Eggs are probably the best bargain in the food line right now and nobody needs to be told that they are tops in nutrition.

A few columns ago, we stressed the bargains to be had at this time in blankets. Have you ever won- dered why wool blankets are so much warmer than the old-fash- ioned quilts? It is because the tiny air spaces between the wool fi- bres act as an insulator to keep in the heat and to keep out the cold. For this reason, when you are considering buying a blanket, the ways look for springy elastic fibres which will stay brushed up and not become easily matted. Hold any prospective purchase up to the light and make sure the basic weave is close and even. A twill weave, one which has diagonal lines, will be firm and strong. Test the nap, too, by pulling it gently to make sure it does not come out readily. And incidentally, when it comes to blankets, it is a good idea to buy one that is Canadian-made. The Canadian woollen textile in- dustry is one of our oldest indus- tries and our domestic blanket makers have experience behind them back.

We are told that blankets need special care and that even a good blanket may become stiff, hard and shrunken through careless wash- ing. Recent investigations prove that all mishaps beyond a normal relaxation of two per cent is due to agitation while in the wash. We un- derstand the best idea is to soak the dirt out for twenty to thirty minutes in a mild detergent, squeeze gently by hand or use a loose wringer and then give two deep warm soaking rinses of five minutes each. If possible, hang the blankets over parallel lines to distribute the weight, and do not use clothes pegs. Finally, when the blankets are dry, brush with a good stiff brush before you put them back in general use.

Can you consider yourself a good shopper or do you shop by chance? We were given some advice by the Canadian Association of Consum- ers and here it is. The good shop- per knows that she has to take time and not rush into a purchase in order to save a few minutes. Also he expect bargains or does not only shop for price but for quality. But with so much competition in merchandise these days, how is a shopper to know about values? The answer is - take time to ask ques- tions. Don't be afraid to make sure you are getting good value for your money. Examine labels and ask about unfamiliar terms. Don't accept a sales talk at face value, hunt up the same merchandises at another store and see what they have to say. By the time you get to the third store, you will be an even better buyer.

If you are going to buy a gar- ment, for instance, examine it for the construction. Compare the but- tonholes with the workmanship of another make, and so on at other points of strain in the make of the garment. It pays to take time to think. So - good shopping!



The Belleville General Hospital is making a name for itself all along the line. The hospital picture appearing in the Women's Hospital Auxiliary and the Board of Man- agement is the first of its kind made in a hospital in Canada and has been greeted with enthusias- tic applause. We understand the hospital has been approached about doing the film on Kingston TV. The Shadow Program which the auxiliary is in the midst of con- ducting, is the first of its kind in Canada. It consists of a plan whereby certain members of the auxiliary observe or "shadow" a particular department of the hos- pital for a period of an hour in their observations to the auxiliary. These have proved extremely interesting and have been taped for present- ation on CJSQ.

The Kingston and District Uni- versity Women's Club, the mem- bership of which has increased greatly over the past few years, has been honored by having their vice-dean past president, Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon, appointed provin- cial director for Ontario East in the work of the Canadian Federa- tion of University Women. Con- gratulations!

HOW TO KEEP YOUR COIFFURE LOOKING ITS BEST

Hair is more easily manageable with the use of a good hair spray.

There's one advantage that movie stars have over the rest of us "ordinary folks". And that's the luxury of having their hair dressed by experts every day. Not only that, but most of them have a hairdresser standing by practically all of the time so that even one lock, stirred by a vagrant breeze, can be put immediately back into place.

But for most women there are set limits on the time and money for this infinitely soothing and pleasing ritual. It is a problem, therefore, who does not take advantage of modern-day information, lavishly and freely dispensed by the salons and manufacturers of grooming aids, to learn a few worthwhile tricks about keeping her pretty head looking its best.

But today's let's talk about hair sprays. A good hair spray may be used either as a setting aid or, after the setting, to keep the hair in shape. For setting, simply dampen the hair, spray on the fine mist, and put up the hair on your own particular brand of pincurls.

If you indulge in winter swimming at a pool or at the tropical resort, here's a suggestion: Spray the damp ends of your hair with the liquid, then roll up in pincurl. In a few minutes—guided by the time you've finished dressing—your hair ends will be dry and pretty, and you will be ready for your evening date.

Or, after the hair has been set to perfection, use the spray over the finished arrangement to keep it perfectly beautiful. The spray acts as an invisible hairnet and should keep your hair in place, come rain, come snow, come balmy breezes.

Nowadays the best hair sprays you do not contain "lacquers". They contain lubricants and act as a coating to protect the hair against "weather". They are also highly successful with bleached or dyed hair; do not affect the color or change it in any way. They impart sheen and brightness and add body to unmanageable fine hair. By the way, they're fine for children, too.

RIGHT LINES

By VERA WINSTON

Lingerie has shared in the general fashion change. The slim lines demands a minimum of under garments, yet the figure must be slim and trim so that control is usually necessary. The bra top slip is one answer and now appears in a strapless version which should be welcome for wear with low or wide necked dress tops. The bra part is of Alencon lace while the back portion is elasticized. Front is boned. There is a pleated ruffle with lace insertion border at top. White or pink.

GRACEFUL WAY TO THANK FOR MONEY GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Bob and I are to be married soon, and since our plans about housekeeping must necessarily be uncertain because of his military service, quite a few of our relatives and close friends have, given us, or are planning to give us, money or checks as wedding presents. When I write my thank-you notes for these gifts, I don't mention that they are "money" and should I mention the amount? — Bettie

It's more graceful not to mention "money gift," and certainly not to mention the amount. You might write something like this: "You and Ken were so kind and thoughtful to Bob and me, and we thank you deeply for your lovely plan and for your very generous gift to us. When we know about when and where we are to live and have a home of our own, we are going to have such a happy time buying something that will lovingly remind us of you two dear friends and your goodness to us."

TO BE MARRIED HERE . . .
CONTINUE EDUCATION ABROAD

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Last week my daughter's boy friend said to my husband that he would like to discuss something with both of us privately. Later, after our guests had left, I arranged for my husband to talk to me in the presence of our daughter that he might have her permission to become engaged and that they would like to plan to be married in the fall. He is a fine young man very much, but weren't ecstatic over this plan because our daughter's age (only 18, but really very mature for her age). He is a freshman at a University, and both expect to continue further education abroad. As a matter of fact, he has the opportunity to further his education abroad, they would like to be separated for two years, and they feel that very soon after school at the same time. It is their wish that the engagement be kept a secret until they announce it officially. How should we have acted at the time of their talk with us? And what procedure do we follow now? And what do you think about the whole idea? — Mr. and Mrs. D.

Of course it wouldn't be possible for a stranger to give you circumstances to pass judgment on this plan . . . but I can say that today this idea for education-abroad for two young people who wish to marry . . . and study abroad is popular. If the man has the opportunity to study abroad and obtain the plan. I am sure you and your husband talked over with them, or will talk over with them, all the details that have to do with such a tremendously important step . . . particularly your daughter's age, since this seems to be an important part of your acceptance of the young man's plan. Also you write me nothing about the financial arrangements that must be made . . . and of course it is extremely important that you and your husband know precisely about these arrangements . . . strongly urge you and your husband to have a very clear idea of how you may regret it if you aren't.

What procedure to follow now? There must be some kind of getting-together of the two families . . . his family should make the first social move, by call to welcome your daughter into the family, or by telephone or letter. If this isn't forthcoming, don't wait on ceremony, but bring this about, so that the two families may help the young people plan their future. A couple don't wish to have the engagement announced until later, everyone should respect that decrecy. But you and your husband "are" . . . are the ones who "officially" announce the engagement.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THINK A LONG TIME BEFORE YOU MARRY AT 16

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Is it so wrong for a girl of 15 to be thinking of marriage?

My boy friend, who is 23, and I would like to be married in May, when I will be 16. He owns a business and is doing well. He is sensible, kind, understanding and considerate. My parents like him and I get along fine with his parents.

I realize I am young, but people have been married at 16 and made a go of it. I am not in love with his looks, as I don't consider him good-looking. I say this, because I know most girls of my age are out to get good-looking guys and their character doesn't seem to matter.

I realize the responsibility of married life, of getting up in the morning, cooking, keeping house and raising children, but that is what married life is all about and my friend owns than anything else, and I want to keep house and raise our children. It won't be a life of peaches and cream, and I don't expect it to be, but I am sure I am ready to meet any hard times that may arise.

Please give me your opinion. — D. L.

Dear L.S.:

Of course it's not wrong for a girl your age to think about marriage. The earlier she starts to think about marriage, the surer she is, if she is the right kind of girl, to develop the realization of what marriage means, and the wish to adjust herself to it.

Some young people develop this kind of realization and wisdom earlier than others, and when they do, they may be able to marry younger than those who develop more slowly, and make a success of the marriage. This is exceptionally the case, as a general rule, it is better for the average young person to live the normal teenage life and leave marriage until at least the early twenties.

If it is possible, of course, that you are one teenager who has developed early, and that it is possible that you might marry the young man and "live happily ever after." But don't forget that if you marry at 16, you will do yourself out of at least a couple of years of education that would be of value to you in later life, and also out of many carefree good times which you cannot have after you assume the responsibilities of marriage.

Naturally, I don't mean to imply that you won't have good times after marriage. But often, when young people marry in their teens, they become tied, or insisted, later on, because they missed much in life that they would have had if they had been content to wait.

Mother's Helper

WHEN you make these Banlon sleepers for your nappers, be sure to stitch them with a pair of two of extra feet while you're at it! Soles and toes always seem to give out first, and it's simpler to add new feet than to darn and patch.

© 1956, New York Herald Tribune Inc.

So, altogether, you have a lot to think about before you make a final decision to marry at 16.

I think, too, that you and this young man should talk everything over very carefully with both his parents and yours, and give full consideration to any advice they may offer you. I am sure they can be of much help to you if you will let them. While you may feel, as other young people frequently do, that older people do not understand your problems and your feelings, and that they are unwilling to concede that you are as mature as you think yourselves, you must remember that, after all, they have had the experiences of marriage and parenthood, so presumably they know a little more than you do just what it is all about and they may have really valuable suggestions to give you.

Dottie's People Are Funny

By Mary Moore

My cousin Dottie from California is visiting me and is full of yarns from her travels here and abroad.

I can hardly drag myself away from her to get to this desk because she is a one-woman show all the time.

She was telling me that once when driving from California to Florida for the winter (a true Californian wouldn't know why anybody would go to Florida, but she's a Canadian Californian) when they crossed the border into Arizona they were stopped by state troopers and asked, "have you any plants or fruit?" Dottie had to sacrifice some lovely oranges to them because of tiny brown marks on the skin. During this skirmish there was a heavy woman sitting on a bench in the station eating cherries so fast as her hands and mouth could move. Finally after choking on a stone she got her breath long enough to tell Dot she was doggoned if troopers were going to confiscate her cherries and then feast on them all afternoon! They were here and she was going to keep them—in or out!

Another tall tale she tells is about a posh dinner they were invited to in New York. The lights were very low and when dessert arrived she tried to cut what looked like a fruit tart with her fork. She didn't want to appear ignorant but when the pastry seemed tough to eat she bowed her head and managed to sever it at last only to find that it was a finger bowl filled with lukewarm water!

Dottie's people are funny and I'm glad I'm not the top Dottie's I'd love to hear them.

Congregational Meeting

VICTORIA AVENUE BAPTIST

On January 18, 225 members and adherents of Victoria Avenue Baptist church, enjoyed a delicious dinner served under the convenorship of Mrs. R. L. Horning. The dinner was followed by the annual meeting of the church, when reports of the honorary deacons, Frank Chesher and Rev. A. L. Huddleston assisted the Rev. L. Keith Daniel in a brief worship service.

To Dr. Huddleston's address he said man had been paid a high compliment that he could be a coworker with God. Satisfying as is a father and son relationship in business how much better is the relationship of the church family working together with God in the extending of His Kingdom.

MEMBERS HONORED

It was a source of great pride to honor thirteen women, who have been members of Victoria Avenue Baptist church for 50 years or more. They are Mrs. Lilly Andrews, Misses Reader and Mrs. Evelyn Cunningham, Miss Frank Hitchon, Mrs. Herbert Fox, Miss Violet Hanley, Miss Cora Levitt, Mrs. John Lott, Miss Ethel Nurse, Mrs. Grace Orr, Mrs. George Pratt, Miss Etta Rowland and Mrs. Percy Skidmore. A rose corsage was pinned on each by Mrs. Walter Neal.

The chairman of the board of deacons, Mr. Walter Neal, spoke of the fine work done by the pastor, the Rev. L. Keith Daniel. There has been a healthy growth in all phases of the church work under his guidance.

In order to present the reports in a most effective and interesting manner graphs were prepared and shown on the screen to portray vital facts about the year's work of each organization, these facts being supplemented by mimeographed books prepared by Miss Eileen Easton, containing the reports in full. There were special thanks to her also preparing the Sunday calendars and to Mr. R. L. Orr, Mr. G. Grenke and Mrs. W. Neal for preparing and showing the graphs.

GAIN IN MEMBERSHIP

It was reported there had been a gain of 30 in membership, bringing the total of the active membership to 312. Eighteen of the 30 had been baptized during the year by Rev. L. K. Daniel. The total givings of all organizations amounted to $18,415.57. Of this amount $3,825.39 was for Mission. The church paid tribute to three who passed away during the year, Mrs. Blackburn, Mrs Gordon and Mrs. Naylor.

This year, under the chairmanship of Mr. M. Lush, saw the completion of the renovation program and the transformation in the prayer meeting room and Sunday school rooms, has elicited appreciative comment from members of the many organizations which meet in those rooms. There were improvements in Fairway Avenue church as well as Mr. Everett Bowers, Mr. Bert Girling, Mr. Hugh Todd and Mr. Alex Gemmell were thanked for their efforts in the renovation of the church.

The audio visual aids committee had a busy year showing eight films at the close of Sunday evening services. The purchase of a microphone and amplifier realized a long-standing dream of this committee to have an adequate public address system in the church and Sunday school auditoriums. The amplifiers were a generous gift of one of the church members.

The church appreciated the faithful service of the choir with Mrs. Dorothy Reilly, choir director, and Mr. William Connor, organist, in providing excellent music all through the year and the special cantatas at Easter and Christmas.

Mixed Marriages In Johore Court Are Opposed

JOHORE BAHRU, Malaya (Reuters) — The wealthy Sultan of Johore is threatened with a revolt among women members of his royal household over male heirs taking European wives.

There is considerable tension at the court and women of royal birth are believed to be behind the plans to form a league against interracial marriages between Malayans and Europeans.

They are likely to demand royal marriage laws from the Malayan government.

"The position is very difficult," a court official said. "We are doing our best to smooth things over but we do not know where it is going to end."

EUROPEAN SULTANAH..

Opposition to mixed marriages is a bone of contention in the Johore court for many years, reached a climax last September when the 52-year-old sultan officially installed his slender wife as sultanah. Lady Marcella Ibrahim, 30, the sultanah, was born in Romania.

On Jan. 5, a pretty English girl, Josephine Trevorrow, became the wife of Tengku (prince) Mahmud, 24-year-old grandson of the sultan and second in line of succession to the Malayan state after his father, the regent. Josephine, 21, daughter of a businessman, became a Moslem before the marriage.

A group of state councillors announced their opposition to the match. Enkik Amar Bin Abdullah, a Malayan political leader, said the marriage was a matter of "great distaste" to most Malayans.

Another grandson of the sultan, Tengku Osman, has been reported planning to marry an English girl, Sandra Redman, 17, daughter of a London headwaiter.

'The sultan of Johore has ruled and second in line of succession to the Malayan state after his father, the regent, Josephine, 21, daughter of a businessman, became a Moslem before the marriage.

Have New Scheme To Consolidate India's States

NEW DELHI (AP)—A new proposal to consolidate India's 27 states into only five big subdivisions appeared to be taking today. It would be aimed at forestalling recurrence of the death and destruction which broke out last week after unveiling of government plans to redraw state boundaries along language lines.

The first step toward such compromise was taken with the announcement that the chief ministers of two big eastern states, West Bengal and Bihar, had agreed to merge their territories into one state of 63,000,000 people, Calcutta, India's largest city and the present capital of West Bengal, would be the capital of the new state.

MIGHT BE APPROVED

There is no indication how the 25,000,000 people of West Bengal and the 40,000,000 in Bihar will react to such a merger, which must be approved by the two state legislatures and the national Parliament, but the two states have been fighting over border territories. Last weekend Calcutta was hit by a general strike, and there were demonstrations in Patna, the capital of Bihar, because the central government's language - boundary plan called for territorial exchanges between the two.

Prime Minister Nehru is said to have approved the Bengal-Bihar merger and to want now to divide the vast sub-continent into only five states—north, east, west, south and central. Language lines would be disregarded.

The prime minister already has appealed to India's 400,000,000 people to "turn your minds from narrow provincial rivalries to larger integration and to Indian unity." Nehru hopes to see Hindi some day supplant the 10 major languages and hundreds of dialects spoken. Officially, however, the ruling Congress party stands firm on the plan for drawing new boundaries according to language.

Care, Control Of Cemeteries Is Discussed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Keith Campbell of Galt, president of the Canadian Association of Memorial Craftsmen, Monday criticized the Ontario government for not implementing more of the recommendations made by a legislative committee for the care or control of cemeteries.

The committee handed down its recommendations early in 1954.

He claimed the government had acted upon only two committee recommendations—appointment of inspectors, and an increase to 15 per cent of revenue for perpetual care.

He urged the government to exert more control over the "commercialization" of new cemeteries and expansions.

"I am afraid," he said, "that the cemetery business in Ontario will one day become a monopoly. In many municipalities, municipal and church cemeteries are filling up. These private firms—and many are the product of one company—will move in and offer to take over the whole cemetery program. They will then make their million and move out, leaving the town with a problem on its hands."

Plight of Poverty-Stricken To Be 'Much on Conscience' When Economic Body Reports

GUIDED MISSILE HAS 1,500-MILE RANGE

Dr. Werner von Braun, German rocket expert, is shown in Washington with a scale-model of the super - secret Redstone guided-missile. He headed the group of scientists and engineers that developed the new weapon. The U.S. defence department described it as the largest United States ballistic missile to have reached the test-firing stage. It would be used as the basis for developing the intermediate range ballistic missile with a 1,500-mile flight.

TORONTO (CP)—The chairman of the royal commission on Canada's economic future says the plight of the poverty - stricken, those who fall behind in times of economic growth, will be "very much on our conscience" when the commission reports to the federal government at the year-end.

"They must be very much on our minds," Walter L. Gordon said Tuesday, "when the time comes for us to draw conclusions about the kind of policies which may be appropriate in the future."

His statement, first he has made of this kind, came after Harvard economics professor John Gelbraith suggested too much thought is being given to economic expansion and not enough on using that growth for human development.

The Canadian-born professor, an international economic - sociologics authority, said progress leaves hard cores of poverty in the wake. Canadians and Americans, attaining wealth, appeared more concerned with getting a new automobile than developing their cultural sides.

CITIES STILL UGLY

Cities were still ugly, Progress gave elit vertical dimensions through billboards advertising the goods progress produced.

Linked to progress usually were thoughts of developing the northland but Prof. Galbraith, who shook the New York stock market last summer with his declaration that U.S. economic growth was over-extended, suggested Canada may get more future economic wealth from her laboratories and drawing boards than from the north.

It was vital to keep abreast of technical and scientific requirements but here, he said, both Canada and the U.S. have failed seriously.

The two countries had left training of scientists, engineers and highly-skilled technicians largely to chance.

"We have suffered an enormous wastage of talent by making higher education dependent not on ability but ability to pay. Our present scramble for highly qualified people is a measure of our failure."

The two countries had to plan to speed progress and correct the mistakes in this field, he said.

Lawyer Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Angelo Branca, veteran Vancouver lawyer, has been charged with assault, damaging a press photographer's camera, and his client, Joe Celona, with assault. The charges were laid by Brian Kent, photographer of the Vancouver Sun.

Kent charges he was punched by Celona while being escorted at the Tupper royal commission hearing into labor racketeering Friday and that Mr. Branca damaged his camera.

The assault started after Kent took a picture of Celona, named before the royal commission as a bootlegger.

Wants Committee To Investigate Arms Shipments

OTTAWA (CP)—Donald-Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) called Tuesday in the Commons for establishment of a special House committee to investigate the question of Canadian arms shipments to the Middle East.

His call came after External Affairs Minister Pearson disclosed that 16,067,685 worth of military equipment has been supplied to Israel during the last two years and $771,121 worth to Egypt. Both of the Egyptian order comprised 15 Harvard trainer planes.

The Canadian arms exported included 25-pounder guns and parts for tanks.

CRITICIZES GOVERNMENT

Mr. Fleming referred to Mr. Pearson's original statement in the House two weeks ago, when the issue was first aired, by the CCF, that he knew of no plane shipments to Egypt or orders for such. Mr. Fleming said government's "fumbling and floundering" had been exposed.

Government handling of the issue had been characterized by "evasion, want of candor, ineptitude and incompetence or a mixture of all four."

(The cabinet last July 7 approved shipment of arms to Egypt and the export permit was issued in early September).

"Why the secrecy (Mr. Pearson) did not know what was going on in a matter so delicate as this . . . will remain a question to be answered because it has not yet been answered," Mr. Fleming said.

Scale of Fees Suggested by Ontario Govt.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario government, which wants the federal treasury to assume 50 per cent of the cost of a health insurance program, has suggested a tentative scale of fees for payments.

The figures were given "for purposes of illustration" in a blue book March government Monday to the federal-provincial health conference. Provincial Treasurer Porter said Tuesday they do not represent an Ontario decision.

The illustrations:

1. A $10 admission fee on admission to hospital as an in-patient plus $2 a day from the patient.

2. Hospital out-patients to pay half the cost of x-ray and laboratory diagnostic services up to a maximum of $10.

3. A minimum payment by the patient of $1 for diagnosis.

Dairy Farmers Approve Sale Surplus Butter

By PETER MAITLAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HAMILTON (CP)—The annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture today swung into its second day of public sessions with a spoiley statement from the Dairy Farmers of Canada approving the sale of surplus butter to foreign countries at cut-rate prices.

In a resolution presented to delegates from across Canada on the convention floor, the dairy farmers urged continued government sale of extra butter stocks to foreign countries.

The dairy farmers also suggested government distribution of milk to school children.

The policy statement was released to the press Tuesday night. It also requested increased tariffs on dairy products and edible oils and suggested study of a plan to give free milk and butter to needy persons and pensioners.

DISCUSSIONS TONIGHT

Delegates are expected to conclude public discussions tonight of 44 resolutions up for approval. If necessary, further public meetings will be held Thursday.

All resolutions passed at the convention must be referred to the board of directors of the CFA before being adopted as official policy.

The CFA represents the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture, Alberta Federation of Agriculture, Saskatchewan Federation of Agriculture, Manitoba Federation of Agriculture and Co-operation, Ontario Federation of Agriculture, L'Union Catholique des Cultivateurs, Co-operative Federation, Quebec, the Quebec Farm Forum Association and the Maritime Federation of Agriculture.

The United Grain Growers, Dairy Farmers of Canada, Canadian Horticultural Council and the National Wool Growers Association are members. In addition, representatives of other farm organizations and federal government agencies in Ottawa ments are attending the conven-

URGE LOANS

Delegates Tuesday urged acceptance of loan applications by farmers by government lending agencies.

A report by the policy committee suggested that, where justified, reduced interest and larger loans be accepted unanimously. Delegates also approved a resolution recommending the establishment of a government agency to extend financial aid in the form of interest-free loans to farmers in disaster areas.

Delegates also recommended the policy committee consider asking the federal government to continue subsidies on feed grains through Veterans Land Act and extend subsidization to young farmers without charge.

DESTROYER ON RAMPAGE

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (Reuters) — The 2,000-ton British destroyer Scorpion today rammed a dock here, plowed through several ships and through three railroad tracks and crashed into a 50-foot high crane, which crashed down on a public road. No one was hurt. The only damage to the destroyer was a slightly dented bow.

This photo, taken in connection with the Queen's forthcoming visit to Nigeria, shows her in the blue diving-room of Buckingham Palace. Dressed in a white and gold tulle gown, she wears the Order of the Garter and miniatures of other decorations.

Woman Member of Commons Asks for Tightening of Laws To Check Sex Crimes Menace

OTTAWA (CP)—A woman Commons member Tuesday night appealed to Justice Minister Garson to tighten the laws on sex offenders to remove such menaces from the public.

Margaret Aitken (PC — York Humber) said in the Commons that the Criminal Code must be revised to permit the courts to order that sex offenders, and even suspected sex deviates, be held indefinitely for treatment.

She said the number of sex crimes in Toronto and Ontario has alarmed people across Canada. She had been asked repeatedly to speak "for a period unlimited."

"As things stand now the people of Toronto—are far ahead of the government in their concern, in their fear and in their determination that something must be done immediately."

Miss Aitken's proposal that courts be empowered to hold sex offenders and suspects was similar to a request made in the Commons last week by Russell Reinke (L—Hamilton South).

At one point Justice Minister Garson interrupted Miss Aitken to state that the Criminal Code now provides that sex offenders may also be held indefinitely. He said it needs only law-enforcement action.

"The law is not being enforced," he

Miss Aitken replied.

And it wasn't only stricter lawenforcement, but a question of setting up psychiatric treatment facilities.

"It's a cure—a preventive—that's needed," she said.

After each sex crime, news reports told of the police rounding up 300 to 400 known suspects. Surely laws were wrong which permitted that many known suspects to be roaming the streets and which permitted little girls to be at their mercy.

"Through our society fear and horror run rampant while we wait for the government to assume responsibility and take action," Miss Aitken said.

She said that in St. Catharines, a young man recently committed an offence against two little girls. In their fear and in their pleased guilty, contritely explaining that he had been drunk at the time.

That was no comfort to the parents of the girls, but it had apparently been a comfort to the judge who gave the man two years' suspended sentence.

There would have been a more severe sentence if the man had stolen a car rug from an automobile, she said. The judge had only added another name to the list of known suspects whom the police rounded up after sex crimes had been committed.

Father of Three Decorated With George Medal

OTTAWA (CP) — A 33-year-old father of three was decorated Tuesday with the George Medal, one of the Commonwealth's most coveted awards for heroism.

The medal was presented to Edward Christian, a Montreal milkman, by Governor-General Massey at an investiture at Government House. He was also presented with the Air Force Cross to two retired members of the air force and one now serving in Ottawa, and decorations to 19 other members of the service.

The George Medal is awarded to both civilians and armed forces personnel.

Mr. Christian rescued the three children from a blazing home on the Caughnawaga Indian reservation near Montreal last September as the burning home three times to save the children, one of whom later died.

Constable Says Woman Not Telling Truth

VANCOUVER (CP)—An interim report—first word on the findings of the R. H. Tupper royal commission inquiry into Vancouver police affairs—will be made today in Victoria by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

The commission has met here intermittently since last July, inquiring into charges of graft and laxity on the part of Vancouver's police force.

It goes into its 39th session today.

A young constable testified Tuesday that he didn't believe a woman cafe proprietor when, he said, she told him her husband had paid her $5,000 a month to protect his bookmaking interests.

Constable James Klein said that Rose Corning—another witness—had told him her husband had made the statement.

SUPPOSEDLY IN JAIL

Earlier, Mrs. Corning's testimony brought laughter to the packed city hall gallery when she said her husband—Jack Williams (Mugs) Corling — had been sentenced to 15 years in 1942.

He was in custody at night, she said, but during the day was "free to go about his business." She said she saw him take bets "on the street and "feel" appeal. That is, when he should have been "washing cars in the police garage."

The day session was highlighted by the testimony of deputy police chief George Mackintosh and superintendent of detectives Jack Horton, both of whom said they have no knowledge of graft within the force.

Superintendent Horton said there were loopholes in police station security on a lottery investigation after a three-year time on evidence from Parnell Johnson.

Mr. Johnson testified Friday.

Superintendent Horton said he believed the reason Mr. Johnson volunteered the lottery information was "to try to get even with his partners. There was a business deal and he got rooked."

Woman Killed in Car Crash

By DON PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The "miracle yarn" spun by the defence department's new process for cloth has reached into 60 countries since it was first announced last year.

J. R. Johnson, chief of the development branch of Canadian Patents Ltd., said in an interview that patents for the process have been applied for in that many nations.

These have cost the Crown company which handles all government-owned patents about $10,000 so far, but if the cloth is as successful as the department expects it to be, the money will soon come back in growing amounts.

LOOKING LIKE CLOTH

"It takes a long time to get something like this going," Mr. Johnson said.

Three Canadian companies meanwhile have been licensed to make cloth by the new spinning process, which produces a yarn expected to be 10 times stronger than that produced by present methods, and capable of that much more work.

Secret of the process is that it produces a yarn with a core for strength and an outer covering for bulk and "feel" appeal. That is, a thread can be woven with tough nylon core for strength and for a worsted covering for suits, skirts and other clothing usually made of soft-textured materials.

The department is using the process to make military clothing, tarpaulins, canvas and other materials that require toughness and strength, Mr. Johnson said. But commercial producers have many other plans for it.

SOON ON MARKET

Dr. Jan Weinberger, inventor of the process, said Canadian producers could soon be making products made of the cloth on the market by spring. He said he received mail on order which he expects will last at least as long as his door. He is 50 and in good health.

He said one British manufacturer who has a new-type zipper under production, is using cloth from the yarn in the zippers, giving much greater strength since most zippers wear out first at the cloth to which they're fastened.

Mr. Johnson said licences will be given mills in other countries through agents appointed by Canadian Patents. Only licence granted directly by the corporation so far, he said, was to a firm in India.

VISITS REFUGEE CAMPS

The growing interest in the yarn is taking Dr. Weinberger on two trips this year. At the end of January he leaves for three weeks to visit mills in Germany, Holland, Germany, France, Switzerland and Austria that plan to begin turning out the yarn.

Before summer, he said, he expects to visit mills in Israel and Japan, where the process is also being introduced.

Plans are being made on his own time—not as part of his duties in the defence department's inter-service development branch. As the inventor, he has been invited by the mills and agents to help get things spinning.

SHARE IN PROFITS

He and Col. H. A. Delcellier, who as director of the development branch has supervised the project, will share 15 per cent of the first $10,000 the government takes in for licences, usually issued on a percentage basis of production. Then their share will gradually dwindle, on a scale set by government regulations for civil service inventions, until it reaches two per cent.

Dr. Weinberger, a genial bachelor who has worked on the spinning process may also find its

Hamilton Council Votes 12-8 to Fluoridate Water

HAMILTON (CP)—This city soon will join the short list of Canadian communities which add mineral to their public water supply to fight tooth decay.

City Council voted 12 to 8 Tuesday night in favor of fluoridation. It is a two-year debate finally settled by the question of a referendum.

Dr. Charles McCabe, health board chairman, said fluoridation will cost each adult about 6c to 8c per cent. It had been approved, he said, by 96 per cent of the medical and dental groups in the United States and Canada.

The process of adding one part sodium fluoride to each 1,000,000 parts water would cost seven to 10 cents a resident.

GIVE APPROVAL

Boards of control have several times cut fluoridation appropriations from waterworks estimates. Last December, however, the health board gave unanimous support to the idea and board of control approved.

All councillors were offered a taste of fluoridated water from a jug carried from Brantford, where fluoridation has been in use the last 10 years.

Meanwhile in Windsor, the health board reaffirmed its support of fluoridation Tuesday night, despite a two-to-one decision last week of any such plan for that city. A. R. McCormick, city dental health officer, said tea drinkers consume at least one part in 1-000,000 of sodium fluoride in each cup and beer drinkers get perhaps twice as much.

HALT PRODUCTION

DETROIT (AP) — Production of the Ford Motor Co.'s luxurious Continental Mark II car will be halted Tuesday by a walkout of 60 members of the biennial corps of employees in the trim and final assembly department said they have completed the production speedup. The company did not comment.

Beefy Butcher Wages Fight Against London Bummarees

LONDON (AP)—A beefy butcher is bucking the bummarees of London's big wholesale meat market and his fight has stirred up a nationwide stew.

Six-foter David Durrant, a 41-year-old butcher and owner of two shops, has challenged Britain's largest union, the Transport and General Workers.

And the bummarees?

That's a nickname for the 600 licensed porters—all TGWU members—at Smithfield market who bring the heavy sides of beef from the wholesalers' carcasses to the retailers' trucks.

Durrant says he is fighting for the right to carry the meat himself and pass the saving in-porters' fees to his customers—at a time of rising food prices, that's popular with housewives. But the bummarees' insist they alone are entitled to do the toting—and they threaten a strike should the butcher ultimately win.

"No one will take any meat away from the market except a licensed porter," declares their spokesman John Spencer Tribe, styled "king of Smithfield."

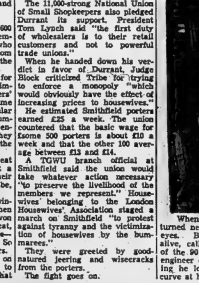
Durrant opened his fight by winning a court test case. But when he tried to exercise his new-won legal right to haul his own meat, wholesalers — fearing a strike— refused to sell him supplies. So he was forced to use the porters.

The butcher pointed out that the average £5 to £6 weekly to porters to carry his meat and that adds a penny a pound to his shop price of meat.

Retail meat traders have backed Durrant's campaign. He is the mayor of London to intervene. The Ministry of Food says that wholesalers are its tenants and it licenses the bummarees.

The 1,250,000-member National Union of Small Shopkeepers also pledged their support. President Tom Lynch said "the first duty of wholesalers is to their retail customers and not to powerful trade unions."

When he handed down his verdict in favor of Durrant, Judge Block criticized the TGWU for "trying to enforce a monopoly which would obviously have the effect of increasing prices to housewives."



He estimated Smithfield porters earned £25 a week. The union countered that the basic wage for some 500 porters is about £10 a week and that the other 100 average between £13 and £14.

The TGWU branch official at Smithfield said the union would take whatever action necessary "to preserve the livelihood of the members we represent." Housewives belonging to the London Housewives' Association staged a march on Smithfield "to protest against tyranny and the victimization of housewives by the bummarees."

They were greeted by goodnatured heckling and wisecracks from the porters.

The fight goes on.

VIEW OF CARNAGE IN TRAIN WRECK

When police and firemen cut into the train that had overturned near Los Angeles, Calif., this is the sight which met their eyes. Bodies were strewn all over the interior and a few, still alive, called for help. Twenty-nine persons died instantly, and of the 90 injured several are given little chance of recovery. The engineer of the train took full responsibility for the accident, saying he fell asleep between two miles before the train, rounding a curve at high speed, toppled over. (Central Press Canadian).

Believe Socialist Leader Guy Mollet, Will Be Premier

PARIS (AP) — President Rene Coty canvassed political leaders today for their advice on the choice of France's new premier.

There is belief that he will announce a nomination by Friday and that Socialist leader Guy Mollet will be the man.

Even if Coty has already made up his mind, custom requires him to interview the leaders of the major political factions before he announces his choice. But Mollet has been the leading contender since soon after the results of the Jan. 2 parliamentary elections became known.

The president had his first talk with Andre le Troquer, newly elected president (Speaker) of the National Assembly, and also a Socialist.

"I think on Friday he may cull the first man capable of forming the next cabinet," Le Troquer told the reporters as he left Coty's office. He added that the premier-designate would be ready to ask the National Assembly for its endorsement by next Tuesday.

In winning the assembly presidency, Le Troquer drew on Communist votes as well as those of his own Socialists and the allied Radical-Socialist party. Opponent of ex-premier Pierre Mendes-France. He defeated the latter's colleague, vice president, Pierre Schneiter of the Catholic Mouvement Republicain Populaire, 280 to 205.

It is believed that, Mollet, too, has won an Mendes-France support. He is offering the Communists no cabinet posts in exchange. With the Radical-Socialist Republican party holding only about 150 of the 596 seats in the Chamber, Mollet's only chance is a right-of-centre coalition of outgoing Premier Edgar Faure supporters with him or uncommitted, Mollet needs the 151 Communist votes to ensure confirmation by the assembly.

Any cabinet Mollet forms is likely to have an important job in it for Mendes-France. The two had a long talk Tuesday on division of the ministries between their factions.

Movement of Migrating Salmon After Leaving Rivers Nearly Solved Say Scientists

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Fisheries scientists think they are getting close at last to one of the greatest mysteries of the sea—where migrating salmon go when they leave the rivers until they return to spawn and die.

The study has been going on for years. But recently it has been intensified by researchers of Canada, the United States and Japan, signatories to the north Pacific salmon fisheries convention. Aim of the convention is conservation of Pacific fish species.

To the fishing industries of these three countries the answer could be worth millions of dollars.

TREATY PROVISIONS

It could mean revision of the treaty under which the Japanese refrain from fishing species of North American origin and don't fish east of a provisional line approximately along the 175th meridian which splits the Bering sea and the Pacific ocean north and south. On their part Canada and the U.S. don't fish for Asiatic species and don't operate west of the 175th meridian.

There are no quotas under the convention.

Officials here say the big question is the extent and location of intermingling of Asiatic and American-spawned salmon in the Pacific and to what extent are American-spawned salmon being taken by intensified Japanese fishing operations in the north Pacific? The Japanese have tripled their catch between 1954 and 1955 and may unwittingly be taking large American stocks.

Should this prove to be the case officials say there would be a move to change the convention and change the fishing boundary to protect the American species.

The question of North American fishermen taking Asiatic-spawned fish hardly arises. Unlike the far-ranging Japanese fleets, Canadian and American boats stay close in their own coastal waters, catching the salmon as they head for the rivers where they were born.

CONVENTION OBSERVED

Fisheries men here say the Japanese are living up to the letter of the convention. Japanese government inspection boats go out with their fleets. Furthermore, the Japanese are helping Canadian and American scientists to find the answer to the intermingling question.

Japanese research ships have joined Canadian and American vessels at sea in the Pacific's greatest salmon survey of all time. It is being carried out under the co-ordination of the north Pacific salmon fisheries commission, the three-nation body which administers the convention.

Reports of this research given at the second annual meeting of the commission in Tokyo last November were termed encouraging. Scientists reported that a search for characteristics by which Asiatic and American salmon can be distinguished on the high seas is showing promise.

Examination of scales to determine the years spent in fresh and salt water, studies of bone structure, scientific measurements and chemical composition have revealed differences between the stocks which spawn in the various areas.

The research will be intensified in 1956.

TO FISH BIG AREA

Vessels of the three countries plan to catch salmon from the salt-ice area where they occur in the north Pacific and the Bering sea. These will be compared scientifically with salmon from fresh waters of the two continents in the hope of determining where stocks from the various river systems go when they take to sea.

The Japanese fleets use drift gill nets to catch the salmon on the open ocean.

Between May and August last year they sent a fleet of 334 fishing boats and 14 factory ships to the north Pacific grounds just south of the Aleutian islands and took 207,674,000 pounds of all types of salmon. The catch amounted to some 64,000,000 fish and the factory ships helped can the salmon on the spot.

In 1954 the Japanese operated 169 boats and seven factory ships in the Pacific area and took a catch of 91,732,000 pounds, a big jump over the 32,366,000 pounds of salmon taken in 1953 by 83 Japanese catchers and three factory ships.

By comparison the total Canadian catch of Pacific salmon between January and September, 1955, was 117,991,000 pounds. But it was admittedly a poor year for salmon.

UNDER SHADOW OF THE IRON CURTAIN

Personnel of a pilotless bomber squadron prepare to perform a launching of a U.S. Matador tactical missile from a secluded thicket in the shadow of the Iron Curtain. Matadors are launched by rocket from a 39-foot tandem axle semi-trailer. Electronic guidance calls the turns for the missile as it goes on its mission at near-sonic speed (over 650 mph). Once over the target, the Matador points its nose downward and streaks toward the goal at supersonic speed. (Central Press Canadian).

Looking particularly impressive in practice after finishing second in International combined competition two weeks ago, Lucille is tabbed by her coach as almost certain to finish in the first five.

With Thursday's activity devoted largely to opening ceremonies, six Canadian skiers, including Miss Wheeler, see their first action Friday.

Clarence Servoid and his brother Irwin, of Camrose, Alta., are entered in the 30-kilometre cross-country event. Carlyn Kruger of St. Sauveur, Que., Ginette Seguin of Quebec City and Anne Heggtveit of Ottawa will join Miss Wheeler in the giant slalom.

The draw for starting positions in the giant slalom enhanced the Canadian champion's chances. Miss Wheeler is scheduled in 15th place in the bulky field, giving her an advantage over late starters if the course proves soft.

Fraud Charged

TORONTO (CP)—A man who police said promised St. Lawrence seaway contracts in order to sell trucks to immigrants at excessive prices was committed for trial Monday on five charges of fraud.

Stanley Garten, 31, was charged originally on 15 counts but 10 were withdrawn by the crown.

Police said buyers paid $1,000 more than market price for the trucks to get the promised contracts. When the contracts didn't materialize, the purchasers complained to police.

CAHA Prexy Beaten by Italian Curler

CORTINA d'AMPEZZO, Italy (CP)—Jimmy Dunn of Winnipeg traded a hockey stick for a curling broom Tuesday with disastrous results.

In a game billed as the Canadian-Italian championships, a rink skipped by Dunn, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, lost 7-6 to an Italian rink skipped by Leo Menardi, a Cortina hotel owner who has been curling for only three years.

Menardi, who launched curling in Italy and skips one of the country's three rinks, drew perfectly on the 12th end to count three points and claim the victory. At the end of the regulation 10 ends, the rinks were tied 4-4 and two extra ends were played.

Menardi challenged the Canadians to a game after learning that Dunn, a guest at his hotel during the Olympic Games, was the skip of a Winnipeg rink.

Curling with Dunn were Mayor Fred Dreger, Frank Neibert and Len Taylor, all of Kitchener, Ont.

Wings' Lindsay Thinks Leafs' Duff Is Bright National League Prospect

Rare, Medium, Well-Done

GETTING CLOSE!

"The time has come," the walrus said, "to talk of many things. Of hockey games, and points and such. And playoffs and such things." So the scrivener would probably have written had he lived on the banks of the Moira—and was a TPT fan.

The trouble is the TPT's will have to do a lot more than talk about it if they want a place in the playoff charmed circle. Time's awastin' and this point column hasn't shown any appreciable increase for some time.

The Cozmen meet the Whitby Dunlops in Bialrville tonight and on Friday night they once again host those pesky Brockville Magedomas.

They face a mighty task in Whitby. However, it has been done and it can be done again—but the Teeps will have to shake the lead from their hockey britches and bring out their failed potential if they hope to come away with a much-needed victory. The same goes for the Friday night tilt against the Maggies.

We may as well face the facts. If the Teeps drop these two games they will be solidly up against the well-known wall as far as a playoff berth is concerned.

Cornwall Colts have noted a marked resurgence of late and are beginning to loom as a dangerous contender for that fourth slot. In fact the down-casters, if the Maggies slump somewhat, could possibly take over the third position.

The Colts have seventeen games to play as compared to fifteen by the Maggies and fourteen for our sides. Then there is that contested game between the Maggies and Colts which will be replayed if it affects the final standing of the clubs.

The Ole Kingsten swami, Yogi Michael J. Kodden, gazed into his second-hand crystal ball again the other day, and this time he saw the "kitty" turning up solidly behind with the statement that the Teeps are bound for oblivion as far as the playoffs are concerned.

The Goodyears could come up with a much-needed assist for the Cozmen tonight if they can emerge victorious over the Bialrville crew. Yes, we're seriously trailing the Goodies by nine points, and in front of Cornwall by seven and our side nine.

As Swami Kodden's crystal ball calls it: "Unless some of the teams go into a tailspin that have cast no shadows before them the order of finish in the senior "B" group will be: Whitby, Kingston, Brockville and Cornwall."

He dubs the Teeps, the "Combines," stating they don't appear to measure up to playoff demands and that elimination sign is clearly visible at this stage of thinking. (The ball took time out at this point for some wishful thinking.)

He dubs Danny Cox the "most handicapped coach in the group, who has discovered it is a difficult feat to achieve teamplay without the presence of all players at the workout. (The ball at this point was beginning to show signs of imbibing too much. It was wobbly and hazy.) Whist it did not know is the Peterborough contingent has missed but few, very few practices with the Teeps.

And the nostalgic ball, a homer if ever there was one, does not take kindly to the fact that the Teeps, which it maligns so much, is the worst injury-and-sickness jinxed club in the circuit. And that is a fact, not an alibi. It is doubtful if the Teeps have been at full strength more than five or six games all season. But you haven't heard too much yelping about it from Coach Cox of the Teeps.

And the jinx is still working. Coach Cox said today that Peter Jones will be out of action for ten days with a stomach disorder. Mulholland is a doubtful starter. Sam has been troubled with an old leg injury. However there is a possibility that Duke Doran will see action.

Turk Barclay will be in the nets against Whitby tonight and Brockville again Friday night. In fairness to Tony Parisi Coach Cox said today that the penalty goalie was not pulled the other night because of backadaisical play when the winning goal was scored. Tony had recently suffered a severe mouth wound, necessitating stitches and naturally was a trifle groggy. It was doctor's orders that he be rested for a game or two.

The Dunlops have a busy week ahead of them in this cockeyed schedule. They play at home tonight and on Saturday and Sunday take the long trek to meet Brockville and Cornwall. Wednesday they are back in Kingston. The Goodies and Dunnies could help the Teeps' chance no end by holding the Maggies and Colts in check, providing, of course, that our side develops a winning streak.

Ole Scarface Thinks Rookie Is Young Crop's Best Winger; Nudging 'Pocket' in Point Race

By The Canadian Press

Ask young Dick Duff who his hockey idol is and he'll say left winger Ted Lindsay.

Ask Ol' Scarface Lindsay to name an outstanding rookie left winger in the National Hockey League and he'll say Dickie Duff.

These two fellers have a mutual admiration for each other although they're on different teams.

"Who wouldn't like to be like Ted," says Duff of the great Detroit Wing forward.

"The kid's got it," says Lindsay. "Duff's going to surprise a lot of players in this league. They're going to find out you can't push him around."

Nobody ever mussed up Lindsay without getting into a battle. He has one of the hottest tempers in the business.

CAN CARE FOR SELF

Most players around the circuit don't know too much about Duff's capabilities. Since the 19-year-old native of Kirkland Lake broke into the big time with the Leafs with Toronto Maple Leafs he's shown he can take care of himself. He can also score goals.

"I wouldn't trade Duff for any other kid winger in the league," Toronto coach King Clancy said Tuesday. "And don't forget, there's some mighty fine talent patrolling the left side.

"Duff has been playing against some of the game's greatest men and he hasn't backed down an inch. When a guy who weighs only 180 pounds can send fellows like Gord Howe or Bernie Geoffrion flying with a check, he knows how to handle himself."

Many experts rate Duff as another Lindsay. He has followed in the path of Lindsay, also a native of Kirkland Lake.

PLAYED WITH MAJORS

Both moved from northern Ontario to Toronto after they starred for St. Michael's College Majors in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league. They made the big jump from junior hockey to the NHL.

Duff plays on a line with Ted Sloan at centre and George Armstrong at right wing, one of the best units in the league. Duff has scored 21 goals and 24 assists for 23 points, two fewer than rookie Henri Richard of the leading Montreal Canadiens. Richard, the highest-scoring rookie in the league has 12 goals and 13 assists.

Duff will be out to better his record in tonight's game against Leafs play host to Chicago Black Hawks in a battle for fourth place.

Bobsleds Carry Thrills Aplenty For Riders

By Webb McKinley

CORTINA d'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—The Olympic bobsled run seems to start gently, like so many ungentle things do.

Two bobsters stand by their sled, pushing it easily back and forth in the snow. A voice on a loudspeaker says, "Crew of Ostler of Germany is ready to start."

The rocking motion gets a little faster. Ostler, a huge barrel-shaped man, looks like his brakeman and pals, "Ela", he shouts.

The two men push the bob forward and back with the rhythm of the count.

Ostler and his brakeman, shouting in German, push the bob forward as fast as they can run. Just before they start the first crouch they hop aboard and are gone.

REASONABLE AT FIRST

At first the sled seems to go at a reasonable speed. You could take a first mild bend yourself, like driving a car.

Then it drops. You see the sled dart forward. No longer is there any soft, sliding motion. The sled begins to clatter and bounce. Ostler ducks his head and the brakeman his bunches forward, bracing for their lives.

It smashes with a roar of wind and swirl of snow-around hairpin bends, climbing high on the icy wall of a curve, flat around five curves, still picking up speed.

DANGEROUS CURVE

A little straightaway. Then Bandidas Azules, Cristallo curve, where many a pilot has gone too high and sailed over the wall.

Finally, there is a long bending downhill run at 60 miles an hour—or faster—and a final curve, very, taken almost vertically.

It's all over, maybe one minute and 24 seconds after it started.

That's the Cortina Olympic bobsleigh track—only 1,600 meters (1,760 yards more than a mile) of run, 150 metres (164 yards) of drop and 16 icy curves.

Counting guards, timekeepers, electricians and the like around, a persons help run the bobsled show. Four of them are doctors and four drive ambulances.

Teepees Defeat Canucks 3-1; Bilts Win 8-2

By The Canadian Press

St. Catharines Teepees are not showing any signs of losing their hold on first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Teepees defeated second - place Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen Tuesday night to lengthen their lead to eight points, the biggest spread any team has held this season.

In the other engagement, Guelph Biltmores continued to move up in the standings by defeating Barrie Flyers 8-2 at Guelph.

A crowd of 1,500 Kitchener fans watched Teepees take a 1-0 lead in the first period and increase it to 2-0 during the second.

Don Carter, Ab McDonald and Gary Eslaugh scored for St. Catharines with Willie O'Dee counting the lone Canuck goal midway through the final period.

LOSE LAROSE

It was a double setback for Canucks. They lost the services of left winger Sonny Larose who suffered a possible broken leg when he crashed into the Canuck goal post with seven minutes remaining in the game.

Right winger Howie Young of Canucks suffered a broken leg in a home game two weeks ago and centre Whitey Dougherty is in hospital with a knee injury.

Ron Howell, an all-star defenceman last season, stretched his scoring streak to 20 games with a pair of goals for Biltmores. He has earned at least one point in each of those games.

Danny Bellisle was also a two-goal performer for the winners. Bill Sweeney, Bill Graham, Phil Shack and Pete Pilotte scored the other Guelph markers. George Ranieri and Gord Loveday were the Barrie marksmen.

Flyers took a 1-0 lead in the opening 20 minutes but Guelph turned the game into a route during the second period with five unanswered goals. Four Guelph counters were scored while Flyers were shorthanded.

Suggests CAHA 'Get Out' of Memorial Cup

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A council Monday recommended that the CAHA "get out" of the Memorial Cup, or Ontario teams will not be able to afford playing beyond the league finals.

The recommendation would mean the CAHA would lose control of the Memorial Cup playdowns.

"We're going to have to get a better share of the gate or drop out of the Memorial Cup," said Hap Emms, coach of the OHA Junior A Barrie Flyers.

A council proposal to be subsidized at the CAHA's annual meeting at Montreal in May provides that the national body will receive a $30,000 yearly grant from the professional leagues and registration fee after a 10,000 scale from Canada's 63,000 registered hockey players.

LIKELY VICTORY

Stafford Smythe, manager of the Toronto Marlboro Hockey Club, said: "Then if a playdown loses money the CAHA will have money to cover losses."

"If it makes money, the two parties involved will share the gate. At present the CAHA gets all the money and pays out a ridiculous sum to cover our expenses.

"The CAHA has to change or the club owners will be forced out of business if they win their league championship. As it stands now a playoff game means money to the Memorial Cup."

Smythe said the Marlboro-Quebec series last year drew $65,000 and Marlboros' share was $1,300. He said the Barrie-Quebec series in 1951 drew more than $100,000 and Barrie received $4,300.

Dutchies Tops Pre-Tournament Speculation Turns to Hockey Runners-up

By Ken Metheral

Canadian Press Staff Writer

CORTINA d'AMPEZZO, Italy (CP)—Jack Kelly's Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen are much prohibitive favorites for the Olympic hockey title that most of the pre-tournament speculation concerns the runner-up spot.

Most competent observers here believe the green-and-white uniformed club will be unbeatable as it takes the title in a walk. The belief is strengthened by reports among observers of the Dutchmen's 90-minute workout.

"They are in a class by themselves," said Markus Egen, star forward of several German entries in international competition, whose team meets Canada in one of the two games launching the tournament Thursday.

German and Italian players who have faced Czechoslovakia and Russia say the Canadians will have no trouble with their fast skating and accurate shooting.

BEST BETS

The Russians and Czechs are considered the best bets for second place with the United States party to watch for third.

Martin Beck, a 22-year-old dental worker from Munich, Germany, and a defenceman on the German team, rates Czechoslovakia as "a tougher club than the Russians" in the 10-team tournament.

The Russian team is substantially the same as the Soviet entry which beat Toronto Maple Leafs for the world crown at Stockholm in 1954 and moved to Penticton Va in the final in West Germany last year.

The Americans, who arrived here Tuesday, hold an impressive 32-game winning streak in exhibition games but coach Johnny Mariucci of the University of Minnesota, a former National Hockey League defenceman with Chicago Black Hawks, isn't raising his hopes too high.

"It doesn't mean much," Mariucci said. "Most of the games were played last week sometime."

The U.S. squad looked impressive last month in beating the strong Fort William Canadians 7-3. But its stock fell Monday night when it was held to a 6-5 victory by a pickup team composed mainly of five Canadians playing in Europe and one Italian.

ROUND ROBIN

The tournament opens with a preliminary round-robin in which the teams are divided into three groups. The top two teams from each group advance to a final round-robin series for the title.
